While it can be authoritatively stated that the nature of the reprisals has not been agreed upon absolutely as yet, Britain and her allies have decided upon the main points which probably will be announced on Monday by Premier Asquith, in a statement for the press, simultaneously with the submission of the position of all the opponents of Germany to neutral countries whose trade is so vitally effected by the present naval methods.

Heavy Seas Save Ship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 27.—Heavy seas, which drenched her decks, saved the Norwegian oil tanker La Habra from destruction by fire after her main oil tanks and deck structures had been ablaze for three days off Portugal, according to advices received here yesterday. While the fire was at its height, five men put off in a lifeboat and were never heard from again.

RELIEF MEASURE

Extension of Legislation in Aid of Finance is Granted

OTTAWA, Feb. 27. — The House yesterday adopted the resolution proposed by Hon. W. T. White, extending the financial legislation passed at the August session, which permits the Governor-in-Council by proclamation to suspend special payments by the Government and the chartered banks, and also empowers the Finance Minister to issue Dominion notes by way of loan to the chartered banks against other gold.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier saw no objection to the resolution. It did not appear to him, however, that the banks stood in need of assistance from the Government, as they had only borrowed $14,400,000, of which $6,500,000 has already been repaid.

Mr. White—And I can have the remaining $7,900,000 in the morning if I wanted to call it in.

In reply to a question by A. K. Maclean (Halifax) the Minister stated that the resolution before the House had nothing to do with the excess issue of Dominion notes, amounting to $26,000,000. He again explained that $10,000,000 of this issue had gone to meet obligations of the Government, $10,000,000 had been loaned to the Canadian Northern upon their Government guarantee debentures, and $6,000,000 to the G.T.P. upon similar security. Parliament would be asked to pass validating legislation, although there was high legal authority for the assertion that none was needed.

The House devoted practically all of the day to the estimates of the Labor and Inland Revenue Departments. Hon. P. E. Blondin made his debut in committee of supply, and was subjected to the usual heckling and bad inage accorded a new Minister. Little real opposition, however, developed, and a number of estimates were passed.

A BASE ON IRISH COAST

German Submarines Believed to go There for Supplies

NEW YORK, Feb. 27.—Britain's reply to German submarine warfare is a powerful gun that will spread shrapnel with deadly force beneath the water, said Rev. Canon James O. Hannay, of St. Patrick's Cathedral, in Dublin, on his arrival yesterday on the White Star liner Baltic.

Canon Hannay came over at the request of his many friends in this country to lecture on "Ireland and the War." By the pen-name of George A. Birmingham he is known the world over as the author of "General John Regan."

"One gun has already been finished, and the completion of others is being rushed day and night," he added. "The people in Britain feel certain that Germany has established a base for her undersea fighters on the Irish east coast, and many are telling a story of the discovery of a pipe attached to the submerged part of a buoy which was found to be connected to a large oil tank imbedded in the bog on the Irish coast.

"According to the story, the discovery was made when naval officers altered the position of the buoy in the St. George's Channel. I personally do not think this is very likely, as the east coast of Ireland is fairly well populated, and it would be almost impossible to stock oil in any place without creating gossip. My own opinion is that Germany has a secret base on the Welsh coast or else her submarines are getting their supplies from a vessel which comes and goes under a neutral flag.

"For some time in Ireland recruiting was fairly good, but the enthusiasm awakened by Redmond's speech in Parliament slacked off a bit, and now the Irish people, except the extremists who are consistent Nationalists without being pro-German, retain their almost habitual anti-British spirit. In spite of this the universal sentiment is that the allies will win."

Austrian Children To Work in Fields.

LONDON, Feb. 27. Vienna despatches forwarded from Venice to Reuter's Telegram Co. state that the Austrian Minister of Education has authorized the employment of school children in the fields where labor is scarce, closing schools, if necessary. It is also said that all of the schools will be closed for the summer holidays at the end of May, a month earlier than usual. According to an official report 132,392 families in Vienna are receiving assistance from the state.

Died While Making Speech.

MILAN, Italy, Feb. 27. — Signor Mosti-Trotti, a radical deputy, died suddenly while he was delivering a speech in favor of the intervention of Italy in the war.

Signor Mosti-Trotti was addressing a large crowd in the Verdi Theatre. His remarks stirred the crowd deeply. As he reached the climax of his speech, amid an unusually enthusiastic outburst of applause, he suddenly pitched forward, dead.

Correspondents To Go To Front.

OTTAWA, Feb. 27.—A cable to the Government from the War Office last night says: "It has been decided to permit small batches of war correspondents to proceed to the front on series of tours of about six days each, beginning March 1."

The badly decomposed body of a woman was found in the lake near Beamsville. There were marks of violence but decomposition had proceeded so far that identification was impossible.

MORE MEN ARE NEEDED

With Enough Troops Allies Could Beat Germans in Short Order

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A communication from a British office describing conditions in France issued by the official press bureau, says:

"The war will last until the German armies are beaten or the German nation is starved. Germany is now short of wheat. The drastic food measures taken by the country will enable it to continue the war until the middle of 1916.

"The allies can defeat Germany while the population is still hungering if the allies had enough men to close in.

"Unless we stretch our British imagination sufficiently to identify ourselves with the allies, we will be unable at the end of the war to say as a nation we are profitable servants."

CARRIE DAVIS TELLS STORY.

Fate of Slayer of Massey Is In Hands of Jury To-day.

TORONTO, Feb. 27. — Carrie Davies told her own story of how and why she shot Charles A. Massey to Chief Justice Mulock and a jury in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday. Simply and without tremor she gave a detailed account of all that happened on the Friday night when the Massey home was the scene of a gay party, on the next day when her employer tried to force his attentions on her, down to the final moment on the Monday evening when she saw him walk up to his own door and being seized with an uncontrollable impulse that he was going "to do her harm," she ran upstairs and grabbed the revolver with which she shot him to death.

The girl herself was the last witness to be heard. To-day, her fate will be in the hands of the jury.

For the defence, H. H. Dewart, K.C., called the girl's brother-in-law, Edward Fairchild, who told of her complaint to him on the Sunday that Mr. Massey had kissed her twice and that she was afraid of him.

PRINCE HENRY IS DISGUSTED

Kaiser's Brother Said to Have Hauled Down Flag

LONDON, Feb. 27. — The Nation says one of the prisoners from the Blucher brought his captors a curious story. It was that not all the heads of the German navy approved the policy of raids on unfortified British towns, and that Prince Henry of Prussia, as a consequence of his opposition, had lowered his flag.

A despatch from Kiel says:

"Admiral von Ingenohl, commander of the German high sea fleet, has been removed from his post and sent from Kiel to Berlin. It is rumored that Prince Henry of Prussia will take his place."

Rev. Allan N. McCroy was inducted as rector of St. Mark's Church, Port Hope.

Every Sip of INSTANT POSTUM Is Satisfaction

because the roasted "berry" of wheat, from which it is made, gives Postum a snappy, delightful flavour — rich and nourishing.

Unlike tea and coffee, Postum never imposes upon its users a tribute of headache, nervousness, biliousness, sleeplessness, heart flutter and other ills, because Postum contains not a particle of the drugs, caffeine and tannin, present in tea and coffee, or any other harmful ingredient.

INSTANT POSTUM

is the concentrated form of this pure cereal food-drink. No boiling required—made in the cup with hot water—Instantly! Wonderfully convenient for the home, for travel, for the picnic — handy anywhere. Delicious! 30c and 50c tins.

If tea or coffee is interfering with your comfort and success, as it does for most users, suppose you shift to POSTUM.

"There's a Reason"

Postum may also be had in the original form — which must be well boiled—15c and 25c packages.

Both forms of Postum are equally wholesome and delicious, and cost per cup about the same.

—sold by Grocers everywhere.

MRS. WISENEIGHBOUR SAYS:

"Why not do your own washing? It isn't hard if an EDDY WASHBOARD is part of your equipment. I have an 'HOUSEHOLD GLOBE.' It's a wonder-worker — loosens the dirt so easily, and I never tear the clothes"

ECONOMIZE! Do your washing at home with the aid of an EDDY "HOUSEHOLD GLOBE" Washboard.

LOCAL MARKET

Bitterly cold winds and bad roads for sleighing was accountable largely for the slim showing made by the farmers on today's market. There was only an average amount of produce brought on, and very little fowl was offered. Butter was fairly plentiful at 35c, while eggs fetched 32c.

Meat, as usual, predominated. Beef ran from 11c to 13c, pork 12c and 13c, and lamb 13c and 14c.

The prices were:

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26.—Wheat prices collapsed nearly eight cents today under excited selling, every fort destroyed at the Dardanelles costing wheat owners at the rate of about 2 cents a bushel. Broadly this was the estimate temporarily put on the chances that 200,000,000 bushels of Russian wheat would soon have a free outlet, unhindered by the Turks. The market, however, made several important rallies, and at the finish was unsettled, 3 to 4⅝c under last night. Corn closed ⅞ to 1c down, and oats off ⅛ to ⅜c. Provisions wound up at an advance of 2½ to 12½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 26.—The wheat market broke sharply this morning. Winnipeg opened 4⅛ to 2⅞ lower. A fair amount of export sales were transacted on the break, one firm had contracted for 140,000 bushels wheat early in the day, and others reported business active.

There were temporary rallies, but generally values kept down around the low points and trading was light.

The total number of inspections on Thursday were 374 cars, as compared with 112 last year and in sight today were 165 cars.

The cash demand for wheat was slow generally. There was an enquiry for No. 3 northern wheat at Fort William for the opening of navigation and there were no offerings.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—Business in grain over the cable today was quiet owing to the limited demand from foreign buyers, and only sales of a few odd loads of No. 2 northern Manitoba spring wheat were made to London for May shipment at 61s 8d. There was a fair demand for ocean grain room for May-June shipment, and further engagements were made at 7s. A feature of the coarse grain market was the weaker feeling in oats, and prices scored another decline of 1-2c to 1c per bushel, with only a fair demand for carlots. There continues to be a good demand for American corn and sales of a number of carlots were made for shipment from Chicago. The trade in flour is quiet and prices are unchanged. Demand for millfeed is good, of which supplies are none too plentiful. Butter is strong. Cheese firm and eggs firm.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Feb. 26.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.45½; No. 1 northern, $1.40½ to $1.45½. No. 2 northern, $1.36½ to $1.42½; May, $1.40¾.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 66½c to 66½c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 53½c to 53½c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $7.30, first clears, $6.30, second clears, $4.90.

Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, Feb. 26.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.48, No. 1 northern, $1.47; No. 2 do., $1.43 to $1.44; May, $1.46¼.

Japan Will Not Press Claims.

PEKIN, China, Feb. 27.—The outlook for an adjustment of the differences which have arisen between China and Japan has improved distinctly. The conferences between representatives of the two nations apparently are progressing toward a compromise.

The most important step yet taken in this direction was disclosed here yesterday. The Japanese Government has given indications which are regarded as definite, that it will not insist for the present upon the group of general demands which it presented.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Care of the Feet.

Few people pay the proper amount of attention to their feet. They require fully as much if not more attention than the hands.

First and most emphatically bathe them every day. This rule goes without exception. The foot bath should consist of hot water and a few drops of toilet (or even household) ammonia.

Take good care to file down the nails, and push back the cuticle on the toes just as the manicurist does. Otherwise a serious and painful ingrown toe nail may follow.

If the feet are given to excessive perspiration powder lightly every morning and night with pulverized alum.

Corns—hard and soft—bunions and all other feet affections should be treated only by experts. Avoid the use of a razor on them yourself unless you choose to risk an infection.

Callous spots from walking, dancing, etc., may be removed by soaking in hot water and rubbing with pumice stone.

Strikers Must Go Back.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—Through Sir George Askwith, chief industrial commissioner, the Government sent a peremptory order yesterday to the 10,000 shipyard engineers on strike at the Clyde that they must resume work on Monday, as "important munitions of war urgently required by the army and navy are being held up."

The strikers demand an increase in wages of four cents an hour.

Hamilton Man For V. C.

HAMILTON, Feb. 27.—Word has been received here from France by relatives of Kenmuir Watson, a non-commissioned officer of the Princess Pats, that his chum, Lieut. Gourlay Colquhoun of the same unit has been recommended for the V. C., following a daring deed in carrying on his back off the field an injured soldier while the regiment was under fire. Lieut. Colquhoun is one of the youngest of local military officers.

TORONTO PROFESSOR HONORED.

Prof. McLennan Made Fellow of the Royal Society.

LONDON, Feb. 27. — Prof. John Cunningham McLennan of Toronto University has been selected by the Council of the Royal Society for election to the society.

Prof. John C. McLennan, B.A., Ph.D., F.R.S.C., F.A.A.S., was born at Ingersoll, Ont., in 1867, of Scottish parents. He graduated from the University of Toronto in 1892. He was Associate Professor of Physics from 1902-7 when he became professor of Physics and Director of the Physical Laboratory.

The professor's election to the Royal Society entitles him to bear the letters F.R.S. Fellows of the Royal Society are distinguished in the world of science, it being a scientific institution.

Col. Maritz Arrested.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Cape Town says it is reported there that Lt.-Col. S. G. Maritz, the rebellious Boer leader, has been arrested and sent to Windhoek, Cape Colony, as a prisoner.

A despatch from Pretoria on Feb. 10 said newspapers there had published a report that Col. Maritz had been executed by the Germans for treachery. His military movements were supported by the Germans of German Southwest Africa. His reported execution was said to have been due to an attempt to surrender to the British at Kakamas the forces under his command.

Enver Pasha Gets One, Too.

FRANKFURT, Germany, Feb. 27.—(Via London.)—Emperor William has bestowed the decoration of the Iron Cross on Enver Pasha, Turkish Minister of War, according to the Constantinople correspondent of The Frankfurter-Zeitung. The Minister has telegraphed his warmest thanks to the Emperor.

German Rations Decreased.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—According to a despatch from Berlin, the German authorities have decided upon a considerable decrease in the bread ration for the army.

Dancing as an Art.

"As a pastime dancing is capable of becoming the most potent influence in favor of national health and beauty that America ever had," declares Troy Kinney in the Century. "As an art it is a vehicle not one shade less eloquent than painting, music, drama or literature. Ballet pantomime, in fact, combines the resources of these, adding, for any one attuned to line harmony, a supremely poetic message of its own. It becomes an obligation to consider means by which the present magnificent beginnings of a national choreography may be conserved."

London Earthquakes.

London has not altogether escaped the ravages of earthquakes. In February and March of 1750 Londoners were startled out of their wits by a terrific shock. The people were so alarmed that thousands spent the night parading the streets in a state of frantic terror, and Hyde park was crowded with campers out, the more daring whiling away the hours by playing cards by candlelight.

Bottled Soda Water
A Cold Weather Delight
You drink Cold Water in winter. Why not Cold Soda Water?
Every member of your family needs soda water in winter even more than in summer, because the blood grows sluggish and the system becomes clogged with impurities because of lack of out-door exercise.
Liberal draughts of our delightful bottled beverages flush out the system, tone up the nerves, and digestion, and gives both health and happiness—especially to the children. Try a case. You will repeat the experiment. Be sure you get Knox's.

DETAILS TO GOVERN COMPETITIONS FOR THE NICHOLLS TROPHY

A challenge cup having been presented by Lt.-Col. Frederick Nicholls to the Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association "Home Guard," to be competed for annually, under details as arranged by the executive of the association, the following details will govern the competition for 1915:

1. Date of match—March 9th to 13th, inclusive.

2. The trophy will be shot for by teams of 12 members each from each company.

3. Teams will be selected by captains of companies and the names handed in to the chairman of match committee (Major Layfield), not later than March 4th. The name of one spare man may be included in the list.

4. Teams will fire on the date and at the time as arranged by the match committee— due notification being given each team.

5. Targets — The targets used will be the 3rd class (400 yards), 2nd class (600 yards), 1st class (1,000 yards). One of each of the above targets will be set up side by side on the butt for each individual competitor.

6. Number of rounds — Seven shots to count on score and one sighting shot will be fired on each target, commencing on one 3rd class target. The whole number of shots will be fired in one series, the only interval being the registering and spotting of the sighting shot on each of the three targets.

7. In the case of the 1st and 2nd class targets, the score will be registered (1st) to count from the upper left target, (2nd) lower left target, (3rd) upper right target, (4th) lower right target.

8. Rifles and ammunition issued by the association only may be used in this competition.

9. Rifles and back sights will be shuffled.

10. Competitors, when called on, will take their places on the firing point where designated. No changing of places or rifles will be permitted. Any infringement of this rule will disqualify the competitor so doing.

11. Firing — On the order "All fire," each competitor will fire his sighting shot, and "cease fire." The sighting shot will be registered and spotted, after which the full score on each target will be fired. This procedure will be carried out on the commencement of fire on each succeeding target.

12. The place of each competing team will be decided by the aggregate of scores made by the members of their respective teams.

13. In all cases where applicable the regulations of the "Dominion of Canada Rifle Association" will govern, in any other case the fiat of the match committee will decide.

14. All competitors must comply with the orders of range officers in charge of the competition; this is necessary for the comfort and safety of all concerned, and any infringement will mean disqualification of the offending member.

Match Committee:
Major R. E. Layfield,
Captain W. H. Moore,
Captain F. Bartlett.

Italy To Prohibit War Meetings.

ROME, Feb. 27.—The Italian Government has decided to prohibit in the future meetings called for the purpose of arousing sentiment for or against Italy's participation in the war. This step was taken owing to the serious disorders which have resulted from such meetings in which a number of persons have been killed or wounded.

Was Probably Sunk By Mine.

COPENHAGEN, Feb. 27. — The Swedish steamer Mars is believed to have been sunk by a mine in the North Sea.

She left England on Feb. 18, the day the German war zone proclamation went into effect, and nothing has been heard of her since.

Price of Beer Up.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The Chronicle says the first rise in the price of beer in Berlin has taken place. It is only a little rise, but the burghers are indignant. The prices of beer in Berlin, according to quality, were 10, 15 and 20 pfennigs for a small glass. They are now 11, 16 and 21 pfennigs. The great difficulty is the odd copper prinnig, as Berliners are not accustomed to pay out a smaller sum than 5 pfennig nickel. Notwithstanding the scarcity of copper the mint has had to supply large quantities of single pfennigs. The Berliner vents his indignation on the unfortunate waiter, who, instead of the usual 5 pfennig tip, is now put off with a paltry 4 pfennig.

INVENTION BY MR. T. Q. QUARTERMAINE

Today's Mail and Empire refers as follows to an invention by Mr. T. Q. Quartermaine, of the city engineering department:—

Thomas Q. Quartermaine, of Peterborough has invented a rudder which is affixed to the bow of a vessel and is to be used in cases when sharp turns have to be made. The rudder does not detract from the appearance of the vessel, is below the waterline, and when not in use is entirely inside the vessel. In order to project the rudder hydraulic power, steam, motor power, pneumatic power, and exploded gas can be used. Mr. Quartermaine states that with his invention an ocean liner could be made to turn at right angles from her original course in less than 100 yards without the slightest danger.

SAILINGS HELD UP.

Strike of Coal Passers Causes Delay at Liverpool.

LONDON, Feb. 27. — Representatives of American transatlantic steamship companies said yesterday that sailings from Liverpool were being somewhat delayed by a strike of coal passers. It is expected that the steamships which have been held up on their account will sail not later than Monday.

The steamship representatives said that there was no foundation for a report that sailings had been suspended on the order of the British Admiralty.

The steamship Philadelphia of the American Line, which was to have sailed from Liverpool for New York to-day will be delayed at least until Monday on account of the strike. Representatives of the company say they were hopeful that she would be able to sail on Monday, but that they could give no assurances.

COMMENT
As You Like it

The P. C. I. hockey team went to Port Hope today to play the T. C. S. The team will line up as follows:

Goal O'Brien; right defence Long; left defence, Eastwood; rover, Knapman; centre, Huycke; right wing, Smythe; left wing, Stevenson.

Messrs. Frank Barrie and Grant Latimer who have been wintering in Field, Ont., returned to the city today. The pair saw the Varsity-Lindsay game in Toronto and according to "Dank" Wilfrid Stratton was one of the speediest men on the ice.

Port Hope Guide.

Revenge is sweet, and the so-called sports of Lindsay were put away last night by the Varsity seven, much to the delight of Port Hope. The score was 12 to 7, and the exhibition a very fair one. We had the pleasure of witnessing Lindsay's downfall, and during the progress of the game we were sandwiched in with the two stalwarts John Carew, M. P. P., and Joseph Hickson. We had twelve opportunities to give vent to our feelings, and did so every time. Captain Simpson now realizes that he might better have left Port Hope in the running and had the championship of Ontario brought to the Midland district.

BROUGHT BACK TO CITY TO FACE CHARGE OF THEFT

Pancrazio D'Ermenegildo, an Italian, is locked up at the police station having been brought to the city last night by Detective Newhall from Welland. He is held on an information sworn out by Leonardo Capone, a local Italian, who charges him with the theft of $160, about three weeks ago.

The accused left the city shortly after the theft was committed. Capone requested the police to locate him and as a result of enquiries, and a description of him mailed around the province, he was arrested in Welland.

A telegram from the Welland chief constable apprised Chief Thompson of the arrest.

D'Ermenegildo will come up for trial on Monday.

BREWER BROWN TO SPEAK AT OTTAWA

Ottawa, Feb. 27. — "Brewer" Brown, the well known ex-prize fighter and converted drunkard, is coming to Ottawa from Peterborough, and on Monday evening will speak in the Slater street citadel of the Salvation Army. His subject will be From the Prize Ring to Platform, dealing with his life as a pugilist and telling how he came to be converted. He is now connected with the Salvation Army and is doing good work on the platform.

Foresters' Anniversary.

The twenty-seventh anniversary of the founding of Court Peterborough Canadian Order of Foresters was fittingly celebrated last evening by Courts Peterborough and Court Stanley in the Foresters' Hall on Simcoe Street. The fore part of the evening was made up of an excellent musical program during which Mr. J. J. Hartley acted as chairman. Refreshments were well served, after which the younger element enjoyed dancing. It was one of the most thoroughly enjoyed evenings held in the Foresters' Hall in some time.

COMMITMENTS TO LOCAL JAIL FOR DRUNKENNESS

A report on the License Acts for the year of 1914 gives a table showing the number of commitments to goal for drunkenness during the years 1885 to 1914, both inclusive. Peterborough is credited with 143 commitments in 1914, an increase of 24 over the preceding year. This is the greatest number since 1885, when there were 27 commitments. The smallest number was 6 in 1900.

The table given below shows the number of commitments for the years 1908 to 1914, both inclusive. The figures, it must be understood, are not the number of cases of drunkenness dealt with by the courts.

Persian Bread.

The Persian native bread today is very little different from that used a thousand years ago. The Persian oven is built of smooth masonry work in the ground and is usually about the size of a barrel. Many of them have been used for a century. The dough is formed into thin sheets about a foot long and two feet wide and slapped against the side of the oven. It takes in a few minutes.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mrs. Edward Staunton has returned to the city after a visit to Port Hope.

Mrs. John Allan, 539 Downie St., will receive on Tuesday afternoon from 3.30 to 6, and not again this season.

Mrs. J. Wilson, of 372 George St., has returned to the city after spending considerable time selecting styles in millinery.

Miss Mandy Lee returned to Woodstock today, having accepted a position with the John White Co., Limited.

Mr. Thos. William Thurston, of Dunsford, has returned home after spending a very pleasant time with Peterborough friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Oke and son left yesterday on the C. P. R. afternoon express for a trip to points in California.

A surprise progressive euchre party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Fitzgerald, at Lakefield, on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Christie, who are leaving Lakefield to reside in Midland. Seven tables were in operation during the evening and a most delightful time was spent.

The Kitchener Red Cross Club desire to extend their thanks to Lieut. Rogers and the men of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles and the 39th Battalion for the handsome sum of $51.30, which shall be used for Red Cross purposes only.

At last Thursday's meeting of the Morning Musical Society those contributing piano and vocal numbers were Miss Hurley, Miss Mae Laing, Miss Jean Hill, Mrs. Frederick, Miss Londregan, Mrs. G. A. Smith, and Miss Grundy of Toronto.

The highly creditable manner in which Miss Ada Richardson, soprano soloist, acquitted herself in Toronto, at a concert where she sang, has earned for her a warm welcome upon any future appearance in Toronto. Miss Richardson contributed three solos at a concert given in St. John's Presbyterian Church, Broadview ave. Great praise was bestowed upon her vocalism. She sang with great dramatic force and earned much applause and the Toronto papers spoke very highly of her work.

The contents of the bale, which was sent to the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital, Shorncliffe, England, on Thursday, February the 18th by the Peterborough Progressive club are as follows:—

56 night shirts, 62 day shirts, 1 pair blankets, 35 pairs socks, 18 scarfs, 112 hospital handkerchiefs, 21 handkerchiefs, 2 bundles of old linen, 3 bundles of old cotton, 2 elderdown nightingales, 3 pairs elderdown bed boots, 13 pairs felt slippers, 4 face cloths, 1 suit of clothes, 2 balachava caps, 5 pairs knee caps, 72 pairs guaze bandage rolls, 84 yards of cotton bandage rolls, 10 packages of tobacco, 14 pairs wristlets, 72 operating room towels.

In addition to the above the bale contained 19 day shirts and 5 pairs socks donated by the Bridgenorth Patriotic Society which also sent in January last the very generous donation of thirty-five dollars.

The members of the S.S.L. Club donated two face cloths, six scarfs and one pair wristlets; they also knitted scarfs, hemmed towels and cut hospital handkerchiefs. The Girls' Reading Circle hemmed towels, knitted scarfs and donated three scarfs. Seventeen of the night shirts were made by the ladies of the George Street Methodist Church Sewing Society.

On January 4th, we sent twenty-five dollars for lock-jaw serum for the hospital.

ACTIVITIES OF DAUGHTERS OF THE EMPIRE

Mrs. E.B. Clegg is Re-elected Regent at Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the 57th Regimental Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire was held in the recreation room of the Armouries on Thursday afternoon. The attendance was very large, bespeaking keen interest in the work of the chapter.

The annual report showed a very busy year as well as an important one. Since the last anual meeting our Empire has been drawn into this terrible war. When war was declared, members of the chapter met and discussed how they could best help in this great crisis which has come upon us. They decided to unite with the ladies of the city, and a war committee was formed. Flag day held and $2000 realized, half of which was sent to the Canadian hospital ship fund and the remainder used to furnish comforts for men and the families of the men who had gone to the front. When possible, our men have been supplied with lunch before leaving for the training camps, and other help given.

One important part of the work of the chapter was decorating the graves of the departed soldiers on Empire Day, thus bringing the lives of the brave back to memory.

In the spring, when the Duke and Duchess of Connaught and Princess Patricia were here, the Daughters of the Empire presented their Royal Highnesses with flowers. In October the management of the Oriental Hotel kindly offered us the use of their tea room for a week. Since the new year we have held teas every Friday in the same place.

The work of distributing war literature in the schools is another important feature of the work, and on Empire Day a committee of ladies visited the various schools.

The treasurer's report compared very favorably with that of last year.

Mrs. E. B. Clegg, the regent, spoke of the excellent work done by the committees and thanked all the members of the chapter for their untiring work. Mrs. Clegg's remarks tended to further instil patriotism into the homes and schools.

The regent also referred touchingly to the great loss the chapter had sustained on the demise of Mrs. (Judge) Huycke, who was always an energetic and faithful member.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

Regent—Mrs. E. B. Clegg.
1st Vice-Pres.—Mrs. J. Mills.
2nd Vice-Pres.—Mrs. D. Walker.
Standard Bearer—Mrs. Reginald T. Hounsell.
Echo Sec.—Miss F. Burnham.
Treasurer—Mrs. J. Gemmell.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. F. C. Neal.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. J. E. Sharp.
Executive—All of the above, also Mrs. V. Eastwood, Mrs. J. C. Davidson, Mrs. Rush, Mrs. Gliddon, Mrs. Sharp, Mrs. J. H. Eastwood, Mrs. Hill, Mrs. Amys, Mrs. Cottrell, Mrs. T. A. S. Hay.

Mrs. Vincent Eastwood read a very interesting paper on events leading up to the present war, and Mrs. Middleton sang a vocal solo accompanied by Miss Wood, which was well received. Dainty refreshments were served by Mrs. Young, assisted by Mrs. Merrill.

During the afternoon Mrs. R. T. Hounsell presented the chapter with a handsome card bearing the crest of the I. O. D. E. in water colors. The regent on behalf of the chapter expressed appreciation.

Tea will also be served next Friday afternoon at the Oriental tea room under the auspices of the Daughters of the Empire.

THE PLEASURES OF READING

Travel.

My earliest recollections are connected with India, centering round a bungalow perched on one of the slopes of the ice-clad Himalayas and a great city past whose walls rolled the waters of the mighty Ganges. The memories are vague and indistinct and I could no more give the exact location of the province wherein the bungalow was situated or the name of the city past whose walls the river flowed than I could off hand, call out the letters of the alphabet backwards. But, confused and indistinct as these memories are, they are nevertheless realities. For there was something beyond the mere living in a bungalow or the sight of a great river to rivet these things in my mind. In the first place the grandeur of the snow-clad peaks of the highest mountains in the world created such an indelible impression that even through the vista of the receding years I still see them looming up in the gathering shadows, whilst the never-to-be-forgotten spectacle of human corpses floating past the city walls on the sacred waters created another impression on my mind that has never passed away. I did not know then but I know now, that the corpses were the corpses of Brahmin dead that had been cast by mourners on the bosom of the Ganges to be carried to Paradise.

India is undoubtedly one of the most interesting countries in the world and yet it is within only recent times that it has began to excite that attention that its importance and merit deserve. Its earliest historic records are obscure. We know that its subjugation was attempted by Sesostris, Darius and Alexander the Great but we know little of the details. Tradition leads us to believe, however, that art and science flourished amongst the Hindoos long before they had obtained a footing in Egypt, Persia or Greece. But the written memorials of its past are so filled with fable that it is impossible to separate the true from the false and we only get a true view of its history from the time that its discoverer Vasco De Gama, the Portuguese explorer landed on its shores.

The Indian Empire is an immense empire, so immense that at one end of it reigns excessive heat, at the other excessive cold; the fruits of the temperate zone and the pines of the far north are equally natives of its soil. Side by side with valleys of unsurpassed richness stretch tracts of impenetrable jungle and forest, peopled with some of the fiercest animals and deadliest serpents known to man. It is a country of contrarieties, for right in the heart of apparently inaccessible mountains will be found wonderfully fertile plains of surpassing beauty such as the little kingdom of Cashmere, which is held by many travellers to be a terrestrial paradise in miniature.

Leaving its physical aspects we may turn where we will and still find cause for wonderment in the customs of the people, their religious rites, their magnificent buildings and the curious juxtaposition of splendour and squalor that their life exhibits. Their system of caste derived from the Portuguese word "Casta," a breed) has obtained for many centuries and strange as it may appear there are many advantages derived from the exercise of it. It corresponds to the class system of other countries but carries with it penalties for its loss which are in many cases absolutely abhorrent. There are four great castes in India. The Brahmins, who exercise all ecclesiastical functions, the Vaisyas, who cultivate the ground and indulge in all commercial pursuits, the Sudras, or labourers and lastly the Pariahs. The Pariahs can hardly be regarded as a caste as they are held in universal detestation by all the other natives. Hindoos who lose caste are ranked with the Pariahs and the degradation is regarded as worse than death. There are innumerable sects or tribes, the most notable of which in days gone by were the Thugs a sect of assassins who worshipped the god Kali who presided over sensual indulgence and destruction. The Thugs were exterminated years ago, but their fame survives. Whilst on this subject mention must be made of the Fakirs, that mysterious order of priests who live for the most part in convents and having taken upon themselves vows of chastity, poverty and obedience, consider themselves part of the Deity. Some of these fanatics wear no clothing and may be seen sitting naked, day and night, on a bed of ashes under the shade of the great trees surrounding the temples of their idols. They perform many strange acts of penance, such as standing on their heads for a whole day, keeping their arms held aloft for weeks, making long pilgrimages, with their feet loaded with heavy weights, etc. They think that by such acts they earn an entrance into heaven. They are wonderful conjurers, too, and their feats are the amazement of everyone who sees them. One could write two or three pages more with ease on the subject of the fakirs as well as on many other aspects of Indian life. If enough has been written however, to show what an interesting country India is, and to raise the desire in one here or one there to read books of travel relating to it, this article will not have been written in vain.

NORMAL SCHOOL AT HOME

Young people to the number of four hundred attended the annual "at home" of the Normal School Literary Society in the large auditorium of the institution last night. The interior of the building was gaily decorated with flags, bunting and streamers. The members of the reception committee extended a cordial welcome to the guests and were untiring in their efforts to carry out their duties.

The program consisted of an opening selection by the Grand Opera House orchestra, which also supplied music for the promenades; a Gypsy chorus by Normal School girls; a vocal solo by Miss Dorothy Allan; violin selection by Miss Lora Logan; wooden doll drill, by Normal girls. There were twelve promenades and buffet lunch was served by Hoopers, in the drill hall. The wooden doll drill was expected to be a feature event and this it surely was. The young ladies were doll-like in appearance, with regard to their costume, mechanical movements and attractiveness, the latter quality being predominant.

The society and reception committee are to be congratulated on the success of the function. The officers of the literary society are: President, Mr. J. A. Rorke; 1st Vice-Pres., Miss M. Miller; 2nd Vice-Pres., Miss C. Poast; Secretary, Mr. J. B. Hough; Treasurer, Mr. J. T. Cullis. Committee: Miss L. Bateman, Miss I. Brumwell, Miss H. Lovering, Miss W. Meadows, Miss M. Ruttan, Miss F. Nicholls, Miss I. Whytock, Mr. L. Copp.

Mr. and Mrs. Duncan Walker, Mr. J. A. Rorke, Miss M. Miller, Miss M. Heath, Miss H. Lovering and Miss M. Parker were the reception committee.

DIED AT WARSAW.

The death occurred at Warsaw this morning of Miss Louisa Lukey, sister of Mrs. Charlotte Lumsden, of this city, in her 80th year.

The gold medal of the Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, London, has been awarded to Mr. Willet G. Miller, LL.D., Provincial geologist, of Ontario.

COMMISSIONER RICHARDS DISCOVERED BY GEN. BOOTH

Commissioner W. J. Richards the newly appointed leader of the Salvation Army in Canada and successor of the late Commissioner David M. Rees, who perished in the S.S. Empress of Ireland disaster, will visit Peterborough and will speak at the Salvation Army Temple on Sunday morning and the Opera House Sunday afternoon and night.

The new commissioner is one of the few remaining officers who was personally called by the late General Wm. Booth and therefore, is one of the pioneers of the organization. The story goes, when the General visited the town in which the then Mr. Richards resided, to conduct a series of revival services he heard the young man speak. He was so favorably impressed that Mr. Richards was asked if he would not go into the training college, which he did. This was 36 years ago and the commissioner has rendered so many years of unbroken service.

He has been closely identified with the Salvation Army in "Darkest England Schemes," having done much to establish what is known as the Men's Social Work.

His usefulness was not confined to this branch of army service, but having earned for himself the reputation of being a clever and capable administrator, and a brilliant platform speaker, Commissioner Richards has had full command of the Army work in Denmark, South Africa and New Zealand. The latter country was his charge when appointed by the general, Bramwell Booth, to Canada. It it interesting to know that the four sons of the commissioner have followed in their father's footsteps, and are now officers in the Salvation Army holding important positions in Java, South America, the Continent and London, England.

The members of the Salvation Army in Canada are delighted with the choice of the general for their new leaders, and it is confidently expected that the work of the Army will receive a mighty impetus and that great progress will be made during their stay.

Since arriving in Canada Commissioner Richards has visited the principal cities of the West and in Toronto, where the headquarters of the Salvation Army is located, his public reception in the Massey Hall was without precedent.

The Advantage

of the Toric lens is, that it is ground exactly to fit the curve of the eye, thus saving the strain of accommodating the vision, which has to be done with a flat lens when looking anywhere, except straight ahead, they are also neater in appearance and cost very little more.

"Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch"

Synopsis

The story opens with the death of Mrs. Vanderhurst, who leaves an only child, Lovey Mary, an heiress, who disappears and finds work as a circus girl. Hiram Wiggs has run away from Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch, and has become a ring master and a bigamist. Lovey Mary does not take kindly to circus work, and is ill-treated by King, the circus master, who offers to get her a job elsewhere. But discovering that she is an heiress, he has her secreted, and replaces her by another girl, who poses as the heiress. Lovey Mary escapes with Hiram Wiggs' little boy, Tommy, and takes refuge at Mrs. Wiggs' home at the Cabbage Patch; but King trails and recaptures her. Bob, the lawyer's clerk, mistrusts King, trails him, and rescues Lovey Mary. And she, producing proofs of her identity to the lawyer, is recognized as the heiress. Hiram Wiggs' circus wife having died as the result of an accident in the ring, he returns home, and at the instigation of Lovey Mary, is forgiven by Mrs. Wiggs, Mary adopting Tommy, and keeping the secret of Hiram's bigamous adventure. The outline of the plot gives a clue, but only a faint one, to the wealth of the local color and atmosphere with which this offering is splendidly furnished. The domestic troubles of Mrs. Wiggs are always contrasted with good-humored happenings. Marrying and giving in marriage occur in her homely entourage, and "The Cabbage Patch" becomes the focal point for many joyful episodes. And the Cabbage Patch is a haven of refuge for poor, hunted Lovey Mary in her trials and tribulations. Realism characterizes the scenes of circus life. King, the circus master, is a heartless and greedy brute. We see the circus in full swing. Hiram Wiggs' young wife (the second and illegal one) is a graceful bareback rider, but she is injured, and dies in the pursuit of her calling. Lovey Mary finds consolation in carnig for the girl's child—a very tender and beautiful touch. Lovey Mary's papers of identification are stolen from her, and so is the locket containing a portrait of her father. And around this theft much excitement originates. It is of course the pivotal point of the play, for, with them in her final possession, Lovey Mary is enabled to right many wrongs.

A SECOND REMAND.

Arthur Torkler, who was arrested near Hastings and brought to Peterborough, charged with vagrancy, and remanded, was again remanded for a week this morning by County Magistrate Langley. Torkler was alleged to be a German spy.

REPRISALS AGAINST GERMANY BY ALLIES

Will be Enforced With Strict Observance to Dictates of Humanity but Allies do not Propose to Allow Their Efforts to be Strangled by Judicial Niceties

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 1. —"Germany has driven her opponents to adopt retaliatory measures to prevent commodities of every kind from reaching or leaving Germany," said Premier Asquith in the Commons today. Referring to the German naval campaign against British shipping, Premier Asquith declared that Germany had violated systematically all conventions intended for the mitigation of warfare. She had taken further steps, the premier said, by organizing "an under-sea campaign of piracy and pillage."

Germany, he said, was not blockading and could never blockade, English shores. Referring to what he termed whispers of peace, Premier Asquith said it was not time to talk of peace, and that this time would arrive only when the great purpose of the Allies is in sight of accomplishment.

Proposed measures of reprisal against Germany, the Premier said, would be enforced with strict observance of the dictates of humanity, but the Allies did not propose "to allow their efforts to be strangled in a network of judicial niceties." There was no intention, he explained, to confiscate detained ships or cargoes unless they were liable to confiscation under the ordinary conditions of war.

The Premier declared that the Allies would hold themselves free to capture goods wherever there was presumption that such goods were destined for the use of their enemies or had been sent from hostile countries.

GRAMPIAN CHASED BY SUBMARINE.

Halifax, March 1. — The Canadian Pacific liner Grampian arrived on Saturday, and it is stated that while coming through the Irish channel she was chased by a submarine.

UNITED STATES SERVED WITH NOTICE.

WASHINGTON, March 1. — Great Britain and France today served notice on the United States that they would hold themselves at liberty to stop all shipping hereafter to and from Germany,

THE PARIS STATEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 1. — The afternoon official statement says: "There is nothing to add to the communication of yesterday except that in Champagne, different supporting positions we successfully secured, now form a continuous chain two kilometres in length to the north and northwest of Perthes, and that in the Vosges our attacks made some slight progress at Chapaelotte, north of Celles."

Losses in the East

LONDON, March 1. — The Morning Post's correspondent in Budapest says that although the Austrian military authorities admit only four hundred thousand casualties since the war began, inreality there have been four times that number in killed, wounded and prisoners. The first line army of two million with which Austria opened the war is now practically non-existent. She still has from three and a half to four million men in the field or in training and the spirit of the army is by no means broken.

The Daily Mail correspondent at Copenhagen says seven recent lists of Prussian casualties bring the total up to 1,102,212, to which mush be added 156 Bavarian, 113 Saxon, 125 Wurtemberg and 19 naval lists.

The Russian general staff in the Caucasus announces that the Russians, driving the Turks before them, have reached the River Khopatchai.

The Daily Telegraph's correspondent at Petrograd says: "It seems no longer premature to assert that the German invasion of Russian soil has failed. The outstanding features of the situation are that the enemy has been forced into a defensive at almost every point along the Niemen-Bobr-Narev line; that the centre has been completely smashed in at Przasnysz, and that for a front of thirty to forty miles he is retreating rapidly, here and there in disorder.

An announcement in Petrograd today says that the Russian progress in the region of Przasynsz has been notable. One village after another has been captured, with several hundred prisoners in each.

Assurances continue to come from Bucharest that Roumania will soon line up with the Allies. Ten classes of reserves have been called out for March 13th.

THIRTY PERSONS REPORTED DEAD

Bomb Exploded on Mexican Gunboat

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Galveston, March 1.—A story has reached the Mexican consulate here but lacks confirmation, that thirty persons including five women were killed yesterday aboard the Mexican gunboat Progresso, by an explosion of a bomb which had been smuggled aboard concealed in a barrel of rice.

JUDGMENT FOR PLAINTIFF.

His Honor Judge Harding today gave judgment in the case Thomas v. Bogue, awarding plaintiff $161.62. This case was the outcome of a contract which the plaintiff had secured for wiring the local armories. The main dispute was the contention of the defendant that the plaintiff should not be paid exaro for wiring the tower, as this was included in the contract. The judgment was for practically the full amount claimed by plaintiff.—Lindsay Post.

RECRUITS FOR BATTERIES AND AMMUNITION COLUMN

Recruiting has ceased for the 39th Battalion but orders have been received for the local officers to take men for two batteries and one ammunition column which are to be raised in Eastern Ontario. In all some 300 men are wanted for the batteries and ammunition column and local men desiring to join should apply to Dr. Cameron at the armouries. Only first-class riders will be accepted.

The total strength of the 39th Battalion is 105 but it is expected that a few more who had applied previously will be added to that number. As yet no word has been received as to when they will proceed to Belleville.

APPLICATION TO INCREASE FREIGHT RATES NOT FAVORED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

OTTAWA, March 1. — The application of Canadian railways for permission to increase their freight rates on lines east of Port Arthur is viewed with pronounced disfavor by the Dominion Government, according to J. F. Orde, K. C., engaged as counsel by the Dominion Government. Mr. Orde made this announcement to the Railway Commission this morning. He told the commission that he held a watching brief in the interests of the general public, and emphasized that the Dominion Government was not going to stand idly by while railways tried to boost their tariffs in Eastern Canada.

FEWER CASES IN POLICE COURT THE PAST YEAR

Not so Many Cases of Disorderly Conduct and Vagrancy

AN INCREASE IN FREE LODGERS

There has been an increase in police court cases since 191[illegible], when Chief Thompson took up the reins of the department. The year of 1914 was an exception, as there were 1,183 cases in 1913 as against 965 in the past year. With the two years compared, fewer cases for disorderly conduct are reported for 1914. There were 56 more cases of drunkenness, no cases of forgery, one less of non-support, and cases of vagrancy show a decrease of 24.

The shelter of the police station was sought by 176 persons in 1913 and by 253 persons in 1914. A comparative statement of some of the offences follows:

	1913	1914
Assault, common	10	8
Assault, indecent	2	1
Assault on peace officer	3	4
Drunks	314	370
Drunk and disorderly	111	74
Drunk in charge of horse	24	25
Disorderly conduct	39	17
Fraud	7	7
Forgery	2	0
Non-support	5	4
Vagrancy	76	52

Budget Debate to be Resumed

OTTAWA, March 1. — The budget debate in Parliament will be resumed on Tuesday, when Hon. Dr. William Pugsley will continue his speech. There is a long list of speakers, and the debate will likely continue for a week yet. A Liberal amendment, or possibly two of them, will likely come at its conclusion, and it is understood that it will ask for the restoration of the British preferential tariff to its former level.

The parliamentary boot committee will hear evidence from high officials of the Militia Department this week, it is understood, the first meeting being scheduled for Tuesday morning. The chief item in the program of the railway committee for the week will be the Canadian Pacific bill to authorise the segregation of its railway and steamship services. Considerable difference of opinion has developed in regard to this measure.

PARKDALE CANOE CLUB IS BURNED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, March 1. — The Parkdale Canoe Club house was destroyed by fire this morning with a loss of twenty thousand dollars. The building was nearing completion, the old one having been destroyed two years ago. It was set on a concrete foundation out in the Humber Bay. The firemen used six thousand feet of hose in an attempt to reach it. It is supposed that a carpenter's stove started the fire.

CANS WERE EMPTY

Railway Subway Was not Blown up

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Brantford, March 1.—A story telegraphed to Toronto yesterday that an attempt to blow up a railway subway near the station was founded on a hoax. Police investigation showed that paint cans placed upside down on the track, supposed to contain explosives, were really empty.

WEDS DAUGHTER TO CHEAT FATHER OUT OF HIS FARM

Moose Jaw, March 1. — William Edward Fergus was sentenced by Judge Ouseley to three years in Prince Albert on a charge of obtaining the transfer of valuable farm land with intent to defraud. In passing sentence Judge Ouseley made one of the most stinging indictments that has ever been heard in a local courtroom.

Fergus was employed by an elderly farmer named McLaren at Caron last August, and three months later was married to McLaren's daughter. Evidence was brought to show that the accused married the daughter as part of a cold-blooded plan to cheat the old man out of his land. Fergus posed as a director of the Bank of North Dakota and issued a cheque to McLaren on the local branch of the Bank of Montreal for $2,000, which he ordered to be cancelled before McLaren could present it and in the meantime sold the farm for $6,000.

AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE.

At the three Catholic Churches of the city yesterday the respective pastors strongly urged all the parishioners residing on farms to attend the Patriotism and Production Agricultural Conference which will be held in Peterborough on March the 5th. As was previously announced, the afternoon meeting will be held in the public library and the evening meeting in the Assembly Hall at the Collegiate Institute.

Busy Week for Legislators

Government's Temperance Proposals May be Brought Down

TORONTO, March 1. — The members of the Legislature have a busy week ahead of them. The House committees, where the average private member does three times as much work as he ever is called upon to do in the chamber, will all get going. The private bills committee meets on Tuesday with a program of thirty or forty bills ahead. The railway committee will not have much to do, while the municipal committee has so far but three or four bills in prospect, though more will come later.

The public accounts committee will meet for organization about the middle of the week, when the Opposition will have to lay down its cards and show whether the usual fishing expeditions are contemplated, or a business-like survey with politics left out as a concession to the spirit of the times.

In the House the chief event will be the wind-up of the budget debate, with the Prime Minister and N. W. Rowell, K. C., as speakers. The debate is on the orders for Tuesday, and it is expected that Mr. Rowell, following his policy upon the debate on the speech from the throne, will not offer an amendment to Hon. T. W. McGarry's motion to go into supply.

Opinion about the House inclines to the belief that the Government's temperance proposals will be brought down this week. Caucus meets on Tuesday, when the temperance proposals held over from the last caucus will likely be submitted. It is understood that there will be no material change from the plans outlined a week ago.

PTE. PAKENHAM

Thought to Have Spinal Meningitis at Toronto Camp

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, March 1. — Private Gladstone Pakenham, of No. 3 Company, 19th Battalion, is thought to have spinal meningitis, making the ninth case in camp. Pte. Pakenham is a native of Peterborough.

Pte. Pakenham is the son of Walter Pakenham, 85 Crawford street, Toronto. He is 17 years old. He was born here when his parents resided in East City.

EVIDENCE WILL BE HEARD AT THE INQUEST TONIGHT

Considerable talk is going on concerning the case of Helen Brown, the 18-year-old stenographer, who died, it is alleged, following a criminal operation. There is to be an inquest this evening at eight o'clock in the police court room, and some evidence of a very important character is likely to come out. Her funeral took place on Saturday afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery, Rev. James Rollins officiating.

A post-mortem performed on Saturday is said to have borne out the suspicion that there had been an illegal operation.

BANK CLEARINGS.

The bank clearings for the month ending February 27th were $1,414,762. The decrease on last month's business is $358,541.

C. F. DICKSON APPOINTED

Police Commissioners Re-elect Judge Huycke as Chairman

THE APPROPRIATION

At a meeting of the Police Commissioners, held Saturday afternoon, Judge Huycke was re-elected chairman. The other members of the Commission are Mayor Buller and Police Magistrate Dumble.

The resignation of P. C. Savante was formally accepted and the meeting proceeded to take up the applications. Those applying for the position were:

Clarence F. Dickson, Harvey St.
Walter Miller, 348 Water street.
E. A. Everett, McDonnel street.
John A. McColl, Hart avenue.

GOVERNMENT ASSISTED IN SETTLEMENT FOR STRIKERS

Serious Interference With Supply of Equipment and War Materials Was Threatened.

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, March. 1.—Many of the striking laborers at the Clyde Engineering works resumed work today in accordance with instructions issued by the government. These labor troubles threatened to interfere seriously with the supplying of equipment and war material for the troops in the field and the government took a hand in their settlement on the basis of national necessity.

It is expected that all the strikers will be back at work not later than Wednesday.

TWO SAUCY CUB BEARS BAGGED BY FOX HUNTERS

Mother and Her Youngsters Were Enjoying Sun Bath When Surprised

Apsley, March 1.—While engaged in a fox hunt on Friday last Messrs. Hugh and Will Jones captured two fine cub bears. The latter had advanced into a swamp some 600 yards from where his brother was, when suddenly he beheld a huge bear and her two offsprings, enjoying a sun bath in front of their den.

Having no fire arms with him the hunter thought it advisable to hold no discussion with Mistress Bruin and family but go and summon his brother to the scene. He had only gone a few paces when to his surprise Mistress Bruin was close in pursuit. However he hurriedly climbed a nearby tree, while the cubs shrieked and the bear growled below. He called to his brother for help.

He was soon on the scene with his Winchester rifle, but not before the bear had disappeared in the thicket. After relieving his brother from his elevated perch, they entered the den, and succeeded in capturing two fine cubs, which are quite bold and they perform many peculiar antics.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MARCH 1, 1915

A LIKELY MEASURE.

A BILL has been introduced in the Ontario Legislature by Hon. I. B. Lucas to enable municipalities to cover by debentures grants made to the Canadian Patriotic Fund, the Red Cross Society, the Belgian Relief Fund, and for several other military purposes. Ottawa, in its private bill, has asked for legislation covering the grants to the patriotic fund and the French relief work, but the general bill would remove the need of special legislation for these purposes. The debentures would be limited to ten years or the money might be made by discounting promissory notes covering a period of not more than five years. The bill is retroactive so as to apply to grants already made.

The spirit of this measure is to be commended, for it will enable municipalities to proceed with their public works and do their share in prosecuting the war. It also facilitates the spreading of the expenditures over a period of years, so that the burden will fall lightly on the taxpayers.

The bill should certainly provide some safeguards, however, of a restraining nature on municipalities. At the present time there is no great accumulation of brains in many municipal bodies, and the ideas of economy, finance and business that they have in stock are of a primitive nature. So long as borrowing is possible without much difficulty, there will be plenty of municipal spendthrifts while conditions remain as they are. That is why such a bill should provide safeguards regulating the spending and borrowing powers of municipal bodies for the purpose intended.

COMMISSIONER RICHARDS' VISIT.

THE VISIT of Commissioner Richards to Peterborough is one to be remembered, particularly by members of the Salvation Army. It has been marked by enthusiasm and uplift. But it is important to others than those of the Salvation Army, because that body has established itself in a definite place in the world. It has an assigned field to work in, ministers to special wants and has the special machinery for carrying on its work. It ministers to those the churches do not reach; it is doing a good work, and the splendid welcome given here to the new head of that body in Canada is quite deserved.

A PLEA FOR THE MILITIA.

THE CALL for volunteers for overseas service has taken a large number from the militia forces throughout Canada. Then the seriousness of the present war has led to the formation of extra-official bodies known as Home Guards. Between these two the militia has suffered, and there are many vacancies that should be filled. The reason appears to be that many are entering the Home Guards who should volunteer in the militia. The Toronto Mail and Empire, on this point, says:

> "In most of the provinces men are coming forward in large numbers to volunteer for overseas service, but there are not many offering themselves upon the understanding that they are to form part of the home strength of regiments that will be kept up here. The desire to go to the front is most laudable. It is also important that a sufficient force be available for emergencies on Canadian soil. When volunteers stipulate that they be placed on contingents for service abroad, they show that it is in answer to the call of the empire that they leave their employment and their families. Some, however, must be content to remain in Canada in a state of readiness for any duty they may be required to perform. To keep the home force as strong as it ought to be there must be recruiting in its behalf. Of the men who are now joining rifle associations and local home guards there are many below the maximum age for enlistment in the militia. These ought to be encouraged to join regiments and put themselves under military discipline. Home guards and other extra-official bodies preparing for defence ought to be filled mainly by men beyond the military age, and all who are eligible and willing for military service ought to be brought into the regiments."

"PRECARIOUS" POSITION.

THE REAL REASON for the suspension of the Vossiche Zeitung last month has now come to light, according to the Paris Humanite's correspondent on the Swiss frontier. The journal was suspended for printing the substance of a confidential interview between the Chancellor and the delegates of different parties, in the course of which Dr. Von Bethmann Hollweg said: "Gentlemen, the situation is precarious."

Many men of the highest influence in Germany, continues the correspondent, regard the future with deep anxiety, and their only hope is in a separate peace with Russia. Herr Heineken, the director of the North German Lloyd, said recently:

> "Economically, Germany can hold out until October, 1915, and that is why we must do everything to beat the Russians and again give the Dowager Empress, who is an adversary of the Francophil Grand Dukes, a chance to convince the Tsar that the moment has come to conclude peace with Germany."

INDUSTRIES AND CHEAP POWER.

IN INVESTIGATING the relative requirements of the different industries which should thrive, and which, therefore, should be encouraged, in Canada, one may follow different lines of reasoning. One train of thought naturally makes us turn to the benefits to be derived from our large water-powers now still unused. Water-power means cheap power where large amounts and continuous operations are required. The industries in which the cost of power enters only to a small degree in the total cost of production do not benefit very greatly from cheap power. No doubt cheap power is a great attraction to all industries, but those requiring the largest amount, figured on a basis of the value of their product will naturally be attracted with greater force.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WHERE was the wild March hare today?

PERHAPS we should have said the mild March hare.

MOST PEOPLE will now look forward to the beginning of April with apprehension, and so it will likely be a real April fool's day.

WHAT has become of the party truce? Were it not for some members like Mr. Burnham, there would be the bitterest discussion imaginable. If matters were left to Dr. Shortt and Hon. Wm. Pugsley, partizanship would be rampant.

WHEN Mr. G. A. Gillespie ran for the Legislature, he was going to do great things, among others, abolish the bars. What has he done? Nothing. Ever since the election the people of this riding have scarcely heard a whimper out of him.

SAYS Mr. Burnham: "In the thirteenth century, as you will recall, Mr. Speaker." Markdale was not much of a place in those days.—Toronto News. That was the time when the ancestors of the News were considering monthly editions of the quarterly.

MR. GILLESPIE wants to know why the Ontario Government has not investigated rural conditions. The Government has done so, although not by a special commission appointed for that purposes, but why does not Mr. Gillespie DO SOMETHING and give the Legislature the benefit of it?

HON. ROBERT ROGERS' characterization of Dr. Adam Shortt's reported statement in regard to dismissals in the Civil Service, as "dishonest, dishonourable and untrue," provoked the stormiest scene of the session. As an example of English, the effect was electric, and no doubt Dr. Shortt sat up with a sudden jerk at the shock.

MR. JOHN McINTOSH, Reeve of North Monaghan, called in the Review office and wished to take this means of thanking the Dominion Government and Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P., for settlement of damages in reference to the drowned lands in South and North Monaghan. He says the people are grateful for the appropriation, and, while they recognize that the war entails first demands on the national finances, they are satisfied with the settlement.

MAJOR-GENERAL SAM HUGHES has informed the House that he is now in the trenches—that is, he will not vacate his portfolio for a time at least.

MR. TURIFF challenges the Conservatives to an election. The Conservatives are quite willing to go to the country. The Examiner says the challenge was a joke. Is this the kind of child's play the Liberals are indulging in? They criticize the Government, and then the Liberal newspapers are to say the criticism was a joke. No better evidence of the strength of the Borden Administration has been given for some time.

(New York Times.)

"Mary," said her little brother at the breakfast table, "did Mr. Evans take any of the umbrellas or hats from the rack when he was going home last night?"

"Why, of course not, Jack," replied Mary, with a laugh. "Why should he?"

"That's just what I'd like to know," said Jack. "Because when he went out, I heard him say, 'I'm going to steal just one', and — why, what's the matter Mary?"

They Slop Over.
(Toronto News.)

Concerning Mr. Pugsley, one is reminded of a saying by Artemus Ward: "The prevailin' weakness of most public men is to SLOP OVER. (Put them words in italic letters.—A. W.) They get filled up and slop. They Rush Things. They travel too much on the high pressure principle. They git on to the fust popular hobbyhoss which trots along, not carin' a cent whether the beast is even-goin', clear-sighted, and sound, or spavined, blind and balky. Of course, they git throwed eventooally, if not sooner."

UNWISE EXPENDITURE OF THE PEOPLE'S MONEY.

Editor, Review:

Dear Sir, — It is surely the confirmed conviction of all classes living in freedom under British rule, in these troublous times, that not a dollar in money or its equivalent in the real necessaries of life should be unwisely expended or thoughtlessly wasted. True it is that much that is expended or distributed is not by any means wasted, but rather the final analysis is that it has only been circulated, remaining in our midst, and in the course of its journeyings has served good objects.

We wish to refer in particular to the matter of the grant of an additional sum of $700 to the Home Guard by the City Council for the purpose of rifles. The original grant of $300 in December last was, we understand, expended in rifles, the money value of which departed from our midst, never to return, and the city's credit was accordingly just so much less.

The actual value of these rifles for purpose of defence is well known as practically nil, and the further purchase would therefore be only multiplying results in this same direction. In addition to this, the lack of training value for defence has already been pointed out in larger centres, notably Toronto. Now, let it be clearly understood that we do not wish, in any manner, to detract from or to underestimate the value of the sentiment and worthy principles underlying the movement as expressed by the formation of the home guards. This letter is simply to ask that the City Council again consult with the leaders of the Home Guard before making any such grant. The Minister of Militia, more forcibly perhaps than politely, pointed out to the leaders of the movement in Toronto the utter folly of purchasing such rifles, and as time goes on his advice in this matter will be the more fully confirmed. When that time comes, the voice of the taxpayer in Peterborough, as well as elsewhere, will be as forcibly heard as was the expression of the Minister re Toronto.

The Militia Department of Canada, offer opportunities under normal conditions for every man capable of bearing arms to train in the use of the rifle, without expense directly to the individual or to the community in particular. It is therefore only folly to endeavour to duplicate extravagantly in such inferior manner the work for which the taxpayers of the Dominion are already paying in connection with that department of the Government. Through the Militia for the younger men, and by way of the Rifle Association for the older men, arms, ammunition, rifle ranges, etc., are provided. In view of the great burden of debt slowly but surely piling up on this country on account of the tremendous conflict, surely the City Council and the leaders of the organization will do well to consult together again in this matter. Mr. Editor, it is simply nothing short of astonishing, the indifference that is found in our communities regarding this war. It will surely take a serious calamity to make some people wake up. What we want — and must have — is more staple food production, more economy in every walk of life, and consequently making the best use of the means at our hand, rather than bothering with innovations and duplications which only tend to pull down rather than to build up efficiency. This letter is not written for purposes of criticism, but only to urge more care and consideration in the spending of the earnings of the people, and in so writing we also wish to say that we hold no brief in any way for the Department of Militia and Defence, who are quite able to take care of themselves. Further, we will make no reply to any criticisms that may be evoked.

Yours truly,
V. EASTWOOD.

WORSE THAN SUBMARINES

Drink Hurts Britain More Than Enemy Says Lloyd George

LONDON, March 1. — At Bangor yesterday Chancellor Lloyd George in a public speech said there were workmen in the armament works who refused to work a full week, and added that this is due mostly to strong drink, "which is doing more damage than all the German submarines put together. The Government has wide powers to deal with the drink question, and it means to use them," he declared. He said a small minority of the workmen employed in the armament factories had refused to work a full week because of the lure of drink.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE.

The Government would use its powers discreetly and in a spirit of moderation, Mr. Llofd George asserted, but "fearlessly." He was sure the public would support whatever action was taken and allow no indulgence of this kind to interfere with the country's prospects in the war.

RUSSIANS ABROAD MUST ALSO SERVE

LONDON, March 1.—The Russian consul-general here has issued a statement received from Petrograd announcing that Russians living abroad will henceforth be liable to military service and must return immediately to Russia. Those belonging to the classes called to the colors who remain abroad after March 1 will be liable to punishment, according to the Russian law.

MRS. NEWLYWED says:

"I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and wooden ware?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece. It cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

THE COMFORTERS

"What's the Use of Worrying?"

By EDWARD BOLTWOOD

In the kitchen beneath Jernigan's bedroom the clock whirred and began to sound the hour. At the first jangling stroke Jernigan lifted his head and became aware, with a quick throb of gratitude, that he had been asleep. The question was, for how long? There was no daylight at the curtained window, but he was sure that it must be nearly sunrise, and in alert anxiety he counted the strokes of the clock.

Nine, ten, eleven—and silence. Jernigan groaned wearily. He had been in bed only thirty minutes, after all.

Through the doorway of the adjoining room, where his wife slept with the two children, he blinked at the white, dim hummock of Lizzie's back and listened to her placid breathing. Noiselessly he drew on some clothes, found a pair of slippers and glided swiftly down the dark stairway.

With a hand on the knob of the front door he turned and peered into his narrow parlor. The blue glare from an arc lamp in the street faintly illuminated the parlor table, revealing the bank book on it and his private account book and the sheets of paper covered with penciled figures. He hastily secreted them before he went out of doors.

• • • • • • •

Jernigan was the bookkeeper for Mr. Ellice at the Rudale mill, as his father had been before him. He was a skilled and honest accountant. The tormenting figures had nothing to do with his employer's affairs. They represented his own endeavor to deal with the terrible fact that during the past two years he had diminished by nearly $1,000 the modest capital which he had inherited from his parents.

He looked morosely down the deserted street toward the huge mill. Its windows glowed: its looms chanted their endless, sonorous hymn of prosperity. On a hill near by was the stately, old fashioned Ellice mansion, with its tall columns of white stone. Mr. Ellice was evidently entertaining an evening party there. The lamps of motorcars shot their golden beams over the lawn, and Jernigan heard a vagrant strain of dance music.

His vague plan was to stroll as far as the office of the mill before turning back.

Behind the building he halted in bewilderment. A light gleamed from a rear window. Somebody was in the office!

Now, it was impossible for Jernigan to believe that any one had rightful business there by night without his knowledge, so he crept close to the window. He saw a man standing beside the office table. On the table were books of account and sheets of paper covered with penciled figures. The man bent over them, then paced the room, then returned doggedly to the table, then paced the room again. Jernigan caught his breath, for the man was John Ellice.

The bookkeeper stared, as if in a theater, at a counterfeit presentment of himself pacing his own parlor. Ellice's unbuttoned coat showed a loose pajama jacket; he wore slippers, and his hair was ruffled like that of one driven from his bed. His face, as he bent at the table under the light, was drawn and white.

Jernigan interpreted the picture swiftly. Indeed, there was only a single possible meaning for him, and this was a meaning which swept everything else out of his simple soul as a gigantic and appalling torrent sweeps a humble valley. The sight of an Ellice of Rudale in the torment of financial worry was to a Jernigan what the sight of a collapse of the great pyramid would have been to an ancient Egyptian. Other affairs of life for Jernigan were totally obliterated by awe stricken consternation and a sympathy almost reverent.

Ellice snapped off the electric lamp, pushed the papers into a drawer of the table and locked it. He decided that his daughter's dance would be over, and he wondered if he could sleep. Then he smiled grimly, knowing well enough that it was not dance music which had kept him awake. His neck contracted sharply, as if something was perched on his shoulder.

His thoughts whirled back to the papers in the table drawer. Had he forgotten to jot down the loan from the Samson Trust? Of course he had! He began to compute the interest for the coming term. And what, in heaven's name, would be his next month's balance with the Atlas people? True, he might tide over this year, but— He threw open the outer door with a gesture of hopeless desperation and descended the steps.

"Who's that? Not Jernigan?"

"Yes, sir," faltered Jernigan. "If—if you can spare me a minute?"

"Why, certainly!"

Ellice managed to pull himself together. He glanced at his clerk's upturned coat collar and tremulous chin.

"You're not ill, Albert?"

"No, sir; just out for a little air."

"Quite right," approved Ellice. "Best thing in the world after a hard day's work. We're all right busy at Rudale now, eh? By Jove, it's fine to see the old concern more prosperous than ever. Well, what can I do for you?"

Jernigan was not deceived by his employer's labored nonchalance. The vision at the window had been too overpowering to allow of that. He cleared his throat diffidently.

"It's this way, Mr. Ellice. I have money, sir, to invest. Not much, of course, not over $12,000 or $15,000, but it's all my capital, and I—I'm worried about it, sir."

"Worried, Albert? You worried?"

Ellice darted a quick, suspicious glance at Jernigan's face, but the bookkeeper was gazing solemnly at the huge, clattering factory. The trustful look in his clerk's eye reminded Ellice of a confident child. For the moment Jernigan resembled a devotee in the presence of a benevolent idol.

"Your father, I understand, made safe investments," resumed Ellice. "Why not stick to them?"

"They don't suit me, sir," said the bookkeeper. "I was wondering if Rudale mill could use the money for awhile. I could turn it over to you tomorrow, and then I wouldn't have to worry any more."

Although conscious of an insane desire to laugh, Ellice was nevertheless curiously relieved. In his present mood, eager for any morsel of solace, he could convince himself that Jernigan knew almost as much about the financial condition of the Rudale mill as he did. And here was the bookkeeper desirous of placing all his money at the disposal of the plant. Ellice bit his lip. Was it possible that his own anxiety was ill founded, imaginary?

"Then I wouldn't have to worry any more," repeated Jernigan.

"No," Ellice murmured, "no, I suppose you wouldn't. Got plenty of faith in the old concern, have you, Albert?"

"Faith to burn, sir, as the boys say. Why, think of all the faith in the old mill there is in this town, Mr. Ellice! Think of the hundreds of men and women and children that trust in the mill, the same as they do that the sun shines! Gather all that trust in a lump, and a fellow would have a regular rock of comfort to stand on, wouldn't he?"

Ellice started queerly.

"I didn't know you were such a mystic," he rejoined in a changed voice.

"Excuse me, sir. I have notions, but that's only common sense. And about that money of mine?"

Without answering Ellice turned away thoughtfully, and the two strolled in silence to the wooden bridge that spanned the mill stream. They leaned on the rail, looking over the river. An hour ago Ellice had leaned on the same bridge rail and stared for a long time into the beckoning depths of that restful river. At the evil remembrance of that black hour he shuddered penitently and touched Jernigan's elbow beside him.

"Let your money stay where it is," he advised. "I can't believe that you have a right to worry, Albert. You've got the trust of your family to nerve you, just as I've got the trust of my mill hands and the village. We ought to stand on that trust and fight for it, both of us, oughtn't we? That's enough to keep us busy. Worrying's no good!"

"What bothers me," ventured Jernigan, "are the years to come—the future."

Ellice peeled a sliver from the rail and tossed it lightly on the surface of the shadowy current.

"That's the way the future takes us, I guess," said he. "It's up to us to keep afloat, that's all, and to hold the best course we can. The future? It's a big river, Jernigan, a big, big river. There's no map. Worrying won't help us to travel it."

"No, sir," muttered Jernigan.

For another minute they watched the stream as it glided steadily away into the mysterious darkness. Then Ellice glanced across the bridge at the great mill.

To the fancy of Ellice, with Jernigan's words ringing in his mind, the mill became a thing of life, a personal entity, radiant of confidence and trust. He felt, with a joyous thrill of regained manliness, that he would be worthy of its friendship and of the friendship of his people. He straightened his shoulders happily, as if they had been released from a painful burden.

"Good night," he said, "and thank you!"

"Thank me, sir? Why?"

"For a match," improvised Ellice, producing cigars from his pocket. "Will you smoke?"

"I think not," Jernigan declined. "It's late. Good night, sir!"

• • • • • • •

Although the street was quiet and deserted, while Jernigan hastened homeward under the elms it seemed to him alive with the mighty heart of all humanity, beating in unison with his own, vexed by the same solicitudes and conquering the same fears. As he passed each lowly cottage he thought of the humble men and women therein, who faced the future with no different bravery from that required of kings and queens. If John Ellice could subdue anxiety over large affairs with such self reliant courage surely Jernigan could likewise surmount his infinitely smaller cares.

Unlatching his gate, he whistled a tune.

"Al Jernigan, where in the world"—

Lizzie paused to shield the flame of the candle as her husband opened the door.

"Why, I'd forgot to do an errand at the office. I meant not to disturb you, dear."

"But I didn't know what might happen, and I've worried like anything," she explained, smiling.

Jernigan yawned luxuriously.

"Never lend yourself trouble about what hasn't happened yet, Lizzie," said he. "What's the use of worrying?"

COVERT CLOTH.

Suits of This Popular Fabric to Be Worn in the Spring.

SMART WALKING SUIT.

One notes with interest the revival in popularity of covert cloth. It is a fabric that is satisfactory in appearance and wearing qualities. Many spring models shown by manufacturers are carried out in this material. Illustrated here is a street gown of covert with an oddly designed coat. The pointed fronts, high belt which buttons to the coat in the front confines the fullness at the sides. There is a plain, straight collar which rolls up around the throat. The diagonal straps are really patch pockets. The gored skirt has the fashionable flare and is in accordance with fashion's preference for fuller skirts on spring gowns.

Pets of Royalty.

Queen Victoria had three dogs which she thought a great deal of. Her favorite one, Marco, could "trace his ancestry" back to the crusaders' time. He was a Pomeranian dog and won several first prizes at the shows. Roy, one of the other dogs, was a collie, and Spot, the third, a fox terrier. She also had another dog as a pet which was the smallest dog in England. It was a Yorkshire terrier and weighed a little less than three pounds.

STR. DACIA IS ARRESTED

French Cruiser Seizes German-American Vessel

PARIS, March 1.—(Via Paris.)—A French cruiser has arrested the American steamer Dacia in the channel and taken her to Brest. This announcement is officially made.

The announcement of the capture of the Dacia, which was issued by the Marine Department, gave no details, nor the name of the cruiser which took her under arrest.

The steamship Dacia left Galveston for Rotterdam on Jan. 31, with 11,000 bales of cotton to be trans-shipped to Bremen. It was fully expected at the time that the ship would be seized on her way to Rotterdam, as Great Britain questioned the validity of the recent transfer from German to American registry.

Representations were made immediately by the British embassy at Washington, questioning the validity of the transfer of the interned German vessel and it was generally understood that when the ship sailed she would be seized by British or French warships and taken before a prize court.

GERMAN GHOUL IS SENTENCED

RENNES, France, March 1. — A German soldier named Carl Vogelsgang, of the 26th Saxon Infantry, a native of Eisleben, has been sentenced here by a French court-martial to military degradation and death, having been found guilty of pillaging while under arms, of arson, and of despatching French wounded.

Strike Is Called Off.

GLASGOW, March 1. — The peremptory order of the Government on Friday for the resumption of work to-day by the shipyard engineers at the Clyde yards, who went on strike for an increase in wages has produced speedy results. Committees representing the strikers decided Saturday to advise the men to return to work immediately.

POTATOES SCARCE IN GERMAN CAPITAL

BERLIN, March 1.—(Via London, Many Berlin families had no potatoes for their Sunday dinner.

Although it is expected the removal of the restriction in the maximum price will soon result in the bringing in of a supply, the time has been too short as yet to permit this.

It is necessary to establish a police guard at many shops where potatoes were on sale, to prevent overcrowding. Only small quantities were sold to one person, at prices usually around 1 1-1 marks (about 30 cents) for 10 pounds.

TO STATE POSITION.

Intentions Concerning German Commerce Will Be Announced To-day.

LONDON, March 1.—In the House of Commons to-day formal pronouncement will be made of the allies' intentions concerning German commerce. It will constitute one of the most important pronouncements of international law in history, upsetting old usages and making new rules. Urgent necessity, and Germany's departures from accepted principles will be cited as justifying the unusual and momentous course. There's no question but that the Government will have the enthusiastic support of the nation as well as the other allies, and when protests from neutrals come, as they surely will, the allied nations will present a united front, insistent upon having their hands free to deal with the unscrupulous enemy as they think best. There are indications that in announcing their policy they hold themselves at liberty completely to stop German commerce. Great Britain and France are not only threatening to follow that course, but fully intend doing so.

Offer of Sharpshooters Declined.

LONDON, March 1.—Lord Cheylesmore, presiding at the winter meeting of the National Rifle Associations, said that he had asked the War Office if they would permit them to raise a battalion of Bisley shots. The War Office refused this request, so they had formed a school of musketry. The offer to place Bisley camp and ranges at the disposal of the army was at once accepted. After serious consideration the council had decided that it was impossible to hold a Bisley meeting this year.

Sunday Amusements To Be Tested.

MONTREAL, March 1. — H. P. Hill, manager of His Majesty's Theatre, appeared before Recorder Semple Saturday charged with conducting a Sunday concert where admission was charged. The case is to be tested by the Lord's Day Alliance and has been brewing for some time past. Mr. Hill pleaded not guilty and will appear some time this month.

"But what made you irritate her father?"

"I had to do it. I wasn't any too popular with the girl until her father forbade me the house."

ADVANCES ARE CONTINUED

Allies Are Pressing Forward Irresistibly in the Champagne District.

PARIS, March 1. — Irresistible French progress in the Champagne district and the increasing tendency of German soldiers to surrender are noted in the latest reports of the French War Office issued yesterday and Saturday night.

Over 550 yards of German trenches were captured Friday night and Saturday morning north of Mesnil-les-Hurlus, when 100 prisoners were taken with two machine guns and one quick-firer in an advance at the double with the bayonet. The Germans made a strong counter-attack to regain their lost ground before dawn and were defeated with big losses. This was followed up by the French with additional gains west of Perthes and north of Beausejour. Saturday night two German works were carried to the north of Perthes and Beausejour and considerable ground between these two points was occupied as well as a small area north of Perthes. Two hundred Germans were made prisoners at this point.

Belgian infantry occupied a farm on the right bank of the Yser and an aviator of King Albert's army dropped bombs on the harbor station of the Germans at Ostend. Two of the German works near Dixmude were demolished by Belgian artillery.

In revenge for these reverses the Germans again bombarded Rheims, firing 60 shells, half of them being aimed at the cathedral.

The tendency of Germans to surrender so as to get out of the war has been responsible for 1,000 of them giving themselves up to the French in the past ten days. Discouragement seems to have become more general in the ranks of the enemy.

The French armies are pushing their offensive on the heights of the Meuse so as to command the valley of this stream which forms one of the natural gateways to France. Lively artillery engagements are being conducted in this region.

Hartmanns-Weilerkopf in Alsace was the scene of further French progress on Saturday night and on Saturday a patrol captured a German trench in the sand dunes near Lombaertzyde, killed the occupants and took a machine gun.

Registers as John Bull.

An Austrian registering at the alien registration office in Toronto has assumed the name of John Bull, presumably with the object of recording his "British" sentiments. Many of the aliens have changed their names in this way; none of them, however, has yet adopted the name of Jack Canuck.

NINE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-FIVE CASES IN THE POLICE COURT

Division Shows 922 Males and 43 Females — 370 Charges of Drunkenness — 309 Defendants Were Non-Residents — 29 Juvenile Cases

POLICE CHIEF ASKS FOR PENSION FUND

Nine hundred and sixty-five apprehensions for the year were reported by the Police Chief in his annual report to the Police Commissioners on Saturday afternoon. Of these, three hundred and nine were non-residents. The division is 922 males and 43 females. There were 370 charges of drunkenness and 74 for drunk and disorderly. There were 574 fines.

The report also shows that 394 male defendants and 26 female defendants were married. Of the total number, 31 could neither read nor write. By occupation, 350 defendants were laborers, 65 farmers, 40 lumbermen, 28 housewives, 20 tailors, 18 moulders, 25 carpenters, 18 machinists, 2 insurance agents, 22 school boys. One was a wrestler.

There were 29 juvenile cases, as follows: Breach of Fisheries Act, 1; misconduct, 6; housebreaking, 11; shopbreaking, 2; theft, 9. Two were sent to the Industrial School and ten were whipped.

Twenty-nine defendants were under 16 years of age; 66 from 16 to 20; 315 from 21 to 30; 226 from 31 to 40; 164 from 41 to 50; 118 from 51 to 60; 39 from 61 to 70, and 8 were 71 and over.

The Chief recommends that a pension fund be inaugurated and that policemen pass an examination in first aid work, before being advanced to second-class pay.

The Report.

It is gratifying to report that murder is not included in our calendar for the year 1914, it is also a pleasure to state, that our statistics show that crime is apparently on the decrease to the previous year, this I contend shows creditably for the police department, notwithstanding the increase in population.

I again take this opportunity of thanking the citizens of Peterborough for their kind and valuable assistance to the police department at all times during the year.

I desire to thank the board, personally, for the courtesy I have received, and for their untiring efforts in endeavoring to keep the department up to a high standard of efficiency.

I also desire to express my thanks to Chief Howard and his associates on the fire department for their willingness to assist the police at all times.

In conclusion I wish to thank the press of the city for their fairness in reporting matters in connection with the police department.

Property Reported Lost and Property Recovered.

Value of property lost	$2,031.84
Value of property recovered and returned to owners	1,746.09
Value of property unrecovered	285.75

Property Reported Stolen and Property Recovered.

Value of property stolen	$3,385.42
Value of property recovered and returned to owners	2,699.97
Value of property unrecovered	635.45

Unsecured Property.

There were 154 doors and windows of shops, offices, etc., found open by the police during the year 1914.

Lodgers.

During the year 252 persons were given lodging and shelter in the police cells, and those who were considered deserving cases were provided with food.

During the summer season (from June to September) the police visited temporary unoccupied houses twice every night, and while under our care [illegible] was entered in which case all the goods stolen were recovered, the culprits dealt with, and the goods returned to the owner.

Fires.

The police attended fires during the year to the number of 20.

Lost Children.

During the year, as usual, a large number of children who had strayed from their homes were taken care of by the police until their parents could be located and notified.

In addition to our local work there were a number of arrests made for other police departments, of which I will only mention the most important ones:—

Mamuel Hannah, wanted for horse stealing at Regina, Sask.

Wilson and Smith, wanted for burglary at Lindsay, Ont.

Brodeur, wanted for murder at Springfield.

Harry Harrison, wanted for fraud at Toronto, Ont.

George Ross, wanted for false pretences at Cobourg, Ont.

John Dalton, wanted for breaking parole at Buffalo, N.Y.

Norman Hurl, wanted for theft, at Colborne, Ont.

Thomas Flannery, wanted for disorderly conduct at Cobourg, Ont.

There were reported by the police to the inspector of lights, outrages to the number of 1775.

Dogs Licensed.

There were licensed during the year 1914, dogs to the number of 611.

Money collected for licenses in 1914 amounted to $722.

Amount collected in 1913 amounted to $596.

Increase $126.

Recommendations.

I beg leave to ask your Honorable Board to consider the advisability of establishing in connection with our police department a pension fund. I believe that this is an opportune time for such a move, as you no doubt are aware that our department at present consists of practically all young men, and the probabilities are that it [illegible] be many years before there would be any demand on the fund.

It also has the effect of making members of the department feel more [illegible] with their positions as they have something to look forward to.

I would also recommend that each member of the police department be required to pass an examination in first aid to the injured before being advanced to second class pay, I would suggest that the Board make this one of the permanent rules of the department.

I would also recommend that the necessary articles used in connection with first aid, be kept on supply in the police station to be used in cases of emergency.

Remarks.

At the beginning of the year 1914, your Honorable Board appointed in connection with our department a police matron, and I desire to express my appreciation of the able and efficient manner Mrs. McElhiney has filled that position her kindly disposition and wise counsel has been of great assistance to the court and myself in the handling of females and children. I also wish to thank Adjutant McElhiney for his constant attendance at police court and his willingness to help and assist those who need a helping hand.

I desire to again express my appreciation of the good work that has been done by Mr. George Cochrane, agent for the Children's Aid Society, and Mr. E. L. Goodwill, solicitor for the said society, for the efficient and able manner they have looked after the needy and neglected children of our city, and their valuable assistance in connection with the Juvenile Court.

I regret to report that death has removed from our department during the past year, four members, namely, R. H. Adams, P. C. Charles McGinty, P. C. William Sill, and P. C. William Paterson. All of whom were held in high esteem by the members of this department and I believe by the citizens in general.

The Chief Constables' Association of Canada was scheduled to meet this year in the city of Vancouver, but I understand that negotiations are now being carried on by the president to have the convention meet this year in some Ontario city, and I trust gentlemen that you will make it convenient for me to attend accompanied with the necessary appropriation.

Police Matron's Report.

Mrs. McElhiney reports as follows:—

"I beg to submit my report as police matron for the City of Peterborough for the year ending 31st of December, 1914, and in doing so I wish to express my sincere thanks for all the kindness and help given me by the Police Commissioners, his Honor Judge Huycke, his Worship Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Buller, also for the help and encouragement given by Chief Thompson, and members of his department.

Out of the forty cases handled directly through Police Court, some severe means had to be used to protect some of the women from themselves, and consequently they had to be sent to the Reformatory. Judging from letters I have received from time to time it seems as if this was the proper course to pursue, for most of them are coming to themselves, and I believe will be better for the discipline they are undergoing.

A Few Have Returned.

Other female prisoners who were either fined or let out on suspended sentence have done well, a very small percentage of them returning to be dealt with the second time. In fact some of them have been converted and are endeavoring to lead better lives.

In dealing with these cases we have found that following them up with a little encouragement has had a lot to do with their reformation. I have visited them and had them come to see me, and through this medium I have been able to keep in touch with them all.

The number of investigations that I have been called upon to make by the Chief Constable together with a number of others who came to me personally revealed the fact that a great many of the difficulties can be dealt with outside of Police Court, and we are hopeful that these investigations will result in much good.

We have sent 20 girls to homes and have had those responsible for their condition, prosecuted, and where sufficient evidence could not be obtained to carry on a criminal prosecution, they were made pay the expenses so far as possible. We arranged with our homes at Toronto and Ottawa, to take the girls and when they were ready to come out have seen that they got comfortable homes and dealt with the children when board or adoption was necessary.

A General Improvement.

Dealing with the children and parents where proper control was lacking has taken a great deal of our attention, but all along the line there seems to be a general improvement in morals and discipline in our city.

The following is a full statement of my work during the year.

Number of attendance at Police Court	55
Number of interviews	524
Number of visits	630
Number of investigations	50
Number of women sent to homes	26
Number of children dealt with	120

RUSSIAN TRIUMPH AT PRZASNYSZ SPREADS OVER WIDER TERRITORY

Value of German Advance in East Prussia and Northern Poland is Destroyed by Russian Coup and German Strategic Points are Threatened by Slavs—Big Battle Certain in the South.

LONDON, March 1. — The most cheering news from Russia for some time was given out by the Petrograd War Office Saturday night, when it reported that the German retreat, which began at Przasnysz is spreading over a constantly widening front, and in some places is assuming a disorderly rout. Forty officers and 3,600 soldiers have been taken prisoners and the Russian captures are constantly increasing, while the Cossacks are giving most effective pursuit. The town of Przasnysz, which the Germans had occupied, was recaptured by the Russians. On the rest of the front the Germans have appeared to pass to the defensive, where they are not retiring.

Russian advance guards have been engaged with the enemy on the roads to Symo and Sorey, from the left bank of the Niemen. North of Grodno the enemy confined his operations to an intense fire.

The Daily News has the following despatch from Frederick Rennet, its Petrograd correspondent:

"Against the central German column in north Poland the Russians on Friday delivered a determined attack. The Germans held the line stretching thirty miles through the Przasnysz region. Przasnysz is at the junction of the only system of causeway roads in north central Poland. They are able to support motor traffic from Soldau and Mlawa, and also westward to Plotsk and southward to Narew. Near Pultursk the Germans assembled a vast quantity of motor vans for a swift raid upon the Narew, with the object of reaching the railway north-east of Warsaw, but the Russians attacked with a number of swift armored cars with light guns.

"Capt. Gourdon, the pioneer of this arm, dashed within thirty paces of a German field battery and shot down the gunners, but he himself was killed and his adjutant, Prince Vatchnadse, was wounded.

"The Russian infantry repeatedly broke the German line, about half of which seemed to be composed of raw recruits or old Landsturm men. They began to surrender early in the afternoon in big groups. Young German cuirasseur officers were commanding the infantry companies, and Uhlan captains were commanding battalion. Close fighting brought the Russians across the main roads immediately southward and westward of Przasnysz. The German infantry fled in disorder towards Soldau, clambering upon the motor vans, hundreds of which were packed along the roadside. The Russian artillery, however, shot off many of their wheels, and the road was choked as darkness approached, bringing deeper confusion. The greater part of two regiments surrendered outside the town at 11 o'clock at night. The Russians re-entered the town, where they took vast quantities of ammunition and supply wagons.

"This victory more than destroys the value of the German advance eastward and southward, and the Mazurian Lakes northward advance of the Russians from Przasnysz again threatens the Soldau-Niedenburg Railway and prevents the Germans from further increasing their forces against the Neimen river line. The Germans are shelling Ossowiec fortress with 11 and 12-inch howitzers, but sorties from the garrison captured several scouting parties which were attempting to establish observations points for the German artillery. These howitzers had been exchanged by the Austrians for the German guns, which are now shelling the Russian position on the Dunaketz, especially south of Tarnow, in south-eastern Galicia.

"The Russians are increasing their advantage over the Austrians in the region of Stanislau. They seized the outer screen of villages west and south of the Austrian army. Another column from the Dniester presses from the north. The position is regarded as ready for a big battle."

SCHOOL OUT FOR KEEPS

Company Struck the Rocks at St. Catharines

The "School Days" Company which played at the Grand Opera House has come to grief at St. Catharines. The Journal says: "School Days," a musical comedy of the "small town" burlesque order, with some features that were commendable, held forth at the Grand Friday night, but after the performance an enforced vacation was declared, representatives of creditors from Hamilton having brought pressure to bear upon the company's share of the box office receipts that rendered continuation of the company impossible.

The members of the company claim to be behind in their salaries, and some of them are without funds to pay their fares to New York, the mecca of stranded thespians. "I haven't a nickel," remarked one diminutive chorus girl as she stood before a hotel desk, and there were others that wore the "me too" expression on their faces.

Members of the Colonial Amusement Company who are appearing at the Grand tonight, rendered kindly assistance in caring for the stranded ones over night, and they are endeavoring to get out of town as speedily as possible.

OBITUARY

VERNON RUNNELS.

Vernon Runnels, aged 22, son of Mr. A. E. Runnels, passed away at 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon after a lingering illness. He was a popular young man and had many friends who will deeply regret his death. He was an apprentice in the pattern department of the Wm. Hamilton Mfg. Company for some years. He was also a member of the 57th Bugle Band.

He was a member of St. John's Church and was confirmed by the Bishop about two weeks ago. Besides his parents, he is survived by one sister, Mrs. Fred Petrie, Hamilton, and two brothers, one living at Winnipeg, and Dixon, at home.

The funeral is to take place at 2.30 tomorrow afternoon to Little Lake Cemetery from the late residence, 533 Downie Street.

RICHARD FALLIS.

Richard Fallis, one of Cavan township's widely known farmers, died on Sunday morning after an illness that has extended over the past two years. He was a true son of Cavan, having been born and raised there, and he carried on farming up till recent years, when illness interfered. For several years he was president of the Millbrook Exhibition Association.

The late Mr. Fallis leaves one son, Milton, living at home, and two daughters, Mrs. W. Welsh and Mrs. D. Henry, both living in Cavan.

The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon to Cavan cemetery.

MRS. J. C. OLAND.

Sarah Ann, wife of John C. Oland, who died on Saturday, was buried this afternoon at 2.30 in Little Lake Cemetery, the funeral being private. She died at the residence of her son, H. D. R. Oland, 413 Rogers street, East City.

An enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sewell, 348 Stewart Street, on Saturday evening. Among the gathering were Corp. Drake, Pte. F. Davey, Pte. H. Strickland, with the Signallers of the 21st Battalion at Kingston; Pte. H. Follis, 8th Mounted Rifles; Ptes. H. Follis, E. Gregson, W. Foster, F. Milliken and H. Langham, 39th Battalion. Among the numerous guests were Mr and Mrs. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Palmer, Mrs. Spencer, Miss Bullied, Miss Fortune, Miss McAllister and Mrs. Thay and Mrs. Pullin, whose husbands are in Kingston with the 21st Battalion. Mr. Smith explained that the entertainment was held in honor of the birthday of three of the soldiers, Sig. F. Davey, Sig. H. Strickland and Sergt. S. Sewell of the Home Guard. The gathering was kept in good humor by Messrs. Edwards and Flotsun who are always popular at social gatherings.

The following contributed songs:

Mr. J. Bartley—Soldiers of the King and Sands of the Desert.
Mr. F. Wainwright—Goodbye I'm Leaving You.
Corp. Drake—Peg of My Heart.
Pte. J. Blake—Baby Faces.
Mr. S. Sewell—Friends.
Mr. H. Smith—Selected.
Mr. J. Thnoles—Selected.
Mrs. Pullin—Greater Canada.

A toast Our Allies was responded to by Pte. W. Foster, Pte. H. Langham, Pte. S. F. Milliken.

Pte. H. Follis presided at the piano. A flashlight was taken by Mr Cowan.

Amongst the many curious cases of wounds which have been investigated by the X-rays at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, London, is one in which a German bullet was found embedded in the muscular part of a soldier's heart. The radiographer who located it said that the bullet entered the man's left shoulder and burrowed downwards, and the amazing part of the affair was that after the soldier had been hit he walked for one and one-half miles to the ambulance. He did not realize that he was wounded, he said, until he saw a few splashes of blood. The bullet was not removed and the man lived afterwards.

This is by no means an isolated case of a man living, and even following some occupation with a foreign body in his vital part. Two interesting radio-photos in the laboratory at St. Bartholomew's illustrated this. One was that of a German bullet embedded in the right lung. It measured about one and one-quarter inches long, and the dilineation was perfect. Others show a number of pieces of shrapnel in the skull cavity at the base of the eye, underneath the brain. The shrapnel entered one side of the cheek and penetrated through to the other side.

The uniforms and equipment for the local unit of the Mounted Rifles arrived in the city at noon today and the men will be fitted up tomorrow.

The non-commissioned officers of the 8th Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion are holding a military dance in the Foresters' Hall on Friday evening of this week.

RUINED DARDANELLES FORTS NOW OCCUPIED BY ALLIES

Inner Strongholds Were Under Fire Saturday and Those on European Side Have Been Silenced---Encampments of Soldiers Are Also Shelled---Constantinople Scared by Returning Wounded.

LONDON, March 1. — A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Athens says:

"The allies have disembarked detachments of artillery near the destroyed Dardanelles forts and British and French flags are now flying over them.

"The fleet continued a bombardment of the inner forts Saturday afternoon. A powder magazine was blown up. There were numerous victims. The fleet had reached as far as the lighthouse, near Fort Kilid Bahr. The forts on the European side have been reduced to silence. Mine sweeping operations continue.

"There are 50,000 Turks on the European side and 15,000 on the Asiatic side."

The allied fleet on Friday fired a thousand shells at the Dardanelles forts, says a despatch from the Athens' correspondent of the Havas Agency of Paris. The message continues:

"The British fleet discharged its guns at a distance of 18 kilometres (about 12 miles). The battleship Gaulois (French) distinguished herself, contributing largely to the destruction of Fort Seddel-el-Bahr. Saturday forty vessels advanced as far as Fort Orkhanieeh and swept the Turkish encampments. They then bombarded In Tepeh, which they destroyed.

"Submarines, protected by French vessels and aeroplanes, constantly moved about. Mine-dragging was effected methodically.

"According to information from authoritative sources the arrival of numerous injured soldiers caused a panic in Constantinople. Special trains are constantly under steam at Haidar Pasha ready to transport the imperial family and the treasury to the interior of Asia.

"During the bombardment of Seddel-Bahr munition depots blew up, killing many defenders, among whom were numerous Germans."

After having completed the destruction of the forts at the entrance of the Dardanelles, the allied fleet of British and French warships, the greatest which has ever been in action, is now attacking the inner fortifications which heretofore have stood between Turkey and invasion by the sea.

More serious work is now ahead, for the all-important fortifications are at Kilid Bahr and Chanak, which guard the narrowest part of the straits, which the fleet is now approaching. There is no doubt, however, that the allied commanders have instructions to make their way to Constantinople in spite of all obstacles, and have been supplied with means for carrying out these orders.

The Fort Dardanus, which the ships attacked Friday after the entrance to the straits had been swept of mines, is not far from the narrows, and it is probable that the big, and more important attack has begun by this time.

Reports from neutral Balkan states say that the residents of the islands in the Sea of Marmora have been ordered to evacuate their homes, and that an imperial train is waiting to take the Sultan to Asia Minor.

The Admiralty's Saturday night statement says:

"The entrance to the Dardanelles was guarded by four principal forts, namely, Fort Erthogroll, Fort Seddul Bahr, Fort Orkhanish Tabia and Fort Kum Kalossi Tabia, which will be described as forts A, B, C, and D. These forts were armed as follows: A, two 9.2 guns; B, six 10.2 guns; C, two 9.2 guns; D, four 10.2 guns and two 5.9 guns.

"The weather having improved, although the wind was still from the south, the attacks on these forts was resumed Thursday morning (Feb. 25) at 10 o'clock. The Queen Elizabeth, Agamemnon, Irresistible and Gaulois began by deliberately bombarding forts A, B, C, and D respectively at longe range. Fort A replied. One shell at 11,000 yards hit the Agamemnon, killing three men and seriously wounding five. The Irresistible and Gaulois made excellent progress on forts C and D, while the Queen Elizabeth concentrated with great accuracy on fort A, putting both of its guns out of action by 11.30 a.m.

"The Vengeance and Cornwallis were then run in under cover of long range fire and engaged fort A at close range. The reduction of the fort was completed, while forts C and D opened a very slow and inaccurate fire.

"The Suffern and Charlemagne next delivered an attack on forts C and D, advancing to within 2,000 yards of them. It was then seen that they were in no condition to offer an effective resistance. The Vengeance, Triumph and Albion were then ordered in to complete the reduction of the forts. All four were reduced by 5.15 p.m.

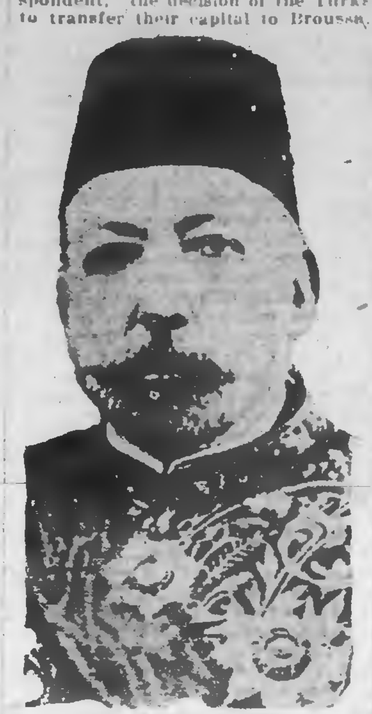
"Sweeping operations, covered by a division of battleships and destroyers, were immediately begun. The enemy set fire to a village at the entrance as darkness fell.

"A report has been received of the operations of Feb. 26. The straits had been swept up to four miles from the entrance. The Albion and Majestic, supported by the Vengeance proceeded to the limit of the swept area and began an attack on Fort Dardanus and some new batteries which had been erected on the Asiatic shore. The fire in reply was ineffective."

TURKS MOVING THE CAPITAL

Sultan Prepares for Rapid Flight to Broussa

LONDON, March 1. — "According to diplomatic information received in Rome," says The Daily News correspondent, "the decision of the Turks to transfer their capital to Broussa,



SULTAN MOHAMMED V

Asia Minor, was in direct opposition to Germany, which wished the transfer, if made, to be to Adrianople.

"The Prophet's mantle, together with all the important relics and treasures, already have been removed to Broussa; where the Sultan's harem also has been sent."

W.C.T.U. MEETING

The regular monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. was held in the Y W. C. A. on Friday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Whalley, in the chair. There was a splendid attendance.

Mrs. Mathieson conducted the devotional exercises. Mrs. T. W. Whalley and Mrs. H. A. Fife were appointed delegates to the Dominion Alliance convention, which will be held in Toronto on March 3rd.

After the business was concluded, Mrs. Morrison spoke on the life of Miss Frances E. Willard. In the first place she was well born. That is what the W. C. T. U. stands for, that children be well born. Her father and mother were fine types of Christians and always kept abreast of the times, and thus held the respect of their children. The first impression of her W. C. T. U. life was made in her forest home in Ohio, where she dwelt for years. She decided for Christ when she was 19 years of age. In the year 1874, the year of the Women's Christian Temperance Crusade, Miss Willard, busy as she was with her work at the university, found time to speak at temperance gatherings and assure the temperance women that she was with them, hand mind and heart. Her sympathy with the movement led to her resigning her chair in the university and going east to confer with the temperance people. While there she received two letters, one offering her the position of lady principal of a fashionable school at $2,400 a year; the other asking her to take the presidency of the Chicago branch of the W. C. T. U. She chose the latter, and afterwards she said: "I have felt that great promotion came to me when I was counted worthy to be a worker in the organized cause for God, home and native land."

Agitate, organize and educate was her motto. Her last words were: "How beautiful it is to be with Jesus."

The thanks of the Union were given to Mrs. Morrison for her very helpful and interesting address.

APPLICATIONS FROM FARMERS

Have Positions for Married and Unmarried Men

Any married man who won't object to going on a farm to work, would do well to see Messrs. Might and Taylor, government immigration and employment agents, at 376 Water Street. They have a large number of applications on hand from farmers who desire to engage married and unmarried men, but mostly the latter. Some of these applications call for married men with wives. In some cases positions giving employment to both parties are open, and in others the man only is required, but a house will be furnished by the employer for them and their wives to occupy. Many of these positions offer employment for the whole year, and provided the applicants give satisfaction they will receive as high wages as are paid for this class of work.

Mr. Might says that men are getting scarce and farmers would do well to register their applications for help without delay.

Several domestics are also wanted.

BAIL OF $1000

Is Allowed in Case of Italian Charged With Theft

Bail of $1000 was granted this morning by Police Magistrate Dumble in the case of Pancrazio D'Ermenegildo, the Italian, who was arrested in Welland and brought to Peterborough Saturday to face a charge of stealing $160 from Leonardo Capone.

No evidence was taken this morning. Crown Attorney Hatton asked to have prisoner remanded one week as the police required time to secure some additional evidence. C. R. Widdifield who is defending the prisoner, objected strenuously on the ground that it was unfair to keep his client in gaol when he was ready to proceed. He asked the Crown to shorten the remand if possible. He asked for bail which His Worship agreed to accept.

After court, Detectives Newhall and Meagher took the finger measurements of the prisoner.

TEN DAYS FOR JAMES WILSON

"Jim" Wilson, who needs no introduction to the public or the police, was arrested on Saturday along with three bottles of firewater. Thus fortified, he created a beautiful racket and after confinement to the police cell his perorations were wild and threatening.

This morning he was penitent. He wanted a chance—a chance to go back amongst his own people, who were well off.

His chance consisted of escaping jail by coming through with $2, but, being without the necessary, he goes up the hill for ten days.

Robert Bickell was found drunk in a public place, to wit on King street. It cost him $2.50 today.

GOOD INCREASE IN CUSTOM RETURNS

The custom returns for the month of February were $40,618.06 or an increase of $13,871.34 over the returns for February, 1914, which were $26,747.32.

QUEBEC'S NEW KNIGHT IS A MAN OF GREAT ABILITY

Sir William Price Controls 6,400 Miles of the French-Canadian Province and Employs Five Thousand Men on His Extensive Timber Limits — Descendant of Lumber Kings of the Saguenay

Ontario is just far enough away from the capital of Quebec for Ontarians at least to be somewhat unfamiliar with the personalities of the leading citizens of the eastern city, says W. A. Craick in Toronto Star Weekly. Compared with the captains of finance and industry who reside in Montreal, those that live in Quebec are comparatively unknown. Take for instance that prominent resident of the ancient capital, who has just been honored with knighthood—Sir William Price. Here is a man whose story is as interesting, whose personality is as striking, and whose power is as widespread as that of almost any other person in the Dominion of Canada, and yet he is a stranger to most people in Ontario.

Sir William Price, descendant of the famous lumber kings of the Saguenay, to-day rules an industrial kingdom of enormous proportions. Through the Price Company, of which he is the president and chief owner, he controls 6,400 square miles of timber limits in the Province of Quebec, the potentialities of which are almost beyond computation; owns outright the lands of five ancient seigniories with a combined area of 300 square miles; operates twelve large saw and shingle mills and two huge pulp and paper mills, and gives employment to five thousand men. Though now under the nominal jurisdiction of a joint stock company Sir William inherited the bulk of this property in his own person fifteen years ago.

The new Quebec knight is the grandson of the founder of the family fortunes. William Price, the first, was an Englishman who came to Canada in 1810 to investigate the possibility of obtaining masts for the British navy from the forests of Quebec. He remained in the colony and embarked in the lumbering industry on the Saguenay River, earning before his death the title of the Lumber King of that famous river. He married a Quebec lady of good family and purchased as a family residence historic Wolfesfield, a fine old mansion and estate just above Wolfe's Cove, which is still in the possession of his daughter.

Three bachelor sons of William Price, the first, continued the business he had established and built it up to large proportions. These were David, William, and John. They were men of diverse temperaments; but in combination they wielded great power. The two first took up their residence on the Saguenay. The third, who outlived them both by several years, managed affairs from the Quebec office. David was a born politician and was respectively member of Parliament, member of the Legislative Council, and Dominion Senator. William became a member of the Quebec Legislature. John succeeded his brother David as a member of the Senate, so that all three had a say in the government of the country.

As the brothers died, they left their interest in the business to the survivor. This happened to be John who became sole owner of the property in 1883. It thereupon became necessary for him to select an heir, and his choice eventually fell on his nephew William, son of his brother, Henry. This brother had led a wandering sort of life. He had resided for some years in Chili, where his eldest son was born, and later had engaged in farming operations in Ontario. He finally settled in Toronto, where he died in 1898.

After being educated in England, William Price, the third, entered his uncle's office at the age of nineteen. He started at the bottom and personally mastered all the details of the business, in order to fit himself for the responsibilities which should be his when his uncle passed away. This event occurred in 1898, and the following year the young man, then thirty-two years of age, came into the enjoyment of his splendid heritage.

That Sir William has carried on the best family traditions and has managed the business with efficiency and success is testimony to his ability. He is a man of abundant energy and resource, whose time is filled in with a multiplicity of activities.

Sir William has been chairman of the Quebec Harbor Commission since 1911, and has worked hard to develop the harbor facilities of the port. He is also honorary president of the Union Bank of Canada, and holds office as director of various other companies. His main concern, however, is in the welfare of the varied interests of the Price Company. He keeps an eye on all branches of the business and is constantly on the move.

When war broke out, Sir William threw all his energies into assisting in mobilizing and despatching the first contingent. Those on the inside are fully aware of the share he took in preparing the camp at Valcartier. It is said that he personally took hold of the arrangements at a time when others were proving dilatory, and swept things along with characteristic zeal. Later it was Sir William who took charge of getting the troops on board the transports. For these services he has now received the honor of knighthood.

Better Ask the Bears.

A tourist, traveling in the Canadian Rockies, was introduced to an old hunter who claims to have killed no fewer than four hundred bears.

"Bill," said the introducer, "this feller wants to hear some narrer escapes you've had from bears."

The old man, rubbing his eyes, looked the stranger over, and said:

"Young man, if there's been any narrer escapes, the bears had 'em."

Uneasiness exists among the citizens of Woodstock regarding the number of smal[illegible] cases which have developed [illegible] in the past few weeks. None [illegible] cases are of a virulent type.

Describing the Grand Canyon.

As for the Grand Canyon of the Colorado, it affects those who behold it with a kind of literary asthma. They desire to describe it; some try passionately, but they only wheeze and look as though they might explode. Since it is generally admitted that no one who has seen it can describe it the task would manifestly devolve upon some one who has not seen it and that requirement is filled by me. I have not seen it. I am not impressed by it at all. I am able to speak of it with coherence and restraint. But even that I shall not do.—Julian Street in Collier's Weekly.

The following history of a STRAIGHT LIFE POLICY with profits reserved for 20 years is interesting:

Pol. No. 27619. Amount: $1000. Premium $20.95. Age, 30

Total premiums paid from 1st February, 1890, to February, 1910 (20 years) $419.00

The premiums were then permanently reduced by the accumulated profits to $10.20 per year; this he paid for the past five years .. 51.00

Total cost in 25 years 470.00

Now his profits for the past five years reduce the premium to $2.00 per year.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Straight Life he would have paid during the same period 475.00

and would still have to pay $19.00 per year as long as he lives, while his participating policy has not only cost him less in the aggregate, but his future premium is only $2.00 per year, subject to further reductions, as compared with $19.00 per year on the Non-Participating plan.

GETTING AT A SECRET

By DWIGHT NORWOOD.

Jim Hathaway and I were not only chums, but occupied rooms in the same bachelor apartment house. Jim was a secretive chap and especially fond of making a mystery of what was an ordinary happening. I poked fun at him for doing so, but this seemed to have no effect in stopping him from continually trying to impress me with his ability to do things without my having any knowledge of them. Then when the denouement came he would assume an air of superiority as much as to say, "I don't go about blabbing of my affairs."

There came a time when I believed that Jim had an affair on hand with a girl. The reason why I came to this conclusion was that he began to show a contempt for women. "The best thing a fellow can do with a girl," he would say, "is to let her alone. By doing so he avoids the expense of theater tickets and flowers, only to find out later that she's encouraging some other fellow." I was not interested in Jim's love affairs, but I saw no reason why he should take pains to deceive me in the matter. However, it did not trouble me that he thought proper to do so. I was very fond of him and considered his idiosyncrasy of no real importance, not doubting but that I had others myself just as absurd.

Jim and I occupied a common living room, and one evening when we were about to go out to dinner together Jim picked up an envelope that had been left by the postman during the day, unsealed, and took out a booklet advertising some kind of goods. I noticed him looking at it, or some part of it, with apparent interest; then he tossed it in the wastebasket.

The next morning I happened to go to that same wastebasket to recover a bit of paper I had thrown in it containing an address. I stumbled on the envelope containing the advertisement and noticed that it was addressed in a feminine hand. I thought nothing of this, since girls are usually employed to address advertising matter, and was hunting on for my paper when I raked up the advertisement. It gave a list of articles that would alone interest a woman. This set me to thinking why it should have been addressed to a man. While meditating on this I noticed some lead pencil marks on the booklet. They were 8. 16. 7½.

Now, had it not been for what I have said about Jim and his mysteries it would not have occurred to me that these figures were not merely something put there by some unknown person for some very ordinary purpose, but intended for a cipher. First, advertisements of especial interest to women are not usually mailed to men. This suggested that the booklet had been received by a woman and had been used for cipher purposes by the recipient. What better method for communication could there be? Whether the figures had a meaning or not, I resolved that if I ever got a girl whose parents would not permit me to visit her I would use this plan of communication.

I tried hard not to pry into Jim's affairs, but the puzzle was too fascinating for me to let alone. Besides, there was the temptation to beat Jim at his own game. What 8. 16. 7½ meant haunted me till I hit upon the fact that the present month was August, the eighth month in the year. The present day was the 12th. Did not the figures contain an appointment? If so, it was for Aug. 16 at half past 7 (probably in the evening).

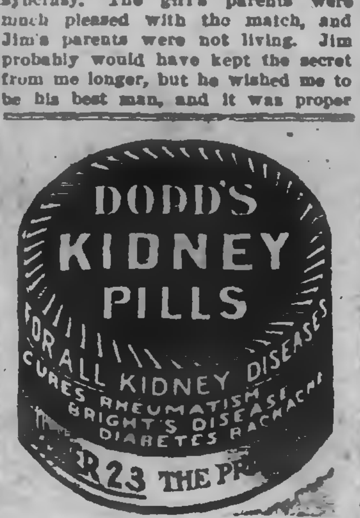
I could not quite bring myself to shadow my friend on that evening, but during the next month or so I noticed that he received a number of advertisements on which there were lead pencil marks. I did not try to decipher any of them. Indeed, I had not deliberately tried to decipher the first one. I had come upon it by accident, it had got into my head and I couldn't get it out till I had solved it. What I did was to buy a wedding present and leave it where Jim could see it. He was above asking me what it was for, so I told him that it was for a friend who was about to be married, adding that I could not name the person since the engagement was a secret.

The reason why I counted on Jim's coming marriage was that it is difficult if not impossible for two men to live together one of whom is engaged without the other knowing it.

Jim never told me of his engagement till a couple of weeks before the wedding. There had been no reason whatever for the secrecy attending the affair except such as influences young couples in similar cases and Jim's idiosyncrasy. The girl's parents were much pleased with the match, and Jim's parents were not living. Jim probably would have kept the secret from me longer, but he wished me to be his best man, and it was proper that he should give me timely notice.

The evening before the wedding I carried the wedding gift I had procured to the bride's home. Jim was there, and when I opened the box in which it was contained Jim started as if he had been shot. I laughed, explained the joke to the bride, and we all laughed together. But I kept them wondering for many months before I told them how I had got on to their secret.

That cured my friend of making mysteries out of very small things. Ever afterward he was frankness to perfection. As for his wife, I doubt if she had ever been so troubled.



THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—It was more on account of a change of feeling than because of a change of news that the wheat market today scored a substantial advance. Intelligence that 40 warships had forced a passage many miles up the Dardanelles did not reach here until after trading hours. Prices closed strong, 2¾c to 6¼c advance. Other net gains were corn 2¼c to 2½c, oats 1¼c to 1½c, and provisions 5c to 12½c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 26.—Quite a reaction took place in wheat prices following the decline of Friday. Wheat opened from $1.51¾ to $1.52½ for May, and July at $1.52⅝. Following the opening there was advance to $1.53⅝ for May, while July declined from the opening figures until near the close. At the close there was an extremely sharp advance, caused by shorts covering.

The total number of cars inspected on Friday was 308, as against 186 last year.

Futures closed 2c to 3¾c advance. Cash closed 3¾c to 4¼c higher. Oats closed ⅝c to ⅜c up. Flax closed 1⅝c to 1⅞c advance.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, Feb. 27.—There were very firm bids in the market for foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today, but a number of cables were received asking exporters to make offers of all grades for shipment in all positions up to May, which indicates that they want Canadian wheat.

It is reported that 3,000,000 bushels of oats will be exported at the opening of navigation here.

The local trade in coarse grains was quiet today with no change in prices to note. The demand for flour shows no improvement either for local or export account, and the market is quiet with a firm undertone. Millfeed is active at firm prices.

Demand for butter continues good, and as stocks on spot are held in strong hands the prospects are that prices will go higher in the near future. Receipts for week 1062 packages, as compared with 316 a year ago. Local demand for cheese is good at firm prices. Receipts for week were 233 boxes as against 642 for the same week a year ago. An active trade is doing in eggs with no further change in prices to note. Receipts for week 4567 cases, as compared with 4032 a year ago. Stocks: Wheat, 994,119; corn, 128,763; oats, 1,044,273; barley, 260,402; rye, 14,720, buckwheat, 7618; flax, 2908; flour, 33,830 sacks.

NOISES HIGH UP IN THE AIR.

Where an Echo is Louder Than the Sound That Produced It.

To cause the echo of a sound to be louder than the sound that caused it seems an impossibility, but under certain conditions this can happen, and the echo is sometimes many times greater in sound volume than the original noise that produced it.

This happens away up in the air. For instance, if an aviator is, say, 1,000 or 2,000 feet above ground and some one on the ground fires a revolver there is a brief time when nothing is heard. The aviator can see the smoke from the muzzle of the revolver, then wait a little, then the sound comes to him, not like the sharp report of a revolver, but more like a quick peal of thunder, loud and sharp and really several times greater in sound volume than the actual report of the revolver.

The cause of this is that the air below is much more dense, while up above it is lighter, and there are no hills and trees and buildings to help muffle the sound, so it comes up on sound waves with increasing noise. Having no solid background around and about the aviator, the rebound of the sound waves is greater up there than on the ground.

It is said a man in a balloon may lower an explosive on a cord several hundred feet below his basket and set it off with an electric wire and battery. There is a sharp little "crack" like the report of a flobert rifle; then comes the most terrifying noise, like a great burst of thunder, the loudest ever heard. The actual explosion did not make anywhere near this amount of noise, but the air being much more dense below causes the line of least resistance to be straight up, and so the sound waves expand mightily in an upward direction, increasing the sound.—Boston Herald.

HOCKEY CURLING ATHLETICS

NO CANADIAN LEAGUE TEAM HERE THIS SEASON

Committee With Subscription Lists Not Successful in Their Quest for Finances.

Peterborough is to be without a Canadian League baseball team this season. This has been decided upon by the officers of last year's club, and Secretary Eddie Carr is applying to the league for permission to retain the territory and franchise for a year without operating it. As was generally known, some two weeks ago a committee set out to endeavor to raise money by public subscription. The sum aimed at was $2,500, and if it could be raised, baseball was assured to the fans. A meeting was called Saturday evening and only two or three were present — enough to show that the interest is not at all keen and enough to warrant the dropping of the team. The sum subscribed was less than $2,000, so there was no alternative but to pass the proposition up so far as this year was concerned, and try and retain the territory and franchise until 1916. It is possible that the league will grant such permission, and again it is probable that it will not. It will, however, be some time before President Fitzgerald and his assistants give their decision.

As yet, the only contracts received are those of Knute Belting and Frank Fox. Joe Byrne and Ken Tracey have written to the effect that they are satisfied with the terms, and "Biddie" Dolan promises to slip his name on a contract if the club settles a small claim he has against it. If there is a team at all, Dolan's trouble will be cleared up. Bob Sterling has written to the effect that he has a lucrative position in New York and could not respond to the call till later in the season. He is, however, willing to play and is satisfied with the terms.

CURLING

Two rinks of local curlers left at noon for Oshawa where they will take part in the bonspiel of the Oshawa club. The rinks are: C. G. Graham, C. Seymour, L. Bowes, H. Martin, skip; T. Brightman, Jas. Skinner, Geo. Benore, R. M. Waddell, skip.

Play in the local bonspiel has been postponed till Wednesday night.

Two rinks will go to Campbellford tomorrow to compete in the games for the Trent Valley trophy which Peterborough won last winter.

There are a number of inter-rink games, which it is expected will be played while the hard ice is available.

In the anual competitions, the return games in the Fitzgerald-Bottum trphy at Bobcaygeon remain to be played as well as the games for the Lindsay-Peterborough cup; Waddell-Capon cup and the games with the Toronto Granites.

A flexible ironing board which may be rolled for storing in a small space has been patented.

COMMENT As You Like it

FRANK HEFFERNAN spent last week at his home here, but evidently Charlie Good of the News was not aware of the fact. On Saturday the Toronto sport writer remarked:

"Though the whereabouts of 'Moose' Heffernan is more or less a mystery, the defence star of the Victorias is expected by his club mates to be on hand when Referee Gilfillan tolls his little bell for the beginning of hostilities on Monday. Heffernan disappeared from his accustomed haunts with quickness and despatch when advised to take a rest after it was discovered that his side was strained, and even Manager Reade disclaims all knowledge of his present stopping place. 'Heff' is an eccentric, high-strung individual who delights in doing the unexpected, and his latest move is only in keeping with some of his past performances. The Vics. are in good condition and as confident as ever of not only holding their lead, but of increasing it."

WILLIE RITCHIE has the following to say concerning a bout with Freddy Welsh:

"If Welsh really wants $25,000 for beating me I'll see that he gets it. The Denver club has offered $15,000 If he beats me, I'll give him $10,000 more. I'll put the $10,000 up any time. If Welsh really means business it's up to him now to come through and sign. The only stipulation I shall make is that if he doesn't beat me he doesn't get the extra $10,000."

ABE ATTELL, one of the cleverest mit artists who ever stepped into a ring, and for years featherweight champion, is to appear as a preliminary fighter when Eddie McGoorty and Mike Gibbons meet in Minneapolis tomorrow night. Attell made a fortune with the gloves, but has let it slip through his fingers. The reason for him apearing as a preliminary fighter is that he needs a little money.

FORT WILLIAM 5, MONARCHS 3.

Fort Arthur, March 1.—In one of the fastest games of hockey ever played at the head of the lakes, the Fort William team defeated the Monarchs of Winnipeg Saturday night by five goals to three in the first of home-and-home games in the Allan Cup elimination series. McTeigue, the Fort William goal-keeper, was the star of the game.

WE PICK Orillia for the intermediate O. H. A. championship and Berlin for the junior. Wiarton is strong, but the team from the northern clime look better.

ST. MICHALE'S step on the ice tonight with a badly wrecked crew and a one-goal lead to overcome. For the first time in three years they are not the favorites.

THE BLACK BROTHERS' team has won the British Columbia amateur championship and will now meet Edmonton in the Allan Cup elimination series.

RANKIN NOT ON LINE-UP

Murphy Replaces Veteran at Rover in Senior O.H.A. Final

Toronto, March 1.—With the exception of Murphy, who will replace Rankin at rover for St. Michael's, both the Irish and Victorias will present the same teams tonight as those which lined up in the first game for the O.H.A. senior title and John Ross Robertson Trophy. Another record crowd is expected, and with the teams practically on even terms, although Vics have a one-goal lead, the spectators will be given plenty of chance to cheer for their favorites.

Every one of the Victorias are at the top of their form, including Heffernan, who has been resting a sore side for the past week. St. Michael's will undoubtedly be weakened on the offensive by the absence of Rankin, but their defence will be stronger with Murphy at rover.

BASKETBALL

In the games Saturday night in the Y basket ball league the Beavers succeeded in downing the Hustlers while the Unknowns put the lid on the Junior Business Men. Both games were fast and some of the best basbel ball yet shown was uncaged in the game between the Unknowns and Junior Business Men. The score of the game is misleading for while the victors had a good lead they scored 29 out of their 39 points in the first half, while their opponents scored 17 out of 19 points in the second half. The feature of the game was the splendid passing. While some of the baskets were scored from a distance, most of them were the result of snappy passes and team work. Dad Flowers has joined the Unknowns and has added a lot of strength to their team. He was in fine fettle Saturday night and succeeded in scoring eight baskets as the result of good team work on the part of his team mates, who all played A1 ball. The Junior Business Men couldn't seem to get started in the first half and when they hit their stride in the second their oppoents had too much of a lead, however, the losers did most of the scoring in the second half and made it one of the best games yet played in the league.

Jr. Bus. Men—Cranfield, Metheral, M. Turner, F. Turner, C. Sisson.

Unknowns—Flowers, Smith, McCarrell, Mulhern, Fitzgerald.

Referee—Corsan. Scorer, Dobbin.

The Beavers-Hustlers game was close and hard fought all the way The first half ending 18-12, the final score being 28-22, in favor of the Beavers. This will give some indication of the closeness of the game. It would be hard to pick out any stars in this game as the honors were very evenly divided. Except that captain Dobbin found a phenom in Tom Gilchrist, who pulled off some one hand shots for the basket that made them all take notice. If Tom keeps this up captain Dobbin will have a hard time to keep the big magnates in A series from getting their grappling irons out. Bill Carruthers was high man for the Hustlers with 9 points. Capt. Heaslip coming second with eight, while Lees was high score for the Beavers with Dobbin and H. Flowers had six each.

Referee, Flowers. Scorer, Long.

The line-up:

Beavers — Thackeray, Lees, Dobbin, Gilchrist, Flowers.

Hustlers — Carruthers, Heaslip, Jones, Lewis, Lang.

THE LOSS OF FEATHERED GAME RECRUITS FOR IT'S SALVATION

In order that the Canadian people may correctly understand and judge the question of the extinction or preservation of our wild life, it is necessary to recall the near past. It is not necessary however to go far into the details of history, for a few quick glances at a few high points will be quite sufficient for the purpose in view. Nevertheless the wild life abundance of early Canadian days survived down to so late a period that it touched the lives of thousands of people now living. Any man fifty years ago who when a boy had a taste for hunting will remember the flocks, both of upland as well as migratory game and the droves of animals as well, that he saw and which made upon his mind many indelible impressions. To me the most striking fact that stands forth in the story of Canadian wild life in the early days is the wide extent and thoroughness of its distribution. Wide as our country is and marvellous as it is in the diversity of its climates, its soils, its topography, its flora, its riches and its poverty, nature gave to each square mile and to each acre a generous quota of wild creatures according to its ability to maintain living things. No pioneer ever pushed so far or into regions so difficult or so remote that he did not find awaiting him a host of birds and animals. Sometimes the pioneer was not a good hunter, but the game was there just the same.

The game birds of Canada as a class and a mass, have not been swept away to ward off starvation or to rescue the perishing. Even back only a few years very few men of the north thought of killing ducks, quail, woodcock, or snipe in order to keep the wolf from the door. The process was too slow, uncertain and costly for ammunition for small game in those days. Instead of attempting to live on birds he hustled for the staple food products of the soil. First, last and nearly all the time the game birds of Ontario as a whole have been sacrificed on the altar of rank luxury to tempt appetites that were tired of fried chicken and other farm delicacies. Today even the average poor man hunts birds for the joy of the outing with nature and the pampered epicures of the hotels, restaurants and cafes buy game birds and eat small portions of them, solely to tempt jaded appetites. If there is such a thing as "class" legislation it is that which permits a few sordid market-shooters to kill indiscriminately the birds of the whole people in order to barter their ethics to a few epicures.

The man who has had a fine day in the painted woods or the bright waters of a duck haunted bay, or in the golden stubble of a fall day, can fill his day and soul's desire with six good birds just as well as sixty. The idea that to enjoy a day in the open a man must kill a wheelbarrow load of game is a mistaken idea and if obstinately adhered to it becomes vicious and cruel. The outing in the open is the benefit, not the blood stained feathers. One "quail" on the fence is worth more to the world world than twenty in the game sack.

Under the present ruling, there are no restrictions on the number of quail per man for the day or season's kill, yet game sanctuaries are advocated for upland birds.

The violent warfare throughout the country waged against "Bob White" should limit the gunner to six birds per day and twenty-five for the open season. The present fragment cannot afford more. What sportsmen should care to take as toll more than fifty ducks in the open season. This would give to the gunner a trifle over four birds per week if he killed to the limit. Every season sees a decrease in the wild ducks and a decided increase in the many ways of destruction, both in incubation, loss of resources and extermination by gunners. Sportsmen and gunners, for all that is good, noble and loyal, elevate your viewpoint of the game of our country. Get out of the old groove. Times and conditions have changed. We are now facing the panorama of the new era. You don't need the meat any longer. Thousands of acres of breeding and feeding grounds are passing over the drain and under the cronch of the breaking plow. Let us establish a new sanctuary with the aid of stringent laws that may retain a portion of the wild game birds for those that follow us.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. Albert Spencely of Winnipeg is in the city visiting his father, Mr. Mark Spencely.

The Canada Gazette contains a notice of copyright of a song "Memory's Flowers," by J. Lewis Milligan, formerly of Peterborough. The music is by A. E. Greenlaw.

The Mothers' Club of King Edward School will hold a meeting in the kindergarten room Tuesday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock. Mrs. James Kendry will give an address.

Mr. Harry Long returns this afternoon to Irma, Alberta. Mr. Long has been spending the winter in Peterborough. He says the reports from his district which is near Edmonton are splendid. There has been an abundance of snow, and everything indicates a fine spring and excellent crops.

PIANO RECITAL.

The following is the program given at the Conservatory of Music on Saturday afternoon by the pupils of Miss Pearl McKee:

The Gallant Defenders—duet — Miss McKee and Miss M. McKim.

Hungarian Dream — Faber — George Ross.

(a) Rustle of Spring (Sinding); (b) Berceuse (Godard) — Marion Harstone.

Clarinette—Otto Gliddon.

Teufel's Tang — Duet — Miss McKee and Miss Isabel Baird.

(a) Mazurka (Godard); (b) Adoration (Telma) — Celia Dunsford.

(a) Nachstucke (Schumann); (b) Chanson Russe (Smith) — Isabel Baird.

Miss Edna Maude Patterson, whose home is in Indian River, Ont., and who is now assistant superintendent in the George McDougall Memorial Hospital, Edmonton, Alberta, was married at Rochester, N. Y., on Tuesday afternoon, February 23rd, to Stewart Scandrett, of Keeler, Sask., the Rev. John B. Nairn, of University Avenue Baptist Church, Rochester, officiating. Only immediate relatives and a few intimate friends were present. The bride, who was unattended, wore a tailored suit of navy blue broadcloth and a taupe hat with a corsage bouquet of violets. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Scandrett left for Buffalo, and then went to various points in Western Canada, including Winnipeg, Man., where the bride is well known, and after April 1st they intend to reside permanently in Keeler, Sask. Mrs. Scandrett formerly lived in Rochester, and she is a graduate of Rochester Homeopathic Training School for Nurses, class of 1912. Immediately after her graduation from that institution Mrs. Scandrett was assigned to the Edmonton hospital with which she is still connected.

BETHANY TABERNACLE

Rev. L. P. Compton Will Speak Tonight

Rev. L. P. Compton of Ashville, N.C., who has been conducting a series of meetings in Toronto is in the city for two meetings today. Mr. Compton addressed a meeting at the Bethany Tabernacle this afternoon and he will speak again at eight o'clock.

Those who heard him when he was here last year will be glad of the opportunity of hearing him again and a largely attended meeting is expected tonight.

AN INCREASE OF SIX WEDDINGS

But the Stork Did not Pay so Many Visits

The fact that wedding bells are tolling less frequently in Canada since the war broke out, has been heralded from coast to coast, but ministers in Peterborough can sit back with an "I should worry" smile. The number of marriages during the past month were almost double the number for the corresponding month of last year. In February of 1914 there were eight brides led to the altar while February of this year saw no less than 14 couples, as victims of Cupid. There has been a decided dropping off in the number of visits the stork paid to Peter Robinson's villa. In February, 1914, the number was 51, while during the past month only 32 babes first saw the light of day here.

The number of persons passing to the Great Beyond during February, 1915, was 22, the same number as completed life's journey during February, 1914.

Eleven New Members.

At the regular meeting of the T. A. S. in connection with the Church of the Immaculate Conception, held yesterday eleven new members were initiated. The total membership of the new branch is now well over 200.

Local News in General

Recruits Wanted.

Recruits still wanted for Third Contingent Infantry. Apply at Armouries 10 a.m., 3 p.m., and 8 p.m. daily.

Sang at City Mission.

At the Sunday evening service in the City Mission Mr. Douglas Carlisle pleased a large congregation by his singing "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere." Mrs. Lock was accompanist.

Afternoon Tea and Musicale.

The King's Daughters will hold an afternoon tea and evening musicale at the residence of Mrs. Medd, 452 Charlotte St., on Tuesday, March March 2nd, from 4 to 6 and from 8 to 10 o'clock. Silver collection.

Sale of Dairy Cows, Etc.

Don't forget A. A. Preston's big Auction Sale of farm stock, implements and choice dairy cows, on Tuesday, March 2nd, 1915, at Lot 5, Con. 12, North Monaghan.

No Successor.

No successor or substitute will be appointed at the Customs House in the place of Mr. H. Dodds, enlisted. The revenue has fallen and it is not necessary to employ further help. This is the government's decision in every case.

Over five million cups of Salada tea are consumed every day. This is proof positive of the public appreciation of quality.

The New Policeman.

There is a new constable on the local police force. His name is Clarence Dickson. He will don the garb of the law today. By appearances he should prove a valuable aid to the force, and looks able to give a good account of himself.

Lessons in Economy.

Free lessons in the making of delicious and healthy desserts and artistic dishes will be given by a lady artist in domestic science. Free books of recipes for evrybody at Mason's Grocery this week only.

Choral Society Concert.

Peterborough Choral Society present their mid-season miscellaneous concert next Tuesday in the Collegiate Assembly Hall at eight p.m. Admission by programme, 25 cents, from Mr. Mather, secretary, at Barrie's fur store, Coleman Bros', or from any member of the society.

Battle of Paardeberg.

No celebration of Paardeberg Day was held in Peterborough on Saturday, neither was the day observed in London, England, on the grounds that a celebration would be decidedly imprudent in view of the fact that the Boers of South Africa are rendering such able assistance to the Empire in the present conflict.

Soldiers' Quartette.

At the Choral Society concert in the Collegiate Institute tomorrow night, a male quartette from the 8th Mounted Rifles will sing, and some of the young vocalists of the society will also sing. A good program will conclude with several standard choruses including Elgar's "It comes from the misty ages," the famous war chorus which is being used extensively during this war.

A Boys' Choir.

A boys' choir, consisting of pupils of the School of the Sacred Heart is being trained by Rev. J. V. McAuley and Mr. J. Armstrong, organist at the Church of the Sacred Heart. The intention is to have the choir of male voices sing at the requiem high masses at the Church of the Sacred Heart. The pupils of the school at present sing at the low masses on Sunday, and on the first Fridays of the months. The church choir is busily engaged in preparing the Easter music.

St. John's Notices.

Monday — 4.30, Girls' Auxiliary.

Tuesday — 2.30, sewing meeting; 5 p.m., evening service.

Wednesday — 8 p.m., special Lenten service; sermon by Rev. Dr. Cayley, of Toronto.

Thursday — 5 p.m., evening service; 8 p.m., choir practice, "Crucifixion" and Easter music. Boys at 7.30.

Saturday — 9 a.m., boys' choir practice. 10.30, Mission Band. 5 p.m., evening service.

A Good Programme.

A splendid programme has been arranged for the concert in St. Andrew's Church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid on Monday evening, March 8th. Those who will take part are: Madame Leonora-James Kennedy, one of Canada's leading sopranos and teachers; Miss Helen MacLaren, mezzo soprano, soloist of St. Andrew's, pupil of Madam Leonora-James Kennedy; Miss Blanche Walters, elocutionist, graduate pupil of Mr. Owen Smiley; Miss Eva Galloway, pianist and accompanist, scholarship pupil of Prof. Hamburg; and Mr. Treneer, organist of St. Andrew's. The people may look for an enjoyable and artistic affair.

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME TO ARMY COMMISSIONER

Men With the Hearty Handshake and the Kindly Word Are Wanted Says Commissioner Richards — Help for the Dispairing and the Hopeless

With characteristic enthusiasm and success the arrangements made to entertain suitably Commissioner Richards, the new head of the Salvation Army in Canada, were carried out yesterday the climax of his visit being the immense audience which turned out in the afternoon to hear him speak in the Grand Opera House.

The Commissioner's platform style is animated to a degree. His voice is absolutely under control, and his gestures free and graceful. Humorous phrases and whimsical stories abound, tender allusions and touches of pathos are frequent, while topical information and local happenings are adroitly adapted to elucidate a point.

Mayor Buller presided and welcomed Commissioner Richards to Peterborough. He congratulated him upon the good work being done to assist the fallen and the poor. Peterborough was glad to have such a faithful and capable representative of the Army in its midst.

Home Guard Prominent.

Prominent among the audience were the home guard who rallied in large numbers and marched to the theatre led by the Salvation Army. They occupied specially reserved seats while their officers were among the guests on the platform.

During his address Commissioner Richards kept the large audience intensely interested as he humorously touched upon phases of his work and related amusing incidents that had befallen him. His labors with the Army have sent him round the world and he has filled every office connected with it.

His theme yesterday was based upon a verse from Ezekiel, "And it had four faces, the first the face of a cherub, the second the fact of a man, the third the face of a lion and the fourth the face of an angel.

Was Thoroughly Canadian.

Since coming to Canada the Commissioner said he was more and more convinced that this country would soon be no longer an outpost of the Empire, but that she would soon be the hub. He had become thoroughly Canadian since travelling across Canada. In Winnipeg he had slept with a member of the Canadian Club and possibly had acquired some of the Canadian spirit from him.

The commissioner stated that he was often asked in this country what were his credentials. For one thing he was not going to pull down any foundations or edifices raised by his predecessors. It was for him to put a few bricks in the strong structure raised by them. He would try his best to carry out some of the designs that the late Commissioner Rees had in mind when he died in the terrible disaster in the St. Lawrence.

The commissioner said his first credential was that he had been thirty-seven years in Army work. Secondly he had seven sons all engaged in Salvation Army work in all parts of the world. They were all heart and soul in it and if he had two hundred children they would all be in it.

Army Was Flourishing.

He went on to tell of opposition that they had received. The London Times newspaper had once allowed Prof. Huxley use of its columns to ridicule the army and who had declared it would be extinct in ten years. That was twenty-seven years ago. Prof. Huxley was now dead and the Salvation Army was never so flourishing. Today the London Times would not permit one inch of matter derogatory to the Army to creep into its columns without it was first carefully investigated.

The Army worked among the poor and the down-trodden. What the world wanted was a "religion of the wash tub," a religion that would stoop down and help the poor, the needy and the miserable. At this juncture he paid a tribute to Adjutant McElhiney and Mrs. McElhiney for their devoted efforts in this line.

The world wanted men with the hearty handshake and the kindly word, men whose grasp sent thrills of hope and energy and life into the despairing and the hopeless.

Motion of Appreciation.

At the close of his address Judge Huycke conveyed to him an eloquent and most appropriate motion of appreciation of the good work he was doing and assured him of his welcome to this city. He also paid a compliment to the good work of Mr. and Mrs. McElhiney.

Mr. R. E. Layfield for the Home Guard, seconded this resolution of thanks in a short speech.

Colonel Turner who accompanies Commissioner Richards on his trips then conveyed the thanks of the Salvation Army to Mayor Buller and the home guard and all who had turned out.

Commissioner Richards is of medium height, slight build, dark complexion, and has the thin, pale, clean-shaven face of an ascetic. He is Cornish born and Welsh bred, and the Celtic fire gleams from his dark eyes, and glows red-hot through his torrential platform eloquence.

Among those on the platform were Mayor Buller, H. G. Walker, Judge Huycke, E. F. Mason, Fire Chief Howard, Chief of Police Thompson, Alderman Johnston, Dr. Amys, F. D. Kerr, W. H. Dansford, H. O. Fisk, R. Winch, ex-Ald. Jos. Batten, R. E. Layfield, Ald. Duffus, G. H. Duncan, Mr. Bartlett.

REX BEACH PLAY NOW SCREEN HIT

"The Spoilers" to be Shown in Motion Pictures for Three Days at The Grand Opera House

Steadily and surely the photoplay is taking its place as one of the greatest institutions ever known to this or any other country, and this has been due in a great degree to the excellence of the work turned out by such men as Selig.

The latest effort on the part of this producer is the nine part photoplay "The Spoilers" which has been taken from Rex Beach's novel of the same name. It has created nothing short of a furore wherever shown, and the Grand Opera House management, recognizing its unusual excellence, has contracted for its exclusive presentation in this city.

It is understood that "The Spoilers" is as virile and as red-blooded a romance as any that has appeared during the decade. Nome with its lawless, adventuresome populace is pictured in a vivid and truthful manner, for the book by Rex Beach is a true picture of the Alaskan country and those who people it.

The nine reels of the film take two hours and twenty minutes for a single presentation, and will be seen at the Grand commencing Thursday afternoon, March 4th, for three days. Matinee and night at 2.30 and 8.15.

OBJECTIONS TO SOME GRANTS

Aldermen May Use the Axe at Tonight's Meeting

Tonight is the first Monday of the month and thus the regular meeting of the City Council. Mayor Buller and his ten assistants have not an exceedingly large program but there are rumors in the air that bespeak a little session for the orators when the recommendation of the Fire, Water and Light Committee is presented. The Committee is recommending that $100 be used in sending Fire Chief Howard to the convention of fire chiefs to be held in Cincinnati this year and it is thought some of the aldermen opine the item should fall beneath the axe of economy. The recommendation of the Finance Committee to give the Home Guard $700 and the Medical Association $300 will likely occasion some discussion.

Mayor Buller has received a letter from E. V. G. Orme of Brampton in which the writer states that he is a naturalist and possesses a very good collection of antiques, curios and specimens. He is moving to Peterborough and is willing to donate these to the museum here and also to look after the museum himself. He does not desire any salary but asks for a grant of $150 to pay for car fare, etc. Mayor Buller will submit the letter to the council tonight.

The Finance Committee, in session on Friday, referred a letter from the Salvation Army to the Council. In the letter the Army is asking for the usual grant for giving band concerts in Victoria Park during the summer months. Whether or not the Council will decide that the band concerts can be dispensed with for the coming summer and the money used for other purposes will be decided tonight. The Board of Control at Toronto on Friday last cut off the item for band concerts and thus saved $5,000. Some seven or eight hundred dollars is spent annually in Peterborough for that purpose.

PARENTS CIRCLE OF QUEEN MARY SCHOOL

The Parents Circle of Queen Mary School have decided at the regular monthly meetings to have addresses delivered on subjects in which the mothers are vitally interested, such as care of teeth, hygiene, etc. The club in January was addressed by Inspector Mowat, the information and inspiration gained from the wide range of subjects of which he spoke showed that the work was still in its infancy, and a great many subjects could be taken up gradually, to attain the aim in view, namely, the welfare of the child, the assertions of his sympathy with the movement and his kind offer to do anything in his power at any time were greately appreciated by the circle. The February meeting was held on Friday, Feb. 26, and after a short musical program consisting of talent from the school, which was much enjoyed Dr. Middleton addressed the meeting in the care of children's teeth, dividing the subject under two heads, "What a mother should know," and "What a mother should do." His remarks placed so clearly and thoroughly before the meeting, have indeed left lasting impression and will certainly bring forth good results. We again urge all mothers having children attending school or any one interested to avail themselves of the opportunity of hearing these splendid lectures each month.

Canadian Honors Friends and Island

The above heading appears in the Isle of Pines Appeal of last week, together with a poem written by Mr. David Moore of the Review staff, Peterborough, who is spending some weeks in the West Indies, with headquarters at the Mountain Inn at Vivijagua. The verses were composed on the occasion of the 42nd anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. R. Walton, also residents of Vivijagua and formerly of Nelson, B.C., Can., and were read in response to a toast at the dinner given in their honour on the evening of February 5. Mr. and Mrs. Walton are old-time residents of Peterborough, and have many friends and relatives here.

If there e'er was a time
When a small bit of rhyme,
Would serve an occasion, I think it must be,
My good friends right here
When from far and from near,
We have met in this beautiful Isle of the sea.

For its fame and its worth
From the land of our birth,
Have beckoned and lured us to linger awhile
In this glorious clime—
And too swift speeds the time
In this land of enchantment, this beautiful Isle.

When the wintry winds roar
Round many a shore
Here warm waters murmur, and bright the sun shines;
And happy the hours
'Mid the fruits and the flowers,
In this gem of the ocean, the fair Isle of Pines.

And when follows the night
On the day's golden light,
And o'er valleys and mountains the bright moonlight shines;
Then our eyes must behold
Added beauties unfold;
So in dreams I will see thee, beloved Isle of Pines.

But it is not to praise
Thy nights or thy days,
Dear island of beauty I now pen this song;
But merely to toast
Two friends of our host
Who are with us tonight in this bright little throng.

For forty-two years
Amid gladness and tears
They have shared with each other life's blessing and joy;
And we see them tonight
Just as cheerful and bright
As when they were courting—a girl and a boy.

We have known them awhile
In this bright little Isle,
Very soon we will part some to never more meet;
But while we've been here
To our hearts they've grown dear,
And in mem'ry the meeting will ever be sweet.

And as these candles burn
One and all we may learn
A lesson that's old and yet ever new—
How a loving regard
Wins a fitting reward,
And happy are hearts that are kind and true.

To cease I am loath—
But may Heaven bless them both,
And grant their dear hearts through years yet to come,
The best gifts from above,
And all gladness and love,
And many bright years, in their Isle of Pines home.

—David Moore.

BUILDING PERMITS FOR FEBRUARY

Evidently February is a month during which building operations are not very brisk. During February of 1914 three building permits were issued for construction costing $300 and during the past month the same number of permits were secured for work estimated to cost $1,100. The permits issued were to H. Clayton for alterations to the Princess theatre, $200; W. J. Hanbridge, erecting a stable at 709 Aylmer St., $100, and W. H. Faint, alterations at 3 Hunter St. E., $700.

An early start for March was made this morning when P. O'Connor appeared at the city clerk's office about ten minutes after the door was opened and took out a permit for alterations to a stable at 501 Bolivar St. to cost $12.

ANARCHISTS' PLOTS NIPPED IN THE BUD

FOE REPULSED BY BRITISH

Prussian Guards Met With Heavy Loss

RHEIMS BOMBARDED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 2. — The official statement this afternoon says:

"Between the sea and the Aisne the enemy attacked only to the southeast of St. Eloi, where he was repulsed by the British.

"Rheims was again bombarded.

"Our progress continued between Perthes and Beausejour.

"Confirmation has been received that counter attacks by the Prussian Guards during Sunday cost them very heavy loss.

"In the Vosges we have captured trenches and gained three hundred yards of ground."

LONDON, March 2. — Great Britain has asked the United States to secure permission from Germany for a representative from the American embassy in London to visit detention camps in Germany with the same freedom that was permitted by the British Government to a member of the American embassy in Britain.

Souvenir from Battle of Mons

Mr. W. H. Dunsford, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, has in his possession the projectile of a British 303 rifle shell which came in a letter to his house received by Doris White who is employed there. Her brother got it from a soldier wounded at Mons, who was landed in Hull, Eng. He sent the little piece of lead to his sister chiefly as a relic. It is a short, pointed, cylinder shaped affair, and by appearance would not inflict a very large wound. It appears rather soft-nosed, however, and would possibly spread upon striking a hard object.

Louis Houedry is Returning

Word has been received in the city that Louis Houedry, the French reservist who left this city shortly after the war broke out, to join his old regiment and march to the strains of the Marseillaise, is to be invalided home. He has been suffering from several attacks of pleurisy and is not fit for active service. The letter received from Mr. Houedry was sent from Rennes, France. When he will arrive in Peterborough is not known.

INVESTIGATION SIMMERS DOWN TO QUALIFICATIONS OF TWO SCHOOL TRUSTEES

Judge Huycke Will be Asked to Interpret the Law

ORIGINAL PROPOSAL TOO COSTLY

The investigation into the alleged irregularities of the Board of Education has dwindled down to practically nothing. There will be no investigation into matters of the Board with the exception of asking Judge Huycke's interpretation of the law dealing with the eligibility of G. N. Gordon and W. H. Hill to act in the capacity of trustees.

At a former meeting of the City Council it was decided to have His Honor Judge Huycke conduct an investigation. The City Fathers were evidently of the opinion that Judge Huycke would audit the books and check over various accounts, etc. His Honor, however, had a different method of conducting his work. He wrote the City Council and told them that it would be necessary to have a counsel appear before him and bring out the evidence. The letter was received a few weeks ago and placed on fyle. Last night's meeting unearthed it, and before the aldermen were finished with it, the proposed investigation had sunk into oblivion. That arch-slayer, Economy Axe, had another victim.

Opposed to Expense.

Ald. Green was the first to express his opinion, and he felt strongly opposed to spending money to conduct an investigation into why the Board of Education had an overdraft of [illegible], when just a few moments before the matter came up the Council had passed a bylaw authorizing the issuing of debentures to pay that overdraft. The matter to be decided, in Ald. Green's opinion, was whether or not G. N. Gordon and W. H. Hill could retain their seats on the Board. He agreed that members of the Council had thought that the work of the Board could have been carried on for less money, but the members of the Board were acting in the same capacity as the aldermen and were desirous of doing only that which would be to the best interest of the city. Ald. Green then advanced the suggestion that a committee wait on Judge Huycke and secure His Honor's interpretation of the law on the point mentioned above, and explain that the Council did not deem it advisable to spend money and carry the investigation as far as was previously requested.

Ald. Stratton thought Ald. Green's idea was right, and asked the City Clerk to draft a resolution along that line. Ald. Dobbin also believed Ald. Green's idea was a good one, but asked if Judge Huycke's decision would be final and would not occasion any appeal. Ald. Duffus thought that before the Council should act, the advice of some independent solicitor should be secured. Ald. Weir thought Messrs. Gordon and Hill should be held liable, but Mayor Buller reminded him that as the Council was asking for the investigation, the city would be liable. Again Ald. Green expressed his unwillingness to secure the services of another solicitor, remarking: "I'm against paying the people's money to lawyers."

Mayor Buller thought the idea of Ald. Green was a good one, and "if the Board of Education wants to wash any dirty linen they should wash it themselves." He felt confident that both Mr. Gordon and Mr. Hill would look after their own interest. In his mind the Board of Education had spent the people's money judiciously and the members had done the best they could. There had been criticism of the sites selected and other similar matters, but after all it was but a matter of opinion.

It was finally decided that the original motion asking Judge Huycke to conduct the investigation be rescinded and that His Honor merely be asked to decide whether Mr. Gordon and Mr. Hill has, or whether both have a right to sit on the Board, and that the matter of conducting an investigation into the expenditure of the Board of Education be dropped. The committee which will wait on Judge Huycke consists of Mayor Buller, Ald. Green, Dobbin and Edgar.

AGRICULTURAL CONFERENCE TO BE HELD HERE

Judge Riddell Will Give an Address at Night Meeting

It is hoped that the public of the city and country will make up large audiences for the Agricultural Conference to be held in the city next Friday afternoon and evening. The afternoon meeting will be held in the hall of the public library and the night meeting in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute. Throughout the land today the call goes forth for an increased production and at the afternoon session the speakers will deal with the Duty and Opportunity of the Canadian Farmer, in this the time of war. W. T. Macoun of the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, will also deal with the subject of Gardening in Towns and Cities. C. E. Moore, president of the Farmers' Institute, will be chairman. Justice Riddell, judge of the Supreme Court of Ontario and other speakers will address the audience at the evening session. Mayor Buller will preside. There will be a musical program.

JUDGE RIDDELL.

ENTOMBED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

HINTON, W. Va., March 2.—One hundred tad twenty-six men are reported entombed as the result of an explosion in a coal mine at Gentry soon after eight o'clock this morning.

HINTON, W. Va., March 2.—One hundred and sixty men were entombed when an explosion occurred in a mine of the New River and Pocahontas Coal Company, three miles from Thurmond, at eight-thirty this morning. The mine connects with another, each entombing eighty men. Up to noon rescue parties had not succeeded in any rescues.

THE SMILE THAT WONT COME OFF

Is Not Worn by Members of Medical Society

The medical men of this city are in no happy frame of mind today. They are unanimous in the belief that the Council enacted something "contemptible" last evening in changing the recommendation of the finance committee so that the Medical Society be granted $250 instead of $300 to assist in entertaining the Medical Society of Ontario at the convention here in May. One local doctor stated to the Review today that certain members of the City Council were willing to give the whole treasury to the home guard and cut the medical men out altogether, merely because the home guard looked like seven hundred votes and the Medical Society has but twenty-five. The same physician briefly reviewed the work the medical men of Peterborough are doing for charity, particularly in connection with th hospitals, and despite the fact that it was the first request they ever made to the Council, and notwithstanding all the free work they have performed for the city, they were turned down cold. It hardly looked to him like a square deal.

ATTEMPT TO BLOW UP CATHEDRAL

Reign of Terror Also to Include Assassination of Rockefeller, Carnegie and Vanderbilt

ANARCHISTS BELONG TO GROUP WHO TOOK LIFE OF KING HUMBERT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

NEW YORK, March 2. — The police this morning arrested Frank Abarno as he was walking up the north aisle of St. Patrick's Cathedral carrying two bombs and a lighted cigar. Later they arrested Charles Carbone, charged with making bombs.

The police say that Abarno attempted to wreck the cathedral last year by similar means, and that he and Carbone are members of a band of anarchists whose plots have been thoroughly ferreted out by detectives who gained admission to the membership. The police also say they have nipped in the bud a plot to assassinate with bombs John D. Rockefeller and his son, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius Vanderbilt, and other wealthy men, and to inaugurate a reign of terror, during which banks would be raided and anarchists armed with rifles and shotguns would start robbing and shooting all over the city.

PLACE WAS ALIVE WITH DETECTIVES.

When Abarno lighted his bomb and threw it at the altar, the cathedral, in which eighty persons had assembled for worship, immediately became alive with detectives. One of these was Frank Baldo, who had assisted in the manufacture of the bomb. He accompanied Abarno to the cathedral and sat beside him when he threw the bomb, and then arrested him. A white-wigged priest who showed them to a seat, was a disguised detective; so were two scrub women in the vestibule.

Two other detectives took seats behind Abarno and stamped out the burning fuse of the bomb.

The anarchists belonged to a group who were followers of Gaeteano Bresci, who assassinated King Humbert fifteen years ago.

Paris War Office Note Tells of the Destruction of Four German Dirigibles

100,000 TURKS ALONG SEA OF MARMORA

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 2. — A Havas despatch from Athens says a Russian admiral travelling through Bulgaria and Greece has joined the Allied fleet in the Dardanelles to atetnd a council of admirals.

One hundred thousand Turks have been posted along the Sea of Marmora.

A note issued by the war office says the exploits of French aviators in the past ten days have been brilliant, while German aerial forces have been comparatively inactive. The military value of Zeppelins is declared to be slight. The note tells of the destruction of four dirigibles.

Bulgaria has protested to the Austrian, Russian and Servian governments against the placing of mines in the Danube.

LEMBERG, March 2. — It is stated here that when Austrians recaptured Stanislau they executed two hundred civilians for alleged offences against the state.

Princess Pats Are Mentioned in Report of Sir John French

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 2. — A report from the headquarters of Sir John French, given out today by the official information bureau, says:

"The enemy's activities in the neighborhood of Ypres were previously reported. During the last three nights patrols, which have been active in front of our trenches, have found the enemy has not ventured to leave his lines.

"Early on Monday morning, an attack, preceded by a heavy bombardment, made on a portion of our lines, was successfully repulsed.

"On our left, a party of Princess Pats, Canadian Light Infantry, captured a German trench with great dash. After killing eleven of the occupants and driving off the remainder, they succeeded in blowing up the trench. Our losses were trifling.

"On our right, near La Bassee, we gained ground steadily by skilful trench work, and in this zone we obtained complete mastery over the enemy's snipers, and in consequence our casualties were greatly reduced.

"On several positions along our front our artillery forced the enemy's batteries to change their position, and increased ascendancy over the opposing guns has been observable for some time past."

Dr. Brown Arrested

Crown Attorney Hatton, when questioned late this afternoon as to developments from the inquest last night, said that Dr. Brown had been placed under arrest, charged with murder.

STEAMER ESCAPED GERMAN SUBMARINE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

MONTREAL, March 2. — Captain Davies of the steamer Kawarra, now at Halifax, writes the agents here that he encountered a German submarine off the Irish coast, but owing to his manoeuvres and a breakdown in the submarine's machinery the Kawarra left her behind.

CLAIM OF $250 FOR INJURIES

The legal committee held a meeting before the Council met last evening, and reported to the Council as follows:

That we have received a letter from Thos. J. Moore, claiming $250 on account of an accident he met with on Aylmer street, and referred it to the city solicitor.

We received a letter from W. N. Tilley of Toronto regarding the claim of T. Petrie on account of having his horse killed on a street, and recommend that, as previously decided, no action be taken.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

ALD. DOBBIN,
Chairman.

The report was adopted.

NEW TAX ON STAMPS

Postmaster Edgar knows no more than any other person in the city about the new stamp tax imposed by the Government. All he knows is what he read in the newspapers, and thus far the department has given him no information concerning the time it will become effective. It is supposed, however, to go into effect on March 15th.

WORKMAN KILLED.

Port Hope, Ont., March 2.—While working at the old English church at Perrytown last evening about 6 o'clock, Martin Thickson, of this town, met instant death when a scantling fell on him. He was a married man about 45 years of age.

LOCAL MAN IN TROUBLE.

St. Thomas, March 2. — Mark Black, claiming Peterborough as his home, earned a black mark by begging at a number of houses and then spending the cash given him in liquid refreshment. He was charged with vagrancy and pleaded guilty, and was sent to jail for thirty days in lieu of a $10 fine.

Reports Have Been Much Exaggerated

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 2. — In answer to a question in the Commons today, Sir Edward Grey said the reports of Japanese demands on China had been greatly exaggerated.

Ald. W. J. Johnston Resigns His Seat in Council

HAS NOT RECEIVED FAIR TREATMENT

The curtain had lifted on the regular meeting of the City Council; City Clerk Armstrong was reading the communications when the contents of a short note consisting of less than a dozen words were made known and every alderman opened his eyes and the audience in the gallery looked dumbfounded. The shock extended even to the desk of the reporters and they ceased scribbling and looked inquiringly at the Mayor. It was not a black hand letter nor an unfavorable judgment by the Provincial Board of Health on the dispute as to the site of the sewage disposal plant—it was the resignation of Ald. W. J. Johnston. The father of Hydro in Peterborough, the oldest member of the Council and the first lieutenant of the man in the plush chair was asking to be relieved from his duties as aldermanic representative for the North Ward. It was a bigger surprise than the act perpetrated by Ald. Johnston a few years ago when he threw down the reigns as chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee and refused to reconsider his action. When the aldermen had sufficiently recovered to resume business the letter was received and laid over for consideration, later.

ALD. W. J. JOHNSTON

who has resigned his seat in the City Council. He declined to make any statement to The Review today. He did state, however, that he has fully made up his mind to resign his aldermanic seat and would not return. He declined to state his reasons other than those voiced by Mayor Buller at the meeting last night.

The evening was well spent, before the resignation was again read. As the writer of The Return of Casey said: "Again that awful silence settled o'er the multitude." Although every member of the Council had poured out oratory of every description from eight o'clock, no one seemed willing to break the ice. It remained for Ald. Duffus to make the first utterance. He was shocked and surprised. He regretted to think that Ald. Johnston was leaving the Council and the Council would surely miss his valuable assistance. Ald. Duffus was at a loss to know why Ald. Johnston had resigned but one thing was sure—the city was losing a good man whose services were always of the greatest assistance.

Ald. Green didn't know whether Ald. Johnston had been made a gift by the government or city, nor could he see why the resignation had been sent in. If it would help at all he would like to see Ald. Johnston urged to retain his seat. Ald. Green at least thought that some explanation was due. It did not take long for every alderman to fall into the role of the eulogist. Ald. McIntyre, Edgar, Stratton, Weir and Dobbin all expressed their regret and also their hope that Ald. Johnston could be induced to remain. His Worship Mayor Buller remarked on the great loss the city would sustain if Ald. Jo[illegible]

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MARCH 2, 1915

HON. T. W. McGARRY'S MILL.

THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPH opened an editorial attack in the Toronto Star on the Hon. T. W. McGarry's new war tax:

> "A woman who bought a house in the west end of the city for $2,100, borrowing the money to make the first payment and planning to pay for the dwelling little by little as time went on, has written the Star a letter explaining how heavily the increasing taxes that are being levied bear upon people in like position with herself. The city tax on her house and lot used to be about $30, and is now over $40; and of this sum, the school tax used to be $3, and is now $10. The water rate used to be $2.40 for the half year. It is now $3.38."

Aside from the fact that this shows the penalty for living in Toronto, and that there is just a shadow of suspicion that the Star's correspondent has Liberal leanings, the Star uses this to attack Mr. McGarry's measure as unfair.

In the first place, as the Star points out, the new war tax of a mill on the dollar will take only $2.10 from this woman, but surely it is worth that to this woman to have her house intact and preserved from German shells or German indemnity taxes. Canada is spending millions to protect all property in Canada, and this woman cannot reasonably complain of a small tax like this, which protects her property for a time at least, from the calamities that have fallen on certain parts of Europe.

Another point is that the bulk of increased taxation that is complained of is due to civic demands. If property holders will persist in allowing a city to squander public money, increased taxes cannot be avoided. So, it is really not the new war tax that is to blame in this particular case, but civic inefficiency.

It should also be remembered that a good many of the small houses in a place like Toronto are not owned by the occupants, but by men who derive their income from rents. Thus, the burden of this war tax does not fall on those least able to bear it. No matter what kind of a tax is adopted, there would be isolated cases in which its imposition would be a burden. Perhaps the case cited by the Star is such a one, but it is obvious that Mr. McGarry's tax is simple, easily collected, without much expense, and falls on the wealthy land-owner in the same proportion with which it falls on the man struggling to pay for a home. They all receive benefits,—they all pay in proportion, but not at all in proportion to the value of the benefits, because safety of property and limb cannot be computed.

The Star mentions a number of counties that have taxed themselves voluntarily for patriotic purposes. These are:

Peel and Perth have voted one mill on the dollar.

Elgin and Huron voted $1,000 monthly.

Northumberland and Durham $5,000 monthly during the war.

Bruce $1,000 monthly for ten months.

Prince Edward, $500 monthly for two years.

Lambton, $600 monthly for six months.

Essex, $500 monthly for six months.

Leeds, $300 monthly for one year.

Waterloo, $2,500.

Carleton, $5,000.

Frontenac, $5,000.

Renfrew, $3,000.

Wellington, $29,000 during two years.

It does not appear just that these should be doubly taxed, and such specific cases might be provided for by a drawback of some kind. Still, if a straight tax is adopted, it will have to make a clean sweep in application, and when the purpose for which it is levied is considered, there should be no objection to it. The Star's strained effort to show that the tax is unfair is very weak, dealing as it does with an isolated case, and not with the general principle involved.

GERMANY'S BLOCKADE FUTILE.

THE BLOCKADE of the British Isles by Germany has not been successful, and it is probable that it will not be so, although a number of vessels have been sunk. The object of stopping the importation of war supplies by the Allies is even less likely to succeed. The New York Sun points this out when it says:

> "The suppression of importations of war material by 'Great Britain and her Allies,' which is one of the purposes of the German submarine 'blockade,' is obviously impracticable. Even if British, French, Russian and neutral ships were torpedoed by the score in the defined 'war zone,' the traffic in war munitions would still go on in its waters. Moreover, the southerly route to the Bay of Biscay and the Mediterranean could still be taken by the freighters. They would still be able to land their cargoes at Bordeaux, Marseilles and Toulon, with no risk of destruction by the enemy's submarines. England could get the bulk of her supply by convoyed steam lighters across the Channel in spite of the enemy's submarines.
>
> "At the present time, owing to ice conditions in the seas north of the Scandinavian peninsula, Russia is securing additions to her supply of war material from Japan by way of the Trans-Siberian Railroad. Later, when the ice breaks up, the traffic to Archangel will be resumed with comparatively no risk from submarine attack. Freighters to Archangel can lay a course remote from the extreme radius of German submarines. Russia will be always sure of her shells, cartridges and whatever explosives and guns she needs in the eastern area of warfare, although deliveries may be slow at times.
>
> "The fact is that control of the sea by the Allies insures them against exhaustion of war material. Nothing but a victorious and decisive fleet action by Germany in the North Sea would turn the tables on Great Britain and France. German 'submarine warfare' might check the supply they are drawing from neutral countries, principally the United States, but suppression is out of the question. If the British and French fleets in the Mediterranean succeed in forcing the Dardanelles, Russia will be able to augment her stock of war munitions more rapidly. The practical men on the German staff can be building no hope upon the plan outlined in the German note to the United States of stopping the traffic in arms and ammunition."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WAR may be h—l, as Sherman intimated, but it is a shell game sure enough.

OUR COMPLIMENTS to La Patrie, which recently started on the thirty-seventh year of its life.

IT DOES NOT occur to some Grits that to repeat a statement so often is not only monotonous, but superslashius.

"TAKING their own medicine" doesn't agree with the patent medicine manufacturers, if we are to judge of their opinions of the war tax.

IF THOSE GRITS down at Ottawa talk long enough about the Budget, there will be no time left for the French-Canadian members to "lambaste" Ontario.

"A FRIENDLY ACT," says Garland, M. P., of Ottawa, when he recommended that his clerk be given consideration when contracts are let. Such friendly acts are appreciated by the best of men.

SOME of the Liberal members at Ottawa say repeatedly, "We are agin these taxes." They do not advance much reason, but merely make the assertion over and over again. Is this what they are paid for?

THAT WORD superslashius is a good one. We do not recall reading it in the works of Nietzsche or Treitschke. Nor do we remember it in the voluminous works of Bill Nye or of Baron Munchausen. Nevertheless it is a good word because a friend of ours attacked us with it. We made a bayonet charge and took it prisoner.

A PETERBOROUGH business man advertising in a Toronto newspaper for a caretaker looks strange. As though there were not any competent persons in this city that want work. Relief Officer Dobbin could, we think, find this business man a suitable person for the situation. This man needs a lesson in loyalty to his home town.

WE HAVE been asked to suggest names for a school teachers' quartette and have pleasure in printing the following: The Pedagogical Four; The Teachers' Double Duo; The Lashers' Quartette; The Four Dominees; Billan Dan an Salmonee. Those sending us suggestions will please enclose them in a SEALED envelope so as to get through the post-office.

Preference Policy Sound.

(London Morning Post.)

The Unionist party stood in this country for certain causes which it considered vital to the safety and prosperity of the Kingdom and the Empire. The prosecution of these causes was in itself a lofty and patriotic task, and the events of the war prove in every case the wisdom of the party in supporting them. Thus, for example, a measure of preference to unite the Empire and encourage the internal production of its food-stuffs is proved by this war to be a sound policy.

The Men of St. Pierre and Miquelon.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

The mailed fist has a long reach. It has clutched the little islands of St. Pierre and Miquelon, southwest of Newfoundland, where the flag of the French republic still recalls the glories of French ascendancy in Canada, and marks the sole remaining possessions of France in North America.

The islanders, fisher folk mainly, to whom the parent nation is scarcely more than a name and a flag, are sorely distressed. They are loyal, these fishermen, and, while they are poor — after the manner of fisher folk — their hearts are warm and their hands open, and out of their slim store they have given $5,000 to the French Red Cross bureau.

No doubt they hoped that this willing sacrifice would suffice and that their men would be spared. But the government administrator announced that the islands were expected to furnish a quota of 800 fighting men, and preparations were made to secure that number. There are about 4,000 people on the islands, and out of that number only 300 could be found who were physically qualified for army service. There are many old men on St. Pierre and Miquelon, and there are men whose strength and vigor have been battered out of them by the cruel waves, and so but these 300, fishermen all, of ages ranging from 20 to 42, the flower of manhood of the little islands, were taken across the breadth of the sea to those strange lands where the fighting rages.

So the old men and the cripples and the women of St. Pierre and Miquelon work and wait and look out across the tumbling waves and wonder what the sea will return to them.

SELF-GAIN.

Editor, Review:

Sir, — From what is going the rounds, it would appear that some people are thinking more of what they ought to make out of the political game than of their duty to their city and to the people. This is no time for small-mindedness and self. We have got to be bigger than that or the People (spell it with a big P, sir,) will make us. Some few men think the world was made for them but it ain't, and the people are watching them go down and out for that very reason.

Yours,

OLD CHAPPY.

P. S.—Let them read the Review and get an idea or two.

ALD. JOHNSTON'S RESIGNATION.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I feel that many ratepayers share my feeling that Ald. Johnston should reconsider his action and remain a member of the City Council. Ald. Johnston received shabby treatment when not given a chairmanship when the selections were made last January and am surprised that the aldermen of 1914 who retained their seats did not take the matter up. Surely, Sir, there are some big men in our council.

Yours truly,

ELECTOR.

A Case of Tit For Tat

How Dan Cupid Straightened Out the Tangle

By CLARA H. HOLMES

The train from the west pulled into the station, puffing breathlessly from its long race, and Ben Hildreth dropped off the rear car and looked about expectantly.

"Hilda!" he ejaculated joyfully, stooping to kiss the slender young lady who approached him with extended hand.

Her haughty withdrawal and very indignant look surprised him, and her critical glance made him painfully aware of his forty-three years and his dusty and very ordinary dress.

But when Ben clasped hands with Hilda's mother he forgot the bitter tang of disappointment. She was unchanged. Her face wore the same contented look, and the welcome he received might have been a leaf torn from the book of past happenings.

Even the hot biscuit at supper time had the well remembered relish of former days. And the thoughtful manner of saying, "Now go and take your smoke, Ben. I know you are wanting it badly," seemed like the picking up of the raveled threads from the tangled skein of time.

Somewhat of Hilda's aloofness wore off after the first few days—whenever she could forget the humiliation of being kissed in public.

"The very idea! Any one would know he was from the west!" she concluded wrathfully when telling it to her mother.

Mrs. Stevens laughed heartily. "Are people so different in the west? I had supposed that they were merely energetic persons who needed elbow room."

"Oh, you can laugh, but just look at his clothes!"

"Yes; clothing does make a difference in the flavor of a kiss."

"Whether it does or not, I am not going out there to live with a man old enough to be my father," was the angry reply.

"Tell him so, not me. You knew where he lived and his age, didn't you, when you gave him your promise?"

As the days went by Hilda's dislike seemed to increase. She would frequently go out and let her mother entertain Ben for a whole afternoon without the courtesy of an apology.

Ben did not appear to be annoyed in the least. Instead he chatted merrily with Mrs. Stevens and easily fell into the old time habit of calling her Lottie. Occasionally he would regard Hilda so teasingly that she would grow restive under his gaze and fly out of the room, storming to her mother: "I hate him! I hate him!"

The wedding day drew near. Ben had been out of town one afternoon, and, being delayed by business, it was late when he returned.

"Do you know where Hilda is?" he questioned of her mother.

"Why, yes," she replied. "She said that she was going over to her cousin Nettie's."

"Oh, she did, did she?" answered Ben so quizzically that Mrs. Stevens said nervously, "What is wrong?"

"There's nothing wrong," he replied with a light laugh and settled himself for a smoke. His laugh was too light to be reassuring. Mrs. Stevens drummed on the table restlessly.

"It's all right, Lottie," he assured her, laying his hand over her fingers to still their restless movement. After a moment he remarked: "How home like you make every place, Lottie! I have been thinking of the hills all day, and—it makes me homesick. I wish you and I were there."

"It would be nice. I'd like to see the mountains. When you and Hilda have been married a year or so, I'll visit you, perhaps."

He regarded her with wrinkled eyes for a minute. Then he asked with seeming irrelevance, "Do you know Charlie Dupont?"

"Why, yes. Why do you ask that?"

"Just curiosity, I suppose," with another laugh.

"Ben, what is the trouble between you and Hilda?" in a tone of exasperation. "She isn't happy, and you are tormenting. I do not believe she will be at all happy out there. She hates the west," Mrs. Stevens remonstrated.

"She'd hate any place with me. I'm the difficult problem, Lottie," replied Ben calmly.

"You two are laying up an abundance of unhappiness for yourselves," was the grave reply.

"Don't you fret over us little children, Lottie," said he. "Sit down here and let me talk to you," he said, pointing to a chair beside his own.

For fully an hour they conversed in low tones, he persuading, she half remonstrating, occasionally both laughing, until at last she said in a tone of yielding, "I suppose it is all right, but it does look ridiculous for"—

"Sh-sh! Here comes Hilda," cautioned he.

Her mother was sewing busily and Ben was smoking very contentedly when she entered. As neither made a remark of any kind, she seemed to feel the urgent need of an explanation of something within her own mind and commenced in the most voluble manner: "Did you think I was going to stay all night, mother? We had such a lot of things to talk about, Nettie and I"—

"Who?" interrupted Ben. The tone was so derisive that Hilda cried out angrily:

"Perhaps you do not believe me! You are always laughing at me, and I think it's awful mean of you."

Ben smoked placidly and made no reply, which angered Hilda all the more. She looked toward her mother as if craving support, but as she appeared absorbed in her occupation the enraged girl flounced out of the room, slamming the door vigorously.

It lacked only a week to the date set for the wedding. Hilda stood in the embrasure of the window drumming restlessly on the window pane.

An automobile halted by the curb, but well in the shadow of the trees. She turned, as if tired of her amusement, and sauntered up to her room. It was but a very few minutes until a soft frou-frou through the hall and the cautious opening and closing of the front door betrayed her departure.

Ben came from an adjoining room laughing gleefully. "Hurry up, Lottie! if they get there before us it will spoil all the fun."

"You are sure that it is an elopement, Ben?"

"Certainly. I heard them planning it. Come on, come on," he urged, taking her arm. They hurried out by the rear entrance, and before the others were under way they were flying down a side street to the parsonage.

When the elopers arrived they were conducted at once to the study by the parson himself. As they placed themselves in readiness for the marriage ceremony the parson remarked: "You must excuse me, but the law requires two witnesses. I suppose you do not object." And without waiting for a reply he opened a side door and admitted Hilda's mother and Ben.

"Oh!" breathed Hilda, frightened. But Ben said nothing. The minister went on with the ceremony, and Hilda, having caught sight of Ben's derisive smile, did not lift her eyes again till the final words were spoken.

The ceremony concluded, her mother congratulated her calmly. Ben's eyes twinkled mockingly as he held out his hand to Hilda.

"Receive my hearty congratulations, Mrs. Dupont. I came here to marry. I thought you were to be my bride, but you were a little cheat. I overheard you planning with the man who wore a better coat than I, and, listening to your very amusing comments on my personal peculiarities, I acknowledged to myself that the union would not be very satisfactory on either side. But the situation was not as unpleasant as it might have been. I had been mistaken as well as you, and the more I saw of your mother the better satisfied I was with the way things were coming. I really wanted you to be honest enough to speak out, but when you wouldn't, why, we made first inning and were married less than five minutes before your arrival here."

Hilda's look of astonishment changed to one of demure mockery. "I trust, papa, dear, that you enjoyed my summary of your very mature charms," she said.

"It didn't hurt my feelings a little bit, daughter. I knew my age to a day and all about the 'skating rink,' and as to my coat, if Mr. Charlie had worn it you wouldn't have known it from broadcloth."

Hilda laughed softly and gave her newly made husband an adoring look.

"So, you see, it wasn't the coat; 'twas the man in the coat," philosophized Ben.

"It was just a little game of tit for tat, in which we are all winners," remarked Mrs. Hildreth happily.

Miss Alice I. Riddle, Girl Artist, Wins Prize For Mural Design.

MISS ALICE I. RIDDLE.

Recently the fellowship of the Philadelphia Academy of Fine Arts offered a prize for the best design for a mural decoration for the West Philadelphia high school. The prize was a considerable one, and many artists of note competed for it. Three judges of the highest standing in the art world were selected to pass upon the designs. Imagine the surprise of the public when it was announced that the prize had been carried off by an unknown artist—a pretty girl of twenty-two. Her design represented the pilgrimage of Chaucer's "Canterbury Tales," a subject not untouched in art, but in this case treated with such freshness and beauty that the veriest amateur could recognize its worth.

The prize winner is Miss Alice I. Riddle of 115 Herman street, Germantown, Pa., who has studied art at home and abroad. For four years she was a pupil at the academy in Philadelphia. Then she won a prize that gave her a summer of study in European galleries. She is full of enthusiasm for her work, and those who have seen the remarkable design submitted in the high school competition predict a brilliant career for this charming and gifted young woman.

Where to Sing.

"I will sing something restful to you, dear," said a lady to her morose husband. "Shall I sing 'Far, Far Away?'"

"I wish you would," was the bitter reply. "It would save the trouble of apologizing to the neighbors."

THE ONLY CURE FOR CONSTIPATION

Is "Fruit-a-tives"—That Wonderful Remedy Made From Fruit Juices.

AVON, ONT., MAY 14th, 1913.

"I have used "Fruit-a-tives" for Indigestion and Constipation with most excellent results, and they continue to be my only medicine. When I first started about six years ago to use them, I took four at a dose but gradually reduced the dose to one tablet at night. Before taking "Fruit-a-tives", I took salts and other pills but the treatment was too harsh. I thought I might as well suffer from the illness as from these treatments. Finally, I saw "Fruit-a-tives" advertised with a letter in which some one recommended them very highly, so I tried them, and I have no hesitation in recommending them." ANNIE E. CORBETT.

KEEPING HOUSE IN GREECE.

"Live From Hand to Mouth and Never Take Anything Seriously."

In "Days In Attica" Mrs. R. C. Bosanquet gives some valuable rules for the American or the European who takes up a residence in Greece, and we are not sure that most of these rules might not be applied with advantage elsewhere. In Greece housekeeping is a game, and, like all other games, you must know the rules before you can enjoy it.

"The first rule is 'Never take anything seriously.' If your cook bids you an eternal farewell two hours before your dinner party, if your new housemaid scrubs your parquet floors, if your tulip bulbs are cooked for onions, here is only one thing to be done, and that is laugh. At home we housewives are inclined to feel that our reputation is at stake if anything goes wrong. In Athens we all know that 'such things will occur,' and we all judge each other kindly and are willing to lend our cooks or floor polish or our bulbs, as the case may be.

"The second rule is 'Live from hand to mouth.' The conditions of the climate make it unwise to keep any store of provisions in the house. Be content that your cook should bring you each day your daily supply of bread, butter milk, meat and vegetables. If a party of English friends 'come up with a song from the sea' and unexpectedly claim your hospitality for luncheon your servants will gladly make all the show they can with everything there may happen to be in the house, though they and you must fast for it this night. Perhaps your butler will dash out to 'borrow' a leg of mutton from your neighbor or the roses from his garden. No Greek servant ever fails to arise to an emergency. He loves emergencies. It is the daily round that gravels him."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Multiple Sclerosis.

Multiple sclerosis, also called disseminated sclerosis and insular sclerosis, is caused by scattered patches of hardened tissue in different parts of the nervous system. It is a form of paralysis that comes on very slowly, and it generally attacks persons between the ages of fifteen and thirty. People who have passed their fortieth birthday seem to be safe from it. One of the most striking symptoms of multiple sclerosis is tremor. That is very likely to appear first when the patient is writing. As time goes on whenever the patient attempts to perform any voluntary act the tremor seizes him, and it may be so violent that he is compelled to desist. Other symptoms are double vision and a peculiar, slow, dragging speech. The disease may cause epileptic fits and is sometimes accompanied by a failing mind. The disease is almost incurable, although it often runs a very long course and may be arrested by careful medical treatment for years. The diet should be simple and wholesome, tonics should be given when necessary, and the patient should stay and sleep as much as possible in the open air. A quiet life, free from all strain and excitement, is absolutely necessary.

A Woman's Wit

By EDITH V. ROSS

It was on a bright morning in December that Mrs. Garland decided to send her little boy to the sidewalk to get the fresh air. She put on his overcoat and his toque and his gloves and took him out on to the stoop. Then, giving him a kiss, she told him to run about for awhile. Jimmie was six years old, and his mother, who was a self reliant woman, had discharged his nurse.

Jimmie did not return, and his mother went out to look for him. He was not on the stoop or on the sidewalk. Indeed, he was not in sight. His mother walked hurriedly up and down the street, expecting every moment to catch sight of him, but she did not. Finally she asked some children playing near by, and they told her that they had seen a little boy—describing Jimmie—go off with a man.

Then Mrs. Garland knew that her boy had been kidnaped. By a strong effort of the will she kept her head and questioned the children closely as to the appearance of the man. They described a small, poorly dressed person, his trousers patched and his elbows in rags. His hair was what they called brown. This is all they could remember.

Mrs. Garland, though in agony about her boy, being an unusually self contained woman, very soon brought herself into a condition to think what she should do. When a child is kidnaped it is usually for money. The parent is informed of the fact and negotiations opened for payment. Mrs. Garland, who was a widow, made up her mind to await the kidnaper's demand before taking any action.

And yet one can never be certain when a child has disappeared that he will ever be heard from. There are many disappearances that remain forever mysteries. It is therefore the more remarkable that this mother should have contained herself and acted in a way that would afford the greatest number of chances for getting her boy safely back. She reasoned that if the boy's loss were published in the newspapers the kidnaper would read it and, taking fright, might remove her boy to a distance. If no notice were taken of the matter he would write.

On the third day after the kidnaping the postman handed in a letter which as soon as Mrs. Garland looked at it she knew was the one expected. It was addressed simply to the street and number and written in English as an Italian would write English. The kidnaper demanded $5,000 for the return of the child. An Italian name was signed, the writer stating that a reply could be sent to the general delivery at the postoffice, but whoever called for it would have nothing to do with the case.

Mrs. Garland determined, if possible, to win the confidence of the kidnaper. So she replied that her only wish was to recover her child. She could raise but $3,000, which she would be glad to give if the person would instruct her where to make the delivery. She also said that she had not reported her loss to the police and had no intention of doing so. She preferred to pay and recover her boy.

The kidnaper wrote that he would accept the $3,000. On a certain avenue between two streets was a vacant lot. At or near 11 o'clock on a certain night Mrs. Garland was to leave the money in a cracker box she would find in a corner farthest from the street. Within two days after the receipt of the money the boy would be placed on the street near his home. Mrs. Garland wrote back that the conditions were accepted, except that her boy was to be returned within twelve hours after the depositing of the funds. A letter came agreeing to this stipulation.

Now, on this last letter Mrs. Garland noticed a stamp that had evidently been placed on another envelope and removed. The stamp was soiled, indicating that some one with dirty hands had endeavored to make it stick. Mrs. Garland took up a magnifying glass and discovered thumb marks.

Thus far no notice of the kidnaping had appeared in any newspaper, and the police were ignorant of Mrs. Garland's loss. On the appointed night she went to the vacant lot and deposited bills to the amount of $3,000. The next morning at dawn there was a sharp ring at the doorbell. Mrs. Garland ran downstairs and opened the door, and there stood Jimmie. He said he had been left there by a girl.

Having got her child back safe and well, Mrs. Garland went to the office of the police and informed them of the case, stating that she had obtained from United States treasury officers $3,000 in captured counterfeit ten and twenty dollar bills. Since they had been paid to an ignorant Italian he would not likely know that they were counterfeit and he might be caught trying to pass them. Instructions bearing on the case were sent out, and a girl was spotted offering one of the bills. She was followed to a squalid room in a tenement building, and every one found there was arrested. All but a few of the counterfeit bills were taken, and a man arrested was found to be the kidnaper. The children who had seen him take Jimmie away were not able to state positively that he was the person they had seen committing the act, but his thumb marks corresponded with those on the stamp of the letter sent Mrs. Garland, and he received a long prison term.

HELPS FOR HOUSEWIVES

Care of the Sink.

Never leave the kitchen sink in a greasy and dirty state. Do not throw anything but water down it, and if the water is greasy flush it well afterward with hot soapy water. When the washing is finished pour down some hot soda water as an extra precaution. Never allow grease and refuse to collect in the sink pipe and trap or they will soon get out of order. Every sink should be provided with a sink basket in which to keep tea leaves and vegetable parings, etc., and a sink brush, with which the sink should be thoroughly scoured after each washing up.

Keeping Chicken Fresh.

A chicken not to be used for a day or two may be preserved without fear if wrapped in cloth. Cheesecloth will do nicely. So often when left in the ice chest unwrapped or wrapped in paper the skin becomes sticky and one is really fearful of using it.

Powder For the Feet.

No toilet article is more satisfactory than a foot powder, as this is both cooling and sweetening, the antiseptic qualities banishing unpleasant odors. In extreme cases of foot fatigue and offensive perspiration the powder must be rubbed on thickly with the hands after the bath and applied between the toes.

PETTICOATS FOR DANCING.

Slashes at the Side to Permit Freedom of Movement.

The dancing petticoat is usually made with a slash in each side. This arrangement insures freedom, without which it is impossible nowadays to dance. The lower edges of the front and back of the petticoat are usually rounded, so that the petticoat is really formed of two sections rounded into a deep oval at the bottom fastened together along their long edges and fitted or gathered into the waist along the narrow edges.

Petticoats of knitted silk are far more durable than those made even of the softest and best satin. For eventually the satin wears out, and it seems as if the knitted silk fabric never wears out. It is usually used for the upper part of the petticoat and in more expensive ones is used also for the plaited ruffle. These are more than worth the extra price charged for them.

Petticoats made of pique, buttonholed in big scallops about the bottom, are durable and serviceable. They are not transparent, and that is one of the things that commend them for practical wear.

Didn't Get a Chance to Nurse.

A professor in Heidelberg adopted the following plan in selecting women who desired to become trained nurses: "All those who desire to nurse officers step to the right and the others to my left." Seven women placed themselves to the professor's right. The professor turned to them and said: "You can go home. For ladies who only desire to nurse officers we have no use."

WOMAN WEAK AND NERVOUS

Finds Health in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Creston, Iowa.—"I suffered with female troubles from the time I came into womanhood until I had taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I would have pains if I overworked or lifted anything heavy, and I would be so weak and nervous and in so much misery that I would be prostrated. A friend told me what your medicine had done for her and I tried it. It made me strong and healthy and our home is now happy with a baby boy. I am very glad that I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and do all I can to recommend it."—Mrs. A. B. BOSCAMP, 504 E. Howard Street, Creston, Iowa.

Tons of Roots and Herbs are used annually in the manufacture of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which is known from ocean to ocean as the standard remedy for female ills.

For forty years this famous root and herb medicine has been pre-eminently successful in controlling the diseases of women. Merit alone could have stood this test of time.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

A Girl With Grit.

A spirited girl went into the employ of a man known as one of the princes of Philadelphia business.

"I wish to be your stenographer," she said. "But you don't know how to write shorthand," exclaimed the astonished business prince. "No," replied the girl, "but I shall know how in thirty days." "If you can write seventy-five words a minute inside of a month the job is yours," was the answer from the trade chieftain.

When the test came at the end of the month the girl wrote not only seventy-five but ninety words in a minute, and she got the job, which has developed into a sort of confidential secretaryship and lasted for more than twenty-five years. A business prince whom all Philadelphia honors told this story himself.—Philadelphia Ledger.

SELF GAIN NOT RULING MOTIVE

In Our Political Life Says J. H. Burnham M.P. in Address at Ottawa

OTTAWA, March 2. — Mr. J. H. Burnham, M. P. for Peterborough, addressed the Young People's Association of the McLeod Street Methodist Church last night. His subject was "The Signs of the Times."

On opening his remarks, Mr. Burnham said that if it had not been that he did not wish to be impolite, he would have declined the invitation to address the young people's association of the church on "The Signs of the Times," since he did not feel at all qualified to do so.

The subject of present-day conditions, he said, had been suggested to him, and he had taken it as his text. About an hour after the invitation had been received he read the following words in the leading editorial in the Ottawa Free Press (Lib.): "When we have achieved the ideal, politics, as we know it in Canada, will have lost the savor, and will soon become as extinct as the idea that there should be any sentiment in business."

"Dr. Shortt forgets that the chief issue at a general election in the Dominion is invariably whether our fellows or the other fellows shall sit at the Government trough."

MR. J. H. BURNHAM, M.P.

It will be seen that the Free Press has made very sharp, sarcastic and contemptuous reference to present-day conditions, both of politics and business. Beyond the fact that it has spoken what it honestly thinks is for the betterment of both politics and business, the newspaper, the speaker thought, was in error. Since it is admitted that no man will stand for dishonesty in others, however much or little he will stand for it in himself, it follows that the general public in the mass is against dishonesty, not in favor of it. Therefore, it cannot logically be urged that the people are divided into two camps warring for dishonest gains. There may be something in the charge that some individuals are more for their own than for the general good, but since all other individuals are against each one in that particular, it follows that the aim of the mass is for what is best in the general interest. This is further proven by the fact that the chief appeal to the electorate is always based on charges of corruption, showing that the public mind is most affected by those charges. So much for the fact.

The Motive Behind.

Now for the motive behind the fact. Few governments want power merely to give their friends favor. That presupposes a degree of affection for them that does not exist. Something else must be looked for as the motive for seeking power. Take the last election. It was the people who rose up in arms on that occasion and broke the power of the one party and put in power the other party. The party now in power, whatever it may have thought, did not know that the public was so strongly against reciprocity. They only found it out as the campaign proceeded. The public trough was most certainly not the chief issue at the last election, nor is it when there is any other issue before the people. At other times the love of power and hatred of the other side may possibly be the most powerful underlying motives of a party, but if the people suspected that it was the trough, that party would be beaten. The trough, therefore, the speaker submitted, cannot possibly be the ruling motive in the people's minds, and it must be remembered that it was the people who composed the parties. Even the most violent partisan will appeal to the independent voter, who alone is the hope of the country. The independent vote cannot be characterised as the trough party, and it is the independent vote that provides the government of the state. To suppose that a Trough Party can wheedle or deceive the independent voter into committing suicide is supposing too much. As every good thing has its defects, so democracy and democratic government have their drawbacks. The cynical garbage-eating jackal that laughs at idealism and practises the most primitive form of realism, does not rule this country or any country, because Jackalism means plunder, and the people of no country can live on the plunder of each other. Nor, as we see, will the mass stand for the action of the individual in that particular. The experience of all history demonstrates it. Party crooks can do their work more effectively by combining than by fighting with each other at elections for place and power. Party rogues never want an election; they want things to keep on as they are. They do not provide the issue. It is immaterial to them which side gets in, since they on each side combine with their friends of the other side to tap the treasury and to burk criticism. The danger to parties is not in partyism, as much as in providing opportunities for a few designing men to scoop the public both coming and going, no matter which party is in power. The trough is not in such cases the issue between the parties themselves, whatever else that issue may be. The influence of the press is tremendous. It is the modern oracle of Delphi which provides the ideas, and therefore the opinions, of the great majority of people, and solves all problems.

Reform Ourselves.

Since we will not stand for other people's dishonesty, all we have to do is to reform ourselves, and the difficulty is removed. This cannot be secured by preaching Christianity as a system of rewards. That only arouses the spirit of cupidity in the people and unworthiness. It is apparent to anybody that it could never have been meant that we are to honor our father and mother, in order that we may secure length of days for ourselves. Since the aim of Christianity is goodness, and goodness is ethics, therefore the people want to know about ethics, not theology. This is a good sign, and it is a fact, and the newspapers largely ignore it, for which the newspapers are very seriously to blame. No man can be thoroughly good from motives of fear of punishment or hope of reward. That is not goodness. He who would save his life on such a principle, we are told, will lose it, and necessarily so. No doubt there is a present tendency to materialsim, but there is a desire to shake it off, and if we cultivate that desire in the rising generation then it will be shaken off. In ancient Rome, the people paid the gods for favors and protection and kicked their statues if the bargain was not lived up to. We must be careful lest we cultivate this idea. Christianity is pre-eminently ethical and unselfish in its true basic principle, since it teaches men to love their nighbors, to do good to the poor, to do justly and to walk humbly. To give if it does not pinch is not generosity. Therefore no rich man can be generous. It is the widow's mite, not the rich man's million, that was held up for an example. We cannot find any law of pity, love or goodness in the animal world or the physical universe. The tiger's tooth is the weapon which provides the quivering victim for the tiger who cannot live on anything but flesh. The devilfish lies in wait in the depth of ocean and is the very symbol of cruelty. We know all this and wonder at it, but we know also what we are made for and it is our business to look after our own development. There is nothing to prevent our being what we know we have been made for. Hence we have no, or at least little, excuse. The fact is that if we can bring ourselves to wish to do the right always we shall have accomplished all that we were made to accomplish. The rest is not for us; we did not create the world. There is too much good in the people, and there are too many public interests dependent on good government, for the chief issue to be patronage or merely plunder. But there is one point, I think, which the Free Press has overlooked, and that is that many people profess to be Christians and no doubt think they are, but their actions often betray their ignorance of the moral law, and if it were not for the few who are the salt of the earth and preserve its savour, all our hopes in that direction would be dashed to the ground long since. The curse of the world is the assumption by some people, that because they make certain professions, they are entitled to be considered as above reproach, and under that delusion they perpetrate as many iniquities as their stupidity suggests. When we have eliminated this sort of thing from our midst, we will be face to face with real goodness and badness, and it will then be more easy for us to distinguish between the two. With regard to contracts, it is obvious that a member would have even less right than a city councillor to interest himself in them except from the parliamentary side. The duties of a representative are two-fold, but always of a public and never a private nature.

Dacia's Flag Hauled Down.

NEW YORK, March 2.—The American flag which flew over the steamer Dacia, captured last week by a French cruiser and taken into Brest, has been hauled down and the U. S. consul at Brest is sending the Dacia's crew back to New York City, according to cablegrams received here yesterday.

Captain McDonald was instructed to remain and to insist also upon the crew remaining. To the American consul at Brest, E. N. Breitung, the vessel's owner, addressed a message inquiring why the Dacia was detained and why her flag was hauled down and requesting the consul to look after his interests there.

Girl Takes Poison.

PORT HOPE, Ont., March 2.—About four o'clock yesterday morning Mary Leathwood, a home girl, residing at Mr. Ferguson's, Lake Shore road, committed suicide by taking poison. She was only about 14 years of age. She left a note saying that she left her personal effects to her sister. No reason for the act can be assigned, but she was of a melancholy nature.

DECISIVE WIN AT PRZASNYSZ

Two German Army Corps Have Been Driven to the East Prussian Frontier---Cavalry Brigade Accomplished the Feat of Breaking Through Von Hindenburg's Centre---Enemy Hard Hit at Mesnil.

LONDON, March 2.—The Russian operations around Przasnysz have been completed, according to a statement from Petrograd, and two German army corps at that point have been hurled back on the East Prussian frontier.

On the western battlefront there has been little change during the day except in the Champagne district, where Gen. Joffre continues the nibbling process, forcing the enemy back a few hundred yards at a time, and then consolidating his position. The hardest fighting was near Mesnil, where several strong German counter-attacks were repulsed.

Frederick Rennet, writing from Petrograd to The Daily News says:

"It is now known that a Russian cavalry brigade, headed by Cossacks pierced the centre of Von Hindenburg's army last Friday at the village of Krasnoselz, on the River Orjiza, about midway between Ostrolenka and Przasnysz. Frantic efforts by the Germans to cover their broken lines culminated in an amazing 48 hours of close quarter fighting for the possession of Przasnysz. The Russian cavalry was well up on the flank of the German 20-mile front, stretching westward beyond Przasnysz. The enemy began pouring in fresh troops from the frontier and attempted to maintain the battle simultaneously against the chief Russian strength, advancing from the Narew. The operations throughout were of the fiercest character without the possibility of manoeuvring movements, owing to the great numbers on both sides. The Russians steadily shot and charged their way through village after village, while the Germans attempted to form again and started counter-attacks. Their southern line, however, was gradually bent backward by the assaults sustained from Wednesday until Saturday.

"By breaking the German line and capturing their foremost depot the Russians have divided the northern campaign into two parts. The Germans on the east have abandoned their initiative for a stubborn defensive against the Russians moving westward from the Niemen battles.

"The main Austrian army had been forced into a dangerous position. Russians from the Stryj Valley attacked from the west and rapidly defeated all the enemy troops between Dolina and Stanislau. Another Russian column advanced energetically along the left bank of the Pruth and threatened the rear of the main Austrian quarters near Stanislau. The Austrians are now trying to retrace these routes through Kolomy towards Bukowina."

The following official statement was given out by the French War Office at midnight:

"Rain and snowstorms have hindered operations at several points in Champagne. To the north of Mesnil however, we repulsed several strong counter-attacks and maintained all our gains. We inflicted heavy losses on the enemy in this region.

"We have made fresh progress near Pont-a-Mousson.

"In the Le Pretre woods we have captured a blockhouse. At Sulzern northwest of Munster, we repulsed a fierce attack Sunday night. In these two affairs we made some prisoners.

"At Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, despite the German counter-attacks, we have conserved the ground gained by us."

The following official statement was issued yesterday afternoon:

"There is nothing to add to the communication of yesterday evening except that in Champagne the different supporting positions we successively secured now form a continuous chain two kilometres in length to the north and northwest of Perthes, and that in the Vosges our attacks made slight progress at Chapaelotte, three kilometres north of Celles.

SEVEN DAYS IN TRENCHES FOR CANADIAN FORCE

Officer Who Has Just Returned to the Base, Says Behavior of Dominion's Contingent Under Fire Was Admirable—Frostbite and Smaller Casualties Have Disabled 63 Men.

NORTHERN FRANCE, March 2.—For seven days the Canadians have been fighting against the Prussian Guards and the Saxons in the first-line trenches. They have shown themselves splendid soldiers, and the losses, have been surprisingly small.

Sixty-three were disabled, owing principally to frost-bite sickness.

In their first engagement the men acted like old soldiers, being cool under heavy fire, while their discipline was good generally.

They fought for 24 hours, and then were relieved for that period by British troops.

One Canadian battalion was separated from the enemy by only 85 yards, while others were 700 yards apart.

Some of the trenches were knee-deep in water, and many of the men suffered from exposure. Other trenches are quite dry, and the dug-outs are snug.

Until moved up to the front, the Canadians in the reserve trenches were under every variety of gunfire, from "Jack Johnsons" to 18-pounders.

According to an officer who has just returned to the base, the men conducted themselves admirably. The infantry would have welcomed a bayonet charge to relieve the monotony of the work in the trenches, but this was impossible, owing to the wire entanglements and the muddy field separating the trenches.

On one occasion the Prussian guards charged the Canadians, but were caught by the wire entanglements before the Canadian trenches, and a whole company was mowed down. From each company crack shots were chosen as snipers, and they did effective work. Two Toronto men shot down eight men in a German patrol.

The following casualties among members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force have been announced:

First Battalion—Killed in action, Feb. 20, Bugler Edward Callan. Next of kin, Fred Callan (brother), Preston, Ont. Severely wounded, Pte. W. J. Broumpton, wounded in scalp; next of kin, Mrs. Elinor Broumpton, Catwick, Eng. Slightly wounded, Pte. E. Chapman; next of kin, Mrs. Jennie Chapman, Ailsa Craig, Ont.

Second Battalion—Slightly wounded, Lc.-Corpl. J. H. Hannaford, in thigh; next of kin, P. M. Hannaford (father), Westmount, Que. Sergt. Henry Hamilton, in leg; next of kin, H. C. Hamilton (father), Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Pte. John Davis in foot; next of kin, Mrs. J. Davis, Renfrew, Ont.

Third Battalion—Severely wounded, Sergt. Victor Holland, in shoulder; next of kin, Mrs. G. Holland, 73 Gravelly Hill, North Birmingham, Eng. Slightly wounded, Bugler William Henry Sanders; next of kin, Rita Martha Sanders, 141 Manning avenue, Toronto.

Seventh Battalion—Killed in action, Feb. 26, Lieut. Herbert Beaumont Boggs; next of kin, Beaumont Boggs (father), 620 Fort street, Victoria, B. C.

The First Battalion is composed of men from Western Ontario regiments, the Second is mainly drawn from Eastern Ontario, but includes the Mississauga Horse, Toronto, the Third is composed of men from the Governor-General's Body Guards, the Queen's Own Rifles and the Royal Grenadiers, and the Seventh is drawn from British Columbia.

Of the men mentioned above, Sergt. Hamilton and Pte. Davis, of the Second Battalion have already been unofficially reported as wounded.

Lieut. Boggs was a member of the 66th Fusiliers. His father, Beaumont Boggs, went to British Columbia after serving in the Riel rebellion.

Another son of Beaumont Boggs is also at the front as a lieutenant in the 29th Lancers of the Indian army.

SPAIN ALSO FOR WAR.

Demonstrations In Barcelona Show Leaning Towards Allies.

MADRID, March 2. — Many demonstrations were held in Spain on Sunday. The most imposing gathering was at Barcelona, where Socialist Radical speakers protested against Spain's attitude of neutrality and warmly upheld the cause of the allies.

Senor Lerroux declared that the Spaniards should change their attitude and co-operate with the allies in their triumph or Spain would otherwise be excluded from the peace conferences which will follow the conflict.

At the conclusion of the speech there were prolonged cheers and cries of "Long live France, England and Belgium."

At Valencia and Huelva demonstrations of sympathy were held before the Belgian Consulate.

TURKS ARE FALLING BACK

Russians Again Moving Forward on Asiatic Road

PETROGRAD, March 2.—Russian troops are again moving forward on the Asiatic front, having cleared out the Turks from the Trans-Chorock region. The Russians have now advanced several marches, sweeping aside, destroying, and capturing the detachments and forces that venture to attempt any opposition. They are now approaching Olti Chai along one of the main high roads towards Erzerum from the west. From the east also a certain liveliness is again being exhibited, the Russians having taken a couple of guns from the Turks in an encounter in the mountain passes to the south of Alashkort. The two forces are marching in concert and are about equidistant from their goal from opposite sides. Nothing more has been heard of the Turkish raid into Persia which ended so disastrously at Tabris. From all accounts received the Turks are heartily sick of the adventure into which they were forced by the Goeben on behalf of Germany.

Russian troops operating in the coast region Sunday occupied the port of Khopa (on the Black Sea, 18 miles southwest of Batum). The port was of great military importance to the Turks.

A HALT IN DARDANELLES

Gales Stop Attack Against the Forts

LONDON, March 2.—Terrific gales, rendering impossible long-range firing and aerial observation, again have caused a cessation in the bombardment of the Dardanelles.

Halt was called on the operations of the allied fleet when they were 16 miles up the channel, and when the mammoth new Dreadnought, Queen Elizabeth, was hurling 1,950-pound projectiles into Fort Kilid Bahr, on the European side. A lighthouse south of the fort was demolished by one of the last shells fired before operations ceased.

Delay in the activities of the fleet was announced by the press bureau for the Admiralty last night. The announcement reads:

"Operations in the Dardanelles have again been delayed by unfavorable weather. A strong northeasterly gale is blowing, and the rain and mist is so heavy that long-range firing and aeroplane observation would be rendered difficult."

Further announcement by the Admiralty says that one marine was killed and three wounded on board the battle-cruiser Vengeance during Friday's bombardment.

A despatch from Athens says that Turkish destroyers are reported from Tenedos to have attacked the Anglo-French mine-sweepers in the Dardanelles during Sunday night, sinking two of them.

The German newspapers now realize that important events are occurring around Constantinople, according to telegrams received in Copenhagen.

The Daily News publishes a despatch from Athens that Turkish forces are hurriedly concentrating on the Asiatic side of the Dardanelles, under Essad Pasha, the defender of Janina.

According to The London Daily Mail's Athens correspondent, Fort Dardanus, twelve miles up the Dardanelles on the Asiatic side, has been silenced by the allied fleet.

HOSPITAL ACCEPTED

Toronto University Will Furnish Establishment and Staff

TORONTO, March 2.—The magnificent offer of the medical faculty of the University of Toronto to furnish and equip a hospital of 1,040 beds, to be placed at the disposal of the British authorities in connection with the war, was yesterday accepted by the War Office. Immediately a meeting of the medical faculty was held, with the result that a committee was formed to complete the plans.

The hospital will be the most ambitious undertaking of this nature yet attempted by Canadians. It will require a large staff of doctors and 84 trained nurses. All will be taken from the medical faculty of the University and hospitals affiliated with the University of Toronto. The hospital will be financed by the Militia Department, aside from a laboratory, which will have to be provided for by private individuals.

Tried To Kill Enver Pasha.

PARIS, March 2. — The Temps prints a despatch from Sofia saying that news has been received there from Constantinople that an unsuccessful attempt was made Sunday to assassinate Enver Pasha, Turkish Minister of War, and Talaat Bey, Turkish Minister of the Interior. An attempt on the life of Talaat Bey was reported from Sofia on Feb. 26. He was fired at by a man in the street but was uninjured.

WILL NOT LET GERMANY TRADE FOR REST OF WAR

Premier Asquith Delivers Reply to German Submarine "Blockade"—All Commodities to or From Germany Will be Held up, He Says.

LONDON, March 2. — The establishment of a virtual blockade of hostile countries is Great Britain's reply to Germany's attacks on merchant shipping, as announced officially yesterday by Premier Asquith in a momentous speech in the House of Commons.

The plan of the allied Governments for the regulation of shipping to and from ports of hostile nations contemplates the prevention of commodities of every kind reaching or leaving those ports without, however, involving risks to neutral vessels or their crews. The allies will hold themselves at liberty to capture goods presumed to have come from hostile countries or to be destined for them. They have no intention, however, of confiscating ships or cargoes which are detained unless they are liable to confiscation under normal conditions of war.

Germany had violated systematically all the conventions intended for the mitigation of warfare. She had taken further steps by organizing "an under sea campaign of piracy and pillage." Germany was not blockading and could never blockade English shores.

PRIME MINISTER ASQUITH.

The proposed measures of reprisal against Germany would be enforced with strict observance of the dictates of humanity, but the allies did not purpose "to allow their efforts to be strangled in a network of judicial niceties."

Referring to the attack on the Dardanelles, the Premier said that there had been no impairment of strength of the allies in France or in Flanders as a result of withdrawals of men from service in the campaign against Turkey.

"Neither has there been, for purposes of the Dardanelles operations, any weakening of the grand fleet," he said. "The enterprise was carefully conceived, with distinct political strategical and economic objects."

Every member of the House not at the front in khaki or unavoidably detained, was in the chamber to hear the Prime Minister's speech, and there was frequent cheering. The galleries were packed. When the Premier concluded his statement, and, turning to the Speaker, said, "That, sir, is our reply," there was a tremendous outburst.

The Prime Minister, in moving a supplementary credit of £37,000,000 and a fresh credit of £250,000,000, pointed out that the total of the credits for the financial year 1914-15 was £362,000,000. That represented, broadly speaking, the difference between expenditure on a peace footing and expenditure on a war footing. The vote was approved unanimously.

"It was not desirable," he said, "to give precise details of the expenditure, but the army and navy took out of that total about $275,000,000 which was in addition to the sums voted for these services on peace footing. Thirty-eight million pounds represented advances for war expenditure to the dominions and crown colonies. There had been an advance to Belgium of £10,000,000 and of £800,000 to Serbia and further advances to these allies were contemplated. The actual cost of the war at the close of the financial year when the war would have lasted 230 days would be £1,200,000 daily. This credit of £250,000,000 was the largest single vote ever put before the House. It would cover the period to the second week of July. The War Office estimated that from April the daily expenditure would be £1,500,000, and the navy estimated an expenditure of £400,000. This would aggregate roughly £2,000,000 daily.

The Government, he added, was making a larger pecuniary demand on the House than ever before; but they made it in the full conviction that after seven months of war the country and the Empire were every whit as determined as ever to bring a righteous cause to a triumphant issue. (Cheers.)

WHEAT CONTROL

W. F. Cockshutt Stirs up Hot Debate in the House

OTTAWA, March 2.—W. F. Cockshutt, of Brantford, started a vigorous discussion in the House yesterday afternoon, when he proposed that the Government should control the price and exportation of foodstuffs, especially wheat and flour. Messrs. Merner (S. Huron), Sutherland (N. Oxford), and Sir James Aikens (Brandon), were among the Conservative members who vigorously combatted the proposition. Mr. Sutherland said that the House had spent the day in debating a proposal at which the country would be laughing to-morrow.

The Prime Minister declared that there was a superabundance of food in Canada and said that the Government could not interfere with the price in times of depression, and Mr. W. F. Maclean (S. York) suggested establishing, not a maximum, but a minimum price for wheat. Mr. Maclean desired to see the price increased rather than reduced and urged wider storage capacity and a reform of the banking system, so that the farmer might be able to hold his wheat for a fair return.

The western Liberals severely criticized the member for Brantford and suggested taking off the duty on plows. They argued that the manufacturers as well as the farmers should make some sacrifices.

During the Parliamentary recess the Minister of Finance under authority of several orders-in-council issued Dominion notes in excess of the limitation imposed by the Dominion Notes Act to the extent of $26,000,000, out of which a loan of $10,000,000 was made to the Canadian Northern, and a loan of $6,000,000 to the Grand Trunk Pacific.

Roumania Has Signed Agreement.

PARIS, March 2.—Take Jonescu, Roumanian Minister of the Interior, informed a meeting of Conservative Democrats, who were discontented with the party's policy, according to special despatches from Bucharest, that he had not attacked the Government because J. J. C. Bratiano, former Premier and Minister of the Interior, had concluded a formal agreement for common action with the triple entente powers (Great Britain, France and Russia).

Proof of this would be found, Jonescu said, in the Roumanian loan made in London, which it would have been impossible to arrange if the Bucharest Cabinet had not made a categorical statement of its position.

Arrest Greek Notables.

PARIS, March 2. — The Havas Agency has given out a despatch from its Athens correspondent, who says that information has reached there from Sofia to the effect that the police of the Bulgarian capital have arrested a number of Greek notables charged with complicity with the explosion of a bomb the night of Jan. 15 in the local casino during a ball attended by the exclusive society of the city. This act resulted in the killing of two people.

SOLDIERS OF THE KING

According to a militia order just issued, all officers of the 21st Battalion will discard the wearing of swords. On service they will be issued with revolvers. The sword and equipment necessary to carrying the same is too conspicuous for German marksmen and cannot be used by an infantryman as well as a revolver. The old days of leading an attack with a drawn sword have passed.

It is well known that the Hon. General Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, works like a slave and gets down to work at unusual hours in the morning—soon after seven o'clock as a rule. But the Ottawa Journal tells this story about the inimitable Minister of Militia:

General Hughes' barber has instructions to telephone the Minister at 6 o'clock every morning, and then call to shave him. At 11.55 o'clock last night, after the General had been in bed twenty minutes, a newspaper correspondent rang up to inquire if there was any truth in the rumor about heavy Canadian casualties.

The Minister leapt out of bed and, taking up the receiver, shouted: "All right, Dick; I'll be ready in four minutes." He thought it was the barber and that the hour was 6 a.m. He hung up the receiver and proceeded to dress.

Two minutes afterwards the telephone rang again, and this time General Hughes listened. After the conversation was over he went back to bed, having enjoyed the little joke immensely.

Lieut.-Col. Walker received word on Saturday that recruiting for the 39th Battalion should cease, and the order was immediately put into force. The strength of the battalion was 105. Today he received word that recruiting for the 39th Battalion is to be resumed. The reason for the rescinding of Saturday's order is not known.

Some of the men of the 8th Mounted Rifles have been equipped with uniforms and it is expected that the remainder will be fitted up before the end of the week.

TRIBUTE TO THE PATRICIAS

Premier Asquith Mentions Canadians in Commons

LONDON, March 2.—Premier Asquith paid a high tribute to the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry in the course of his speech in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon. He said: "Our own Dominions and own great dependency of India have sent us a splendid contribution of men, a large number of whom are already at the front, and very soon the whole of them will be in the fighting line in one of the actual theatres of the war. We hear to-day that the Princess Patricia's Regiment have been doing during the last few days a most gallant and efficient work. The territorial divisions are now fully trained and capable of confronting any troops in the world, and the new army, which lately has been under the critical scrutiny of skilled observers, is fast realizing all our most sanguine hopes."

U. S. WILL SUFFER.

Reprisals Cut Off Her Trade With Germany and Austria.

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Duplicate announcements of the proposed "long range blockade" of the German allies were delivered to Secretary of State Bryan yesterday by Ambassador Jusserand and Sir Cecil Spring-Rice on behalf of the French and British Governments.

The announcement of yesterday on behalf of the British and French Governments that they will detain and restrain all commerce overseas with the German Empire, is accepted by high officials in Washington as tantamount to a blockade.

Should protests against the policy of Great Britain and France be registered by any of the neutral powers, the allies are expected to hold that their system of blockade is entirely tenable in view of the action of Germany in uttering and attempting to enforce and in a measure enforcing the war zone decree.

The direct effect of the general blockade of German ports will cut off utterly the commerce of the United States with both Germany and Austria.

SLICE TAKEN OFF GRANTS HOME GUARD AND MEDICOS

Reduction of $200 in the Grant to Home Guard

MEDICAL ASS'N TO RECEIVE $250

One thing about this earth is that plenty of time was made—it's lucky for the City Council that such was the case. When the civic dads form the horseshoe, they surely take their share of Time. It's about the only thing the axe of economy does not reach. They can waste it by the hour. Last night's meeting was no exception. As was previously remarked, the report of the Finance Committee was expected to provide a little discussion. Change the word little to "an enormous amount" and one has the correct idea. After every one had had his say and some had spoken four or five times, the Home Guard grant was altered from $700, as recommended by the Committee, to $500, and the Medical Association was granted $250 instead of $300.

Ald. Stratton read his recommendations. Clause one said: "That a grant of $700 be made to the Peterborough Home Guard toward their expenses this year, the Home Guard to give in connection with this grant, an agreement similar to the one given when the grant of $300 was made to them last year."

Clause two said: "That a grant of $300 be made to the Peterborough Medical Society toward entertaining the Ontario Medical Society and the Association of Medical Officers of Health at their annual meeting here."

Ald. Stratton concluded reading his report and as is customary moved that it be adopted. His side partner, Ald. Dobbin, was expected to second the motion but instead he arose to speak. The centre ward representative thought that last year's council did make a partial promise to the Home Guard, but in his opinion he thought where appropriations are being made, a reasonable amount of care should be exercised. Considering that the war tax is at present thrust upon the people as well as other expense, he did not think it right to have the tax rate increased. He therefore would hesitate before voting money.

Ald. Dobbin was willing to move, if a seconder could be found, that the grant to the Home Guard be $500 and the grant to the Medical Society be $200.

Ald. Duffus thought that it would be wise to have the matter left over till the rate was struck. Ald. Green said he believed in getting value for every dollar of the people's money which is spent, and in giving to the Home Guard he thought he was getting real value. The value and good the citizens of Peterborough will get from the Home Guard, should occasion demand it, cannot be estimated. "We should support them," he said, "for we may soon be looking to them for support." For that reason he expressed his pleasure in seconding the motion of Ald. Stratton that the report be adopted.

Ald. Dobbin spoke of the noble work the physicians of this city are doing for the poor by giving their services gratis, nevertheless he thought the council should economize.

Ald. Stratton thought that on hearing the discussion it would be wise to change the $700 grant to the Home Guard to $500. Ald. Green, the seconder of the motion, said he was satisfied to give the Home Guard $500 but would not be satisfied to give them an extra $200 after the estimates had been made and the tax rate arrived at. As for the medical men he thought they should get $400 but as the axe of economy was being wielded he was willing to support them in their claim for $300.

Messrs. R. E. Layfield, E. F. Mason, Col. Miller and F. D. Kerr of the Home Guard were present and Mr. Layfield remarked that they as citizens were with the city council in the effort to cut down expenses and he felt confident that the Home Guard would be satisfied with $500 and thus the council would not have to cut down the grant of the medical men. Mr. Layfield said that many medical men were in their ranks and they were willing to work together.

Medicos and Coal Dealers.

Ald. Weir spoke of the great value the convention would be to the city and figured the amount of money the doctors would spend by what he and Mayor Buller spent at a convention in Buffalo a few years ago. Mayor Buller drew a smile from the gallery by asking the East City orator if he wished to compare medical men with coal dealers.

Mayor Buller expressed his sympathy with the members of the Home Guard and also the Medical Society. He made special reference to the amount of work the physicians of this city are doing gratis and thus saving the city a big bill of expense.

Dr. Amys and Dr. Kelly of the Medical Society were present in the benches and the former was asked to speak. He voiced ideas similar to those brought out by the physicians who waited upon the Finance Committee meeting on Friday last. He said that the medical men needed assistance if the visitors were to be properly entertained and for that reason the $400 had been asked for. He was one member of the local Medical Society who would vote against accepting $200 from the city.

Numerous Motions.

Then came the comedy. May Robson's plays weren't in it for a minute. Ald. Stratton and Green's motion that the report, with the exception that $500 be granted the Home Guard instead of $700, be adopted was read by City Clerk Armstrong. Ald. Dobbin and Edgar moved an amendment that the grant to the Medical Society be $200 instead of $300. Ald. McIntyre popped up with an amendment to the amendment that no action be taken in the matter of making a grant to the Medical Society. His motion was seconded by Ald. Saunders. Those in favor of the amendment to the amendment were Ald. McIntyre, Saunders and Weir. Those in favor of the amendment were Ald. Dobbin, Edgar and Evans while those in favor of the original motion were Ald. Stratton, Green, Duffus and Mayor Buller.

Another vote was taken on the report. This motion was made as was the amendment and then Ald. McIntyre sprung his amendment to the amendment again. The Mayor rapped the desk with the mallet and endeavored to get things straightened out. Before he could do so Ald. Stratton made another motion that the report leaving out clause two, be adopted. This carried. Then Ald. Stratton moved that clause two, giving the Medical Society a grant of $300 be passed and the motion was seconded by Ald Green. Ald. McIntyre and Saunders moved an amendment that no action be taken. The vote gave the amendment the verdict but Ald. Dobbin stood up and moved that the Medical Society be granted $250. Ald. Stratton seconded the motion. Ald. McIntyre and Ald. Weir moved an amendment but the motion carried. The yeas and nays were.

Yeas—Ald. Dobbin, Stratton, Duffus, Green and Evans.

Nays—Ald. Saunders, Edgar, McIntyre and Weir.

ILLEGAL OPERATION, CAUSE OF DEATH, JURY'S FINDING

Doctors Give Evidence at Inquest Into Death of Girl

It took a coroner's jury just twenty minutes last night to bring in a verdict that Helen Brown, stenographer, eighteen years old, came to her death from an illegal operation performed by a party or parties unknown to them.

This finding while definitely fixing the cause of her death leaves the question as to who was responsible for the operation, in the hands of the crown to say whether or not an investigation to place responsibility will be undertaken.

That the young girl's death attracted unusual attention was shown by the crowded court room. The circumstances of the case involved a considerable amount of purely medical testimony some of which was unintelligible to the lay mind. Among the medical men present were Dr. Brown, Dr. Morgan, Dr. Eastwood, Dr. McPherson and Dr. Amys. The first four all gave evidence in connection with the case.

The weight of the evidence was so strong and so plain that the jury had no difficulty in bringing the verdict aforementioned.

Dr. Brown.

Dr Brown was the first witness placed in the stand. He told of Mrs. Patterson Mowry coming to his office on Saturday, Feb. 20th, accompanied by the deceased. The latter said she was suffering from cramps and sickness of the stomach. She told him she had had a fall downstairs a short time before at her uncle's house. Her temperature was ninety-nine. She wanted some medicine to relieve her stomach. He prescribed and afterwards entered into conversation with her. She told him she was a stenographer and was looking for a position. She told him her father had been an Oddfellow and he suggested that she get in touch with the Oddfellows here who might help her to secure a position. The next time he saw her was the night of her death.

On Feb. 24th he had retired about 10 o'clock when he was phoned to come to an address on Hunter St. He found the girl in bed. When he went to feel her pulse which was feeble and weak, he was struck by the coldness of her arms. He gave her repeated doses of brandy. He secured a hypodermic syringe and some strychnine and came back. She had become very much worse and he told Mrs. Mowry to call another doctor. She called Dr Morgan. That was about 11.30. Dr. Morgan came and they treated her. The girl was sinking rapidly and they started stimulation, but the stimulants were of no assistance and it was suggested that they send for her uncle. Dr. Morgan telephoned. Ten minutes later the girl died. She had told him she was eighteen. The condition of her tongue indicated her stomach was out of order.

Dr. Brown said the symptoms of her case were a coldness of the extremities, a fluttering of the heart, quick breathing, constant complaint of pressure over her heart. She begged to be relieved of it. The patient went from ordinary health down to death in perhaps two hours. When he saw her first she said she was living with her uncle. Later she moved to rooms on Hunter Street. She was talking up till within fifteen minutes of her death. She said nothing of her condition to him. Mrs. Mowry met him at the head of the stairs and showed him in. They had two rooms. There was a single bed over to the left with a little girl lying on it, Mrs. Mowry's child.

To the coroner he said her temperature when he first went in was just a little over normal. In his opinion he considered her death caused from acute delatation of the heart brought on by exertion and straining. He considered her case one of billiousness. Looking back over the case he didn't think it was a case of peritonitis.

Dr. Morgan.

He remembered the call to the rooms quite distinctly. When he got to the top of the stairs Dr. Brown met him and told him he had a girl inside whom he thought was going to die. She told him about a fall she had had. He said he thought she was going to die. Mrs. Mowry said, "For goodness sake you can do something for her." They gave her stimulants. They could not make a proper examination with the lighting facilities there. In less than fifteen minutes after he got there they gave up the idea of doing anything for her. He phoned her uncle. Mrs. Mowry was the only one there. All that Mrs. Mowry did was to urge them to do something for her. From his examination he came to the conclusion that he did not know what was the cause of her death. She complained of a weight around her heart. Any disturbance seemed to make her heart worse. He was not sure of the cause of her death.

Mr. A. W. Patterson, Cameron St., the girl's uncle, said he had lived here 23 years. Helen Brown was his wife's niece. Her father was alive when she first visited Peterborough eight years ago. Both her parents had died since and she came to live with him on April 4th, 1914. She had taken a course in the Peterborough Business College but hadn't got a situation. She gave him no reason for leaving the house. He did not see her alive after she left his house. She said she was too far away at his house when looking for a situation and that was why she came up city. Up till a week before she left she was in fairly good health, but was not very strong. She was ill at his house about a week before she left. No doctor was called in. He had never known her to be attended by a physician.

Dr. Eastwood.

With Dr. McPherson he had made a post-mortem on the body of the girl on Saturday morning.

From the findings he said death was due to septic peritonitis, or blood poisoning.

Dr. McPherson.

He was with Dr. Eastwood and assisted in the post mortem. His evidence agreed with that of Dr. Eastwood.

Mr. Hatton in addressing the jury submitted that there was sufficient evidence to have a verdict from the jury as to the cause of death.

The jury then retired and twenty minutes later returned their verdict.

SUN LIFE IN STRONGEST POSITION IN HISTORY

Business Written in Canada Shows Gain.

Assets Show Largest Increase on Record.

Montreal, March 2.—In view of the recently announced amalgamation of the Federal Life with the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada, the annual report for 1914 presented at the annual meeting of the Sun Life of Canada in Montreal today, is of more than ordinary interest. The company closed the year with the strongest statement in its history. It again maintained its leadership among Canadian Life Companies in amount of new assurances issued and paid for, assurances in force, assets, surplus and income. New assurances issued during 1914 totalled $52,167,000, a paid for issue of $15,988,000 in Canada representing an increase of $386,665 over 1913, a fact strongly suggestive not only of popularity of the Sun Life of Canada among the Canadian people but of the essential soundness of Canadian business conditions. Assurances in force now total over $218,299,000. Assets increased by $8,461,000 to $64,187,000, the largest annual increase in the company's history. As additional resources over and above these assets the company holds contingent fund securities to a total par value of over $11,000,000. A particularly favorable feature of the year's operations was an increase of more than 18 per cent. in surplus earnings. Net surplus now standing at $6,503,793. That the year's progress was along eminently conservative lines is indicated by the fact that an increase of 8 per cent. in assurances in force was very properly accompanied by an increase of over 15 per cent. in assets and of over 13 per cent. in surplus. Cash income totalled $15,052,275, an increase of $1,055,000 over that for 1913, payments to policyholders increasing $1,178,000 to over $6,160,000 and bringing total payments to policyholders since organization to over $45,500,000. The prosperity of the Sun Life of Canada is reflected in the fact that during the present year the company is in a position to maintain its increasing scale of policy dividends in accordance with which five-year and reserve dividend policies will receive larger dividends in 1915 than those paid on smaller policies in 1914.

The record for 1914 of the Sun Life of Canada in the face of acute depression reflects the highest credit upon the directors and officers of the company, and should be equally satisfactory to the shareholders and policyholders.

ASK SAME GRANT FOR FALL FAIR

Directors do not Want Grant Less Than $600

Messrs. J. H. Garbutt, C. E. Moore, F. Wise and J. Cox, representing the Peterborough Agricultural Association, waited on the City Council last evening, and, the former acting as spokesman, asked that the usual grant be made to the 1915 exhibition. Mr. Garbutt didn't deem it advisable to go into telling what value the exhibition was to the city, he thought the aldermen were all aware of it. He also referred to the civic demonstration in having the fire brigade parade at the fair, and in Mr. Garbutt's opinion the brigade was a credit to the city. The matter was referred to the finance committee. The grant last year was $600.

Sewer on Boundary.

Mr. Lancaster, who has built a number of houses on the Boundary road between Charlotte street and King street, asked the Council to grant him sewer facilities. The matter was given over to the Board of Works to thresh out.

Bylaws Passed.

Five bylaws were given a third reading and carried. They were:

A bylaw to authorize the issuing of debentures to pay the overdraft of $18,000 of the Board of Education.

A bylaw authorizing a grant of $900 to the Horticultural Society.

A bylaw authorizing a grant of $500 to the Home Guard.

A bylaw authorizing entering into an agreement with H. B. Taylor and Son for the purchase of sewer pipe.

A bylaw to authorize the entering into an agreement with the Peterborough Hardware Co. for the purchase of cement.

Auditors' Report.

On motion of Ald. Stratton and Dobbin the usual 200 copies of the auditors' report will be printed.

Socks are Needed for the Soldiers

At the Council meeting last night Mayor Buller reported that Captain Gray, of the Second Contingent forces encamped at Kingston, had informed him that every man leaving for overseas duty should be equipped with twelve pairs of socks. His Worship thought it would be a grand thing for the Council to present the Peterborough boys with a sufficient number of socks, and also expressed his hope that the women of the city would take the matter up. No action was taken by the Council, as the item was laid over till a future meeting to be given further consideration.

UNCLAIMED LETTERS AT THE POST OFFICE

GULF STREAM THE GREATEST TERRESTRIAL PHENOMENA

Billions of Tons of Water Are Whirled Along Hourly in This Wonderful Torrent, Whose Beneficial Influence Is Felt All Round the World.

Ninety billion tons of water are carried hourly through the strait of Florida by the gulf stream, according to Rear Admiral John E. Pillsbury, U. S. N., in a communication to the National Geographic society at Washington. This stream, he says, is probably the grandest and most mighty of any terrestrial phenomenon.

"If this one single hour's flow of water could be evaporated the remaining salts would require many times more than all the ships in the world to carry it," says Admiral Pillsbury.

"It is difficult for the mind to grasp the immensity of the great ocean river. When one is on board a vessel floating upon its waters one is not as much impressed at the power and grandeur of this wonder of nature as he is when he stands before a towering mountain, an immense iceberg or a fall of water such as Niagara.

"But when one remembers that the mighty torrent, speeding on hour by hour and day by day in a volume equal to all the largest rivers of the world combined, carrying its beneficent heat to temper the climate of continents, one begins to realize that of all the forces of the physical world none can equal this one river of the ocean.

"It is interesting to note in the history of the gulf stream how great its influence has been on the fortunes of the new world.

"Before the discovery of America strange woods and fruits were frequently found on the shores of Europe. Some of these were seen by Columbus and to him were convincing evidence that strange lands were to the westward. These woods were carried by the gulf stream and by the prevailing winds from America, so that in part the stream is responsible for the discovery of the new world.

"Ponce de Leon, while searching for the fountain of youth, discovered this stream. He sailed southward along the coast of Florida, thus stemming the current. He says they found a current that, though the wind was good, they could not stem. It seemed that their vessels were going fast through the water, but they were being driven back in spite of the strong and favorable wind. One ship was soon carried away by the current and lost from sight, although it was a clear sky."

"The theories as to the cause of ocean currents have been many. In recent times the course of currents has been laid to rivers and the gulf stream chiefly to the Mississippi. In actual fact about 2,000 such rivers would be required.

"In the tropical regions there is a steady movement of the air from east to west, known as the trade winds. Winds blowing over the surface of the water induct a current in the latter due to friction. At first it is only the merest skin that moves, but gradually the motion is communicated from layer to layer until at last, if the wind is long continued as in the trade wind region, the movement extends to lower depths, 300 or 400 feet or perhaps more.

"These trade wind currents continue across the Caribbean until they reach the obstruction of the Honduras and Yucatan coasts, from which they escape into the gulf of Mexico.

"Another source of the gulf stream is the wave caused by the wind. Every ripple carries a certain amount of water in the direction toward which it is flowing, irrespective of the current caused by its friction, and when the waves become large tons of water are hurled from the crest into the trough every time the wave breaks.

"In a large area like the Caribbean, having a comparatively constant wind blowing over its whole surface, this action is practically a simultaneous movement of the surface waters to the westward.

"There is every evidence that the gulf stream is governed absolutely by law in all its variations. Its course through the ocean is without doubt fixed. Its fluctuations are by days, months, seasons or by years, but they do not vary materially one year from the other. So we may conclude that of all the physical forces on this earth that are subject to any variations at all the great ocean currents are most immutable."

Forest Fires in Canada.

Some idea of the serious loss inflicted on the country by forest fires was given at the annual meeting of the Commission of Conservation recently by R. H. Campbell, chief forester for the Dominion Department of the Interior.

Last year there were 1,406 forest fires in different parts of the Dominion, mostly in the west, which destroyed 438,567 acres of forest and 350,000,000 feet board measure, of merchantable timber. The spring and summer of 1914 were exceptionally dry. In 1910, another dry year, there were 1,227 forest fires, which destroyed 345,660 acres of trees and 186,-350,000 feet of timber that could have been used for manufacturing purposes.

Most of the fires are caused by careless settlers, with the railways a close second and thoughtless campers third.

THE EXTENT OF THE WAR

More Than Half the World and Half Its People Are Involved

A striking idea of the extent of the present war may be gained from the statement that more than half the inhabitants of the world are engaged in it. This applies to both land area and population.

The area of the British empire exceeds 13,400,000 square miles, that of France is over 4,000,000, and Russia's is in excess of 8,000,000. Belgium, including her Kongo possessions; Japan, Servia and Montenegro increase the total territory of the allies to nearly 27,000,000 square miles. Against this tremendous area that of the Germanic trio does not bulk very large. Germany, Austria and Turkey all told have but little more than 2,500,000. But the total area of the combatant nations foots up 29,506,416 square miles, while the grand total of the land in both hemispheres is only 55,550,000 square miles.

The population of the allied countries is 786,830,000 and that of their enemies' countries 162,920,000, a total of 949,750,000, while the whole race of man is estimated at only 1,623,000,-000.

And the chances are that more nations rather than fewer will shortly be involved. What a commentary on twentieth century civilization!—Providence Journal.

To Bore Iron.

The following method is said to be effective when one has not the proper tools for making a hole in an iron plate:

Shape a stick of sulphur to the required dimensions of the hole, then heat the iron white hot at the place where it is to be bored and press the sulphur against it. Sulphuret of iron is formed, and the stick passes through the metal.—Exchange.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 1.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 1375 cattle, 1342 hogs, 280 sheep and lambs and 128 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice, heavy steers, $7.50 to $7.75, and one lot of ten cattle of choice quality and very empty, at $8; choice butchers' cattle, 1000 to 1200 lbs., at $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.60 to $6.90, common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.25; good cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $5 to $5.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50; bulls, $5.25 to $6.60.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 700 to 800 lbs., sold at $5.80 to $6; medium feeders at $5.25 to $5.75; stockers at $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Only about 20 milkers and springers were on sale, and the bulk of these were of common to medium quality. Prices ranged from $40 to $85, but only three at the latter price.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $11; good, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; common, $5 to $5.50; eastern calves, $4 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

Hogs.

Hog values remained about steady. Selects, fed and watered, $7.75, and $8 for those weighed off cars.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 1.—At the Montreal Stock Yards, west end market, there was no actual change in the condition of the market for cattle. There were some extra choice steers, heifers and bulls on the market, but they brought no more money than ordinary stocks. The demand from butchers and packers was better than it has been of late, on account of the fact that they all allowed their stock to run down to a low level; consequently a more active trade was done. Sales of carlots of choice steers were made at $7.40 to $7.50, good at $7 to $7.10 and medium at $6 to $6.50, and small lots of picked cattle 25c per 100 pounds more.

A feature of the small meat trade was the stronger feeling in the market for sheep and prices have scored a further advance of 50c per 100 pounds, owing to the very limited supplies coming forward, for which there is a fair demand, and sales of small lots of ewes were made at $5.75 to $6 per 100 pounds. In sympathy with the higher prices established in the Toronto market for hogs, a stronger feeling prevailed in this market today and prices advanced 15c to 20c per cwt. Sales of selected lots were made at $8.20 to $8.35, sows at $7.20 to $7.35, and stags at $4.20 to $4.35 per cwt. weighed off cars.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 1.—Cattle—Receipts, 11,000; market, steady; beeves, $5.50 to $9.15; western steers, $5 to $7.30; cows and heifers, $2.50 to $7.70; calves, $6.50 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 43,000; market, strong; light, $6.55 to $6.80; mixed, $6.40 to $6.80; heavy, $6.25 to $6.75; rough, $6.25 to $6.35; pigs, $5.75 to $6.85; bulk of sales, $6.60 to $6.75.

Sheep—Receipts, 15,000; market, strong; native, $6.90 to $7.90; yearlings, $7.75 to $8.65; lambs, native, $7.75 to $[illegible].

COLOSSAL SIRIUS.

This Monster Star Is About Forty Times Bigger Than Our Sun.

The more that is learned about the giant suns of space the more wonderful they appear. The biggest (to our eyes) of these great supersuns is the dog star, Sirius. It equals probably thirty or forty suns like the one that makes our daylight.

The speed of light gives a ready means of comparing the distances of the sun and of Sirius, and upon the difference between those distances depends the fact that, although Sirius is in reality so much greater than the sun, it looks relatively insignificant.

Light takes about eight and a half minutes to come to us from the sun. But it takes about eight and a half years to come from Sirius!

As a minute is to a year, so is the distance of the sun to that of Sirius.

In other words, the great dog star is about 526,000 times as far away as is the sun.

But the brightness of any shining object diminishes in proportion to the square of the increase of its distance. Accordingly if Sirius were actually just as bright as the sun it ought to appear 526,000x526,000, or 276,676,000,-000 times fainter than the sun to our eyes. But measurement of its light shows that it appears only about 7,000,-000,000 times fainter than the sun, from which immediately follows the conclusion that its actual brightness must exceed the sun's about forty times.—Garrett P. Serviss in Spokane Spokesman-Review.

PRELIMINARY LINE-UP FOR THE LOCAL BONSPIEL

Standing of Both Groups in the Inter-rink Schedule

Tomorrow night will see the opening games in the local bonspiel and as there are assurances of hard ice, the curlers may be depended upon to make the best of the competition. The line-up for the preliminary round is as follows:—

W. D. Campbell vs. W. J. McDermid.
J. E. A. Fitzgerald vs. W. G. Morrow.
R. Hicks vs. H. Foot.
A. Moore vs. Dr. Wightman.
J. H. Thompson vs. T. Brightman.

G. Giroux vs .R. Sturgeon.
W. H. Taylor vs. R. M. Waddell.
J. H. Ferguson vs. T. F. Matthews.
D. Davidson vs. W. M. Lang.

The skips who were successful in drawing first round positions are:—

H. R. H. Kenenr vs. W. T. Hall.
W. H. Denham vs. R. Neill.

Play in Campbellford.

Skips J. E. A. Fitzgerald and R. Sturgeon are in Campbellford today playing for the Trent Valley cup.

Inter-Rink Schedule.

Below is given a standing of the skips in the inter-rink schedule which gives the number of games played, number of points and the penalties. The standing does not include last night's games. Ten points are given for each game won. The penalties are for playing substitutes when it was impossible to play the regular rink.

The rink skipped by Jas. Connal won the honors last winter in the final game with T. Brightman's rink. The winners were three up.

The winners in Group One and Two play off for first and second prize while the runner-up in each group play off for third and fourth prize.

"MOONEY" GIBSON QUITS THE FARM

London, March 1.—George Gibson, the famous Pittsburg ballplayer, intends to give up active participation in farm life until his baseball career is over, and in off-seasons he will spend most of his time in London. He has just purchased a fine residence on Central avenue and will make his home there when he is not with the team. The residence is one of the best on the avenue, near Victoria Park, and it is also handy to the Thistle Club rink, where "Mooney" spends a great deal of time during the winter.

Gibson will leave in a few days for Pittsburg, to join his club on its way to Hot Springs, where the Pirates have a permanent training camp. The big catcher is looking fine and anticipates a good season.

HOCKEY

In a fast game of juvenile hockey at the Lindsay St. rink Saturday afternoon a local team of budding hockeyists succeeded in defeating a team from Peterborough by the score of 4 to 1. The Lindsay pucksters were under the captaincy of Frank Williamson and the boys put up a splendid game from the drop of the puck, as the score indicates.

The game was played in three periods, the scoring being as follows: 1-0, 3-0, 4-1.—Lindsay Warder.

THE VERY WORST.

Clara Saw a Real Crisis Coming in Love's Young Dream.

Clara (with emotion)—George, are you sure you will always and always love me?

George (fervently)—While life lasts, my own.

Clara (suppressing a tear)—George, if terrible trials and tribulations should come—

George (amazed)—My heart is yours alone, my love, and always will be.

Clara (sobbing)—George, are you sure, perfectly sure, that nothing—nothing at all—could cool your affection?

George (now seriously alarmed)—My gracious! What's happened? Has your father failed?

Clara (hysterically) — Worse, oh, far worse!

George (much relieved)—Tell me all, my angel. I can bear it.

ONLY $5500 FOR 18 MINUTES' WORK

The life of a fistic champion is bubbling over with such things as financial worries. Take the case of John Patrick Kilbane, for instance. John is now on the verge of closing with Kid Williams for a six-round bout to take place at Philadelphia.

John has been offered the paltry sum of $5,500 for exhibiting his fistic prowess for six rounds.

It must be hard to exert oneself for eighteen minutes for such a trifling amount. Just thing that John will have the disagreeable knowledge at the start of each round that he is destined to receive only $916.67 for his labors during the approaching three minutes.

Or perhaps he may be mathematically inclined that he will take the trouble to discover that for each second that the bout is on he will receive $5.00.

Every time he feints he can declare to himself: "Well, there's another five bones on my bank roll." Or every time he jabs he can console himself with that knowledge. Even if he receives a jolt he may assert, "Well, inasmuch as that brings me $5 I guess it doesn't hurt so much."

Yes, we should sympathise with John.

Ladies Curling Club

Twenty-six lady curlers are expected to take part in the pointe competition which will start at 9.30 tomorrow morning. Great interest is being taken by the ladies in this competition, for which Miss Dalton, of Kingston, president of the Ladies' Curling Club of Ontario, has offered a very handsome prize. Miss Dalton is also donating a prize to the highest scorer in every club in Ontario.

WIT IN HISTORY.

A Brief Address and a Pithy Reply That Won With Royalty.

Frederick the Great once granted a hearing to a subject on condition that he should cut his remarks very short.

"Let him say but two words," said the monarch.

"Very well," agreed the subject, and on entering the presence of Frederick he held out a petition and uttered but the two words:

"Sire, sign."

The subject won his request.

King Henry VIII. wished to commission a nobleman of his court to visit Francis I.

It was at a moment when international relations were extremely shaky, and the courtier showed no particular desire to absent himself from his home and country on so dangerous a mission.

"Do not be afraid," said King Henry. "If you lose your life in my service I will avenge you a hundredfold. I will take off the heads of all the Frenchmen in my power."

"Thank your majesty; your majesty is most gracious," said the courtier, "but of all those heads which you take off there may not be one which will fit on my shoulders."

The witty reply resulted in the courtier being excused from his dangerous mission.

TOO MUCH MUSCLE.

She Was a Fine, Brawny Lass, but She Scared Cupid.

A young highland plowboy was pestering a female servant with his unwelcome attentions, and one day he proposed. At this instant the pair (they were walking in the fields) came upon another servant, a man, sleeping instead of working. The lassie, a brawny wench, seized a stick and beat the idler till he roared. When he had slunk off to his duty the swain remarked admiringly:

"Ma certie, lassie, but ye cud weel manage yer childer."

"Aye, or their father," replied the girl, with a significant look.

The lover turned pale.

"Ma lass," he gasped. "I juist remembered ma auld mither at hame. I'm her only laddie, and I think it's no richt for me tae mairry while she's alive. W-w-when she does I'll come back an' mairry ye."

And as he got safely away he said fervently, "May the Lord allow ma mither to live as lang as me!"

Last Friday the Canadian Kitchener League sent a box to the Peterborough boys doing active service with the first contingent in France. The box weighed thirty pounds and consisted of socks, wristlets, shirts, helmets and scarfs. They have also supplied the men of the Mounted Rifles and 39th Battalion with similar articles.

MAYOR'S TRIP TO CELEBRATION AT KINGSTON

Mayor Buller was in Kingston last week, and at the meeting of the Council last evening he gave an account of his visit to the quarters of the Peterborough men with the second contingent. All the men are very comfortable and well, and the quarters and accommodations are excellent. Capt. Gray informed him that he would like to have one hundred more men like those Peterborough sent. They are the finest men in the whole section of the second contingent encamped at Kingston.

Capt. Gray also made reference to the effort being put forth by the officers of the second contingent to have field kitchens, which the Government does not provide. It would add greatly to the equipment of the forces. Mr. T. F. Matthews has been given a list to secure subscriptions in Peterborough, and Capt. Gray also urged the mayor to have the Council make a small grant. The cost of the kitchens would be $5000.

The fact that Mr. Matthews was out of the city caused the matter to be laid over, to be dealt with at a subsequent meeting.

At a meeting of St. Thomas citizens, Col. Dr. Fred Guest was presented with a purse of gold.

Lessons in Economy.

Free lessons in the making of delicious and healthy desserts and artistic dishes will be given by a lady artist in domestic science. Free books of recipes for everybody at Mason's Grocery this week only.

Reception Appreciated.

Mayor Buller has received a letter from Colonel Gaskin, chief secretary of the Salvation Army in Canada, thanking His Worship for the part he and the aldermen took in the public reception to Commissioner Richards on Sunday last.

"Every Girl."

The young ladies and children of the Olive Mission Band of Charlotte Street Church will give their entertainment "Every Girl" on Thursday evening, March 4th, beginning at 8 o'clock. It is believed this will reach if not surpass the high standard attained by other entertainments of that church. Admission 25c., children 15c.

Election Necessary.

If the resignation of Ald. W. J. Johnston is accepted an election will be necessary in the north ward to fill the vacancy. If an alderman resigns previous to November 1st an election is necessary while if the resignation is tendered after that date the Council may decide to complete the year with nine members.

Mayor Buller stated this afternoon that he is very hopeful of Ald. Johnston withdrawing his resignation.

Hydro Lines in Eastern Ontario

Last night's meeting of the City Council covered a very wide area. Everything and anything was brought up and all was given what Sir Oliver Mowat used to call "serious consideration." Several members of the local Council were in Toronto last week attending the meeting called for the purpose of promulgating the construction of rural radial lines. Ald. Duffus was the first to speak on the matter, and in his opinion it was in many ways like the hydro-electric scheme. It was to connect the various towns of the province with rural radial lines. The proposition will be taken up and advanced in different districts.

Ald. Stratton asked how the scheme would be financed, and Ald. Duffus explained that it would be done by the Government through the municipalities. The Government saw fit to grant $6,400 to a railway corporation and should not hesitate to advance a similar amount to this scheme.

Mayor Buller, who has been an ardent supporter of the scheme since it was first made known, reviewed the work of the association which has been formed to advance the proposition. He also spoke a few words on the great value it would be to Peterborough to have an electric line going north to Burleigh and going south around the head of the lake. Mr. T. F. Matthews has been elected chairman of the committee to organize this section of the province, and it is up to the Council to get busy. The fee for the association is $? per 1,000 population. Peterborough's fee would be $12.

Ald. Duffus pointed out how the municipalities which belong to the association will receive first consideration, and for this reason, and also believing that it would be of great help to Peterborough, he moved that the fee of $12 be paid. The motion carried.

MARGUERITE CLARK IN THE CRUCIBLE

In many American cities Mary Pickford finds a rival for popularity in Marguerite Clark, another Canadian girl. Miss Clark is considered even prettier than her rival and is a more finished artist. She is one of the most charming and youthful stars on the stage today and in The Crucible which is being shown at the Empire Theatre she has a vehicle for the display of her talents, that is altogether pleasing. The Crucible is a powerful story of a girl's triumph, from the pen of Mark Lee Luther.

ALD. EDGAR WANTS TO LOOK OVER ITEMIZED STATEMENT

Showing the Estimates of Fire, Water and Light Committee

Ald. J. J. Duffus read out his recommendations of the Fire, Water and Light Committee to the City Council last night and all were approved but clause three, reading, "We recommend that the estimated expenditure of the Fire Department for this year be placed at $19,976.11." Ald. Edgar thought he, not being a member of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, should have been given an itemized list of the estimates so that he could look them over. He was desirous of having that clause of the report referred back to the committee to give him an opportunity to see the list.

Ald. Green remarked that if every recommendation from a committee was to be referred back to the committee or to the council, it would be better to cut out al the committees, and have the council meet every night to go over every letter which is received or sent out. According to his ideas, the manner in which the estimates of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, were presented, was the usual one and if the council did not desire to pass the recommendations, it showed lack of confidence in the committee and all the committees should therefore be done away with. Ald. Edgar took exception to the remarks of Ald. Green and said that he had every confidence in the chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee.

Ald. Duffus thought Ald. Edgar could not be blamed for the stand he took as this was his first year in the council and very likely he was not aware of the method used in arriving at estimates and submitting the amount to the council.

It was put to a motion and finally decided that the report be adopted and that Ald. Edgar and other members of the council who are not members of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be supplied with copies of the estimates before the next meeting.

When all other matters were cleared away and the motion to adjourn had been made, Ald. Edgar asked Ald. Duffus and Ald. Green if they would be good enough to withdraw their motion that the report of the Fire, Water and Light Committee be adopted and that a motion go through that clause three be referred back to the committee so that before the next meting he would be able to go over the items in the estimates.

Ald. Duffus remarked that he was perfectly willing if such was the wish of the council although he desired that one item of the estimates for $1,500 for the underground cable work be passed so as the letting of the contract and the signing of the necessary agreements would not be interfered with. If that could be arranged, it would be possible to have the committee re-consider the estimates, although they had already given them some eight hours' attention.

After a great deal of discussion as to what all should go in the motion, it was finaly decided that clause three be referred back to the Fire, Water and Light Committee with the exception of the item for the $1,500 for underground cable work.

JUDGE CENSORS THE METHODS OF POLICE COURT

Also Refers to Good Work of the Salvation Army

Toronto, March 2.—A severe censure on Police Court methods and the management of the Toronto Jail by the City Council came from Chief Justice Sir William Mulock when reviewing the presentment of the Grand Jury in the Criminal Assize Court yesterday. His Lordships remarks on the Police Court were evoked in connection with the charge of treason which was preferred against J. J. Rowens. "A loyal citizen of this country," he said, "a man who was desirous of joining the Russian forces, has been cast into a Canadian jail and kept there for four months because of the mismanagement of the case in a lower court."

In regard to the jail the Grand Jury recommended that electric lights be installed instead of gas jets. They condemned the lack of fire escapes and fire hose in the women's section, and suggested the appointment of another watchman owing to the limited fire protection. His Lordship said that the lack of proper fire protection was an inexcusable condition of affairs. "I don't know that any good will come of the recommendation," he said, "but I will forward it to the City Council, and the responsibility will be theirs." The Grand Jury pointed out the good work of the Salvation Army.

"This is the first occasion," the Chief Justice said, "I have ever heard a Grand Jury refer to the Salvation Army. We are all familiar with its scope and splendid work. We had a touching proof of it Saturday last, when one of the angels of mercy of that institution sat beside that unfortunate girl who was being tried for her life, and when she was acquitted this Salvation Army girl received her into her open arms. The girl fell upon her shoulder, and resting on each other they joined in a common tear. There was a sample of their work. As I saw her sitting there day after day my heart went out to the whole institution."

COUNCIL HEARS AUDITOR'S REPORT

At last night's meeting of the City Council, James A. Hall, auditor, presented the following report:

Gentlemen,—I have the honor to submit herewith my report as auditor of the accounts of the city for the year ending 31st December, 1914.

The books of account and vouchers of the city clerk, the city treasurer, the treasurer of the commissioners of the city trust, the treasurer of the water commissioners and the utilities commission, the treasurer of the board of education, the treasurer of the Nicholls Hospital trust, the treasurer of the public library board, the treasurer of the charity board, the assessment and collector's roll for 1913-1914, and the arrears of taxes, have been examined and checked and I have much pleasure in reporting that the books of all these departments are well and accurately kept.

The bonds of the various officials of the corporation are in the proper form and for the required amounts.

Respectfully submitted.

JAS. A. HALL,
Auditor.

The report was referred to the finance committee.

Solicitor Reports on Arbitration Award

At last night's meeting of the Council, City Solicitor Gordon reported that he had received notice from Judge Huycke, chairman of the Board of Arbitration in the case of City of Peterborough-Peterborough Light and Power Co., to the effect that the award has been made but it cannot be secured until the $3534.50, the fees of the arbitrators, be paid. City Solicitor Gordon also reported that Mr. R. A. Ross, C.E., the city's arbitrator, had an account against the city for $523.65 for work performed previous to the arbitration. The matter was given a little discussion and the solicitor stated that as the city had the plant and was operating it he saw no reason for the council having the award made known. He thought by holding back the other party would secure the judgment and a copy would be sent to the city.

On motion of Ald. Stratton and Duffus no action was taken.

While speaking of the arbitration, Solicitor Gordon expressed his great appreciation of the assistance rendered by E. H. D. Hall, former city solicitor, and also T. J. Jeffrey, the engineer of the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

Mr. Thomas Gibson, of Toronto, President of the Lake Superior Corporation, who is on a visit to Sault Ste. Marie, says that only the Algoma Central and the Hudson Bay Railway was included in the receiver ship.

Judgment for the full amount of the claim, $2,200, was given at Cobalt, by Judge Hartman in the case of Henry Soney et al against the Cart Lake Company and the Peterson Lake Mining Company.

Matters Municipal

The midnight bells were tolling when the Council meeting adjourned last night.

Capt. Carson of the government boat Naiad, evidently was lonesome for the feeling one has when in the midst of a storm. He was an ardent listener to the oratory of the council of ten last night.

Should Ald. Johnston's resignation be accepted, Ald. J. J. Duffus will be the senior member of the board.

Several aldermen wanted to go through the Fire, Water and Light Committees estimates. All were evidently aiming at the one line "expenses to Fire Chief's Convention $100."

The 57th Band had a communication before the Council asking that the usual grant of $500 be made to the band for giving band concerts in Victoria Park during the summer months. It was referred to the Finance Committee. The same body will deal with the request of the Salvation Army that the grants be divided equally. Hitherto the 57th Band received $500 and the Salvation Band $225.

They are starting to come in. Petitions for streets watered was received last night from residents on Weller St., Wolfe St., Bolivar St., and Albert St.

The matter of taking up the proposition of E. V. G. Orme of Brampton, the details of which appeared in last night's issue, was given over to the chairman of the Property Committee to be taken up with the Library Board.

The city solicitor has received notice that before the fees for the Peterborough Private Bill could be fixed it would be necessary to give an estimate of the limit of borrowing power asked for. He is endeavoring to secure such an estimate and when the task is completed a special meeting of the Council will be called to deal with the matter.

The statement of the tax collector as submitted to the Council last night was:

Total amount on roll for 1914	$302,932.48
Total amount deposited	283,799.30
Balance	$19,133.18
Amount deposited during January	$1,446.68

The Grand Trunk System will put in effect on March 1st, reduced fares to California that will include San Francisco, in which city the Panama-Pacific Exposition is being held, from Feb. 20th to Dec. 4th. Los Angeles and San Diego, at which latter point the Panama California Exposition is being celebrated during the entire year.

The same fares in most cases (and an additional charge on low excursion fares to cover the cost of meals and fares on Pacific Coast Steamships,) apply on the magnificent new scenic route opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific, as on the more direct routes from Chicago and other points.

The new Transcontinental is as great in magnitude and interest as the Panama Canal. You see the Canadian Rockies at their best, with Mount Robson (13,700 ft.) the highest peak in the Canadian Rockies, as the show place of America; the wonderful Fraser and Skeena Rivers of British Columbia; besides enjoying a two days' trip between Prince Rupert, Vancouver, Victoria or Seattle, through what has become known as the "Norway of America," on the Grand Trunk Pacific Coast Steamships, the finest, surest and fastest in the service.

A short side trip can be made from Prince Rupert to Alaska, which time and expense might not permit from a southern port. No other transportation company can offer the choice of routes that the Grand Trunk System has arranged for 1915, to California and the Pacific Coast.

OBITUARY

MRS. CHARLES CASTLE.

The sad death occurred on Feb. 21st of Mrs. Charles Castle of Peterborough, and late of Webb, Sask. The late Mrs. Castle was born in Ireland coming to Canada with her parents at the early age of 6 years. The family settled in South Monaghan where she resided for thirty-eight years, and then she moved with her husband and family to Galway, coming from there to Peterborough four years later. She resided her until five years ago when she went west to live with one of her sons.

The late Mrs. Castle was seventy-seven years old. Her husband predeceased her ten years.

She leaves to mourn her loss five daughters and six sons. The daughters are: Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. J. Wicker, Mrs. G. Smith of Webb, Saskatchewan; Mrs. C. Clarke and Mrs. Robt. Graham, Peterborough. The sons are: George of Arcola, Sask., Richard of Webb, Sask., Harry, Ruben and Tom of Peterborough. One sister, Mrs. Wm. Mason, Fenelon Falls, and one brother at Fraserville.

The funeral took place at Webb, Sask.

ston's resignation should be accepted. He was the oldest man in the Council and had always been a hard worker and of great assistance to him.

Some of the aldermen thought that the whole Council should wait upon the representative from the north and try and get him to complete his term. Ald. Duffus thought the idea a good one but remarked that it might be possible that if Ald. Johnston's resignation was not accepted it might frustrate some plans he had made. Ald. Duffus thought the resignation might be necessary to permit him to accept some position or other. To be sure that any step taken would not be afterwards regretted, Mayor Buller was asked to try and get Ald. Johnston on the telephone and find out what the trouble was. His Worship did so and on return he revealed another surprise. Ald. Johnston acquainted him with the fact that he had not received fair treatment from the 1915 council and for that reason he handed in his resignation. Ald. Johnston said that it would be in the best interests of all concerned were the resignation accepted. Mayor Buller reported that he had urged Ald. Johnston to reconsider his action and although Ald. Johnston would not promise he didn't state definitely that he would not. Mayor Buller thought that as Ald. Johnston was a good-hearted fellow he might be talked into remaining for the rest of the year.

On motion of Ald. Saunders and Dobbin no action was taken in the matter and Mayor Buller will put forth extra efforts to have "Hydro" Bill remain in the council.

DOCTOR SUICIDES AFTER HIS ARREST ON CHARGE OF MURDER

Took Strychnine Unobserved While in Guard-room of Police Station With His Solicitor --- Fatal Act Followed Signing of His Will

Unable to face a charge of murder laid by the police in connection with the death of Helen Brown, the eighteen year old stenographer, Dr. W. E. Brown, 474 George Street, ended his life by swallowing strychnine in the police station about six o'clock last evening. He was dead inside of four minutes after taking the deadly dose and a coroner's jury last evening returned a verdict that he had died from the effects of strychnine administered by his own hand.

Such in brief is the history of one of the saddest and most tragic affairs the city has ever experienced. Following so closely the death of Helen Brown upon which the doctor gave testimony the previous night his rash but deliberate act has plunged the entire city into gloom. That it was carefully planned seems plain from the history of his conduct from his arrest up till the time he committed the deed. His last words uttered to Chief of Police Thompson in the cell that witnessed his end were "Poison, Poison, it is all over, I am done."

Arrest Made.

At 11.45 yesterday morning Detective Newhall and Detective Meagher went to the late physician's home on George Street and after making some inquiries arrested the doctor charging him with the murder of Helen Brown. He was greatly upset and asked to see his wife and family before he left. He bade them all goodbye in the consulting room in the presence of the officers. They granted him permission to eat his dinner. Detective Newhall left Meagher in charge of him. The latter brought him to the police station and took him into Chief Thompson's office. He sat down. His first remark was "This is an awful thing, Chief." The chief instructed him to refrain from talking about it. The doctor said he scarcely understood the information of the charge and the chief read it over to him. He was in a very nervous condition. Although warned, he insisted on talking and asked to have the party who was with him the night Helen Brown died brought to him. This party was sent for and arrived inside of half an hour. She made a statement in the presence of Dr. Brown. This statement is at present in the hands of Mr. A. E. Dixon, solicitor for the late physician.

Was Much Depressed.

Chief Thompson said the doctor seemed very much depressed although urged to brace up and meet the charge manfully. He maintained his depressed condition however. Later he was handed over to Acting Sergeant Kidd. This was about ten minutes to four. The latter permitted him to go into the guard room of the station and sit down. Detective Meagher was in charge of him from then on until he was placed in the special cell at the station which is a little more comfortable than the rest. He was therefore under the surveillance of the police all the time save while he was with his solicitor. He was thoroughly searched and a small creased paper was taken from his pocket.

Made His Will.

Mr. A. E. Dixon was phoned for at the doctor's request. He came and the two discussed engaging Toronto counsel to act for him in the matter. They discussed some matters of evidence and the physician then requested Mr. Dixon to make out his will. This he did and returned to his office to have it typewritten. When he came back he handed it to Dr. Brown who read it over. It was signed and witnessed in the presence of Mr. D. W. Dumble who happened to be there. Mr. Dixon was with him in the guard room about fifteen minutes or more. He said the doctor seemed very much depressed. There was a glass containing water on the table near him. After the will had been signed Dr. Brown handed him a paper containing questions and answers given by a woman to the chief. While reading this paper Mr. Dixon did not watch the doctor very closely but looking up once he noticed him set down the glass of water upon the table. Mr. Dixon finished reading the paper and left. It was at the request of the deceased that Mr. Dixon drew up his will.

Retained Overcoat.

The doctor was then in a very depressed state and was taken back to the cell. He asked to retain his overcoat, and a cap was supplied him to replace his derby hat. Chief Thompson left him in the cell and went out on the street. He saw Rev. Mr. Peever coming down Water St. and enter the City Clerk's office on Simcoe St. The chief followed him in and came through into the police station with Mr. Peever from the committee room of the city hall. As they were walking along the passage way leading to the cell they heard unusual sounds coming from where the doctor was confined. Looking in they saw him clinching his hands tightly and lifting his feet as though in agony. Chief Thompson spoke to him and asked him if he would see Mr. Peever. He replied No. He uttered the words, poison, poison, twice and sank down upon the bed in the cell. Dr. McPherson was telephoned but was out. Dr. Greer was summoned arriving inside of five or six minutes just as Dr. Brown breathed his last.

The Inquest.

A coroner's jury, empanelled by eight o'clock, viewed the body in the cell and met in the court room. They heard the evidence of Detective Newhall, Detective Meagher, P. C. Kidd, Chief Thompson, A. E. Dixon and Dr. McPherson. The jury consisted of Jos. Maher (foreman), William Martin, Fred Stenson, Charles Carroll, Thomas Meredith, Robert Begley, Wm. Merrill, George Evans, Gilbert Pringle. After deliberating about thirty minutes they brought in the following verdict, "That Dr. W. E. Brown came to his death from strychnine poisoning in the cell of police station and from the evidence the same was self administered while in a depressed state of mind."

It is stated that evidence implicating another party is contained in the statement obtained from the party who was in consultation with the late physician before his death, in the constable's office.

FOUR PERSONS PERISH WHEN HOME IS BURNED

Mother and Three Young Sons Are the Victims

OTHERS JUMPED FROM WINDOWS TO SAFETY

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Quebec, March 3.—Four lives were lost in a fire in Saint Sauveur ward early this morning which destroyed the house occupied by Talbot and Drouin families. Drouin with his wife and five children escaped through a window.

Arthur Talbot with his three-year-old daughter escaped by jumping through the second story window. He was burned and bruised. His wife's sister and brother were rescued with difficulty by firemen.

The victims are Mrs. Arthur Talbot and three sons, Arthur, aged nine, Paul, aged 6, and Henri, nine months.

Major Gault is Wounded

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Montreal, March 3.—Private advices announce that Major Gault of the Princess Pats has been wounded in the arm.

AS HE CROSSED THE BAR.

An officer at the front told a London paper representative the following story as within his own experience:—

A soldier who had been almost riddled with shrapnel, as he was laid tenderly on the hospital's bed, suddenly began to sing—Tennyson's "Crossing the Bar," to Sir Joseph Burnby's beautiful setting.

His voice was one of the sweetest tenors ever heard. While everyone listened in silence he went right through to the end, but his strength was ebbing. He managed, however, to sing on to the end, while fainter and fainter grew the voice.

The shoe store of Emmanuel Topp, Collingwood, was gutted by fire. The loss was several thousand dollars.

MADE SURE OF HOSE THIS TIME

When the fire brigade answered the call to McDonald's mill this morning a line of hose was strung across the street car track. No policeman was on the job to act in the capacity of traffic officer so Chief Howard placed one of his men between the rails. As it was traffic was delayed but a few moments.

TOOTH BRUSHES TO BE PURCHASED

Some of the School Pupils Are Without Them

REPORT OF NURSE

The Board of Education decided last night to purchase a quantity of tooth brushes for distribution among the pupils of the schools, who are unable to make the purchase. This decision followed the reading of the following monthly report of Miss Kennedy, the school nurse:—

No. of inspections	620
Pupils advised to have medical attention	68
Pupils excluded because of uncleanliness	6
Homes visited	21

The majority of the children have tooth brushes, yet there are a great many who have not, and there are children who are unale to pay for them.

REDUCED STAFF AT KINGSTON

Council Also Raised City License Fees

Kingston, March 3. — The city council adopted the report of the board of works for reorganization of the city engineer's department. The engineer was reappointed, but the staff was reduced. Council raised city license fees so as to produce $2,000 more revenue each year.

$60 FOR HIDES OF FOUR WOLVES

Apsley Man Gets Bounty Provided for by Government

George Stephens of Apsley presented the hides of four grey timber wolves to County Treasurer Ed. Elliott today and secured the grant of $15 per hide. The hides were forwarded to the department at Toronto. Of the $60 for Mr. Stephens, the county pays $36 and the government $24.

Mr. Elliott informed the Review today that during all of last year but two hides were brought in to him.

MARGARET DUNCAN FREED FROM JAIL

The Minister of Justice has been pleased to discharge Margaret Leola Duncan, a girl of twenty, who has been confined in the county jail, following an application made to the department by Messrs. Gordon and Widdifield. The discharge was allowed on condition that she place herself under the care of the Salvation Army and is admitted to the Salvation Army Home for Girls.

CASE OF COOPERATION WITH THE FARMERS.

OTTAWA, March 3. — Few members sympathize with the campaign to ask the farmer to produce more for the general benefit without asking all others to produce more meanwhile for the farmer's benefit. Conservatives warmly resented in the House W. F. Cockshutt's speech which included farmers only.

CASE IS CLOSED

No Further Action is Contemplated by Authorities

WHAT HAPPENED IN GUARDROOM

More definite details of how Dr. Brown came to take his life show that he must have contemplated the deed at least two days previous. While the police searched him as they thought thoroughly, they failed to put the little paper of strychnine which he had in his overcoat, beyond his reach and thus the doctor was able to work out his terrible deed. Though sharp watches were kept upon him all the time with the exception of when closeted with his solicitor, he took the one chance when the latter was not looking, to do away with himself. Mr. Dixon was warned by Constable Kidd that while he was with the doctor he would be held responsible for his welfare. The doctor however turned his back on Mr. Dixon and there can be no doubt that he took the poison then, for upon looking up Mr. Dixon saw him place a glass of water upon the table as if he had taken a drink. That the strychnine was taken with the water, is the supposition which has not been disputed.

Talked With Mrs. Mowry.

Shortly after the doctor had been brought to Chief Thompson's office he asked to have Mrs. Mowry brought in. The two of them conversed and Mrs. Mowry submitted a written statement of her knowledge of the affair which is claimed to have been most damaging to Dr. Brown. It is furthermore learned on good authority that Mrs. Mowry resented what she claimed to have been an effort on the part of some person to cast suspicion on her as the perpetrator of the illegal operation and that was one reason why she confessed to everything that had taken place. It was on this information, part of which was secured the previous day, that gave the police sufficient evidence to warrant the doctor's arrest on the charge of murder. When in the chief's office and when he saw the way things were shaping, it caused him to become more and more depressed. He openly intimated to Chief Thompson that he had little interest in life after what had developed. The latter tried to get him to brace up but failed.

Paper Left on Table.

Chief Thompson's evidence showed that he had searched Dr. Brown after the will had been drawn up. From him, among other things was taken a small folded paper which was placed on the table, and to which Dr. Brown had access. The chief then withdrew leaving the doctor and Mr. Dixon alone. The doctor presumably swallowed the strychnine then, and placed the paper back in his overcoat pocket. When the chief searched him before placing him in the cell after Mr. Dixon had left, he found the paper in his overcoat pocket. The chief was suspicious then, but felt that he had blocked the doctor's designs. But it was too late. He had swallowed a portion of the contents which on examination showed to be strychnine.

No further action has been taken today in connection with the sad affair. No other arrests have been made. Chief Thompson stated to a reporter that he thought the matter was closed.

Was Held in High Regard.

The late Dr. Brown was always a more or less reserved man but was highly thought of by his fellow practitioners and those with whom he came in contact. He had carried on the practice of medicine in Peterborough since 1895. Born in Roseneath he graduated from Trinity College, Toronto, in 1891, after which he practiced in the town of Rush near Rochester, for a few years. Upon coming to Peterborough he built up a lucrative practice and was the first physician to introduce the x-ray instrument in the city. He was in his fifty-third year. During the last couple of weeks he had not been feeling in the best of health and an illness of long standing which tended to undermine his health seemed to become aggravated. Besides his wife, he leaves one daughter, Mable, at home and one son, Dr. Harold Brown, of Roseneath. There are four brothers and two sisters who are, Charles of Roseneath, postmaster; Dr. Walter Brown, dentist, Toronto; A. J. Brown of Virginia, Minn., and G. A. Brown of Orillia. The sisters are Annie and Eliza of Roseneath. The late Dr. Brown attended George Street Methodist Church. The funeral which will be private will take place Friday morning at seven-thirty to the G.T.R. station. The remains will be taken to Roseneath for interment, in the family plot.

An Investigation?

Mayor Buller stated to the Review today that if the public demand it, there will be an investigation by the Police Commissioners in regard to Dr. Brown taking strychnine while under arrest. Mayor Buller remarked that as a member of the Police Commission he felt confident that the deceased was thoroughly searched. He based his opinion on the manner in which prisoners had been searched on previous occasions when he was a witness, and also on the fact that the quantity of the fatal drug was so small that it could be hidden quite easily.

Police Magistrate's Statement.

Police Magistrate Dumble, who happened to be at the police station, was about to leave, when he was called back and told that Dr. Brown wished him to witness his will. After complying Dr. Brown thanked him and took his hand.

GERMANY AND AUSTRIA FIGHTING LOSING GAME

Austrians' Position in Carpathians Appears Unsatisfactory

SUCCESSES FOR RUSSIANS IN POLAND

Athens Reports Dardanelles' Forts Again Bombarded by Allies

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 3. — According to what appears to be the virtually unanimous opinion of British observers, Germany and Austria are fighting a losing game along almost all the entire eastern front.

The situation of the Austrians in the Carpathians, judging from official and unofficial despatches from Petrograd, would appear to be unsatisfactory, while the Russians, it is said, have definitely checked them in Eastern Galicia. Furthermore, London advices continue to relate successes of greater or lesser degree for the Russian forces in Poland operating against the armies of Field Marshal Von Hindenburg.

The allied fleet again bombarded the Dardanelles forts, according to despatches from Athens, but the British press bureau has not confirmed this report.

An Athens message says that four ships shelled the interior forts from the Gulf of Saros and that anxiety at Constantinople is increasing.

LONDON, March 3. — A despatch from Athens says the allied troops landed at Kum Kaleh forts easily scattered the Turkish garrison.

Geneva learns from Trieste that Austrian submarines, torpedo boats and destroyers left Pola yesterday morning for the Dardanelles and were last reported off Corfu.

FIND PLOT TO DEPOSE GOVERNOR

Sailors Aboard Brazilian Battleship Are Involved

SEVERAL ARRESTS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Rio Janeiro, March 3.—Several arrests have resulted from the discovery of a plot to depose the Governor of the state of Rio Janeiro. Among those involved being sailors on two Brazilian battleships. The movement is believed to be similar to the naval mutiny of 1910.

FOE'S FIRST LINE TRENCHES HELD

Progress Has Been Maintained Everywhere

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 3. — This afternoon's official communication says: "There is nothing of importance to add to last night's communication.

"In the Champagne we hold an entire first line of German trenches from a point northwest of Perthes to the north of Beausejour, and at several points we have progressed beyond this line.

"Progress at various points, which was reported yesterday, is confirmed. This progress has been maintained everywhere.

"There has been cannonading in the Argonne.

"On the rest of the front there is nothing to report."

BRITISH ARMY IS IN HEALTHY CONDITION

Low Death Rate From Disease is Probably a Record

CANADIANS NOT MOWED DOWN BY SICKNESSES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 3. — The British army at home and on foreign service is in a remarkably healthy condition. The low death rate in the army which began the war with a half million men, and had been raised to two and a half million men, is probably a record. There has not been one death from typhus or cholera, only one from smallpox, six from diphtheria, ninety-six from typhoid, twenty-six from scarlet fever and sixty-seven from measles.

The report of the Canadians being mowed down by camp sickness is unfounded.

A fire which occasioned between $3,000 and $4,000 damage occurred at Windsor destroying Joseph Rotelski's grocery store and the house adjoining.

FORTY-NINE THOUSAND TURKISH PRISONERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PETROGRAD, March 3. — Up to February 13th, forty-nine thousand Turkish prisoners have been taken to camps in the interior of Russia.

At a meeting at St. Catharines of the Lincoln and Welland Fruit and Vegetable Growers the price of tomatoes to canners was the chief subject of consideration. They were urged to stand out for thirty cents a bushel.

BUSINESS BLOCK IS THREATENED BY FIRE

Crompton's Department Store at Brantford is Gutted

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BRANTFORD, March 3. — Fire starting in the basement of E. B. Crompton & Company's four-storey brick departmental store about 11.30 today, swept up through the whole store, causing a loss estimated at $175,000 to $200,000, covered by insurance.

The blaze started in the furnace-room. Within fifteen minutes it had so spread that the roof at the back gave way and fell in. Every possible line of hose, all the firemen, police and soldiers and many citizens are now fighting the blaze, which is being confined to one block.

It is not thought that any lives were lost.

PETERBOROUGH, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 3, 1915

THE FRENCH QUESTION IN THE SENATE.

THE SENATE has postponed its discussion of the bilingual school question for one week, and Senator Davids' resolution has been withdrawn for one more in accordance with the rules of the Senate. The new resolution reads:

> "This House, without derogating from the principle of provincial autonomy, deems it proper and within the limits of its powers and jurisdiction and in pursuance of the object for which it was established, to regret the divisions which seem to exist among the people of the Province of Ontario in connection with the bilingual school question, and believes that it is in the interest of the Dominion at large that all such questions should be considered on fair and patriotic lines, and settled in such a way as to preserve peace and harmony between the different national and religious sections of this country in accordance with the views of the Fathers of Confederation and with the spirit of our constitution."

While serious criticism will have to be withheld until the question is discussed, the resolution carries on the face of it the unmistakable signs of weakness. It opens with an admission of the principle of provincial autonomy, and then asserts its right to discuss a matter clearly and admittedly within the powers of the provinces alone. The Senate, no more than the Province of Quebec, can override the constitutional rights of one of the parties to Confederation. If the Senate admits the principle of provincial autonomy, it is difficult to see what it can talk about in regard to this question, or what it can accomplish. If it overrides this principle it will be exceeding its powers, and anything it does on that basis will be legally invalidated. In the meantime the public will await with interest the manner in which the Senate deals with this question when it comes up on March 9th.

DO THEY REALLY WANT AN ELECTION?

MR. J. G. TURRIFF, the Liberal member for Assiniboia, who achieved some notoriety in the House by challenging the Conservatives to a general election, and which some Liberal newspapers have characterized as merely a jocular remark, is trying to modify his statement. He does not deny the challenge, but says he did not make the remark that half admitted the Liberals were sending out campaign literature. The correction does not change the real meaning of its original statement, but it seems to show that he made the challenge ill-advisedly, and that the Liberals are not so anxious for an election as one of their following said they were.

A PROBLEM CLEVERLY AVOIDED.

MANY PEOPLE looked for trouble between Great Britain and the United States over the liner Dacia. If the Dacia had been left for Britain to deal with, she would no doubt have been seized and placed in a prize court, because Britain is going to make the blockade of German seaports a real blockade. The whole problem, however, has been cleverly avoided by having a French cruiser seize the Dacia. The question in dispute is now between France and the United States. It is well known that French courts are more opposed to transfers of registry in reference to ships during war time than Britain, and so the Dacia will likely fare badly. Even if the Dacia gets away, doubtless minus her cargo, her seizure and detention will likely prevent further shipments of cotton from the United States to Germany. The risk, delay and expense are too great.

MINISTER OF LABOUR UNDER FIRE.

THE HON W. T. CROTHERS, Minister of Labour, was under fire in the House of Commons the other day when the House, in Committee of Supply, were considering his department, and came out of the battle with flying colours. The Opposition naturally made its heaviest assault on the matter of new appointments and dismissals in his department. The minister dealt with this question in a manner that left the Opposition in a quandary for adverse criticism.

Mr. Crothers made the following statement:

> "The return showed 60 appointed, 21 dismissed, and 24 resigned—a total of 45 dismissed and resigned, 15 less than the number appointed. Of these 15, we appointed three additional fair wage officers, one at Vancouver, one in Winnipeg and one in Ontario. I have been urged to apoint another, and am considering the advisability of doing so. There is not so much work now, however, for the fair wage officers, and it is likely that no additional appointment will be made until the public works are somewhat revived. I have accounted for three of the fifteen; four of them were female correspondents of the Labour Gazette. There was a demand for female correspondents, whose duty would be especially to look after the interests of women and children, and, as an experiment, I appointed four in the four larger cities of Canada. They have proved a great success, and as soon as conditions are normal I intend to appoint female correspondents in other places as well. When we came into power there were five vacancies among the correspondents of the Labour Gazette. This accounts for 12 out of the 15, and we have appointed three additional officers in the statistical branch, which has expanded a great deal during the last three years. That accounts for the additional 15 officers, the total of 60 being made up of 21 dismissals, 24 resignations and 15 new appointments."

The fusilade of questions with which he was bombarded accomplished nothing, and naturally the discussion was throughout tame on the part of the Opposition. It also showed that Canada has a capable and vigorous man at the head of the Department of Labour, and that he is running it economically and with regard to efficiency.

JUSTIFIED BY ITS GOOD WORK.

THE GOOD EFFECT of Hon. W. T. White's special financial legislation has been recognized both in and out of the House of Commons. Conditions of business were very bad at the beginning of the war, and this legislation was introduced to effect improvement. Hon. Mr. White stated that the good effects of this legislation were felt at once. Seven of the banks, whose names he could not give, borrowed $14,400,000, of which $6,500,000 had been repaid, leaving $7,900,000 outstanding. These advances from the Government enabled the banks to help the provincial governments, the municipalities, and business generally in a very trying time. It is proposed that this measure be continued, the banks paying five per cent. on advances made to them by the Government. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, and other members of the Opposition, stated that no opposition would be offered to the measure. Mr. A. K. Maclean, of the Opposition, thought the five per cent. charge would prevent the banks borrowing more than they needed. This is no doubt true. The measure was designed to supply certain legitimate needs, and the unanimity in the House over this measure indicates that it has been a good law.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

MR. LORENZO PRINCE, managing editor of La Presse, is not only an all-round newspaper man, but has shown himself to be a military organizer of exceptional ability. Mr. Prince was born at Batisquan, P. Q., and educated at the College of Ste. Therese and Laval University. He studied law, but abandoned that profession for journalism, being connected with La Presse for the past fourteen years. One of his assignments was to travel around the world, which he did in 1901 in 62 days and 3 hours, establishing a record for that time. It was largely owing to Mr. Prince's efforts that the French-Canadian Regiment, now training at St. John's, P. Q., was organized. He acted as the secretary of the organizing committee, and through his newspaper gave a good deal of publicity to the movement. Mr. Prince is regarded as one of the ablest French-Canadian journalists in Canada.

A NEWS ITEM says there are icebergs in Lake Huron. This item should be suppressed. It will be noised abroad in the United States and England, and we will see swarms of Yankees and Englishmen coming out here to hunt Esquimaux and polar bears in Lake Huron.

THE NECESSITY of strengthening from time to time a party's debating talent in the Senate overrules all other considerations. The Senate is not wholly a "refuge for the destitute," as some journals are fond of saying.

THE HANSARD, issued on Friday at 10 a.m., was received by the Review on Tuesday morning. If it takes that time for future Hansards to reach this office, the Review is going to register a kick.

ICEBERGS in Lake Huron are apt to give one the impression that Lake Huron, and consequently the whole of Canada, are located in the vicinity of Greenlands' icy mountains.

(London Tit-Bits.)

During the recent fighting along the banks of the Aisne a man was badly wounded. The ambulance corps tenderly placed him on a stretcher.

"Take him to the hospital," said the man in charge. Slowly the wounded man opened his eyes and whispered faintly:

"What's the matter with the canteen?"

What Might Have Been.

(Richard Harding Davis, in New York Tribune.)

"If, at the start of this war, the United States Government, and those of South America, Italy, Spain, Norway, Sweden, Denmark, Holland and Switzerland, had jointly protested to Germany against the outrages she committed, against her breaking all the rules of civilised warfare, they might not only have prevented the destruction of lives and of cities, but even might have brought the war to a close."

Too Tame.

At a dinner dance, after the maxixe, the girl's partner, a bespectacled young man, said to her, "Let's go and walk in the sunken garden."

"I don't like to go into the garden," the girl said shyly, "without a chaperon."

"Oh, we don't need a chaperon, I assure you," said the bespectacled young man.

"Then," said the young girl, "I don't want to go into the garden."

From Yukon's Icy Mountains

A member of the local Bar has submitted the following verses to the Review, but modestly does not wish to append his name to them, although their merit deserves it:

From Yukon's icy mountains,
  From India's coral strand,
Where Afric's sunny fountains
  Roll down their golden sand;
From British North America,
  All overseas domain,
Australia and New Zealand
  'Neath the Southern Cross, they came.

The mighty hosts of Britain,
  Marched to war, so airy;
The battle cry was Freedom,
  The tune was "Tipperary";
The "Sydney" of Australia
  Plouged not the seas in vain;
She sank the haughty "Emden"
  Of buccaneering fame.

The bayonets of our troops
  Made brutal Germans dance;
When routed from their trenches
  On blood-red field of France;
Then hurrah for the Allies,
  And deeds of valor done:
Hurrah for peace and justice
  And cause of freedom won.

The traditions of Lord Nelson
  And Wellington, proclaim,
'Til every ransom'd nation
  Shall bless our Empire's name;
Waft, waft, ye winds, her story,
  And you, ye waters, roll,
'Til, like a sea of glory,
  It spreads from pole to pole.

Sons of the Huns and Vandals,
  Your tribal blood we see
In deeds of brutal outrage
  Transcending cruelty.
"Baby killers," cowardice
  And inhumanity,
Reveal their German "kultur"
  And rank stupidity.

Innocent blood of millions
  Must on the Kaiser pour,
The Great and Just Avenger
  Will damn him evermore.
The noble act of Britain
  Will forgotten never be;
Her sacrifice for Belgium
  Enshrines humanity.

The Germans' "chant of hatred"
  Will on themselves rebound,
"The chant of love for England"
  Will through the world resound;
The nations, in their gladness,
  This song will ever sing,
And breathe the prayer of Britain—
  "God save our gracious King."

JERMYN NEWS

Jermyn, March 2. — Miss Edith Armstrong returned home on Saturday from Peterborough where she has been visiting friends for the past week.

We are glad to report that Mr. Herb. MacKay has nearly recovered from his recent illness.

The Jermyn Rovers Hockey Club played a match last Friday with the Fifth Line Wanderers and defeated them by the score of 7-5.

A skating rink situated on the Indian river near here has been a great source of pleasure to the young people of this village and vicinity. Many thanks are due to Mr. [illegible] Ralph and Willie Pullin who are keeping the rink in good order. Skating nights Mondays, Wednesdays, and Saturday.

Miss Nellie Sullivan visited at the home of Mrs. Herb MacKay last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ben Reid visited at the home of Mr. Fred Fife last Friday.

Notice of Registration of Bylaw

Notice is hereby given that a by-law was passed by the Council of the City of Peterborough on the first day of March, 1915, providing for the issue of debentures to the amount of $18,000.00 for the purpose of the purchase of furniture, furnishings and school apparatus and to provide such sums as are and were insufficient for the purpose of purchasing sites and for the erection thereon of public schools as set out and authorised in By-law number 1632 of the Corporation of the City of Peterborough, and that such by-law was registered in the registry office of the County of Peterborough on the third day of March, 1915. Any motion to quash or set aside the same or any part thereof must be made within three months after the first publication of this notice, and cannot be made thereafter.

Dated the 3rd day of March, 1915.

CAVAN NEWS

Cavan, March 3.—Word has been received here of the death in Oxbow, Sask., of Mr. Jas. Lang, a much respected young man, of Fairmount. Mr. Lang leaves one brother and two sisters here for whom much sympathy is felt.

Mr. Elias White of Port Perry spent the week end with his parents here.

Mr. Walter Jones of Bailieboro and two lady friends spent Sunday with Cavan friends.

Mrs. Seabrook returned on Friday after spending a few days in Peterborough.

Mrs. M. McDowell returned on Friday after three weeks' visit with friends in Wingham.

We are pleased to hear that Mrs. Robert Bigelow is much improved in health.

Miss Addie Howden spent a few days in Peterborough last week.

Mr. Widdis of Cavan South shipped a carload of settlers' effects to Regina from here on Monday.

Mr. J. H. White returned from Toronto on Thursday night.

Monday was quite a busy day at Cavan station. Mr. H. Keegan shipped a carload of cattle to Toronto. The C. B. Janes Co. unloaded a carload of logs, hauling them up to their mill and Mr. Alex. Cathcart unloaded a car of hay.

A Retort.

"And now I mean to handle your witnesses without gloves," said a counsel whose witnesses had met with rather severe treatment from the other side.

"Indeed! That's more than I should like to do with yours," smilingly retorted his learned friend.—Exchange.

THE STRANGE CASE OF WINIFRED COLLINS

A Combination of Events Not Likely to Happen More Than Once

By MARGARET C. DEVEREAUX

The ocean steamer Albert Corwith had passed the strait of Gibraltar coming westward and was standing toward the island of Madeira when the man in the crow's nest informed the third mate on duty at the time that something that looked like wreckage had appeared on the port quarter. The ship was put off her course a few points, and on drawing nearer a ship's boat was found wedged in between a portion of a mast, a spar and some cordage. Meanwhile the captain had come on deck and was looking through his glasses at the floating objects.

"Isn't there some one in that boat, Mr. Renshaw?" he asked of the third mate, who was also using his binoculars.

"It looks that way, sir."

"Lower a boat and find out."

The engines were stopped, a boat was lowered, and the mate was pulled to the wreckage. He returned bearing the body of a young woman.

"Dead?" asked the captain as the boat pulled alongside.

"I think not, sir."

The gangway was lowered, and the woman was carried on deck. The mate had taken a flask with him and had given her a swallow of brandy. The ship's surgeon took charge of her and gave her an additional stimulant, and soon after taking it she opened her eyes.

"Bring some broth from the galley as soon as it can be prepared," said the doctor.

Fortunately the dinner hour was at hand and the soup was ready. The girl closed her eyes and had apparently relapsed into unconsciousness, but on being given a little of the broth she opened them again and this time seemed to take in the men bending over her. The surgeon directed that she be taken below and turned over to the stewardess to be put into a berth.

It was some time before the castaway was in condition to be questioned. Then the surgeon, Dr. Reeves, undertook the task. The examination was brief, for the girl remembered nothing back of lying on the ship's deck with a number of men looking down upon her.

On the return of the rescue party the captain had sent for the third mate, who had been in charge of it, and asked him if in the wreckage he had seen anything to indicate to what ship it had belonged. To this Renshaw replied that he had not. There was nothing that would have been likely to bear the vessel's name except the boat in which the girl was found, and this had been so battered by the surrounding wreckage that most of the paint had been rubbed off. The officer had looked for a name on the boat and had seen only parts of a few remaining letters on the starboard stern. They resembled a G or a C, an A and an M or an N and were probably the last letters of the name of the ship to which the boat belonged. The captain had reproved the officer for not bringing the boat with him, whereupon the latter excused himself on the ground that it had been so surrounded by the wreckage that to extricate it would have been very difficult.

The stewardess, finding the castaway's hair matted with blood, washed it and found that it had come from a contusion of the scalp. She intended to call the doctor's attention to it, but it did not seem to her to be of much importance and was healing over, so she forgot to mention it. There were other contusions on the body, but none that were serious.

Here was a case of a girl of twenty cut off from relatives, who were also cut off from her. If she had come to earth from another planet she could not have been a greater stranger. The ship on which she had sailed would either be reported missing or would make port, but neither of these happenings would be likely to give a clew to the girl's identity.

The Albert Corwith was bound for Boston and was due there about ten days after picking up the castaway. This did not give much time for a decision as to what to do with the castaway when the ship reached port. In a few days she was sufficiently restored to go on deck and before the voyage was ended was quite herself with the exception of memory. She was still oblivious to the past. The captain headed a subscription paper with a substantial amount, and it was passed through the ship. The amount raised was given to the poor girl who must go ashore to an unremembered world.

The girl was much moved when the money was given her and accepted it, hoping that some day she might benefit some one to a like amount. She must have a name since her own was lost, and she decided to take that of the ship whose crew had rescued her. She would call herself Alberta Corwith.

* * * * * * *

Two years before the rescue of the castaway a young man and a girl of eighteen were standing on an eminence near Portland, Me., looking out to sea. On the morrow they were to part, for the girl was going to Europe to study art.

"I don't like to think, Winifred," said the man, "that the broad Atlantic will be between us for so long a time. I shall scratch off every day on the calendar as it passes till I have you with me again."

"It will not be long, Tom," replied the girl. "A year is not so long as it was when we were children. A month isn't much more than a week was then, and it is only eighteen months between now and the time I return."

The next day Winifred Collins went by train to Boston and thence across the Atlantic to Havre. She studied both in France and Italy during a year and a half, as she had intended, then went to Genoa to sail for home. She wrote her lover that she would leave Genoa on a certain date in an ocean steamer the name of which she gave him. When the ship came in Tom Gilbreth was on the dock eagerly scanning the passengers who descended the gangway looking for his Winifred. The line grew thin and she had not appeared. The last person descended, but not the girl he was looking for. Running up the gangway, he sought the purser and asked him if the name of Winifred Collins was on the passenger list. It was not.

The mystery was not solved within a week or two, as Gilbreth supposed it would be. A month passed and there were no tidings of Winifred. Two months passed and her lover was in an agony of fear and suspense. Cablegrams to Genoa brought only the information that her name was on the register of a hotel there the day the steamer on which she was to have sailed left port. She had paid her bill and left the house two days later.

Gilbreth went abroad in search of his betrothed, but, finding no trace of her, returned disappointed and in despair. He knew not which way to turn to continue his search. Thinking that she might have sailed by another ship, he searched the records of ships that had within that limit of time sailed from Italian ports and found that a small American owned ship, the Pelican, had sailed from Leghorn two days after the date Winifred was to have sailed from Genoa, but was overdue several months.

Here was a clew to information concerning Winifred, but undesirable information. If Winifred had missed the ship on which she was to have sailed and taken the Pelican instead she was probably lost. Tom hoped that the clew he had found was incorrect.

One day a friend of Tom's who knew of his trouble called his attention to an item that had been floating among the newspapers mentioning the rescue of a woman at sea. It included mention of the parts of letters on the boat from which she was taken. He inferred that they were C A N, the last three letters of the word Pelican. Then he knew that he was on the track of his betrothed.

All now depended on his finding Alberta Corwith, who had been merged in the millions of New York's inhabitants. There was but one medium by which she could be found. If that failed the task was impossible. If Alberta Corwith had remained in New York the chances were far better than if she had gone elsewhere. Tom laid out a system of advertising by which the New York field should be first covered, intending to extend the search throughout the United States if the New York field did not produce the desired result. His advertisement read, "Information wanted of Alberta Corwith."

Within a month after the insertion Tom received a note from a dry goods firm in New York city informing him that an Alberta Corwith was employed in one of their departments. Tom took the next train for New York, went to the address mentioned and, on inquiry, learned that Miss Corwith would be found in the cloak department. There he found Winifred Collins.

He sprang forward to clasp her in his arms, but she recoiled. He told her who she was and that he was her fiance. She listened with interest to what he said, but did not remember ever having seen him before.

Winifred being found, the next question was, Could her memory be restored? The case was submitted to physicians, who gave various reports. One medical man suggested that while knocked about in the boat among the wreckage the castaway might have received a blow on the head that had produced the amnesia. He examined Winifred's head and found a slight depression. This was the place from which the stewardess had washed away the clotted blood.

Soon after this discovery Winifred's skull was operated upon. Several persons whom she had known before going abroad, including her betrothed, stood about her when she came out from the effects of the anaesthetic. Though suffering from it, her eye brightened, and on seeing her lover she attempted to hold out her arms to him.

The case of Winifred Collins excited marked attention owing to the strange combination of circumstances which composed it. She had taken a train from Paris which should have landed her in Genoa a couple of hours before the leaving of the steamer on which she had intended to cross the Atlantic. A railroad accident delayed the train four hours. The steamer having sailed on her arrival, hearing that the ship from Leghorn would sail the next day, she went there and boarded it.

The story of the shipwreck was clear in her mind up to a certain point. After that it was a blank. She remembered getting into the ship's boat with several of the crew and a few events after doing so. Then the mental record stopped. The doctors believed that at this point she received the blow which suspended her memory till the moment it was restored by the operation.

NICE, DAINTY EATING.

The Appetizing Artificial Snail as It Is Made in Paris.

In the Farm and Fireside Herbert Quick, editor of that publication, writes an article about the use of various meats as food. He shows how our ideas of food do not always conform to the ideas of other peoples. He says that, for example, in Japan the meat of a red dog is a great delicacy and that in France since the Franco-Prussian war horse meat has been quite frequently used. In the following extract from his article he tells how artificial snails are made in Paris:

"Within a year or so a workman in Paris sued his employer for personal injuries incurred in his work as a maker of artificial snails. This let the cat meat out of the bag. The demand is so great that there are not enough natural snails to supply it, and this guileful business man had perfected machinery and a formula whereby he took the lights of animals—quite as good food, I suspect, as their livers—and the flesh of cats and therewith filled second hand snail shells for the epicures, none of whom could detect the imposture."

Single Funnel Warships.

The sort of armament in use upon modern warships requires an unobstructed deck arrangement, and this is having its effect upon the number of funnels carried by such vessels. It was possible in the cases of Uncle Sam's battleships Oklahoma and Nevada, through the use of oil fuel, to group all the boilers under one stack. The same thing has been attempted in the British navy. The original ships of the heavy Dreadnought class to make use of a single funnel were Spanish.

Good Form

When Remembrance Fails.

A weakness which many of us share is that of forgetting faces of people we have met, or of being unable to fit the right name to the right face when the need comes suddenly. It is a happy gift to be able to recall both names and faces, and he who has it is exceptionally fortunate. Few things flatter a person more than being remembered. We forgive the frank person who says: "Your face is familiar, but I can't just place you," because we have all been in the same predicament ourselves, even if we have not admitted it; yet do feel complimented more to be called by our names.

There are people we meet whom we feel we ought to know, but we cannot remember their names. What can we do? It is a dreadful moment. Mustering up all the courage we can, it is best to proceed as if we did know. Nine times out of ten, if we talk long enough we shall get a clew and the name will follow. In such cases we hope our uncertainty may not be suspected. Fortunately we seldom learn if it really has been.

The Wedding Cake.

The old time custom of hiding a thimble, a penny and a ring in the wedding cake is still followed. After the cake is baked, but before the icing is added, slits are cut in it. In one a plain gold ring is placed, in another a tiny gold thimble and in the third a piece of silver money, a dime being the usual selection. Then the thick icing with its elaborate decorations covers the whole. In slicing the cake the bride cuts clear through from top to bottom. If she is wise she will slip the knife a little to one side when it touches one of the little articles so the whole slice can be placed upon a plate without showing its precious secret.

Tradition has it that the maid who gets the ring is to be the next to wed, she that draws the thimble is doomed to spinsterhood, while she to whom the piece of money falls is to revel in wealth all her days.

The wedding cake is usually a big fruit cake, but often a fine white cake is preferred. It should be made and baked by an expert.

To Make a Cardcase.

The pretty embroidered cardcases one sees so much now can easily be fashioned by the girl who is clever with her needle. One seen recently was made of huckaback linen, and the center was decorated with a wreath of tiny French roses. The huckaback outside this wreath was darned by running a colored silk thread underneath the cast up threads of the linen. This darning extended to within an eighth of an inch of the edge and was then covered with a single outline stitch. The pockets were folded up neatly and the edge finished with a picot buttonhole stitch. The little center wreath was done in Dresden shades, and the darning was carried out in beige to match the owner's calling costume.

For Afternoon Weddings.

An afternoon wedding calls for the simple serving of ices, cakes and bonbons, with punches and perhaps sandwiches of various sorts. The time, usually between 4 and 5 o'clock, intervenes between luncheon and dinner hours, and so heavy substantial foods are not needed. Neither is a large table usually required. Guests are served standing, or many small tables are conveniently placed where plates with sandwiches may be in readiness or where they can be set down when the two hands are occupied holding a dish of ice cream in one and a plate with cake in the other.

The Thank You Note.

After a week end spent with a friend send your hostess just as nice a note as you can write. Mention what a good time you had, how much you enjoyed it all and say thank you for all the kindness extended to you. This "bread and butter" or "thank you" note back to your hostess should be the first duty of every guest on the return home.

The Favor of a Reply.

The meaning of "R. S. V. P." is in English, "The favor of a reply is requested, if you please;" the French is "Respondez, s'il vous plait." It is used to remind us that hostesses wish an answer to their invitations.

JAPAN'S ANTHEM

Has Been Used by Soldiers for Nearly a Thousand Years

Through the courtesy of the Japanese Embassy, we are able to publish the words of the Japanese National Anthem, together with the English translation, says London Tit-Bits. Some interesting facts regarding this anthem were related by one of the secretaries of the Embassy. "The words were written," he said, "by a Japanese poet who lived in the tenth century, but whose name has never been discovered. They have been used by Japanese soldiers as they marched to war for nearly a thousand years. So far as is known, the verse was taken from a miscellaneous collection of Japanese poetry, and adopted by a bygone Emperor as the National Anthem for Japan. The music, however, to which the words are now sung was composed about fifty years ago by a Court musician. Previously there had been no real music, the words being chanted rather than sung."

KIMIGAYO.

Kimigayo wa
Chiyo ni yachiyo ni
Sazareishi no
Iwao to narite
Koke no musu made.

The translation is as follows:

THE EMPEROR'S REIGN.

May our gracious Emperor reign
Till a thousand, yea, ten thousand, years shall roll,
Till the sand in the brooklet grows to stone,
And the moss from these pebbles emeralds make.

Sights Unseen.

It all happened in the smoke room of one of the liners as she was approaching Liverpool. He had during the voyage freely given evidences of his immense importance, but on this occasion he even triumphed over his former exploits. "Yes, gentlemen, I may fairly say that I have seen about all worth seeing in the civilized world. I have visited the Holy Land. I have been to Jerusalem, Rome, Athens, Paris, Vienna. I have seen the finest pictures, the grandest natural views, the greatest sculptures, the"—

Just at that moment a somewhat shaky voice broke in: "Say, mister, have you ever had the D. T.'s?"

"No, sir; I am proud to say I have not," he answered in a shocked voice. "But why?"

"Well, then, all I can say is that your sightseeing has been pretty tame and you've got a lot yet to see."

The Better Part.

A delightful little story is told of Prosper Merimee, the French author. He was once a guest at a royal hunt, when hares, pheasants and other game were driven before the emperor and his followers and the servants picked up the victims of the sport.

Among all the members of the hunting party Prosper Merimee alone had no trophy to display.

"How does this happen?" asked some one.

"Where game is so plenty the merit of a marksman seems to me to lie in hitting nothing," replied Merimee, with grave courtesy, "so I fired between the birds."

Stung.

The old gentleman went into the parlor the other night at the witching hour of 10.30 and found the lights out and his daughter and a dear friend enjoying a tete-a-tete in a corner by the window.

"Evangeline," said the old man sternly, "this is scandalous!"

"Yes, papa," she answered sweetly. "It is candleless because times are hard. Lights cost so much Ferdinand and I said we would get along with the starlight."

And papa turned about in speechless amazement and tried to walk out of the room through a panel in the wall paper.

Flooding Holland.

Holland's safety in time of war lies in her ability to flood great tracts of land. William of Orange flooded the country in 1574 and by so doing drove out the Spanish invaders. The same policy was adopted on the occasion of the French invasion of 1672. The movement of a lever at Amsterdam is sufficient to open every dike and dam in Holland simultaneously, it is said, to put under water within the space of a few hours the whole country from Naarden, on the Zuyder Zee, by Utrecht to Geertruidenberg, at the mouth of the Meuse.—Argonaut.

Abel's Fate.

"I'm afraid," said the patient wife, "that yours will be the fate of Abel."

"Why, what do you mean?" asked the astonished husband.

"Well," she replied, "Abel was killed by a club, and your club will be the death of you if you don't come home oftener."

Identifying Her.

"Brown, do you know the lady across the street?" asked Smith.

"Let me see," replied Brown; "she certainly looks familiar. That's my wife's dress, my daughter's hat, my mother-in-law's parasol. Why, yes! That's our cook."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Partly Prepared.

"Did you succeed in getting that manager to engage you?"

"Yes. He is going to let me play the part of a walking gentleman."

"Well, you can walk all right, so you'll merely have to learn the other part."—Judge.

All Settled.

Howard—I hear your daughter is going to marry an English nobleman. Is it all settled? Coward—Yes; every cent she had.—Pittsburgh Press.

The following history of a STRAIGHT LIFE POLICY with profits reserved for 20 years is interesting:

Pol. No. 27619. Amount: $1000. Premium $20.95. Age, 30

Total premiums paid from 1st February, 1890, to February, 1910 (20 years) $419.00

The premiums were then permanently reduced by the accumulated profits to $10.20 per year; this he paid for the past five years .. 51.00

Total cost in 25 years 470.00

Now his profits for the past five years reduce the premium to $2.00 per year.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Straight Life he would have paid during the same period 475.00

and would still have to pay $19.00 per year as long as he lives, while his participating policy has not only cost him less in the aggregate, but his future premium is only $2.00 per year, subject to further reductions, as compared with $19.00 per year on the Non-Participating plan.

GEOGRAPHICAL PUZZLES.

Where Were Ultima Thule and the Lost Atlantis Located?

A most puzzling geographic mystery has come down from ancient times. This is the old question as to the identity of Ultima Thule. It was about 400 B. C. that Pytheas, a citizen of Massilia, sailed on his famous voyage. He discovered Albion and then continued farther north until he reached a spot which he named Ultima Thule. What this country was has never been determined. It may have been Shetland or Norway or Iceland.

Another ancient puzzle is that of Atlantis. It is commonly believed nowadays that this vanished continent did once actually lie beyond the pillars of Hercules, and there are theories unending concerning it. Some regard the Canary islands as fragmentary remains of it, others think that the supposedly lost land was really America; but, in considering these speculations, it is well to bear in mind the fact that the first mention of the country was made by Plato, and many scholars are sure that the philosopher merely indulged in an imaginative flight. The solitary evidence that Atlantis ever existed is his reference to it.—Chicago Herald.

Indians on Decrease.

The Indian population of Canada is slowly decreasing. The total of last year, 100,000, is a net falling off of 2,716, the figures, however, being somewhat conjectural. In Ontario the Indian population increased by 342, and in Quebec by 93.

SCHOOL BOARD DEALS WITH ROUTINE BUSINESS

One New Teacher is Appointed to the Public School Staff

Routine business occupied the attention of the Board of Education in regular meeting last night. There were present: B. F. Ackerman, chairman; Col. Miller, Dr. Burnham, V. Eastwood, R. Deune, W. H. Hill, T. B. McGrath and John Smith. The absentees were G. N. Gordon and John Crane.

Miss Edna M. Henry of Collingwood wrote accepting a position on the public school teaching staff. Miss Henry succeeds Miss Cadwell.

Complaint was made by Edge Hartley that snow from the Central School property had been deposited on his property. The property committee chairman explained the situation and looked to Inspector Mowat for a further statement. Mr. Mowat said the matter had beed attended to.

No action was taken on a communication from a company in Hamilton regarding the purchase of copies of the song Empire Day.

The report on the inspection of the boiler at King Edward school was favorable.

It was decided to sign a contract for a Bell telephone at $30. The local manager of the company wrote the board explaining the increase from $20 to $30. There is only one phone, and this one is placed in the inspector's office.

Industrial Night Classes.

On the recommendation of V. Eastwood the following gentlemen will form the committee on Industrial Night Classes: Messrs. Ackerman, Crane, Miller, Smith, McGrath and Eastwood from the Board and Messrs. Patterson, Deune, Barrie, Corkery, Sangster and Anson from the manufacturers.

Mr. Eastwood said there was a fair attendance at the classes and the principal looked for a visit from members of the Board. The classes he said were not attended as well as last year. Dr. Merchant had found that in slack time when people are idle, they did not attend. This was a peculiarity of the classes.

Mr. Smith felt that the returns in the classes for young men did not warrant the expenditure but Mr. Eastwood replied that they had been urged to keep up the classes as this was the only way to win out in the end.

The following reports were read and adopted:—

SENATE AND BILINGUAL QUESTION

OTTAWA, March 3. — The Senate's proposed discussion of the school question has been deferred for a week.

Senator Beique said that at the request of Senator David he desired to withdraw that gentleman's resolution in regard to the school question and substitute for it another more in accordance with the rules of the Senate. The resolution which he desired to substitute was:

> "This House, without derogating from the principle of provincial autonomy, deems it proper and within the limits of its powers and jurisdiction and in pursuance of the object for which it was established, to regret the divisions which seem to exist among the people of the Province of Ontario in connection with the bilingual school question and believes that it is in the interest of the Dominion at large that all such questions should be considered on fair and patriotic lines and settled in such a way as to preserve peace and harmony between the different national and religious sections of this country, in accordance with the views of the Fathers of Confederation and with the spirit of our constitution."

This resolution was set down for debate on Tuesday, March 9th.

ENTITLED TO RECEIVE THEIR MONEY BACK

A Calgary despatch says a judgment of importance to real estate men and buyers of property in Alberta on agreement of sale after February 16, 1912, has been given to the Supreme Court.

The plaintiff bought 14 lots from the Boulevard Heights Company, of which D. S. McCutcheon is president, and the court held that because the plan was not registered when the lots were sold under agreement of sale, plaintiff is entitled to recover the sum of $4,500 he had paid on them.

This decision will be taken to the Privy Council.

HUNGARIANS ARE HELD AT BELLEVILLE

Police and Volunteers Made Round-up as Foreigners Were About to Leave

Belleville, March 3.—Eleven foreigners were arrested in Belleville yesterday morning by the Belleville police and the military authorities.

All are believed to be Hungarians, ten are men and one is a woman. Their destination was Detroit, Michigan.

The authorities early in the evening learned of the intended departure of a dozen or so of Austro-Hungarians and laid plans to detain them. All evening the foreigners were around town, having come up from Point Anne in holiday and travelling attire. They visited a few hotels and paraded the streets openly, saluting police officers in the usual polite foreign style. However the constables interfered not with them as they knew the hour of departure of the various trains and desired to catch the men in the act of leaving the city. These foreigners are not registered and hence could be held.

Developments thickened fast after midnight as a detachment of 15th volunteers under Sergt. Major Howard Sharpe arriver at the police station on the orders of Lieut.-Col. L. W. Marsh. Police Sgt. Harman, Police Constable Chas. Thompson, G. T. R. Constable Patrick Donovan and the military escort met at the G.T.R. depot and found only a small part of their quarry, four men and one woman. The authorities learned that 6 of the party having become aware of the movements of the police and soldiers, had left the rest and struck for the Canadian Northern depot. After the arrest of the five, the police and soldiers left for the C.N.R. station and dividing surprised the sextette on the platform. One of the young foreigners who could speak a little English, said to his captors in his own broken way, "You arrested the others and then came after us." Evidently he was one who had steered the others to the C.N.R. station.

Then things began to be busy at the station. The inhabitants included six tramps, one insane woman, and the eleven prisoners of war.

Col. Marsh, O. C. the 15th Regt., called up the headquarters of the Third Division, Kingston, for instructions as to the disposal of the prisoners.

Some after arrest admitted being Hungarians and said that all the party were from Hungary. To an interpreter one claimed to be a Servian by birth, but said he had lived in Hungary. He said he hated Germans. The woman arrested is his wife.

This is the first time in which the authorities have interfered with any of the Point Anne residents, because never before since the war's outbreak has there been any trouble with them.

They are natives of one of the provinces which Austria wrested from Servia many years ago.

News From Clydesdale

BEREFT OF IT'S BLANKET, FALL WHEAT SUFFERS

Farmers Say Much Damage Has Been Caused

Farmers willing to do their share to help the Empire in the crisis responded nobly last fall, and men in a position to know claimed that the increase in the acreage of fall wheat was over 25 per cent. The man who had gone in heavy on fall wheat smiled to himself as the snow fell in great quantities during January,—the tender shoots of the wheat were almost sure to be well protected.

Last week a thaw came. Rain for a couple of days and warm winds brought about the unexpected. The snow was almost entirely removed, and the shoots of wheat laid bare to the weather. Then came the destroyer, more deadly than the Economy Axe the City Council is wielding. It began by turning a little colder, then the mercury dropped a few more degrees, then the northwest winds began to whistle, and it was farewell to a good crop of fall wheat. The absence of snow—Nature's great blanket—had left the wheat uncovered, and the cold winds sang its obituary.

One farmer informed the Review this morning that the wheat might have withstood the sudden thaw and the cold temperature had not this wind from the northwest swept over the fields. He could not give an estimation of just what the damage would be, but he did state that in his opinion the damage would be sufficient to change it from a good crop to a poor one. He voiced the feelings of many other men of his calling by remarking: "The weatherman hardly gave us a fair shake."

The fall wheat is not the only crop to feel the effect of the ill will of the weatherman. The clover and berries will also be hit hard. The strawberries in particular will be left in a precarious condition.

Ambiguous.

"What kind of soup is this?"
"Vegetable soup, canned."
"Canned?"
"Yes."
"I wish you would can it again."

It's Their Trade.

"They say the Chinese improve on acquaintance."
"Yes; they wash well."

HASTINGS HAPPENINGS

Hastings, March 3. — A pleasing social event took place one evening last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reg. Warner, when a number of their young friends met and treated the young married couple to a kitchen shower. Mr. and Mrs. Warner were taken by surprise, and thanked their young friends most heartily for their thoughtfulness and their mark of esteem. Games were indulged in and a very pleasant and sociable evening enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Warner were both members of the choir of the Presbyterian church.

Mr. W. L. Clark of Leamington occupied the pulpit of the Methodist church on Sunday last, both morning and evening. His subject in the morning was "Father and Mother," and in the evening "Son and Daughter." In the afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Clark addressed a mass meeting of men only, taking as his subject "Life." The speaker appeared to be wrapped up completely in his subject and left his audience spellbound throughout each of his addresses. Mr. Clark remains in town during the week, addressing the people three times daily.

A number of our young people drove to the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. McKee on Friday evening and spent a very happy time with the family. All were of the opinion that Mr. and Mrs. McKee were highly entertaining.

The heavy rains of the past week proved most injurious to travel, causing so much ice as to make moving around of any kind most dangerous.

The Methodist Ladies' Aid met in their regular monthly meeting on Thursday last in the church parlor. A large number were in attendance.

The public auction sale on Wednesday last on the farm of Mr. Harold Beavis was very largely attended and reports say that bidding was very keen. Mr. Alex. Wilson, town, was the auctioneer.

Mr. Gordon Beavis spent Saturday in Peterborough.

Mr. and Mrs. P. Gillespie of Smith are moving their household effects back to Mrs. Gillespie's childhood home, on the farm of her father, Mr. H. Humphries.

Miss Ethel Collins is spending a holiday in Toronto.

Messrs. R. Walsh and L. Beavis took a trip to Markham on Monday last.

Mr. Will Fife took a trip to Peterborough on Saturday.

Mrs. Alex. Greenley is spending a few weeks with friends in Peterborough and other places.

Mr. R. C. Doxsee is visiting at Hoard's station with his father, who is ill.

Mr. Diamond of Peterborough was in Hastings during the past week with quite a large shipment of Massey-Harris implements.

Mr. R. Walsh sent a large shipment of livestock to the city markets last Friday.

Mr. Harry Carter of Otonabee gave us a call on Thursday.

Mr. Alex. Gillespie of Villiers was in town on Thursday.

The Misses McGuire of Percy disposed of their household effects by public auction on Saturday and intend moving to town right away.

Miss Lily Carter entertained a few friends at her home on Wednesday evening. Those present report a pleasant time.

Mrs. C. B. Beamish left on Thursday for her future home in Picton, carrying with her the best wishes of a host of friends, who wish her prosperity in her new home.

Mr. Will Stewart of Peterborough visited friends here last week.

Miss Kathleen Gallagher of Warkworth has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. A. W. Bailley.

Mr. Gould of Colborne spent a few days the past week here with his son Mr. W. Gould, druggist.

Mr. Wally Buck took a trip to Peterborough last week when he attended the sale at the farm of his uncle, Mr. Oliver Buck.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor German are becoming settled in their new home above Mr. W. Runnels' store.

The stork called at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Scriver on Monday and left a baby boy.

The operetta entitled "The Dust of the Earth," will be given in the town hall for the second time on March 17th, in the interest of the band.

A somewhat unusual occurrence took place on Sunday last when the church people were returning to their homes along the Westwood road. At a bare stretch of gravel road two horses completely choked and threw themselves into the ditch, wrecking cutters and harness. A third horse was just noticed in time to avoid another similar occurrence. No serious accident followed to either man or beast.

Smithfield has extended an invitation to Rev. T. H. P. Anderson to occupy the pulpit of the Methodist church for the ensuing year.

Mr. Frank Runnels and son Winter were called to Peterborough on Monday to attend the funeral of the former's nephew in that city. The funeral was held on Tuesday.

GERMANY WOULD STARVE BELGIUM

No More Safe Conducts Will be Given by Germany to Relief Ships, Which Call at British Ports For Coal.

Rotterdam is Thus Cut Off as a Port of Entry With Supplies For Belgians.

THE HAGUE, March 3.—The German Government has determined to refuse to grant any more safe conducts for American relief ships to touch at English ports for coal on the homeward voyage, according to advices received here, and it is also reported on the same authority that a permit for the return voyage to the United States will be given only vessels which take the course north of the Shetland Islands.

It is considered in influential circles in Holland that the efforts of the American Commission of Relief to save the civilian population of Belgium from starvation are thus threatened with immediate danger, as Rotterdam is the only practicable port through which the Belgians can be fed, and it is argued that the relief ships must be able to proceed to and from that port by the direct route with a safe conduct under the commission flag, or the whole work of relief will become absolutely hopeless for practical reasons.

The American Minister to the Netherlands, Henry Van Dyke, on being apprised of this report, said:

"I am infinitely sorry for this. I have done my best to get a better answer from Berlin, but none comes. Surely ships engaged in this humane work ought to be sacred, but it seems not. Just now the case looks dark. God pity Belgium if the decision stands."

Khaki For Belgians.

LONDON, March 3. — The Daily Chronicle's correspondent telegraphs from Northern France:

"Belgian troops are to be clad in khaki, after the style of Tommy Atkins. The transformation will take place gradually during the spring, and by the middle of the summer the whole Belgian army will be in khaki."

NOT AFRAID OF BULLETS

One Soon Gets Used to Them Says Russian Airwoman

PETROGRAD, March 3. — Princess Shakhovsky, who recently went to the front as a military aviator, has sent back to the editor of The Bourse Gazette an account of her flight over the enemy's positions. She had made three flights, the shortest an hour in length, and the longest two hours, when the letter was written.

"As I found myself over the German lines, I began to observe beneath me small clouds, which informed me that the enemy had opened fire upon me. Somehow I did not feel afraid, even when the bullets came quite close to me. Some of them even pierced the wings, but fortunately did not touch any vital part of the machine. After half an hour's flight one grows accustomed to it. Owing to trouble with my petrol supply I was forced to return to the starting point sooner than I intended to."

Dead Man's Evidence Found?

MONTREAL, March 3. — The discovery of an alleged memorandum made by a dead officer may mean that the whole of the case of the C.P.R. versus the owners of the collier Storstad for $3,000,000 damages for the sinking of the Empress of Ireland may have to be re-opened and re-argued.

This memorandum has been written on a Marconi telegraph blank and the Storstad counsel thinks it was written by Third Officer Moore of the Empress, who was drowned. If disproved, counsel claimed, some of the evidence given by Captain Kendall and supported contentions made by the defendants.

HYMN OF HATE IS CONDEMNED

Frankfort Newspapers Makes Objection to it

LONDON, March 3. — The correspondent of The Daily News telegraphs from Rotterdam:

"The Frankfurter Zeitung strongly condemns the German campaign of hate.

"'For months,' says this journal, we have indulged in all kinds of extraordinary letter headings and forms of greetings which are unGerman and are an imitation of Gallic theatricalism.

"'The hymn of hate might well have arisen from honest internal excitement, but greetings such as the well known "God punish England" are nothing but a vulgar theatrical pose.

"'They are at the worst simply ridiculous because they are spreading a spirit, even if only on the surface, which is entirely at variance with the subsequent drawing together of nations, which must come.'"

Germans To Bring Up Troops.

LONDON, March 3. — A despatch to Reuter's, from Amsterdam says that in all the Belgian towns along the Dutch frontier posters are displayed calling upon the populations to prepare for the billeting of a great number of German troops. This information is contained in a telegram received from Maestricht. The despatch adds that at Liege 20,000 troops are expected, at Seraing 5,000, and at Wandreu 1,800.

WAR OFFICE IN CONTROL

British Officials Dispose Forces Says General Hughes

DEBATE RESUMED

OTTAWA, March 3.— F. S. Scott, the newly-elected member for South Waterloo, delivered his maiden speech in the budget debate last night, and made an excellent impression upon the House. He spoke briefly in support of the Government's policy, and declared that he had not received a single complaint from his constituents respecting the tariff increases or the war stamp duties.

Hon. Wm. Pugsley asked if complaints had been made in respect to the disposition of troops of the first contingent under command of Col. McLeod (York, N.B.).

Gen. Hughes said that all of the soldiers were naturally anxious to get to the front, and some complaints had been received respecting the disposition of the troops, but it was a matter entirely for the Imperial Government. Anything like a dual control of our soldiers at the front would be out of the question.

Resuming the budget debate Mr. Pugsley criticized some of the war taxes. He said the poor man who drew a check for ten dollars paid the same tax as the millionaire who closed a big business deal with a check for fifty thousand dollars.

Mr. Armstrong (East Lambton) defended the policy of the Government, and criticized the course of the Opposition. The Government, he thought, should try to convince them of the error of their ways, and if they would not be convinced, an appeal to the country should follow.

Mr. Nesbitt (N. Oxford) said he had no doubt that the banks and big corporations would pass on any taxes they paid to the "poor devils who had to borrow money." He did not blame them in the least, as it was only human nature to pass on the tax to somebody else.

Mr. Stevens (Vancouver) moved the adjournment of the debate.

Heroic Soldier-Cop.

HAMILTON, Ont., March 3.—The conspicuous bravery and gallantry for which Constable Finlayson was mentioned in despatches by Gen. French consisted in carrying sixteen wounded French soldiers from a blazing building which was being heavily shelled by the Germans. He also took two wounded officers from one of the French trenches to a hospital two miles distant. Chief Smith received word to this effect yesterday.

Mr. J. D. Armes, of Hamilton, is suing Mr. S. A. Keefe and the Armean Park Company, Toronto, for $56,000 over some land he sold the defendants in Barton township. He wishes he foreclose a mortgage.

GERMANS TURN THEIR BACKS ON RUSSIAN RAILWAYS

Russian Troops in Northern Poland Are Steadily Forcing the Enemy to the Frontier and Pessimism Regarding the Result is Expressed by German Papers.

LONDON, March 3.—The Russian armies are now engaged in battles along virtually the whole eastern front. In North Poland they are slowly pushing the Germans back to the East Prussian frontier. In the Carpathians and Eastern Galicia they have been engaged for several days in resisting fierce and repeated attacks by the Austrians.

Except in front of the fortress of Ossowiec, which they are still bombarding with their heavy guns, the Germans, according to the Russian official reports, have turned their backs upon the Russian railways—their first objective when they emerged from East Prussia.

In some places they are fighting stubborn rear-guard actions, which have led to close and severe fighting.

For the moment the Carpathians is the scene of the heaviest fighting. The Austrians, who, despite their reported defeats and heavy losses in men and guns, have returned to the offensive, and with the aid of large artillery reinforcements, have delivered a vigorous attack between the Oudawa and San Rivers. This, according to the Russian account, was without any result.

The battle continued all day Sunday, and when it was ended the slopes of the mountain and the ravines were strewn with dead. At other points along the mountain ranges similar attacks were delivered and most desperate fighting occurred. This was especially so on the hill near Kozlouwka, which the Austro-Germans have been trying for weeks to capture, as it stands in the way of their invasion of eastern Galicia.

Still further to the east, near the town of Stanislaus, which once again is reported to be in Russian hands, the armies have met and the Russians declare that the Austrians have been forced to retire.

A despatch from Copenhagen says:

"Apparently the fierce Russian offensive which has developed in Poland is raising some alarm in Berlin, according to private advices received here. The correspondent of The National Tidende is permitted to be pessimistic on what he described as the greatest battle of the whole war. The German general staff, he says, realizes that the Russians are occupying very favorable positions in Poland. Both the German and Austrian staffs announce that fresh Russian troops are pouring in on both flanks, enabling the Grand Duke to launch attacks at several points. The Germans are in doubt whether the Russians intend to make a great counter-attack along the whole front, or only to drive their enemy behind the East Prussian frontier. The Russians are arriving unexpectedly and in great masses in Dukla Pass."

It was reported by the French War Office last night that a footing has been gained in the Champagne woods, which have been strongly fortified by the Germans. French troops have now passed beyond the crest of the hills in this district. They continue the repulsing of strong counter-attacks by German troops.

The ground occupied Monday in the Argonne region near Vauquois was maintained in spite of efforts of the enemy to drive forth the French soldiers. The Germans failed to enter the forest of Le Pretre under cover of a night attack. One hundred prisoners were captured.

The sector of Rheims was also the scene of some attacks by the Germans, but they were easily repulsed.

Artillery duels prevailed from the Aisne to the sea, and in these the allies had the advantage.

Patricias Captured Trench.

LONDON, March 3. — The following report from the headquarters of Sir John French, commander of the British forces in the field, was given out yesterday by the official information bureau:

"The enemy's activities in the neighborhood of Ypres, reported in the last communiques, have been checked. During the last three nights patrols which have been active in front of our trenches have found that the enemy has not ventured to leave his lines.

"Early this morning, March 1, an attack, preceded by a heavy bombardment made on a portion of our line, was successfully repulsed. On our left a party of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry captured a German trench with great dash. After killing 11 of the occupants and driving off the remainder, they succeeded in blowing up the trench. Our losses were trifling."

TEUTONIC PAPERS SAY PORTE CANNOT STAND

It is Only a Question of Time Says Austro-German Comment and German Press is Now Endeavoring to Drag Italy in as an Ally.

LONDON, March 3.—An Exchange telegram from The Hague says that Austrian and German newspapers which publish comment on the operations in the Dardanelles have generally admitted that it is only a question of time before Constantinople will fall.

German papers urge that Austria negotiate with Italy regarding the cession of Trentino in consideration for Italy's participation in the war on the side of the Teutonic allies.

An Exchange telegram from Athens states that large bodies of the Turkish army which was concentrated at Smyrna have departed, probably for the Dardanelles.

The Turkish Government has called up all the men in Constantinople who are forty years of age or under without distinction as to race or religion.

According to reports received from Constantinople, via Athens, Prince Sabah-ed-Din has telegraphed the Sultan, urging him to conclude peace with the allies quickly in order to prevent a catastrophe to Turkey.

A despatch from Saloniki states that mines and submarines destined for the defence of Dedaghatch have arrived at that port.

According to the Havas despatch, fire from the guns of the allied fleet has destroyed the batteries of Kilid Bahr and Fort Sultanie (Chanak Kalesi), which guard the entrance to the narrowest part of the Straits.

Information from Mitylene and Tenedos is to the effect that over 100,000 Turks have been posted along the coast of the Gallipoli peninsula, near the Sea of Marmora, about 130 miles from Constantinople.

Naval men are of the opinion that when the fleet gets to work in earnest relays of ships will be sent against the forts, and thus, when one section is away replenishing fuel and ammunition or having guns replaced, the others will keep up the bombardment.

Interior Forts Shelled.

PARIS, March 3. A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens says:

"After the destruction of Fort Dardanus the allied vessels bombarded the interior forts of Hamidieh and Yildiz Tabia. A naval division bombarded at the same time from the Gulf of Saros' side of the peninsula Fort Boukali Kale, causing serious damage. The town of Yenicheir, near the fort of the same name, was burned."

Egypt is Quiet.

LONDON, March 3.—A statement given out by the official press bureau last evening says:

The following was officially issued at Cairo yesterday:

"Since the last official communication there has been nothing fresh to report. There are no signs of any renewed advance on the part of the Turks.

"Reports from Syria show that there is no likelihood of any famine. Prices of foodstuffs have risen, but stocks are fairly plentiful in most districts. Imported articles naturally are very dear.

"The relations between the Mohammedan and Christian elements continue excellent."

BUDGET DEBATE GOES ON.

Another Day will Be Needed For Wind-Up of Speeches.

TORONTO, March 3.—A sharp interchange passed across the floor of the Legislature yesterday afternoon before the budget dragged another weary day along. The galleries of the House were well filled with spectators who had come to see the Premier and the Opposition Leader cross swords on the matter of provincial finance, but several of the private members had yet to bear a share of the speaking, and another day was reserved for the wind-up.

When the House opened N. W. Rowell demanded when the T. & N.O. and Hydro-electric reports were coming down. It was most unfair, he said, that the Opposition obtained no opportunity to study out their case before action came.

Hon. T. W. McGarry came back vigorously to the effect that the municipal reports to the power commission should be in, or the Opposition would in a day or two be making that omission subject of criticism.

Fate of Miners In Doubt.

HINTON, W. Va., March 3. — Rescue parties late yesterday had brought out alive 10 men and recovered the bodies of nine victims of the explosion which entombed 182 miners in the Layland mines of the New River and Pocahontas Consolidated Coal Co., seven miles from Quinnimont early yesterday. The work of rescue is continuing and is aided by crew of rescue car No. 8, of the United States Bureau of Mines, which reached the scene last night. From all available sources it is estimated nearly 165 men are still in the mines. Most of the entombed miners are foreigners.

The company officials refuse to give out any information.

William Fraser, a fourteen-year-old lad, had his arm torn off at the elbow at the Grasselli chemical works, Hamilton. He was thrown into the motor and mangled before the power could be shut off.

ANARCHIST CONFESSES

Admits He Was in Plot to Slay Capitalists

NEW YORK, March 3. — Frank Abano, the anarchist who was arrested while trying to plant a bomb in St. Patrick's Cathedral, confessed yesterday afternoon that he was in a plot to assassinate J. Rockefeller and his son, Andrew Carnegie, Cornelius Vanderbilt and other capitalists. Abano declared he was opposed to churches of all creeds.

Inspector Eagan, of the Bureau of Combustibles, thought that had the bomb exploded the destruction of life in the cathedral would have been great. The missiles, he said, were the most deadly he had ever seen. They were about five inches in diameter and contained many bits of iron and jagged steel. In addition to gunpowder other chemicals had been used in their manufacture.

Canucks In Hospital

LONDON, March 3. — Twenty-eight Canadians wounded in battle are convalescing at the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliffe.

They are: Major Geo M. Higginbotham, of the Queen's Own Canadian Light Infantry; John Colber, Whitney Musgrave, Victor Holland, John Hanniford, Gilbert Tunnington, Ernest Bridgeman, Frederick Rodgeman, Stanley Richmond, Edgar Gilbert, George James, Wm. MRS. WISENEIGHBOUR says:
"I should have told you the other day, when I was speaking of 'Eddy's' Washboards, that it is just as necessary to have an Indurated Fibrewear Tub to hold your clothes, if you want to make a success of wash-day."

MRS. NEWLYWED says:
"I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and wooden ware?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece. It cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

AN EPISODE OF THE CRESCENT CITY

By WILLARD BLAKEMAN

It was about 1850 that Arnold Dalmaitre, a cotton factor of New Orleans, went to New York on business.

In the office of a cotton broker in New York was a boy named Alec Tracy, whose health was very delicate. Indeed, the doctors had given him but a short time to live. Tracy, who was but fifteen years old, was assigned to Dalmaitre to perform certain clerical duties and carry messages during the latter's stay in New York. Dalmaitre was one of those men generous, sensitive to their honor, that were typical of the south at that time. He took pity on the boy and, suggesting that a southern climate and a change of scene might restore him to health, offered to take him to New Orleans and give him a position in his office there.

Dalmaitre was a bachelor about forty years old and soon after his return from New York married a woman half his age, celebrated for her beauty. Gay society is usually encumbered with men who consider women a legitimate prey, though the standard of honor in this respect is doubtless higher than it was. A scion of a noble French house, Albert Durier, whose father had left France during the revolution to escape the guillotine, was at that time prominent socially in New Orleans and became devoted to Mme. Dalmaitre. It was not long before his attentions were the subject of remark.

Dalmaitre was not himself socially inclined, and his wife went about a good deal without him. For this reason he did not observe Durier being so much with his wife, and there was no one to caution him except Tracy. The young northerner was conscious of the fact that he owed his life to his benefactor and idolized him. When, therefore, he noticed that Dalmaitre needed a friend to warn him of the danger in which his wife was being placed he considered how he could do so with the least damage to all concerned.

But the more he thought about it the more clearly he saw the difficulties in the way. Not a word could be spoken without bringing on a rupture in Dalmaitre's domestic relations. Tracy believed that the wife was innocent, but imprudent; that she needed to be cautioned, possibly to be withdrawn from the influence of her admirer. This plan, too, he cast aside. Finally he determined to settle the matter with Durier, but in such a way that it would not appear to pertain in any way to the lady.

Meeting Durier at a ball, Tracy, while both were dancing, Durier with Mme. Dalmaitre, purposely shoved him. Durier cast an irritated glance at him, but paid no further attention to the matter. Tracy guided his partner again near Durier and brought about another collision. This time he scowled at Durier, as if to accuse him of being at fault in the matter.

As soon as the music stopped the two men went to another room, where each accused the other of purposely running against him in the dance. Tracy was coolly abusive, tantalizing his enemy into a passion. Finally the latter at a contemptuous remark of Tracy's turned on his heels with the words "You shall hear from me" and, seeking a friend, sent a challenge by him. The episode was witnessed by several persons, who gave the cause as it appeared on the surface.

Dueling at that time was the acknowledged method among gentlemen, especially in the south, of settling disputes, and there was a grove not far from the Crescent City where the duels took place. It was arranged that at sunrise the next morning the parties should meet at this grove and settle at the pistol's mouth which of the two men had joggled the other in the dance. Whether Durier suspected the real cause did not appear.

But there was one person who saw through Tracy's act and had learned the consequences shortly after the words that passed between the two men. Tracy was living in bachelor rooms at the time, and he had scarcely got home from the ball when who should appear but Mme. Dalmaitre.

"This affair between you and Mr. Durier must not take place. Why did you not make your demands on me instead of picking this quarrel with him?"

"I do not understand you, madame."

She looked at him keenly for a time, then said, "What do you wish me to do?"

"Nothing."

"My eyes have been opened. I assure you I am perfectly innocent. I will agree never to receive your enemy again. Apologize to him and end the matter between you and him."

"Are you aware that such a course would cause me to be cut by every friend I have?"

"Oh, heavens!"

"You fear that the real cause of the quarrel will be learned by the world."

"I do."

"Very well. I will send an apology to Durier at once."

She seized his hand and kissed it, then, turning, left him.

The next day Tracy told his benefactor that he had determined to return to New York. Dalmaitre endeavored to dissuade him, but without effect. He departed soon after the episode to escape the contempt of the entire social set of New Orleans. Mme. Dalmaitre gave up many of her social ties and devoted herself to her husband.

Laid the Fault on Fate.

A man came before the great bestower and pleaded that he might have a flower for his own. His request was granted. Day by day he sat and watched it tenderly, glorying in its development. He dreamed of nothing else. He worshiped it.

And the man cursed a blind and prejudiced fate.—Westminster Gazette.

Hadn't Killed Him.

There is a certain young man who used to be notoriously egotistic. Some of his acquaintances were one day speaking of him before an old lady who was not "up" in the slang expressions of the day.

The next time she met him on the street she put out a congratulatory hand.

"Oh, Mr. Smith," she cried, "I am so glad you are better. I heard last week that you had a swelled head."

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, March 2.—Rumors that Turkey would beg for terms of peace broke down values in wheat today 5 1-2c a bushel, but large sales for export from the United States made the market rally. There was a nervous close at 1 5-8c to 5 1-8c under last night. Corn scored a net gain of 1 1-8c to 1 1-4c, oats finished 1-4c off to 1 1-2c up, and provisions at an advance of 10c to 25c.

Free covering by shorts because of the strength in corn was the development in the provision pit. Bearish figures on warehouse stocks had but little effect.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 2.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 810 cattle, 1555 hogs, 178 sheep and lambs and 165 calves.

Good to choice heifers of not too heavy weights were in demand, which was greater than the supply, as there were several butchers on the market for this class; in fact there usually are nearly all the time.

Stockers and feeders were in light supply, but quite equal to the demand, and values were reported unchanged.

Milkers and springers of choice quality were scarce, but medium quality were plentiful and slow sale. One Shorthorn grade cow sold for $100, as her promises of being a great milk producer were quite evident.

Veal calves of choice quality were very firm, but common calves were no higher.

Sheep and lambs were very firm, especially the latter, which reached the highest notch this season, selling at $11 per cwt.

Hogs were very firm.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice heavy steers, $7.50 to $7.75, and one lot of 5 steers of extra quality at $8; choice butchers' cattle, 1000 to 1200 lbs., at $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.60 to $6.90; common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.25; good cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $5 to $5.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50; bulls, $5.25 to $6.60.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 700 to 800 lbs., sold at $5.80 to $6, medium feeders at $5.25 to $5.75; stockers at $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Receipts of milkers and springers were moderate and prices steady at $60 to $85, with one at $100.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $11; good, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50, common, $5 to $5.50; eastern calves, $4 to $5.

Sheep and Lambs.

Choice light lambs sold at $10.50 to $11; heavy lambs at $9 to $9.50; light sheep at $7.50 to $7.25, heavy sheep at $5 to $5.50.

Hogs.

Selects weighed off cars sold at $8 to $8.10, and $7.75 to $7.85 fed and watered.

Versions Exaggerated.

LONDON, March 3.—In the House of Commons yesterday Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, was asked by Robert L. Outhwaite whether the demands presented by Japan to China encroached upon the integrity of China. The Foreign Secretary responded that the Government was not in a position to give information on this subject. Further questions were asked, however, concerning Japan's demands, and the Foreign Secretary said that "some versions were much exaggerated."

Mills Operating In June.

TORONTO, March 3.—J. L. Englehart, chairman of the Timiskaming & Northern Ontario Railway Commission, stated yesterday that the huge pulp and paper mills at Abitibi, Northern Ontario, are now being operated, and that by June facilities for paper-making will be completed. Some 250 tons of paper will be manufactured every day. The mill at Abitibi is one of the largest in the world.

Many Jacks.

Jack is not only a boy's name. It is applied to a flower—"Jack in the pulpit." "Jack Frost" means the cold, biting winds, and a "jack" is a machine to lift heavy weights. Then there are a "bootjack" for removing boots from the feet; a "smoke jack" to turn a spit; a "jackanapes," applied to a saucy person; "Jack Tar," a common sailor, and a "jacket," a small coat. Jackstay is a rail used on a boat to which to fasten sails. Jackstone is a pebble piece used in the game of that name. Jackstraw is a scarecrow, and jackwood is wood of the jack used in cabinet work.—Philadelphia Ledger.

FOREST RESERVE IS NECESSARY

Watershed of Lake Must be Conserved to Maintain Supply

Lying near the western boundary of the Province of Ontario, and extending into the Province of Manitoba and the State of Minnesota, the Lake of the Woods system plays an important part in the water supply of that region. When surrounded by a timbered area, the watershed was amply protected. With the increase of population, however, the timber has become a prey to fire and to the unscientific forester, and, under present conditions, it is only a question of time when all timber of any value will be removed.

The Lake of the Woods watershed is the great reservoir of the Winnipeg river and the water-powers of the latter supply the city of Winnipeg and town of Kenora with light and power. At an early date, Shoal Lake, a tributary to the Lake of the Woods, will furnish the water supply for the city of Winnipeg; construction work on the pipe line is at present under way. At the meeting of the Commission of Conservation in January last, Mr. J. B. Challies, superintendent of the Water Power Branch of the department of the Interior, proposed that this district be set aside as a forest reserve.

The area is one in which, owing to the nature of the underlying rock, the flood run-off of the rivers is excessive. The fact that the southwestern portion of the lake is in the United States renders the situation more difficult, in that it is not possible to materially raise the level of the water by conservation dams.

For the perpetual benefit of the surrounding territory, it is of the utmost importance that the Lake of the Woods district be set aside as a forest reserve. This would provide for the protection and renewal of the timber, and for the maintenance of the forest cover of the watershed. In this way the waters of the lakes, on which so many depend for the supply of water, light and power, would be conserved.

The aim of forestry is to bring the forest up to its highest state of productiveness and keep it there. In the United States, where forestry is not practiced except on Government and state lands, the estimated annual production is 12 cubic feet per acre.

In Canada, the average rate of growth is undoubtedly materially less than this, the climatic conditions being, on the whole, less favorable.

In Saxony, where forestry has been practiced for many years, the annual production is 93 cubic feet. According to experts, the rate of growth in Canada could undoubtedly be multiplied several times over by the adoption of proper scientific methods, of which the most essential at the present time is efficient fire protection.

Provincial Cows Profitable.

Not in several years has the dairy work in connection with the provincial farm and institutions made a better return to the Ontario Government than that which farm Director Todd has recently handed to the Provincial Secretary for the last fiscal year. In all 3,518,192 pounds of milk have been realized from the dairy herds maintained at the different institutions, and this at the rate of $1.60 per 100 pounds, is roughly valued at $60,000. The results have shown that the herds when properly fed and cared for, double their yield of milk and the 486 cows now owned have made a showing practically double that of the ordinary dairy herds which supply Ontario towns and cities. In addition every quart of milk is subjected to a rigorous tuberculin test before being used by the patients.

The average yield of every cow is 7,239 pounds and it is estimated that it costs the province from 85 cents to $1 to produce every hundredweight. From this an idea will be gained of the profit accruing to the province from her own management of institutional food affairs. In addition the capital cost is kept down by maintaining a high standard animal.

The farm director is at present experimenting at Whitby with 36 dual-purpose cows of the Shorthorn breed. These are bred with the aim of providing a good beef animal which also yields considerable milk. The test has shown that those now kept closely approach the standard of a first-class dairy cow. One purpose of the Government is to so demonstrate the value of this class that the province in general will make use of it on the farms.

The Doldrums.

"In the doldrums" is a phrase more often employed than understood. It refers to a belt of calms contiguous to the equator and situate between the course of the southeast and northeast trade winds. Long periods with scarcely a stir in the air and a torrid sky above, broken by sudden squalls and violent storms of short duration, make the doldrums a dreaded area for sailing ships.

London's Costly Tree.

Probably the most costly tree in the world is a plane tree which grows in Wood street, London. It occupies a space that would bring a rental of $1,250 a year, and this capitalized at thirty years' purchase gives a value of $37,500.

Memory.

Says Jean Ingelow: "They are poor who have lost nothing; they are poorer far who, losing, have forgotten; they most poor of all who lose and wish they might forget."

Our wealth is often a snare to ourselves and always a temptation to others.—Cotton.

LIGHTSHIP No. 4

By M. QUAD.

One day thirty years ago it was reported to the Trinity board, which has charge of all lights on the coast of Great Britain, that a shoal had made in the English channel about nine miles due east of the Lizard. At the spot indicated there had been thirty fathoms of water ever since a British ship went to sea, and the board, of course, argued that there had been a mistake. It was a fishing craft which had reported the shoal and found only fourteen feet of water over it, and a craft was sent out at once to make an official investigation. What had happened was this: It was a bowlder strewn bottom, and two or three old wrecks had drifted together and piled up on each other until a dangerous obstruction had been formed. It was as if a great rock had been heaved up from the bottom, and the board must guard against the danger without delay.

Thirty years ago the diver's dress was not what it is today, nor could men handle explosives under water as they can now. After two or three vain attempts to clear away the wrecks the work was left for a storm to accomplish, and meanwhile lightship No 4, under Captain Crox, was moved around from Mounts bay and anchored near the spot and notice given to mariners.

That night it was the captain's watch from 8 till midnight. A gale had come up. It had come 10 o'clock when a sudden hail reached the lightship. The captain was aft and his mate forward, but he knew at once that the hail came from seaward. It was not so dark but that one could see a ship 300 feet away, even though she had no lights aboard.

As soon as a port fire was ignited the sea was lighted up for hundreds of feet around in a ghastly way, and both men looked for the craft they supposed to be near by. They looked in vain till the signal was nearly finished. Then a ship's yawl, driving right up in the teeth of the gale, hove into sight. She was without a mast or sail or oars, and the only figure in her sat in the stern sheets, and his arms and legs were bound around with ropes.

The man was bareheaded and dressed as a landsman, and as he drove past within twenty feet of the rail they had a look square into his eyes, and the agony on his face made them shudder. They started to throw him a rope, but as the cull swung into the air they remembered that, being bound, he could make no use of it. The yawl and the man went straight to windward and in a couple of minutes were out of sight, and the men found themselves all a-tremble. Captain Crox was full of indignation over the crime of sending a man afloat in that manner and of pity for the victim, when his mate touched him on the arm and shouted in his ear:

"If I was ashore, captain, all the money in England would not bribe me to set foot on this deck again!"

"What's the matter with you?" was called in reply. "It's only a bit of shore villainy that we must report."

"It's nothing that's happened ashore, sir. Did you take notice that the craft was driving right in the teeth of the gale? It wasn't a live man in that boat. She was going to windward with a ghost, and I'd give the bit I have in the bank if I'd not seen it."

It was agreed between them that nothing be said to the other watch when they turned out, and they went on duty without knowing or suspecting that anything out of the way had happened.

While carrying the thing out with pretended indifference, Captain Crox was, as a matter of fact, pretty thoroughly upset over it and on turning in found he could not go to sleep. He had been lying on his bunk and turning the thing over in his mind for an hour or so, and the gale was still howling and the lightship bouncing about when he realized from the movement of the watch that they had been hailed. He was out of his bunk and on deck just as one of them lighted a port fire, and you can judge his feelings when he saw the former scene re-enacted. There were the yawl and the man, and the boat slowly forged past them and disappeared to windward.

There was no more sleep for anybody on board No. 4 that night, and next day, when the gale broke and the tender came alongside, all demanded that they be put ashore at once. The captain was as badly rattled as the others. They were guyed and ridiculed, of course, but they stood so firm that the tender brought off another crew, and they were relieved from duty. A new crew was assigned, but the man and the boat appeared to them twice in one night and drove them ashore, as they did the others.

A third crew went out and for two weeks began to prepare to remove the wrecks. Some progress had been made when a three days' gale set in from the north, and there were more wrecks than had been known for ten years before. For two days the lightship hung to her anchors, though having a signal of distress out after the first day, but when the gale abated she had disappeared. She had been swept down the channel and out to sea, and a week later she was passed bottom up more than 300 miles away. The same storm broke up and removed the wrecks, and there was no longer need to keep a light at that spot.

The Master at Arms.

A master at arms is a petty officer in the navy who forms one of the police of a ship. In the United States navy there are four grades of masters at arms—chief master at arms and master at arms of the first, second and third class. Large vessels have one chief and several of the lower ratings. In small ships a first or second class master at arms is the chief of the ship's police.—Boston Globe.

Origin of Humbug.

It is not generally known that the word "humbug," long so much in vogue, is of Scottish origin. There was in olden time a race called Bogue or Boag of that ilk in Berwickshire. A daughter of the family married a son of Hume, of Hume. In process of time, by default of male issue, the Bogue estate devolved on one Geordie Hume, who was called popularly "Hume of the Bogue," or, rather, "Hum o' the Bug."

He was inclined to the marvelous and had a vast inclination to exalt himself, his wife, family, brother and all his ancestors on both sides. His tales, however, did not pass current, and at last, when any one made an extraordinary statement in the Nearns, the hearer would shrug up his shoulders and style it just "a hum o' the bug." This was shortened into humbug, and the word soon spread over the whole kingdom.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Clearing For Action.

When a warship is cleared for action not only is everything movable on the decks removed or made secure, but every article made of wood is, as far as practicable, thrown overboard. Sofas, tables, chairs, pianos, all the furnishings of officers' quarters, in fact, are hurriedly put over the side by the bluejackets, and in a few minutes as much as £1,000 worth of stuff is floating round the Dreadnought. At the moment that a warship is preparing to fire not a single soul is to be seen on the decks. All the sailors are below working the guns and getting the ammunition ready.—London Answers.

JUNIOR SEMI-FINALISTS MUST PLAY TO BREAK TIE

Collingwood Won at Home, Although Berlin Took Early Lead

COLLINGWOOD, March 3. — In the return game in the junior O.H.A. semi-finals between Berlin and Collingwood the locals won by a score of 5 to 2, but as Berlin won the first by 4 to 1, the result on the round is still undecided, and will be played off on neutral ice.

On keen ice one of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the best game here this winter. The visitors started off with a rush and scored their two goals before the locals settled down. Shortly afterwards J. Herberts scored for the locals, and the first period ended 2-1 in favor of Berlin.

In the second period the locals had much the better of the argument, scoring three goals, and a fourth one just as the timekeeper's bell rang, which was not allowed, the period ending 4 to 2 for Collingwood. The prospects were now bright for wnning the round. In one minute after the commencement of the third period J. Herberts scored a neat goal that tied the round.

After this each team tried their hardest to score the winning goal, but both goal-keepers and defence were on edge and stopped everything in sight. For most of the second and third rounds the game was played with six men a side. A Berlin player was injured in the second period and went off for the balance of the game, taking C. Herberts off with him, and in the third period C. Herberts and another Berlin player came together with great force, and both went off for the balance of the game.

For the locals it would be hard to pick the most effective men, but Foulis and J. Herberts shared the goal-getting honors. Cheeseman of the local defence played a grand game, time after time boring his way throug hthe entire Berlin line. Reg. Nole played a hard game. Karges was the best defence for the visitors, and Shirk and Krug were best of the forward line.

The line-up:

Berlin — Goal, Merner; right defence, Erb; left defence, Karges, rover, White; centre, Shirk; right wing Ott; left wing, Krug.

Referee — W. M. Tackaberry, of Toronto.

CANUCK LEAGUE MEETS FRIDAY

Toronto, March 3.—A meeting of the Canadian Baseball League will be held in Toronto on Friday for the purpose of completing reorganization and whipping things into shape for the coming season. It was to have taken place yesterday, but at the suggestion of the Ottawas President Fitzgerald consented to a delay until the latter part of the week. The schedule will probably be turned over to a committee. It will, of course, be definitely decided in the first place whether or not the league shall continue, though the majority of the clubs are apparently favorable.

It looks as if the circuit will consist of six clubs, with Peterborough and Erie dropping out.

CAVAN SEVEN LOST FINAL OF HOME AND HOME SERIES

Janes of Peterborough Intermediates Played Good Defence Game

Mount Pleasant, March 3. — The Cavan hockey team drove to Mount Pleasant on Tuesday afternoon and were defeated by a score of 3 to 2, the game being the final of the home-and-home games, the Mounts capturing the first game at Cavan on Feb. 20th by 6 to 5. The game was played on keen ice, which permitted good combination and individual rushes. Dobson and Sisson were the stars for Cavan. Janes, the Peterborough intermediate goal-keeper, played a good defence game. Newton in goal stopped a number of scores which looked like sure goals. Handley and Jamieson looked the best for the home team and played great combination.

The teams—

Mount Pleasant — Goal, Lowes; defence, Shields and Best; rover, Jamieson; centre, Shaw; right wing, Handley; left wing, Fee.

Referee—N. Fee. Time-keeper—Wm. Handley.

WANTED A REPUBLIC.

South African Rebels Planned to Haul Down British Flag.

LONDON, March 3.—The Morning Post publishes the following from Cape Town: "An important blue book issued here deals with the history of the late South African rebellion. It says that the aims of the rebel leaders are very clearly expressed in a letter written by De Wet on Nov. 5:

"Our purpose is to get to Maritz and after arriving there to return immediately with Maritz to Pretoria. There, in the capital of South Africa, we shall, if God so wills it, haul down the flag and proclaim our independence."

Misrepresentation was the most formidable weapon in the rebels' arsenal. The provincial patriotism of the Orange Free Staters was artfully inflamed by appeals like the following: "Who is to have the honor of being the first to hoist the Republican flag? It is for you to decide. Botha and the Transvaalers are ready. Are you going to let them forestall you?"

"She's old enough now to have something done to her!"

BASKETBALL

Tonight's games at the Y.M.C.A.:
8 o'clock—Beavers vs. Collegiates.
8.45—Unknowns vs. Cressmans.
9.30—Jr. Bus. Men vs. De Laval.

On Tuesday evening, March 2, the Junior Collegiate and the Intermediate Business boys met and played a return game of basbetball.

The Collegiates went after the game from the sound of the whistle and scored twice before the Business boys got warmed up. The working boys however started their combination and the Collegiates had to work hard the rest of the first half to hold their own.

In the 2nd half Pringle fell into his shooting stride and the Business fellows turned the tables nicely, scoring 4 times before the Book Worms found the basket. The horseshoes were all with the business men in the second half and they won by a score of 14-11.

Mr. Carson refereed satisfactorily to both teams. The line-up was as follows:—

Intermediates—Hamilton, Pringle, Hilson, Copps, Thorndyke.

Collegiate — Caniff, Copp, Stevenson, Green, J. Green.

SOLDIERS FREE

Grand Jury Refuses to Indict Men Who Killed Hunters

WELLAND, March 3.—Provincial Police Officer Delaney of Fort Erie and the three Canadian soldiers, Corpl. Archie Kayo and Privates Leslie Kinsman and Edward McIntosh, were freed yesterday on the charge of manslaughter by the action of the grand jury at the Spring Assizes in finding "no bill" against them. The charge was laid as a result of the shooting and killing of Walter Smith, and the serious wounding of Charles Dorsch, both of Buffalo, at Fort Erie, on Dec. 28. The case attracted international interest because of the fact that the victims were American citizens. The soldiers were on frontier guard duty at the time.

Chancellor Sir John A. Boyd, addressing the grand jury, said in part: "The Buffalo duck hunters were acting illegally in being where they were. It is for you to determine whether it was a case of culpable and unjustifiable manslaughter, or whether it occurred through a mistake."

Not Encouraging.

"Won't he get angry?"

"No, indeed."

"I'm overjoyed. What do you think he will do?"

Mr. Donald MacNaughton has returned home after spending a week with his sister, Mrs. Learmouth, Stewart street, city.

Friends of Postmaster Edgar will regret to learn that he is confined to his room at present from a very severe cold which he contracted a week ago.

Much sympathy is being extended Mr and Mrs. George Edmison, Jr., Seventh street west, Elbow Park, in their double bereavement, having lost both mothers within the month. Mr. Edmison was called home to Peterborough, Ontario, by the illness of his father, Judge Edmison, K.C., and Mrs. Edmison.

Mrs. George Edmison returned to Calgary after escorting the remains of her mother, Mrs. John Elliott, to London, Ontario, for burial. Mrs. Edmison, Peterborough, died Wednesday evening of pneumonia.—Calgary Herald.

Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Williams, of Buckingham, Que., announce the engagement of their daughter, Hilda Catherine, to Mr. Henry Hutton Ponton, son of Lieut.-Col. and Mrs. W. N. Ponton, of Belleville, Ont. The marriage will take place quietly March thirteenth at St. Stephen's Church, Buckingham.

KEENE PERSONALS.

Mr. and Mrs. John Kempt, who have been guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Kempt the past week, have returned to their home at Lakefield.

Mr. William Cameron, who purchased the farm belonging to Mr. R. Nevins, moved his family to the village last week.

Mrs. (Dr.) W. T. Harrison returned home from Toronto last Thursday where she had been spending a week with friends.

Mr. W. Montgomery, who attended the military carnival at Kingston last week, returned home on Thursday evening.

Mrs. F. A. Eason spent aSturday in Peterborough.

Small Fire at Mill.

The fire brigade answered a call to McDonald's mill this morning about ten-thirty and extinguished a small blaze in the roof of the planing mill. A spark from the smoke stack was supposed to be the cause. There was practically no damae.

St. John's Church.

Rev. Dr. Cayley, rector of St. Simon's Church, Toronto, and Rural Dean of Toronto, will give an address at the Lenten service in St. John's Church tonight at eight o'clock. Dr. Cayley received his degree of D. D. last autumn from the University of Trinity College in recognition of his distinguished services to the diocese.

The secret of the quality in Salada packets is in the immensity of the sales. The more people who buy Salada the smaller becomes the necessary profit per pound, and consequently, the greater value it is possible to give you for your money. A New Club.

Murray St. Church men last night organized a club for the purpose of creating a more social and friendly relationship with the men of Peterborough generally. If last night's meeting is any criterion the success of the organization is assured. They meet again next Tuesday for election of officers.

"Every Girl."

The young ladies and children of the Olive Mission Band of Charlotte Street Church will give their entertainment "Every Girl" on Thursday evening, March 4th, beginning at 8 o'clock. It is believed this will reach if not surpass the high standard attained by other entertainments of that church. Admission 25c., children 15c.

NO ARRESTS MADE

Report widely circulated this afternoon stated that three arrests had been made by the police in connection with the tragic events of the past few days. No arrests have been made, and it seems probable that no further action will be taken.

The person who it is alleged was responsible for the condition of the young girl has left the city. A friend of his, it is said, provided the money to pay for the operation.

Case Closed

SEARCH AT ROBINSON'S HOUSE EVIDENCE BY DETECTIVE MILLER LETTER FOUND BESIDE GIRL'S BODY

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Napanee, March 3.—The trial of Dr C. K. Robinson was continued today. Bruce Richardson and A. B. Carscallen both testified to having traced a trail of blood spots leading from the prisoner's house in the direction of Miss Yorke's house. Detective Miller testified that he had noticed these blood marks on July 13. These three witnesses also testified having searched the prisoner's house on his invitation and finding nothing. They were looking for a living woman.

The Crown's case was still unfinished at noon. In the cross-examination of Detective Greer it came out that a letter, belonging to Dr. Wilson, the other Tamworth physician, who is at present ill in a hospital at Toronto, had been found with the body of Blanche Yorke.

Napanee, March 3.—Dr. C. K. Robinson, the young Tamworth doctor indicted for the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke, of the same village, was placed on trial here yesterday before his Honor Mr. Justice Sutherland. The prisoner's pale face showed the effects of confinement, and he appeared nervous and seemed to feel his position keenly.

Miss Yorke, the victim, disappeared from view on the evening of July 8th last, after a day of sewing with a friend. They left the house together, and as they entered the street Miss Yorke remarked that she was going to Dr. Robinson's office to get some medicine for stomach trouble. Her friends never saw her again alive, but a week later her body was dug up in the cellar of Dr. Robinson's residence. The doctor had already disappeared, and after being sought far and near for several weeks he made a dramatic appearance at the steps of the City Hall in Toronto and gave himself into the custody of police officers. The evidence has disclosed that Miss Yorke was in trouble, and that she was to have married Daniel McGregor, of Croydon, in August last.

The courtroom was crowded, and more people were turned away than could find room inside.

Twelve jurors were challenged before a satisfactory jury was chosen. Mr. Hutchison, of Brockville, Crown counsel, reviewed the evidence as produced at the inquest, and also that placed before the grand jury. He dealt at some length with the medical aspects of the case, explaining that if Blanche Yorke came to her death through an operation which may have been necessary to save her life it would not have been murder. Still, the hiding of the body was in itself a grave matter for suspicion.

Mr. F. F. Miller, P.L.S., Napanee, was called and produced plans and photographs of the house, cellar rooms, etc., occupied by Dr. Robinson.

Miss Agnes Walsh, of Tamworth, who worked for Miss Yorke on July 7th and 8th doing sewing, said she did not actually see Miss Yorke go to Dr. Robinson's office. Miss Yorke told her she had taken one bottle of medicine from one doctor and two bottles from another in Tamworth for stomach trouble.

Mrs. Laura Moss, who had business at Dr. Robinson's office about dark on July 8th, saw Dr. Robinson in his office, and saw a lady's raincoat on a chair and a lady's hat on the table.

Henry Card testified that he saw Miss Yorke about 10 o'clock on July 8th on the street. Miss Yorke had a greenish coat over her arm and wore a small hat with roses. She was heading in the direction of Dr. Robinson's office and also of her home.

Samuel Yorke, of Eldorado, a brother of Blanche Yorke, on learning of his sister's disappearance, drove to Tamworth and asked Dr. Robinson if he had seen his sister. The doctor said he would not know her if he saw her, as he had a number of patients of that name, but promised to look over his books. On Sunday morning the doctor told him Blanche had been in his office on Wednesday evening and had a prescription filled. On Monday evening the doctor admitted to witness and Detective Miller that Blanche Yorke was in his office one hour and a half on the evening in question, and that he had treated her. He had seen Dr. Robinson a couple of days later, when the doctor had expressed the opinion that she was alive, but had gone off on her own account.

Daniel McGregor, of Croydon, gave evidence that he was engaged to be married to Blanche Yorke, and last saw her on July 2nd. Dr. Robinson had suggested dragging the river for Blanche Yorke's body. Witness had asked the doctor if the medicine he had given her would have caused her to lose her mind. The doctor answered that she could drink the whole bottle without losing her mind. They were to be married in August.

J. S. Taylor testified that on July 28th he, with the bailiff, seized Dr. Robinson's furniture, and found a bed upstairs without a mattress. They threw off the sheets and found stains on the bed and floor. They afterwards found clothing and a towel in a laundry bag in a closet. He was present in the house on the same evening and saw the body dug up in the cellar.

The remainder of the uniforms for the Mounted Rifles is still on the way from Ottawa. Col. Johnston expects them to arrive late today or tomorrow.

Making a Directory.

Over seventy per cent. of Toronto's population change their addresses, or positions, or otherwise require a change in their designations in the city directory each year. That would seem to be a rather high record for even the most nomadic tribes, but each new directory, proves indisputably that the "changing" habit has got Toronto to that extent.

A page taken at random from last year's issue and corrected to date, shows that out of the 180 names recorded on it 139 have changed either their address, their occupation, or both. Corrections are scratched across it in all directions till it resembles a futurist painting of a hedgehog much more than a page of print.

It will be seen from this that compiling a directory of half a million restless people is no easy job. Practically one year's hard work by a large staff goes into its preparation.

Perhaps the most remarkable fact of all is, that, in spite of the ever-changing population, recent directories have only shown an average of fifty mistakes a volume.

Has a Fine Record.

It is announced that A. G. Elliot, general passenger agent of the Grand Trunk Railway, owing to a rearrangement of the duties of the general offices, has retired. The assistant passenger traffic manager will assume the duties of the general passenger agent.

Mr. Elliot has devoted his life to railroad work and in his chosen line has achieved success and won the respect of railroad men.

He was born in 1860 and entered the railroad service in 1882 as city ticket agent of the Central Vermont Railroad at Montreal. In 1897 he became city ticket agent for the Grand Trunk at Monteral and in the same year was promoted excursion clerk of that department and soon after was made assistant general passenger and ticket agent. Later he became passenger representative at Chicago and on the death of W. E. Davis was chosen general passenger agent with headquarters in Montreal. Mr. Elliot's retirement took effect on Oct. 31.

Dr. Bruce Smith Sends Warning to Hospitals

A communication bearing the signature of Dr. Bruce Smith, Inspector of Prisons and Public Charities, has been received by Chief of Police Thompson. It was originally addressed to Mr. Richard Hall, chairman of the Nicholls Hospital Board. It contains the following:

I am instructed to advise you that notification has been received from high authority that agents have been instructed to call on engineers and plumbers at different institutions and factories throughout the Dominion of Canada, asking the institution or firm to try a lubricant of which they will leave a sample in a box. It is reported that this box, when opened, will explode with great power and do damage to persons and buildings, as instead of a lubricant it contains a very high and powerful explosive.

You will inform your officers, engineers and staff of this fact, and if such agent should call at your institution offering such samples in this way you will endeavor to have him detained and at once notify the Police Department and this office by telegram or telephone.

APSLEY

Apsley, March 3. — Miss Myrtle Hales, daughter of Mr. William Hales of this village was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. J. C. Taylor of Sask., at Peterborough, Feb. 10. The young couple left here on Friday last for their future home at Gowan, Sask. Miss Hales was one of our most popular young ladies and our best wishes follow them for a long, happy and prosperous married life.

The representatives of the County Council on the Committee for Roads and Bridges were in the village last week and inspected some bridges in this locality.

Mr. Isaac Lean, assessor, commenced his work of that office on Feb. 15.

The Lenten season began on Wednesday of last week and all dancing and amusements are being dispensed with by members of churches concerned.

The quilt contest of the Patriotic League came to an end on Friday last. The lucky winner was Mr. John Gifford, the possessor of ticket number 9.

Mr. William Staples has been appointed bailiff of the 4th Division Court for the County of Peterborough.

A Communion service was held in the Methodist Church here on Feb. 14.

There is some talk of rural mail delivery for residents of this neighborhood.

About twenty-five of the young people of the village spent a very pleasant evening on Saturday last at "Eelsview Villa."

GERMAN PEOPLE WAITING FOR FOOD AND VICTORY

German Staff Officer Confesses Germany's Position in Belgium is Hopeless

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 4. — The Daily Express correspondent on the Belgian frontier says that a German staff officer frankly confesses that Germany's position in Belgium is hopeless. It would have been wise to have retired weeks ago, but the government feared the effect upon the people at home.

"If the German people ever believe they have made sacrifices in vain and that Germany is beaten, look out for an earthquake, but they do not yet believe it. We can hang on in our trenches till doomsday, but I fear the Allies can do the same. Meanwhile people at home are waiting for food and victory."

BERLIN CLAIMS MILE OF TRENCHES

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, March 4. — An official statement says the Germans captured nearly a mile of the enemy's trenches northwest of Arras yesterday morning, capturing eight French officers and 558 soldiers with several cannon. French counter-attacks failed. French attacks in the Champagne and Argonne were easily repulsed.

In the eastern theatre, Russian attacks north of Grodno failed. In the region south of Mysznlec and Chorzellen and northwest of Przasnysz, the Russians again attacked. On the remainder of the front there was no change.

NO FURTHER LIGHT ON ALLIES' PLANS.

LONDON, March 4. — Mr. Asquith today refused to throw further light on the plans of the Allies to be adopted in their policy of retaliation for Germany's submarine blockade. "The intention of the Government will be apparent when the orders of the council on the subject are published," the Premier said.

SUPPORT FOR NEW ROAD IS URGED

Highway Would be Known as Sir James Whitney Memorial

Toronto, March 4.—Urging government support for a new highway, to be known as the Sir James Whitney Memorial road, running from Ottawa to Morrisburg, a large deputation obtained a hearing from the Ontario Cabinet yesterday. The new line they wished to form a link with the transprovincial road running east and west, and they desired to make it after the style of an American boulevard. The length would be 45 miles add the government contributions would reach $250,000.

It was claimed that farmers in Dundas, Stormont, Russell and other eastern counties would benefit to a great extent in gaining access to markets. Municipalities, including Ottawa, were quite willing to bear their share of the expense.

Irrespective of party interests the delegates united in wishing to perpetuate the name of Sir James, and this was remarked upon by Premier Hearst in his reply. He promised special consideration, although not promising to introduce a precedent.

The visitors included Irwin Hilliard, M.L.A., of Dundas; J. A. Campbell, Ormond; O. T. Casselman, Chesterville; Damase Racine, M. L. A., Russell, and others.

CROWN ATTORNEY IS IN TORONTO

While reports of arrests and rumors along that line continue to fill the air in connection with the death of Helen Brown, there is absolutely no truth in them. The police state that no arrests have been made, and that they consider the case closed. Chief Thompson is not in the city today, while Crown Attorney Hatton is in Toronto on business which could not be ascertained.

PENSION FUND FOR SOLDIERS

Cost to Great Britain Will be $1,725,000,000

London, March 4.—The new British pension plan will cost the Government $1,725,000,000 before the last pensioner dies, according to actuaries employed by the non-partisan committee which prepared the plan at the order of the House of Commons.

The maximum expenditure the first year, the committee reports, will be about $280,000,000, and the cost during the first year after the war will reach $65,000,000.

These figures are based on an army of three million men, a two years' war, and 10 per cent. of deaths, with 12 per cent. of disablement.

The financial editor of the Daily Telegraph points out that the ten-billion-dollar expenditure by the allies for carrying on the war from now until the end of this year as estimated by the Chancellor of the Exchequer, exceeds the total national debts of both France and Russia. It even exceeds the entire revenue-producing capacity of all Europe, including belligerents and neutrals, by over three billion dollars.

NO FURTHER WORD FROM HEALTH BOARD

Still no word from the Provincial Board of Health. The matter of deciding where the site of the proposed sewage disposal plant will be is in the hands of that body, but evidently no haste is being made to present a judgment. It is possible that Dr. McCullough or one of his chief engineers will come to this city and hold a consultation on the ground with representatives from the city and also representatives from Otonabee. A decision would likely follow the conference.

ALL MOBILIZATIONS AT PETTAWAWA

Ottawa, March 4.—All mobilizations will take place at Petawawa. Local mobilizations at Ottawa, Kingston, etc., will be given up and will be removed at once. Inquiries elicit the fact that charges of favoritism are without foundation and that no officer or commission in the service has been or will be used to discriminate against any Canadian on his merits. Members say that surprisingly few such requests have been received as it is recognized that they would be highly unfair and improper. Except for the boot inquiry the Opposition admits that "politics" have not been allowed to intervene on carelessness.

Defeat of His Efforts North-East of Mesnit is Complete

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 4. — (Official Statement): "In Belgium, on the dunes, our artillery demolished trenches of the enemy to the north of Arras. Near Notre Dame De Lorette the enemy captured an advance trench recently constructed by us in immediate contact with the German lines.

"The bombardment of Rheims lasted all day, a shell falling every three minutes.

"In Champagne it is confirmed that German counter-attacks against a crest taken by us to the northeast of Mesnit were of a very violent character. Two regiments of guards fought with great ferocity. The defeat of these efforts has been complete.

"There has been a cannonade in the Argonne, with fresh progress on our part in the region of Vauquois."

DEVASTATION OF BELGIUM

Only One Solution of the Question Says Grey

GERMANS MUST GET OUT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 4. — In the Commons today Sir Edward Grey was asked whether the Government was willing to invite suggestions from neutrals with a view to avoiding further devastation of Belgium by the great powers which are contending for its mastery. The Foreign Secretary replied: "The only solution of this question is the evacuation of Belgian territory by German troops, the restoration of her independence, and reparation for the wrong done her.

"Unless neutral powers are prepared to assist in securing that solution, I do not see what could be gained by the course suggested."

ONLY TWO FORTS REMAIN INTACT

Landing Parties Find Turks Had Burned Their Dead Before Evacuating Positions

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 4. A Reuter despatch from Athens says: "The bombardment of the inner forts of the Dardanelles was resumed this morning. Ten big warships took part in the operations. According to a British officer, only two of the Turkish forts remain intact.

"Allied landing parties found the charred remains of soldiers in the damaged forts, showing that the Turks had buried their dead before evacuating these positions."

LONDON, March 4.—The Admiralty late last night issued the following report, regarding the bombardment of the Turkish forts by the Anglo-French fleet:

"The operations in the Dardanelles were resumed at 11 o'clock this morning, (probably Monday), when the Triumph, Ocean and Albion entered the straits and attacked fort No. 8, and the batteries at Whitecliff. The fire was returned by the forts, and also by field guns and howitzers.

"An air reconnaissance made by naval sea planes in the evening, brought the report that several new guns were erected in them. The sea planes located surface mines.

"During Monday night, a force of mine-sweepers, covered by destroyers, swept within a mile and a half of Cape Kephez, and their work, which was carried out under fire, is reported to have been excelled. The casualties sustained during the day were slight, amounting to only six wounded.

"Four of the French battleships operated off Bulair and bombarded the batteries and communications.

"The operations at the entrance of resulted in the destruction of 19 guns, the straits, already reported have ranging from 6 to 11 inches, eleven guns below six inches, four Nordenfelt guns and two searchlights. The magazines of forts 6 and 3 also have been demolished.

"A further report received states that on Tuesday the Canopus and Cornwallis engaged Fort No. 8. A heavy fire was opened by Fort No. 9, together with field batteries and howitzers. Fort No. 9 was damaged and ceased firing at 5.30 in the afternoon, and although three ships were hit the only casualty was one man slightly wounded.

"Seaplanes reconnaissance was impossible because of the weather; the mine-sweeping operations were continued throughout the day. The attack progresses.

"The Russian cruiser Askold has joined the allied fleet off the Dardanelles."

A despatch to Reuter's Telegram Co. from Athens says:

"The allied fleet to-day bombarded and reduced to silence, the forts of Dardanus, Hamidieh and Tchemerlik, on the Asiatic side of the inside Dardanelles. The telegraph station at Beziaki also was demolished.

"The bombardment was carried out by nine ships, which advanced two miles up the straits."

A Paris despatch says the French Minister of Marine last night issued the following communication.

"The operations of the Anglo-French fleet against the Dardanelles continued yesterday. A French division under Rear-Admiral Guepratte operated in the Gulf of Saros against the forts and the Bulair lines. The French battleship Suffern bombarded the Sultanie forts and the battleship Gaulois set fire to the barracks of Fort Napoleon. The garrisons evacuated the works.

"The battleship Bouvet seriously damaged the bridge over the Kavak river."

From the report that the French warship Bouvet had damaged the bridge over the River Kavak, it would seem evident that the French fleet have been operating far enough north in the Gulf of Saros to throw shells in the vicinity of the town of Kavak, which lies at the head of the Gallipoli Peninsula.

FIRE OPPOSITE CROMPTON BLOCK

Moving Picture Theatre is Destroyed

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Brantford, March 4.—Fire in the Gem theatre shortly after twelve o'clock threatened to destroy an entire block which is situated exactly opposite the Crompton block which was destroyed yesterday. Every fireman and piece of apparatus is engaged in fighting the fire.

The building is owned by T. C. Lyons and valued at fifteen thousand dollars.

The cause of the fire is believed to be an explosion of chemicals used in developing films of yesterday's fire.

At one o'clock the flames had spread to two adjoining buildings.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MARCH 4, 1915

IT DOES NOT LOOK LIKE A SOUND PROPOSAL.

THE PROPOSAL of the Ontario Government, according to a recent newspaper report, that the land being cleared by the interned alien enemies be given to them, so that they may become good citizens, is well intentioned, but it is doubtful that good will result. In the first place, these men are enemies of our country and government, who would rise against us at the first favourable opportunity. In the second place, they are prisoners forced to work unwillingly and without remuneration, facts which, far from engendering kindly feelings towards this country or a desire to become citizens of it, stimulate their hatred of everything British which it contains. By their acts they do not deserve such magnanimous treatment, and it is doubtful whether it would be appreciated. Besides, there are plenty of settlers who can be obtained for these lands that are loyal or will be loyal subjects of the King.

The strongest objection to this proposal is, however, that it will give rise to a colony of enemies, a little spot where everyone thinks the same hatred of our laws and government. Colonies of enemies is the very thing that should be avoided. If these men were to be scattered over a large territory, with loyal settlers predominating among them, there would be every probability that time would heal the differences between them and the Canadian people. Established as a colony, they will retain all the qualities that have made them enemies and brought them to the condition of prisoners.

If the proposal is acted upon, it is hard to see how anything other than a colony of enemies would result. The land being cleared is located in one spot, or rather the cleared land will comprise one separate area. As prisoners of war, requiring armed guards, it is evident they would all have to be kept in one place, so that the land cleared would comprise one patch or area. Reports say that the men are, in many instances, very sullen and unyielding, particularly the Turkish prisoners. To try to make good loyal farmers of such a hostile crowd and plant them all together in one community, seems not only doomed to failure, but foolish to a degree.

THE GREAT RUSSIAN EMPIRE.

THE GREAT Russian Empire, whose armies have been waging such desperate war on the Germans' eastern frontier, is a country of great magnitude and resources, about which the rest of the world is not very well informed.

Russia, commercially and industrially, is a vast reservoir as yet scarcely tapped. With 8,647,657 square miles, and her population of over 170,000,000 fast awakening to a new phase of civilization, Russia's wants are many and urgent, and she has to offer in exchange much for which the markets of the world crave. The study of Russia is like the watching of a flower bursting forth from the bud into bloom, where the opening of each petal is a revelation. Her possibilities cannot be grasped at once, even by her own people.

At present, Russia is essentially an agricultural country, with vast tracts under exploitation, other regions mapped out ready for settlers, and yet more land practically unexplored. Siberia, until recently a closed region, is being opened up as fertile agricultural and pastoral country, where mining and other industries may also be organized. Some 226,012,000 acres are under cereals, 10,305,000 acres under potatoes, flax and hemp, 5,568,000 acres, under grass, 87,137,000 acres, and natural grazing land 97,155,000 acres. Wheat, barley, oats and rye are exported to an enormous extent, also maize, beans, peas, lentils, and millet; spelt and buckwheat are grown for home consumption. The head of livestock is on the same gigantic scale, there being over 48,147,000 cattle, 31,457,000 horses, 70,102,000 sheep, and 13,144,000 swine. Apart from the export of cereals, there is a very large trade with foreign countries in dairy produce, poultry and eggs, hides and bristles, beet sugar and other farm produce. Then we have the far-stretching forests, of which there are some 550,000,000 acres in European Russia (300,000,000 belonging to the Crown domain or to the State) and over 650,000,000 acres of State forests in the Asiatic provinces.

It is interesting to note that there is a curious exchange of produce going on. While Russia sells wheat and dairy and poultry produce she is an importer of food on an enormous scale. She sells us sturgeon and caviare, but buys millions of herrings. She sells us hides and skins, but buys leather goods. In exchange for her metal ores we send her machinery, tools, and manufactured metal goods.

As regards raw materials, the chief timbers for export are pines, firs and oaks, with larch and cedar from Asia. Her minerals include gold, silver, copper, lead, mercury, asbestos, mica, coal and petroleum. Of platinum, more than 90 per cent. of the world's consumption comes from the Urals. Mining still needs development, and is open to foreign capital, though there are certain reservations as regards the Amur and lands on the sea borders.

According to latest returns (1912), the Russian foreign trade amounted to £284,005,000, of which £160,318,000 were exports and £123,687,000 imports.

It is true that what Russian economists and men of business most desire is foreign capital and men to develop the country's material resources. That foreigners are really welcome is shown by the extremely liberal laws relating to the position of aliens generally, and especially in their relation to trade and industry.

Though Russia is anxious to promote industrial progress, so far little has been done—when we consider the extent of the land and the size of the population. In textiles there is considerable activity, large spinning and weaving mills existing for flax, wool, cotton (using largely staple grown in the Asiatic provinces) and silk. Nevertheless, wool and cotton yarns form an important item of imports. The imports of finished textiles amounted to over £30,000,000. There are great smelting, iron, steel and engineering works, yet there is a regular iron and steel famine within the empire, and iron, steel and metal manufactured goods had to be imported to the value of £36,000,000. As regards iron and steel (also iron and steel rails, girders and tubes), the demand must go on enormously, not only to keep pace with the developments now going on, but also to make good the waste inevitably entailed by the war.

The government does all in its power to promote trade and industry by its liberal land policy, the low tariffs on railways and canals and other facilities granted. On the other hand, the customs tariff is unquestionably framed on a protective basis. However, while the motive was to assist in the building up of local industries, steps are taken to prevent exorbitant prices being charged to the public. In connection with the iron and steel industry, there is a strong movement to lower, or temporarily suspend, import dues when prices rise too high or iron works prove unable to supply requirements without undue delay. Railways are gradually being pushed forward, branch lines constructed, and highways with bridges laid down. All this requires iron and steel. As the country is opened up, mining becomes possible, and there is a great demand for mining machinery and tools. There is also an immense market for agricultural machinery and electrical appliances.

Russia is a country something like Canada. It is old, of great extent, but thinly populated, although possessing a large number of people. It is a great empire in the making, possessing untold possibilities for development. The present war will no doubt bring it before the investing public, and much benefit may be derived therefrom.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

PUGSLEY? PUGSLEY? That is a somewhat bellicose name, is it not? Yes; but they say Mr. Pugsley is not so very stout.

ANOTHER co-operative store failed recently, this time in Toronto. The idea or theory is good, but the large number of failures indicate its practical application in this country not advisable. Many innocent small investors lose savings that have been accumulated only by hard work.

"ON-THE-SIDE," of the Toronto News, admits that he, too, has never seen Waubaushene, says the Orillia Packet. All Waubaushene, with more politeness, would have gone to the city long ago to see "On-the-Side," had he not for months and years printed his portrait in the News, "editorial page, top of column, next to pure reading."

FOUR GERMAN SHIPS.

(London Express.)

Four German ships sail out to sea—
Ho, bullies, heave a pawl!—
With turrets clear and tompions free
And shotted guns and all;
With a shell for Poll and a shell for Jane
And a shell for the kids at play,
Which isn't the game for you and me,
But is the German way.

Four German ships turn tail again—
Ho, bullies, heave a pawl!—
When they found they had to fight with men,
Which wasn't their game at all;
With a shell for church and a shell for school,
And a shell for anyone,
But never a shell for an English ship
When there's room to cut and run.

Co-ordination and Subordination.

(The Times of India.)

Mr. Haldane has drawn attention to a characteristic of this war that distinguishes it from all previous coalitions — the complete unity of purpose between the Allies. Incidentally, this illustrates the fundamental difference between British and German policy; on the part of the Allies the co-ordination is of association; on the part of Germany of complete subordination to the Prussian will.

No Injury to the Preference.

(London Free Press.)

British goods under the war tariff enjoy a greater privilege as regards the Canadian market than has ever hitherto been the fact. Whereas the preference under the old tariff was one-third less than the general tariff, the increase in the tariff is also one-third less in the case of goods from Great Britain than from foreign countries.

Slow.

(Cleveland Plain Dealer.)

"Mamma, I'm afraid papa was pretty slow when he was a young man."

"Perhaps he was. He always paid his debts, and used good English, and knew nothing about cigarettes, and never saw a taxicab, and hadn't any clubs, and was able to support a wife before he married. I guess he was pretty slow."

Not Pleasant to Berlin.

(London Daily Mail.)

The British loan to Roumania is a portent that can have but one meaning, and when it is recalled that Hohenzollern princes have ruled at Bucharest for nearly fifty years and that Roumania was long regarded as a fourth member of the Triple Alliance, that meaning can hardly be pleasant to Berlin.

FIRE LOSS IS $180,000.

Crompton Co.'s Departmental Store In Brantford Is Burned.

BRANTFORD, March 4.—Starting in the basement of the E. B. Crompton Co.'s four-storey departmental store about noon yesterday fire, which swept through the whole store, completely gutted the building and did damage to the extent of 180,000.

Within fifteen minutes the blaze had gained so much headway that the roof at the back fell in. Both brigades turned out in full strength, but the firemen were unable to enter the building, and all their efforts had to be made from the outside. The employes of the store were not able to save their wearing apparel, so rapidly did the fire spread, and they were forced to the streets without hats or coats.

By quick action they were able to reach the streets in safety, and with the exception of the girls they all got out by the door ways. The girls who were employed in the lunch room being cut off from the exits climbed down the fire escape on Queen street.

Milk Bottles Too Small.

Large quantities of milk bottles have been imported into Canada for use in the sale of milk, and as these have been found to be of wine measure capacity instead of imperial measure, the Inland Revenue Department has issued orders to hold up such imports until the department has satisfied itself that the shipments are within the tolerated percentage of error.

News Value .. of .. Advertising

AN EDITORIAL may stimulate thought. It may arouse men to action—but usually its value lies principally in its ability to entertain—to inform on general or specific questions.

¶ An advertisement—nine out of ten times—contains more information than an editorial, and in addition answers either a social or an economic question.

¶ There is only one way for the readers of any paper to keep the advertising news up to date, and that is to patronize the firms who use the columns of the paper.

¶ Readers of The Review should, therefore, buy the goods advertised in these columns.

Hannah Marvin's Job

Why She Gave It Up

By REINETTE LOVEWELL

Hannah Marvin's haggard eyes were fixed upon the illuminated text of a small framed motto on the wall at her left, "When the Outlook Is Not Good Try the Uplook."

As she read her wide mouth set itself in a line of bitterness, and she turned away disgustedly.

The waiting room of the Remwood Typewriter Employment agency was badly congested. Groups of girls were chattering together in the humid heat.

Hannah was an "old girl." The term was used in the office, with disrespect, solely because it was descriptive. It was abbreviated into "O. G." and Hannah had caught a glimpse of these initials on her registration card and with a chill of heart guessed their meaning.

A newcomer interrupted her thoughts by sitting down quite close beside her. Hannah turned toward her with undisguised annoyance, but her sharp glance became a steady stare.

The girl beside her wore a plain little gown of green checked gingham, and the pink flush on her face was so lovely and so natural a coloring that Hannah's eyes, long accustomed to powdered cheeks, rested upon it incredulously, dropping finally to the exquisite line of a full white throat.

The girl turned to her and spoke shyly.

"What do you have to do to get work here—show your recommendations?" she asked.

"Recommendations here don't mean much," Hannah answered sharply. "The best argument you can put up is the price you've worked for and how much experience you've had."

"I've worked a year," the girl answered.

"Here in New York?" Hannah questioned.

"No—up state."

"Can you read your notes?" Hannah asked practically.

"I certainly can," the girl came back with a confidence that surprised her questioner.

"Well, you ought to get something," she encouraged. "Better go up and shove those fresh kids away and talk right up to the manager. How'd you happen to come down to the city?" Hannah inquired.

"Oh, I just wanted to get a better chance. I got awfully tired of living in Lybansville. I've been here only a week, but"—

She stopped hesitatingly.

"Oh, I don't know," she finished. "These girls seem awfully different some way. And they don't look well. They are so thin and"—

"They don't eat enough or sleep enough," Hannah interrupted.

A week passed. By some unworded understanding Hannah and the up state girl sat together in the waiting room each day.

Neither was sent out, and Hannah realizing how low were her own resources, forced her way one morning to the front and demanded the reason why she couldn't get work.

The manager answered her outburst gently.

"You see, Miss Marvin," she said, "we have very few calls that require your experience, so many offices want to get very young girls and break them in at a low rate."

Hannah sniffed with comprehension. "I know I'm old," she said bluntly, "but I can get out the work"—

The eyes of the manager showed sympathetic understanding.

"I'm sure you can," she said kindly. "And we are bound to have a call before long for some one of your experience."

Hannah went back to her seat and thought about her experience with bitter recollection.

The girl from up state was reading a letter from home, and her face, which had grown pale and a little thin, was again rosily flushed. She turned dreamy eyes toward Hannah inquiringly and then let them go back to the bold handwriting on the sheets she held.

Hannah continued to think about her "experience."

Only the night before she had found, quite by accident, an old photograph of herself taken when she had first come to New York, twenty years before. She had studied it long and curiously until she burned with bitterness.

Beauty she had never possessed, but she had been vivacious, joyous and "smart." In those days her father had been prosperous, and there was no need for her to toil. It was then that she had met, loved and promised to marry Allen Morehouse. Three months the engagement had lasted.

Sitting on the hard agency bench twenty years later, Hannah Marvin felt flame up within her the scorching anger of her girlhood as she remembered her discovery of the life young Morehouse was leading, the quarrel that ensued and the heartless words he had spoken to her as he faced her accusations.

After that there had been scarcely a rift in the storm clouds. Her father, financially wrecked, had died and left his daughter to earn her living as she could. She had tried the shorthand and typewriting route, then just becoming popular, and she had gone forth to battle, unsmiling, silent, working her way for her daily bread with relentless zeal.

A call from the manager summoned Hannah forward at last, and she went, resentfully conscious of the curious glances the other girls cast toward her.

"Here's a position, Miss Marvin, I think you could fill," the woman behind the railing said. "It's a fifteen dollar a week place and very good people. Will you go and see about it?"

A strange sensation of gratitude came to Hannah, and a smile appeared on her face. It seemed to the manager to be almost transfiguring.

"I'll go," she answered. "I guess I can get out work that will suit them."

The manager smiled. "Good luck," she said.

An hour later Hannah had walked out of a great building with the knowledge that she had work. An eating house caught her eyes as she walked toward her room, and she went in and sat down, realizing suddenly that she had eaten nothing that day.

As she sat with a menu card before her she glanced up and saw entering the girl from up state. She saw Hannah and hurried toward her all smiles and flushes.

"I've got a place!" she cried joyously. "I'm going to work tomorrow. It's $12 a week."

"Say, that's fine!" said Hannah heartily. "What's the firm?"

"It's a kind of small insurance business," the girl answered, taking a card from her hand bag and laying it before Hannah. "That's the man's name in the corner."

Hannah read and saw the room grow dark before her.

She got up and put her hands on the young girl's shoulder.

"I've got to be going," she said.

With her hand on the knob of the door she paused, turned sharply and came back and sat down before the girl from up state.

"Say, look here!" she said sharply. "I've promised to take a fifteen a week job, but I made up my mind just now to get out of New York, and I don't want it. I've decided to leave the city. The work isn't anything but what you could do, and $3 a week is a lot when you come to think about it. Now, there isn't any reason why you can't go right up there and say I sent you and tell them what you can do. I know you are all right. Will you?"

"Why, yes-s, of course I will," the girl answered.

"You run right along now. They are expecting me back," said Hannah.

The girl from up state went radiantly.

Hannah sat for a long time at the restaurant table, with her food untouched, trying to think what to do next.

At a table behind her a man with bent shoulders had watched the up state girl as she talked, and now, as Hannah lingered, he sat at his table with some papers spread out before him. But he did not read.

The card of the insurance company lay unheeded beside the girl's coffee cup. Hannah picked it up and read again the name of its representative. It was Allen Morehouse.

The name was printed in red, and the letters danced impishly before her eyes.

The address was on the card. It was quite near at hand, not four blocks away, and a sudden impulse made her determine to go and tell him why the flower faced girl he had hired would not return.

In five minutes she was in the insurance office. A boy asked her to wait, and she sank back on a bench.

In a few minutes she was motioned toward Mr. Morehouse's private office. A gray haired man was sitting before a flat desk. He was not very well dressed, but his eyes were level and clear and kind.

He looked up, and Hannah spoke.

"I came to say," she said, "that I've sent that child you hired to a better job. I thought I'd let you know that it was Hannah Marvin who was responsible for your losing her."

"So you thought I wouldn't treat that little girl well?" he questioned.

Hannah did not reply.

"Sometimes," Morehouse went on, "a man turns out better than you might expect. I haven't amounted to very much, but I've got this little business here, and the girl who's left me was here eight years."

Hannah's breath was coming irregularly, and she felt dizzy.

"Hannah," he continued, "I've tried to find you a good while. I've been sorry about—it all."

He reached across the table and caught her hand.

"Hannah," he said again, "listen. I was there in the restaurant, and sized up the whole situation. I knew what you did and—I've got a job for you, if you'll take it. I'm all alone. Mother died a year ago. I wish you'd come and take care of me. I wish—you'd marry me now."

The woman's gray face flushed and grew amazed. She stared at the man before her unbelievingly.

Then the tears came, and as they fell she brushed them away with the back of her thin hand.

"Why, don't you see," she said brokenly—"don't you see what I am now? I'm just a crabbed old maid. I'm cross and ugly and wornout. Don't you see?"

"Yes, I see," he said slowly. "You looked just like that to me when you gave up your job to that child."

He drew her toward him awkwardly.

"Hannah," he went on, "I've never forgotten or forgiven myself for the past. I've thought of you constantly lately."

He stopped.

"Hannah," he finished hoarsely, "I—I want you!"

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

When Glass Has Been Swallowed.

A doctor prescribes the consumption of as much bread as possible after swallowing a piece of glass. The bread forms a jelly-like shell around the fragment and often allows it to pass harmlessly through the digestive tract, whereas an emetic is generally useless and apt to cause cuts. If the glass fragment is large, send for the nearest doctor and continue the bread eating until his arrival.

Next fall is to see a "prosperity week" for U. S. industries over the country.

One reason for marrying a man is to keep some other girl from making him perfectly wretched.

TORTURED BY CONSTIPATION

"Fruit-a-tives" Cured Paralyzed Bowels and Digestion

ST. BONIFACE DE SHAWINIGAN, QUE.
Feb. 3rd. 1914.

"It is a pleasure to me to inform you that after suffering from Chronic Constipation for 2½ years, I have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives". While I was a student at Berthier College, I became so ill I was forced to leave the the college. Severe pains across the intestines continually tortured me and it came to a point when I could not stoop down at all, and my Digestion became paralyzed. Some one advised me to take "Fruit-a-tives" and at once I felt a great improvement. After I had taken four or five boxes, I realized that I was completely cured and what made me glad, also, was that they were acting gently, causing no pain whatever to the bowels. All those who suffer with Chronic Constipation should follow my example and take "Fruit-a-tives" for they are the medicine that cures".

MAGLOIRE PAQUIN

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

DYEING THE WALLS.

An Experiment That Made Old Burlap Look Like New.

The walls of a certain dining room were covered several years ago with green burlap. This year they had become so badly faded as to look a rusty brown in spots. No shop or friend of the owner could suggest any other remedy than a new wall covering, and that was financially out of the question. In this dilemma she set her wits to work and as a result bought 10 cents' worth of dye, a kind guaranteed to color either cotton or wool.

Taking one-half the package, three pints of water and a tablespoonful of salt she experimented by dyeing a small part of the wall in a place that was not conspicuous. When dry it turned out a beautiful rich shade of green, so she promptly went to work to cover the whole room. This took four packages of the dye, but she never mixed more than one-half a package at a time, using boiling water. The dining room walls looked fine and the cost was 40 cents and four hours' work.

CONCENTRATED CIDER.

Not Apple Jack, But Apple Juice, Minus Water.

We have had dried apples—apples with the water squeezed out—now we are to have concentrated cider—cider with the water removed. They are experimenting with the new product this year on the Pacific Coast. The new method, it is believed, makes possible the concentrating of cider in such a way that it will keep better than raw cider, and also be so reduced in bulk that it can be shipped profitably long distances from the apple-growing regions. The old attempts to concentrate cider by boiling have been failures because heat destroys the delicate flavor of cider. Under the new method nothing is taken from the cider but the water, and the resultant product is a thick liquid which contains all the apple juice products and which can be restored to excellent sweet cider by the simple addition of four parts of water. The shippers and consumers, therefore, avoid paying freight on water.

The process consists of freezing ordinary cider solid. The cider ice is then crushed and put into centifugal machines such as are used in making cane sugar. When the cider ice is whirled rapidly the concentrated juice is thrown off and collected. The water remains in the machine as ice. At ordinary household refrigerator temperatures this syrup-like cider will keep perfectly for a month or six weeks, and if kept at low temperatures in cold storage will keep for prolonged periods. At ordinary house temperatures it, of course, will keep a shorter time.

Why Oyama Objected.

Franklin Matthews represented a newspaper during the Russo-Japanese war, and one day succeeded in breaking through the news censorship and reaching Field Marshal Oyama. The interview was brief but extermely courteous, and the jubilant correspondent hurried back to prepare the story for his paper. In the course of it he used this expression: "Marshal Oyama is a brick."

The letter was duly passed along to the official translator, and presently Capt. Kanaka, of the marshal's personal staff, called upon the correspondent.

"Marshal Oyama presents his compliments," said the captain, suavely, "and regrets to inform the esteemed correspondent that his honorable letter cannot be forwarded as written."

"Why, what's wrong with it?" cried the amazed war scribe.

Capt. Kanaka explained with polite gravity.

"Marshal Oyama," he said, "objects to having the great English-speaking public regard him as baked mud."

For that is what the extremely literal translator had made of "brick."

Spoiled the Effect.

Alice was playing store with her youngest sister. Mother, asked to become a purchaser, played well her part, but in saying good day stopped and kissed both children.

Sensitive Alice burst into tears.

"Oh, mamma," she wailed, "you've spoilt everything! You never kiss the man in the real store."

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson X.—First Quarter, For March 7, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. ix, 17, to x, 1. Memory Verse, x, 1—Golden Text, I Pet. ii, 17—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

These three chapters, in which we find today's lesson (viii to x), tell a sad yet beautiful and wonderful story, the sad part being Israel's rejection of God as their king and their desire to be like other nations; the wonderful past, His most gracious dealings with them and, the beautiful part, the way He overruled ordinary events to bring to Samuel the right man. It seems strange that Samuel, knowing so well Eli's failure to govern his sons, should have failed himself in the same way (chapter viii, 1-5), but perhaps some who may read this are not qualified to throw any stones. The desire of the people for a visible king, like all other nations, hurt Samuel, for he was now an old man and had all his life judged them righteously; but, knowing that he was only the Lord's representative, he told Him all about it, as we should always do in all things. The Lord reminded Samuel that he was not the rejected one, but that the people had rejected Him and that Samuel was only sharing His rejection (chapter viii, 6-9). It is so still, for our Lord Jesus counts all treatment of His messengers as done to Himself (Matt. x, 24, 25, 40).

The Lord told Samuel to heed their request, but to protest and show them what manner of man the king would be. This he did in the six times "He will take" of chapter viii, 10-18. Notwithstanding the warning the people insisted that they must have a king. Samuel told the Lord their decision, and He told Samuel to make them a king (chapter viii, 19-22).

Whether it be in answer to our right or our wrong requests, it is often His way to do beyond our desires, and so He selected for them the finest looking man in all Israel—a choice young man, none goodlier and head and shoulders taller than any other (chapter ix, 1, 2; x, 23). Samuel did not need to look for him nor to have any anxiety as to finding the right man, for the Lord told him in his ear one day, "Tomorrow about this time I will send thee a man out of the land of Benjamin" (chapter ix, 15, 16). I like that expression, "told him in his ear," for it is a great thing to have an ear for God, an anointed ear to hear His voice, His only. The commonplace events which the Lord used to bring the unsuspecting man to Samuel are fully told in chapter ix, 3-14, and, if He thus wrought for an unbelieving man and a rebellious people, how much more will He work on behalf of His own, who truly desire to please Him! (Rom. viii, 32; Isa. xlviii, 17.)

The special lesson portion assigned us today begins with Saul approaching Samuel by the direction of the young maidens whom he met going out to draw water. How many Bible incidents there are associated with women drawing water, and how these maidens must have rejoiced a few days or weeks later that they had been used to direct the king to Samuel! There is a lot of comfort in the assurance that God worketh all things after the counsel of His own will and a whole lot more when we are willing to have Him work in and through us the good works He has prepared for us (Eph. i, 11; ii, 10). As Saul drew near to Samuel again the anointed ear heard the Lord's whisper: "Behold the man whom I spake to thee of! This same shall reign over my people" (verse 17). The words "Behold the man!" make us think of Zech. vi, 12, and John xix, 5, 24, the God-man, the King who shall yet rule over all Israel and over all nations forever. As the maidens were used to direct Saul to Samuel, so may we all be used to direct many "whosoevers" to Him who is ready to save them and share His kingdom with them.

Now we find Saul in the kind hands of Samuel at a surprise party, where he hears wonderful things which he never expected to hear and which all came to pass. He is the most honored guest. Samuel, knowing that God would do as He had said, had made every preparation and had invited these thirty people to meet him. After the feast Samuel communed with Saul, then cared for him overnight, in the morning again communed with him alone. The servant, having passed on, showed him the word of God, kissed him and anointed him captain over the Lord's inheritance. Saul's humility (verse 21) reminds us of that of Gideon (Judg. vi, 15), and well would it have been for him if he had continued thus humble. Note also his wise conduct toward his enemies in chapter x, 27, "He held his peace," or, as in the margin, "He was as though he had been deaf." Compare Ps. xxxviii, 13.

Chapter x, 7, is one of the most restful verses I ever found, "Do as occasion serve thee, for God is with thee." And the context teaches me that each morning, as I start the day, the Lord knows every one I shall meet and all that shall come my way. He orders all the circumstances, and I have only to fit in, not counting my own will or pleasure, but, seeing His hand in everything and saying a hearty "Even so, Lord," aim to glorify Him by patience and long suffering with joyfulness. As Joseph was able to say to those cruel brethren, "Not you, but God," so may we by His grace (Gen. xlv, 8).

THE GOLDEN FLEECE

An Ancient Method of Collecting the Precious Yellow Dust

In the legend of the golden fleece lies hidden the record of an ancient method of the Tibareni, the sons of Tubal, for the collection of gold. The north coast of Asia Minor produced large quantities of the precious metals as well as copper and iron. Gold was found in the gravel, as often happens still in streams draining from copper regions. The gold in copper ores, originally containing insignificant amounts of the precious metal, accumulates in the course of ages and sometimes forms placers of astonishing richness.

The ancient Tibareni washed the gold bearing gravel first by booming, which concentrated the gold into relatively small amounts of sand. This was then collected and washed through sluices having the bottoms lined with sheepskins. The gold would sink into the wool, while the sand would be washed away in the swift current, writes Courtenay de Kalb in the Mining Age.

The skins were removed from the sluices, the coarser gold shaken out, and the fleeces, still glittering with the yellow metal, were hung upon boughs to dry so that the rest of the gold might be beaten from them and saved. The early Greek mariners, witnessing this process, carried home tales of the wonderful riches of a land where a warlike race of miners hung golden fleeces upon the trees in the grove of Ares.

The natives of the country of Tubal Cain still cull the high grade copper ore and break it into smalls, which they cover with wood and roast to matte; they still work the matte in forgelike furnaces to black copper, which they ship to Alexandretta and to Euxine ports. They still make the famous carbonized iron that was celebrated as Damascus steel because it was distributed through this mart to the rest of the world after receiving a finish by local Damascene workmen.

"Dog Days."

How did the phrase "dog days" originate? It had its origin in ignorance and superstition. The ancient Romans called the six or eight hottest weeks of summer "caniculares dies." According to their theory, the dog star, or Sirius, rising with the sun, added to its heat, and the dog days bore the combined heat of the dog star and the sun. The time was from July 3 to Aug. 11. Some make the time to extend from July 15 to Aug. 20 and others from July 24 to about Sept. 1. Sirius, the dog star, was so called because it was the brightest star in the constellation canis major, or the greater dog.

Spartan Women.

Among the victims of the battle of Gumbinnen were the two grandsons of the famous Russian journalist, Katkoff.

It is related that when Mme. Katkoff was told her sons had fallen her first words were:

"Have we won the battle?"

Told yes, she said:

"Then I don't regret my sons' death, since they were useful to their country."

WOMEN WHO ARE ALWAYS TIRED

May Find Help in This Letter.

Swan Creek, Mich.—"I cannot speak too highly of your medicine. When through neglect or overwork I get run down and my appetite is poor and I have that weak, languid, always tired feeling, I get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it builds me up, gives me strength, and restores me to perfect health again. It is truly a great blessing to women, and I cannot speak too highly of it. I take pleasure in recommending it to others."—Mrs. ANNIE CAMERON, R.F.D., No. 1, Swan Creek, Michigan.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Hebron, Me.—"Before taking your remedies I was all run down, discouraged and had female weakness. I took Lydia E. Bottled Soda Water

A Cold Weather Delight

You drink Cold Water in winter. Why not Cold Soda Water?

Every member of your family needs soda water in winter even more than in summer, because the blood grows sluggish and the system becomes clogged with impurities because of lack of out-door exercise.

Liberal draughts of our delightful bottled beverages flush out the system, tone up the nerves, and digestion, and gives both health and happiness—especially to the children. Try a case. You will repeat the experiment. Be sure you get Knox's.

NEWS NOTES FROM KEENE

(Special Correspondence.)

Keene, March 3.—The following report is the list of the last three shipments made to the Red Cross Society at Toronto, by the Otonabee Patriotic Society:

Men's socks, 314 pair, bed socks 36 pair, scarfs 7, knee caps 5 pair, wristlets 54 pair, night shirts 13, hospital gowns 180, face cloths 24, handkerchiefs 23 dozen, clay shirts 16, kit bags 12, pneumonia jackets 12, pillows 2 pair, quilts 3, Balaclava caps 37, dressing gowns 2, bandage rolls 80, pyjamas 2 pair.

A splendid time was reported by those who attended the masquerade ball given by the manager of the skating rink, last Friday night.

On Friday evening, February 19th, about fifty of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wood gathered at their home to bid them farewell on the occasion of their leaving the farm, and on the eve of their departure for the west where they will travel for a time. During the course of the evening an address was read and Mrs. Wood was present with a surburst of pearls with guard, and Mr. Wood was given a club bag fully equipped, after which refreshments were served and the evening delightfully spent socially. The following address accompanied the gifts:— Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Wood, Dear Friend: It has been with a feeling of extreme sorrow, and regret, that we have learned of your approaching departure from among us. We feel that individually we are thus losing two of our best and most valued friends, and that as a community we are suffering a distinct loss. We wish you to know that we have appreciated more than words of our can express your ready sympathy for those in trouble, your readiness to help in every way possible those around you and for the way in which your influence has always been used to promote the best interests of the comunity as a token of the affection and esteem with which we have all learned to regard you. We ask you to accept this club bag and pearl pendant, we hope they may help to merind you of the many friends you are leaving behind you in Otonabee. We wish you every success and happiness in the future. You will be often in our thoughts, and we sincerely hope that at no distant time you will return to us again.

Signed,
D. A. Macfarlane.
William Rae.
W. T. Mather.

A number of the young ladies of the Rebekahs held a pink tea at their hall on Tuesday afternoon from 2 to 5 o'clock.

We were sorry to learn of Mrs. Stillman's little son falling from his cradle on Tuesday, breaking his left arm above the elbow.

Our senior hockey team journeyed to Marmora on Monday night where they were defeated in a good game by the score of 9 to 6.

The first and only carnival of the season will be held at the rink here on Friday night of this week, the 5th inst., when good prizes will be given to the best dressed, and fancy and comic costumes, also prizes will be given for a mile race, partners' race and races for boys and girls. See prizes at Peeling's hardware store. Doors opened at 7.30. The hockey boys hope the public will patronize this event.

The council met on Monday night and a goodly number of the citizens attended. A number of accounts were passed, including those for the removal of the recent big fall of snow, and some of the laborers engaged on that occasion are complaining of the smallness of the wage, $1.50 a day. The matter of the Havelock electric light street lighting came up. Manager Holdcroft claimed the town was getting better rates than Norwood or Tweed. Norwood, he said, paid $680 for 2,440 watts, or 61 lamps at 40 watts each. Tweed paid $1012 for 4,980 watts, while Havelock was paying $1080 for 5,620 watts. Councillors Lynch, Coon and Wright thought the local company was getting far too much money. Reeve Kindred and Councillor Scott thought it would be a big mistake to cut out the lights, even at present rates. Councillor Lynch made a motion that $60 a month was far too low, in fact prohibitive, after a long discussion, in which Councillor Wright declaimed against the company for not carrying out the improvements recommended by the Hydro Commission last year. Coun. Coon seconded Coun. Lynch's motion. Coun. Scott moved an amendment that the lighting rates be left as they are until after the conference with the Hydro engineer. Coun. Wright refused to second the amendment, and the motion carried. The council adjourned just as the lights went out, a token evidently that the local company do not intend to accept the offer of $60 a month.

Many Cuts In Wages.

Reports to the Dominion Labor Department show that many wage deductions took place all over the country in the last three months of 1914. At Ottawa the plasterers' pay was reduced from 55 to 45 cents per hour; at Orillia, Ont., unskilled labor wages declined from $2 and $2.25 to $1.50 and $1.75; day laborers at Lethbridge were paid $1 a day less than before; Hamilton teamsters were reduced 5c. an hour, and laborers at Berlin had their pay cut from 24 to 18 cents an hour; Victoria, B.C., reduced the wages of day laborers from $3 to $2, and of teamsters from $7 to $5; an Ottawa lumber company reduced the hours of 150 men from 54 to 48 per week; the salaries of Winnipeg stenographers were cut 20 per cent. in some cases; the salaries of domestics in Calgary were reduced from $25 and $30 to $10 and $15 per month; printers at Medicine Hat were reduced 20 per cent.; a cotton company at Three Rivers reduced the wages of 500 employes 15 per cent.

APPOINTMENT FOR ST. LUKE'S

Rev. W. H. White, Succeeds Rev. F. J. Sawers

The Bishop of Toronto has appointed Rev. W. H. White, M.A., to the rectorship of St. Luke's Anglican Church. Mr. White has been in charge at the church, since Rev. F. J. Sawers went to Cobourg. The call by the congregation was unanimous.

Rev Walter Henry White, M.A., was educated at Trinity College School, Port Hope, and afterwards at Trinity University during the time that Rev. Dr. Symonds, a former Rector of St. Luke's, was a professor there. He graduated with first-class honours in classics and philosophy, afterwards entering High School work as classical specialist at Picton. Later he became Master at Bishop Ridley College, St. Catharines. While there he was invited to become fellow and lecturer in classics at Trinity College, Toronto. Among those attending his lectures was Rev. F. J. Sawers. During his six years on the teaching staff of Arts Faculty he read for Holy Orders. He was ordained to the Priesthood by the late Archbishop Sweatman in 1899. In 1900 he went to London, England, where he spent two years in parish work in the south-east part of the great Metropolis. On returning to Canada he served as Vicar of Barrie until 1906, when he was offered and accepted the post of organizing missionary in the Diocese of Qu-Appelle. For seven years he was occupied in organizing the new settlers into congregations and parishes, selecting sites and building small churches in districts of Southern Saskatchewan, as they were opened to settlement by the building of railways.

Threatened with nerve strain, and obliged to retire from prairie work in the summer of 1913, he went to England, where he was engaged in work among the Surrey Hills, near London. Upon the outbreak of the war he offered his services as chaplain to the Canadian authorities in London, but was referred to Ottawa. He returned to Canada at Christmas time, to find the supply of Anglican chaplains far in excess of the demand.

During January Rev. Mr. White acted as locum tenens at Cobourg, coming here for February. Mrs. White, who is at present in Ottawa, expects to join her husband here at Easter, if not before.

War Affects Indians.

The annual report of the Department of Indian Affairs makes brief reference to the effect of the war upon Canada's aboriginal tribes. "The outbreak of hostilities in Europe," the report says, "would seem to be a circumstance very far removed from the life of the Canadian Indians, but it has affected them to a considerable degree. The war has interfered with the fur trade, as the European market for furs has disappeared for the time being. Under these conditions the results of the hunt, upon which so many of the Indians depend, are without appreciable value.

"The Indians are being advised," says the report, "to hunt for food. Instructions are being given to our agents, the Hudson Bay Co., and other traders, that the Department will issue twine and ammunition and a limited quantity of food staples to prevent starvation. The Mounted Police will also assist."

ATTACH NESTS TO TREES.

Dr. Hewitt of Ottawa Encourages Bird Cultivation.

As instance of the ravages of fashion among Canada's most beautiful birds, some enlightening figures were quoted by Dr. C. W. Hewitt, Dominion Entomologist, recently in a lecture.

Many of his figures were taken since the passing of the Plumage bill in both Canada and the United States, and show that much work must be done in England still. They are quoted from sales at the London market, the great centre for the world. In December, 1912, the plumage of 75,000 herons, February, 1913, 5,142 crowned pigeons, 5,321 white terns, June, 1913, 77,000 herons, 22,000 crowned pigeons, 25,000 humming birds, 162,000 kingfishers, June, 1914, 100,000 herons, 8,500 birds of paradise, 4,200 crested pigeons, 11,600 Japanese jays.

In his address Dr. Hewitt used lantern slides which illustrated among other things the terrible cruelty with which the aigrettes are secured from the heron, the mother bird being killed and the young left to die.

All Canadian birds should be preserved, said the speaker, for economic reasons. For instance the crow is invaluable in the destruction of army worms. All the common birds, the 20 species of native sparrows, swifts, and swallows are of tremendous importance in the destruction of weeds and insects.

Through the initiative of Dr. Hewitt, the Government at Ottawa has been interested to the extent of declaring Rockliffe Park the Experimental Farm, bird sanctuaries, wherein over 500 bird nests have been placed. Farmers should be encouraged to place these on their farms, and also to feed and give water to the birds during the winter.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

Omemee, March 4. — Those who failed to attend the concert given by the boys of the Omemee Hockey Club on Friday last, missed a real treat. The concert was one of high class features only. The boys worked hard and produced a concert which was well worth twice or even three times the price of admission. Mr. Melville Earle pleased the audience by his clever instrumentals at the beginning of each part of the program. The singers of the evening performed with their usual pleasing manner and were forced to respond to very generous applause. Mr. Southworth gave a splendid rendering of "The Boys from Ontario." Mr. C. Best has a splendid voice and pleased the people with "When Jack Comes Back." Mr. W. Brown made a hit with "Tip Top Tipperary Mary." The plays were all well presented. "A Swell Affair," a breezy skit, introduced Art Down as Michael and Hart Carrie as Ikey, created a laugh. The scene closed with a burlesque boxing bout which was a scream. "Wanted a Confidential Clerk," gave the performers a chance at representing many different characters. C. Mills as "John Dobbs" was a typical business man. Fred Mills as "John" the Irish office boy, was a show in himself. His Irish brogue was without criticism. Harold Cunningham as "Richard Sharp" was a genuine talkative young sport. The closing number "Dizzie's Dilemmas" was the feature of the evening. Fred Mills as Dizzy Hefty, a young man in hard circumstances, who over considerable money, was without equal. E. Woodruff as "Si Lee," Chinese laundryman, was the whole Chinese empire in himself. Hart Currie made a great uncle. "Hefty" and Art. Down as "Dolly" Supple was not half bad. Those who attended were delighted and those who did not are disappointed. The boys wish to thank those who attended for their very kind patronage and attention.

The young people of the Methodist Church will hold a concert on March 17, St. Patrick's Day. There will be refreshments served from different booths arranged to represent the allied nations. A splendid program will be provided.

Mr. D. A. Merner will return this week having partially recovered from his serious operation.

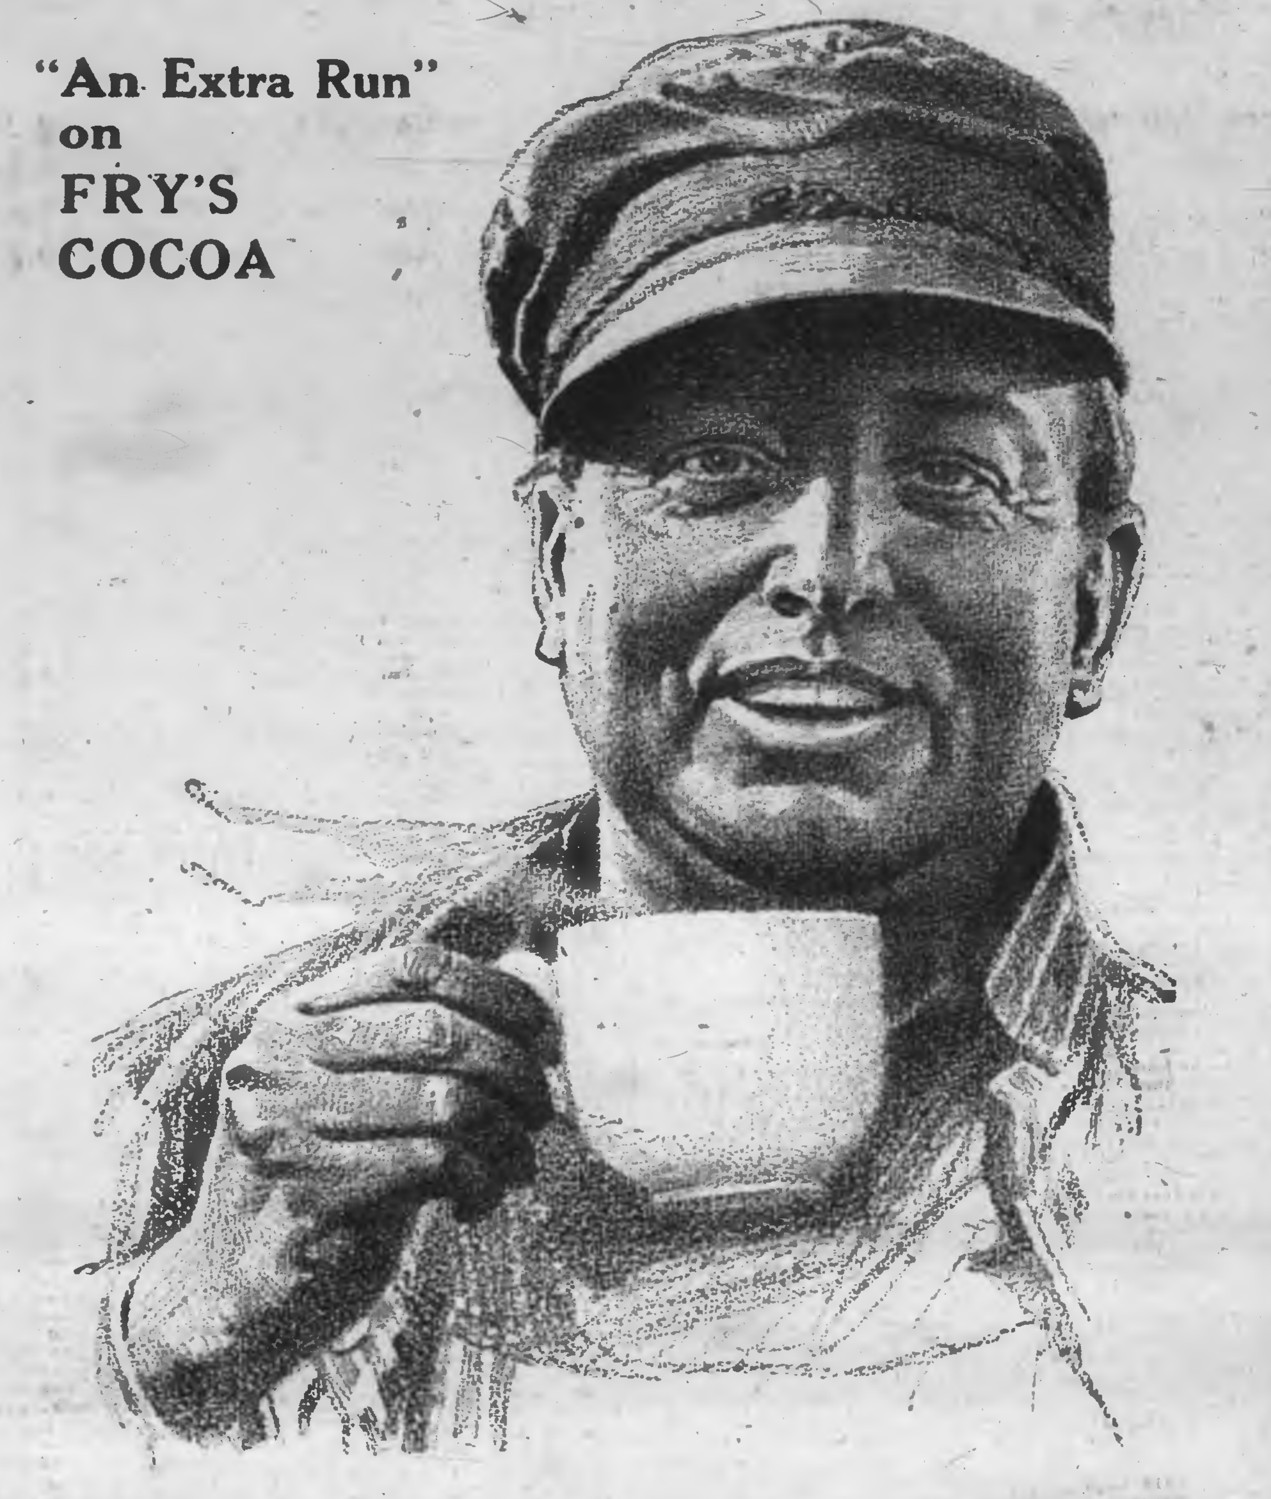
A great many young people took advantage of the good skating on the pond, all this week. The rink is in very poor shape but we hope that it will soon be ready again.

Watch for particulars of a patriotic concert sometime in the near future.

Several persons attended the Methodist Sunday School Convention held in Lindsay on Thursday last.

The banquet held in the Presbyterian Church on Wednesday, Feb. 24th, was a splendid success. Owing to the stormy night the attendance was somewhat small but what what the banquet lacked in numbers it made up in excellence. The ladies are to be commended upon the delightful repast which was so generously prepared. After luncheon the speakers of the evening thrilled the listeners with stirring addresses on live missionary topics. Mr. Armstrong spoke at some length on foreign missions and Mr. Manning on home missions. After the speeches a resolution was passed by which the laymen of the three denominations pledged themselves to support the laymen's forward movement for missions. Representative clergymen and laymen from each church were in attendance.

"An Extra Run" on FRY'S COCOA



RUNNING a big Mogul on schedule time is about as complete a brain, sinew and nerve test as a man could want. So when the order comes for "An Extra Run," that engineer is wise who fortifies himself with a cup of FRY'S COCOA. FRY'S, because it builds for "nerves of steel." It's such a splendid food as well as a delicious beverage.

OFFICERS ARE HURT IN FRANCE

Two Men Succumb to Their Injuries

OTTAWA, March 4.—The casualty list issued by the Militia Department last night officially confirms the news that Major Hamilton Gault of the Princess Pats has been wounded. One other officer of this regiment is reported wounded, and another is missing. Two deaths from wounds among other members of the contingent, and one wounded, are also reported.

The list follows:

Princess Patricia's Light Infantry—Wounded, March 1, Major Andrew Hamilton Gault; next of kin, Mrs. Hamilton Gault, 596 West Sherbrooke street, Montreal. March 1, Lieut. Colville Eyre Crabbe; next of kin, Miss E. Crabbe relationship not known), 59 West Grosvenor street, London, Eng. Missing, Lieut. William Gourlay Colquhoun; next of kin, Mrs. Colquhoun, Barton Lodge, Hamilton, Ont.

Second Battalion—Wounded, Lc.-Corpl. Fred Creckenton, gunshot wound in shoulder and neck; next of kin, Alice Creckenton, 31 Tibbatts road, Bromley-by-Bow, London, Eng.

Thirteenth Battalion — Died of wounds, Feb. 24, Pte. George William Eadie; next of kin, F. Mills, 84a Alywin street, Montreal.

Divisional Cyclist Company—Died of wounds, Feb. 24, Pte. A. P. Peattie (formerly 9th Battalion); next of kin, Mrs. Peattie, 20 Ednam street, Annan, Scotland.

Private advices received at Montreal yesterday were that Major A. H. Gault, who paid for the mobilization and equipment of the Princess Patricias, had been wounded in the arm while fighting with the regiment in France. Major Gault, who is head of the Gault Company, dry goods merchants of Montreal, is a graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston, and a keen military man. He is reputed to be a millionaire.

Imperial Government Approves Nickel Situation

TORONTO, March 4.—The exportation of nickel came up for a brief discussion in the Legislature yesterday.

Sam Carter (Lib., Wellington) claimed that the nickel taxes were too light. The companies were getting away with stupendous profits and robbing Ontario of rightful income. His suggestion was that the Imperial Government take over the whole business on a public ownership basis. The Federal Government had invested millions in helping the wool industry and here was a better cause.

Mr. Ferguson, in replying, stated that without going the radical distance of confiscation, they could not control the export. The situation was unique and experts claimed that home refinement was impossible if world markets were to be retained. Twice had the Imperial Government declined to recommend nickel control and now they assured Ontario that they were satisfied. The commission would report on all phases. Messrs. Bowman, Studholme, Proudfoot and Gamey joined in the discussion.

Placed in Prize Court.

NEW YORK, March 4. — Norvin R. Lindheim, attorney for the shippers of the cargo of the American steamship Wilhelmina, now detained at Falmouth, Eng., announced yesterday that he had received word from his representative abroad that a writ had been issued and served placing the cargo in a prize court.

SEVERE CHECKS BY RUSSIAN FORCES

Eight Thousand Prisoners, Including Sixty-Four Officers and Four Pieces of Artillery, Have Been Captured on the Lomnitza River---North Poland Advance Continues---Village of Kerjen is Captured.

LONDON, March 4.—News of an additional severe check of the main Austrian army in East Galicia was given out in Petrograd yesterday by the Russian War Office, which reported the capture of 8,000 prisoners, including 64 officers and four pieces of artillery, at the village of Krasna, in one day, and said that the operations were being continued. The Austrians were defending the passages of the Lomnitza river, but the Russian troops, steadily fighting, forced a crossing and occupied Krasna. The next day witnessed an Austrian debacle. Besides prisoners, artillery and rapid-fire guns, the Czar's troops took a large quantity of regimental and divisional trains.

Two German companies, 500 men, were enveloped and annihilated in the fighting around Koziouwka and Rojanka, in the Carpathians, between the Vistula and the San rivers. Formidable attacks were delivered by the Austrians and Germans in this arena, and were completely repulsed.

The general advance continues in North Poland with the Russians carrying by assault the village of Kerjen, on the left bank of the Amouleff river. Ten officers and a proportionate number of soldiers, with two machine guns were captured.

In their determination to relieve Przemysl and drive the Russians out of Galicia, the Austro-German armies, which for some weeks have been on the Galician side of the Carpathian Mountains, have during the last few days made repeated attempts to break through the Russian entrenchments, but without success.

Since Sunday last, when in massed formation they threw themselves against strong Russian troops holding strong positions, the Austro-Germans have attacked again and again in spite of the heavy losses this fighting entails.

Yesterday, according to the Russian official account, the Austrians delivered furious attacks between the San and Ondawa rivers, only to be thrown back, as they were in their previous efforts, while the Germans made several fruitless attempts around Koziouwka and Rojanka, at the latter point losing two companies, which were surrounded and annihilated.

No estimates have been published of the losses sustained by the Germanic armies in their efforts to break through the Russian lines at these places, but they are believed to have been very large, as the Russian positions were almost impregnable.

On the other extreme wing in North Poland the Germans have either assumed the defensive or are retiring, except at Ossowiec, where they continue to bombard the fortress. Berlin reports unofficially that at this point the Germans have succeeded in silencing two of the forts. Their attempt to approach the city, however, has been repulsed by the Russians.

The Germans, while claiming success near Augustowo, and the capture of 1,500 prisoners from among the Russian forces who tried to cross the Bobr river, are forced to admit that they have withdrawn their advance guards south of Myszyniec and that the Russians have been feeling their way forward to the northwest of Przasnysz.

The fact seems to be that the Russians are advancing along the whole northern line, but very slowly because of the mud, which impedes the movement of guns and transport wagons. They have been able to reinforce their armies at every threatened point and are now considered to be in as good a position as the Germans, who have left their railways behind them.

The French offensive in the Champagne region is the outstanding feature on the west front. The French have now reached the highest points on the heights north of Perthes and must be drawing near positions from which they will be able to shell the branch railway that runs to the rear of the German line and maintains communications between the German forces before Rheims and Verdun.

The following supplementary official statement was issued late last night by the French War Office:

"It can be stated that in the Argonne, where we had been constantly attacked since December, the roles in the last three weeks have been reversed. To-day we have gained the indisputable ascendancy. The effect is salutary in these local actions, of which the Argonne is the theatre, to feel the more and more the enemy is at our mercy and our moral superiority is assured.

"We have obtained this result by a series of limited operations energetically carried out, and although the German forces which confront us are extremely courageous, we feel that at a given point and moment we are masters and can do what we wish."

The statement gives the details of one of these engagements, which, it says, occur daily, and shows the splendid ardor of the troops.

Keep Old Flag Flying.

NEW YORK, March 4.—"I'll fly the British flag from here to hell, and I'll not take down that flag for any German submarine on the seas," declared Captain J. B. Ransom, of the White Star liner Baltic, just before his ship sailed yesterday for Liverpool. While Captain Ransom was thus declaring himself stevedores were loading forty armored automobiles, consigned to the British army. The cargo included 18,000 tons of war supplies. The merchandise and foodstuffs on board would fill 1,500 freight cars.

BEHAVED GALLANTLY

First, Second and Third Brigades at the Front Says Gen. Hughes.

OTTAWA, March 4.—The House adjourned at 6 o'clock to permit members to attend the reception at Government House, and the budget debate made little progress. Upon the orders of the day, E. M. MacDonald asked the Minister of Militia for some authoritative statement respecting the whereabouts of the first Canadian contingent and the casualties so far reported.

General Hughes said in reply that the 1st, 2nd and 3rd Brigades with the artillery were at the front and had behaved with great gallantry under fire.

Mr. Stevens (Vancouver) concluded his speech of yesterday on the budget, defending the Government against charges of extravagance. It had been objected, he said, that we were still maintaining a large and expensive staff of immigration officials, although immigration has practically ceased. Those officials, however, were on duty at every port of entrance in Canada, keeping a sharp lookout for spies and other alien enemies.

Mr. McCoig (West Kent) complained of the policy of the Government with respect to the purchase of horses. A maximum price of $175 had been fixed in Ontario and farmers were not allowed to export to the United States, where the British and French buyers were paying $217. Mr. McCoig complained that not a single member of the Government could be considered as a representative of the agricultural or laboring classes. They had, therefore, brought down a tariff which would bear heavily upon the farmers.

Mr. Wilcox (Essex) adjourned the debate.

Had Enrolled Under Another Name.

LONDON, March 4.—The mystery as to the identity of Capt. Robert Mansfield, of the Princess Patricia Regiment, reported in The Times to have been killed on Jan. 26, and whose name does not appear in the roster of the regiment, has been explained. An official list of the casualties makes it known that he was enrolled in the regiment as Lieut. Frederick Fitzgerald, whose next of kin lives in India, and whose death was recorded at the time.

Montreal Italians Demand Work.

MONTREAL, March 3.—Five hundred out-of-work Italians yesterday marched to the City Hall and asked for work. The City Hall and approaches to it were filled with police though the members of the procession were most orderly. Getting no satisfaction, the Italians laid their case before the Italian authorities.

DR. ROBINSON SAYS HE WAS FORCED TO OPERATE

Blanche Yorke Came to Him in a Dangerous Condition From Hemorrhage and He Operated in Order to Save Her Life, But Failed.

His Story is Corroborated by Testimony of Experts.

NAPANEE, Ont., March 4. — Dr. C. K. Robinson, of Tamworth, charged with the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke in that village in the month of July last, went into the witness box in his own defence here yesterday and confessed that the woman died in his bedroom about 1.30 on the morning of July 9; that he subsequently lost control of himself, and after attempting to conceal all evidence of her death, cut off the legs and buried the body in the cellar of his house. Her death, he said, was the result of a hemorrhage. She came to his home at 8.15 bleeding and suffering pains. He treated her and she started home, but returned about 10.30, bleeding worse than ever. The doctor said he saw she was about to have a miscarriage and took the only course possible and led her to his own bedroom to attend her.

He found complications which forced him to have recourse to immediate delivery.

"I stayed alone with her, trying everything in my power to save her life, but she became unconscious and died in the night," stated the young doctor in the witness box.

He told the court he had used no instruments whatever on the girl.

Again the court was packed to capacity, but at noon, when the large crown refused to leave the building during the intermission, each in fear he would not be one of the lucky ones to regain admission, Mr. Justice Sutherland ordered the room cleared.

A new and startling piece of evidence introduced in the morning was that of Provincial Inspector William Greer, who testified to finding a torn letterhead of Dr. Wilson of Tamworth between the bodies of the mother and child where they lay buried in the cellar.

Everybody, even Defence Counsel Robinette, was surprised at the announcement of this strange find, and afterwards admitted to the court that its introduction was the first he had known of its existence.

Robinson in the stand said he never saw it before and never had one of Dr. Wilson's letterheads in his possession.

Defence Counsel Robinet and Herrington put in the witness box two expert surgeons who backed up in practically every detail of Robinson's surgical proceedings over the dead girl. The court was visibly impressed by the practitioner's emphatic statements that his treatment and attempted operation was regular in every particular, and that if the conditions he said he had to deal with really existed the operation might easily have been unsuccessful with any physician.

Referring to Dr. Robinson's statement, that he was completely unnerved by the girl's death, Mr. Robinette asked Dr. J. W. Campbell, of Kingston, what he imagined would be the mental condition of a physician after undertaking and failing in the treatment administered by Robinson.

"Well, as near as I can imagine, it is getting pretty close to hell itself," was the startling and emphatic reply.

It was nearly 4 o'clock in the afternoon when Mr. Robinette called Dr. Robinson from the prisoner's box to testify in his own defence. Owing to a crowd at the outlet of the dock, Robinson had to climb a little railing, and he nimbly leaped over it and walked confidently into the witness box.

Instantly every court room whisper died out, and Robinson's footsteps on the carpet sounded in the hush like the bang of a hammer. While he advanced to the box his young wife's head bowed still lower, but the eyes of his sister and other relatives, who have stuck alongside the young doctor all through the trial, followed his every movement.

Prosecutor Hutcheson put Dr. Robinson through a severe cross-examination, lasting over three-quarters of an hour, but he did not shake the physician in any of his previous statements in the least.

At 6 o'clock in the evening, all the evidence was in and to-day the opposing counsel will address the jury. A verdict may be reached by to-night.

ROBBED SAFE TO PAY TUITION

Minister-to-be is Shot by Night Watchman

ROCHESTER, N.H., March 4.—While trying to rob the office safe of the Gonic Manufacturing Co. at Gonic, a suburb of this city, Walter Marison, aged 23, a Boston theological student, was shot and probably fatally wounded by Adelbert Lyte, a substitute night watchman at the mills, after a desperate struggle.

Marison, who has been preaching in New Hampshire towns while on his vacation, when told by physicians that he could not live a few hours, confessed he was after money, saying he needed it to pay his divinity school tuition.

To Pass Relief Ships.

THE HAGUE, Netherlands, March 4.—(Via London.) — The German Government yesterday informed the American Minister to the Netherlands that arrangements had been made to grant safe passage through the naval war zone to American relief ships bearing supplies for the people of Belgium.

The German Government will at once ask the American Ambassador at Berlin to explain to the British Government that only such ships as are really engaged in this service may carry the commission's marks.

"Germany, however, cannot grant safe conduct for the commission's ships to and from England," it is stated.

BRITAIN NAILS ANOTHER LIE

Gives Vigorous Denial to German Falsification

WASHINGTON, March 4. — A statement was issued last night by the British embassy, denying that Great Britain had declared all English harbors to be fortified places, and that women and children had been interned in civilian camps in Great Britain. The statement follows:

"The statement of the German Government in recent announcements to the effect that his Majesty's Government had declared all English harbors to be fortified places and naval ports, is wholly untrue. The object of circulating this statement is probably to offer an excuse to neutral powers for recent attacks on the civil population, and for contemplated operations of an illegal character against merchant shipping in British waters.

"The British embassy are authorized to declare that statements that have recently appeared implying that women and children were at any time interned in civilian camps in Great Britain are devoid of all foundation."

SELF ACCUSED

By M. QUAD.

I had been practicing law in the town of Lancaster for about four years when James Higgins, merchant, was murdered. According to the testimony of his wife, they were aroused at midnight by a noise downstairs, and he went down to investigate. She heard angry words, followed by a shot, and, giving the alarm, it was found that the husband had been shot through the heart.

The first suspect arrested was the hostler at the barns of one of the hotels. He had been seen on the streets at midnight; he was known to have a pistol; he betrayed many signs of guilt when arrested. I was employed in his defense and after half an hour's talk with him came to the conclusion that he was guilty. He didn't admit his guilt, but at the same time he didn't deny it with the warmth expected of an innocent man. It was an accident altogether that I made a series of discoveries. This man planned with another to break open the passenger depot and rob the safe. They had been surprised in their work by a tramp, and the hostler was afraid to talk to me or any one else of the murder case for fear of being found out in the lesser crime. When once I had the things straightened out it did not take long to upset the case of the police. I had scarcely done this when I was upset myself.

A building contractor named Otis came to me to make a confession. He had reasons to suspect that Higgins had ruined his home, and when there was no longer any doubt in his mind he had determined to kill the man.

I went to work on the case, but was bowled over at the very outset. Mrs. Otis declared in the most emphatic way that she had never spoken a dozen words to Higgins and her husband had never intimated that he had the slightest cause for jealousy of any man, and, better than all, she could prove that from 10 o'clock in the evening until two hours after midnight on the night of the murder he was home and in bed and quite ill. This she did prove by two witnesses. Otis had told me a purely imaginative story, and he stuck to it for several days, but at length denied everything. There were those who said he was "off" in his head, but he talked and acted as a sane man and returned to his business as soon as released.

The police now returned to their first theory. The deed had surely been done by some one who had entered the house for plunder. After some days they arrested a saloonkeeper in a town some five miles away, claiming to have a straight case against him, and the man had been under arrest three or four days when I came into the case again. A young man named Salters, who was a student of the state normal school, came to my house at 10 o'clock at night to make a confession. He was the murderer of Higgins. Higgins had accidentally got hold of some love letters which the young man had written and had refused to give them up for less than $100. Not having the money to pay and being rendered desperate, he had gone to search the house at night. Salters told of the conversation when Higgins came down the stairs—how he got in and got out and all the details. I advised him to go to the police, and, as in the other case, they locked him up and felt sure that they had at last got the right man.

I was not retained by young Salters, who said that he would make no defense, but I set out to clear up a few points to satisfy my own curiosity. I was not long in ascertaining that he was not in love with any girl and had never been known to write a love letter, also that he was in a town twenty miles away on the night of the murder. When these facts became known to the police they had to drop their case, though Salters protested to the last that he was guilty.

There was one more instance, and it partook of the ridiculous at once. A one legged man named Wells, a resident of the town, gave himself up to the police as the murderer. He claimed to be a somnambulist and that the deed was done while he was asleep. He didn't think he ought to be punished, but he wanted to be tried and acquitted. Not one true statement did he make in his story, and he was told to take his leg and get out.

The hunt for the true criminal was kept up for a year, but he was never discovered. The police were no doubt right in the first theory. The man entered the house for plunder, and, being discovered, if not attacked, he fired the fatal shot and then escaped. It is more than likely that he was a stranger in the town.

You will naturally ask why those people charged themselves with the crime when they were not the least bit guilty. A physician could probably give you a clearer answer. My theory is that they had an intense argument with themselves how the crime was committed or how they would have committed it if they actually did commit it. Such cases are rare, and it must be for some such reason that courts often refuse to accept a plea of guilty and give the accused a fair trial for his life and liberty. There are people, as every lawyer and detective knows, who are anxious to be witnesses in a case and will perjure themselves on the stand without seeming to be aware of it, and it is carrying out this singular line of conduct or train of thought that one may come to accuse himself.

"Well," said his father, "if it's so wonderful down there what did you drag me up here for?"—Everybody's.

Salute of the Sword.

The sword salute of military officers has two meanings. The first position, with the hilt opposite the lips, is a survival of the crusader's action of kissing the cross hilt of his sword in token of faith, and the lowering of the point is a token of friendship, implying that it is not necessary to be on guard.

EARL OF ABERDEEN HAS WON PLACE IN HEARTS OF ERIN

Former Canadian Governor-General Who Still Owns a Ranch in Canada and is Keenly Interested in the Affairs of the Dominion, Has Had a Successful Administration in Ireland.

Since the Act of Union came into force on January 1st, 1801, by which Ireland, like Scotland, was ruled by a common Parliament, the Emerald Isle has passed through many vicissitudes, and on the shoulders of the successive viceroys who have ruled at Dublin has fallen the arduous task of conciliating the proud Irish spirit, removing much bitter feeling, and fostering that fraternity which exists between the two countries to-day. And if a plebiscite were taken, there is no doubt that the name of Earl of Aberdeen, former governor-general of Canada, who will resign his position in February, would figure as the most popular representative of the sovereign who has occupied the castle at Dublin.

"His Ex.," as he is commonly referred to, first gained the good-will of the Irish people by the sympathetic and enthusiastic manner in which he entered into their interests when he first became Lord Lieutenant in 1886." This was when he was appointed by Mr. Gladstone, and when six months later the statesman was driven from office Lord Aberdeen paid a visit to Australia, and received an enthusiastic reception from the Irish residents in Melbourne, Sydney, and other big cities.

It was while in Melbourne that an incident characteristic of his lordship occurred. He was present at a concert at which Mme. Melba was the principal artiste, and his lordship, finding that the National Anthem was omitted from the program, and that at the close of the concert the audience were preparing to depart without that expression of loyalty being given effect to, jumped to his feet and in his clear voice commenced singing the first line of "God Save the Queen." The effect was electrical. The audience bounded to their feet with uncovered heads and swelled the chorus, clearly showing that the omission was not of their choosing.

In Canada, where he was Governor-General from 1893 to 1898, the Earl of Aberdeen is as popular as he is in Ireland or Australia. Indeed, the Canadians almost count him as one of themselves. He acquired a fine ranch, of which he is still owner, and his position in that respect has more than once been responsible for the suggestion that he should be elected to the Parliament of the Dominion.

Lord Aberdeen has, however, on more than one occasion confessed that his love lies in Ireland, where he finds full occupation for his energies. And not a little of his popularity in the Emerald Isle is due to the fact that he enters fully into the pleasures and pursuits of the Irish people. For instance, he dearly loves a dance, and although, as befits a viceroy, he only joins in quadrilles at the state balls given in Dublin, he foots it right merrily at the small informal dances. Indeed, in an age when young men are too blase to dance, it is a pleasure to watch Lord Aberdeen joining in a polka with the zest of a schoolboy.

On one occasion an attractive tune was played by the band, and Lord Aberdeen with a youthful partner commenced with the first bars and never paused until the end, when to the surprise of the guests he called out "Go on!" to the musicians, and without a moment's rest danced the entire encore through from start to finish.

Lord Aberdeen is a man of many hobbies and accomplishments. He is a skilled landscape gardener, quite an expert engine-driver—as a boy he took delight in traveling on the engines of the local railway, often acting as fireman—and plays a good round of golf. He is thoroughly democratic, and is idolized by his tenants in consequence. Two of his sons, the late Hon. Archibald Gordon and the Hon. Dudley Gordon, who, like their father, love all things mechanical, were apprenticed to a big shipbuilding firm, and used to go to work at six every morning, leading the life of ordinary apprentices, and submitting cheerfully to all sorts of rules and regulations.

Lady Aberdeen, who is a daughter of the first Lord Tweedmouth, has long been noted for her philantrophy, and has identified herself with all manner of educational and charitable reforms, being particularly active in combating consumption in Ireland.

The story of how Lord Aberdeen became acquainted with his wife is not without interest. When a young man he visited a shooting lodge in the Highlands. One day his host could not accompany him, and, being alone, he wandered unknowingly on to a neighboring estate. He was tramping along, gun on shoulder, when a gentleman asked him if he was trespassing. "Oh, no," replied Lord Aberdeen; "I am the guest of So-and-so." "Very probably," replied the stranger, "but you are on my property now."

Lord Aberdeen, of course, apologized profusely, and handed him his card. The owner of the soil was Mr. Marjoribanks, afterwards Lord Tweedmouth, and he promptly invited the trespasser to lunch with him. The invitation was accepted, and Lord Aberdeen met Miss Isabel Marjoribanks, who ultimately became Lady Aberdeen.

Tribute to Cotton

Henry W. Grady, the silver tongued orator of the south, once pronounced this eulogy upon the cotton plant:

"What a royal plant it is! The world waits in attendance on its growth. The showers that fall whispering on its leaves are heard around the earth. The sun that shines upon it is tempered by the prayers of all the people. The frosts that chill it and the dews that descend from the stars are noted, and the trespass of a little worm upon its green leaf means more to England and to English homes than the advance of a Russian army upon her Asian frontier. It is gold from the time it puts forth its tiniest shoot. Its foliage decks the somber earth in emerald sheen. Its blossoms reflect the brilliant hues of sunset skies in southern climes and put to shame the loveliest rose, and when loosing its snowy fleece to the sun it floats a banner that glorifies the field of the humble farmer.

"Its fiber is current in every bank in all the world. Its oil adds luxury to lordly banquets in noble halls and brings comfort to lowly homes in every clime. Its flour gives to man a food richer in health producing value than any the earth has ever known, and a curative agent long sought and found in nothing else. Its meal is feed for every beast that bows to do man's labor from Norway's frozen peaks to Africa's parched plains.

"It is a heritage that God gave to this people when he reached the skies, established our mountains, girded us about with oceans, tempered the sunshine and measured the rain—ours and our children's forever and forever—and no princelier talent ever came from his omnipotent hand to mortal stewardship."

Wisdom From Thomas.

The thoughtful look on young Thomas' face betrayed that he had a few questions to ask. As soon as Mrs. Boardman had gone he asked them.

"Mother," said he, "do you like to kiss Mrs. Boardman?"

"No, dear."

"Do you think Mrs. Boardman likes to kiss you?"

"I don't think she does."

"Then why do you and she always kiss when you meet?"

"I don't know, dear."

"Don't you think Mrs. Boardman would rather you didn't kiss her?"

"I have no doubt of it."

"Wouldn't you rather Mrs. Boardman didn't kiss you?"

"Oh, very much rather."

"Then," said young Thomas conclusively, "that must be why."—New York Times.

Buckwheat—85c to 88c car lots, outside.

Manitoba flour—First patents, $8 in jute bags; second patents, $7.50 in jute bags; strong bakers', $7.30; in cotton bags 10c more.

Ontario flour—Winter, 90 per cent. patents, $6.05 to $6.10, seaboard, in bulk; $6.25 to $6.30, bags included, Toronto freights.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-pound sacks, in car lots, $2.20; in small lots, $2.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 3.—The market during the first two hours of business was very nervous and unsettled, May in that time showing a range of 4⅝c, July 4¼c, while October fluctuated 1⅝c.

There was more activity in the cash department, and fair sales of No. 3 northern wheat were put thru, presumably for export delivery for opening of navigation. Good sales of low grades of oats were also made.

Prices closed higher following extremely nervous conditions.

Wheat futures closed ⅞c to 1⅜c higher, cash ⅞c to 1c higher; oats ⅜c to ⅝c up, and flax ⅝c to ⅝c up.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 3.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 1007 cattle, 2096 hogs, 198 sheep and 227 calves.

The bulk of the cattle offered as fat were common to medium, and the prices paid were good.

Stockers and feeders, of which there were a few sales made, sold at unchanged quotations.

Milkers and springers were in demand, and considering the quality of those on sale good prices were paid. The values ranged from $50 to $85 for the bulk.

Veal calves were plentiful and prices were 50c easier.

Sheep and lambs were firm, but the quality of the lambs was not good enough to bring Tuesday's prices.

Hogs were again firmer by 10c to 15c per cwt.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice steers $7.50 to $7.75, and four extra quality sold at $8; choice butchers' cattle, 1000 to 1200 lbs., at $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers, $7 to $7.25, medium, $6.80 to $6.90, common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.25; good cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $5 to $5.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50; bulls, $5.25 to $6.60.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 700 to 800 lbs., sold at $5.80 to $6; medium feeders at $5.25 to $5.75; stockers at $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

A moderate supply of milkers and springers sold at steady values, ranging from $50 to $85 each.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $11.50; good, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50; common, $5 to $5.50; eastern calves, $4 to $6.

Sheep and Lambs.

Choice light lambs sold at $10 to $10.40; heavy lambs at $9 to $9.50; light sheep at $6.50 to $7.25; heavy sheep at $5 to $5.50.

Hogs.

Hogs sold at slightly higher prices. Selects, weighed off cars, $8.10 to $8.15, and $8.65 to $8.95.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 3.—At the C.P.R. live stock market cattle were firm owing to small offerings and the fair demand to fill actual wants. There were no choice steers for sale, and the top prices paid were $7 to $7.25 for good steers, and the lower grades sold from that down to $5.75 per cwt. Butchers' cows brought from $4.50 to $6, and bulls from $4.50 to $6.50, while canning stock sold at $3.50 to $3.75 per cwt.

There was no further change in the market for sheep and lambs, but the feeling is firm, with a continued demand and small offerings, and sales of Ontario lambs were made at $9, and Quebec at $8.50 to $8.75, while sheep brought from $4.50 to $6 per cwt. Hogs were weaker, and prices declined 10c to 20c per cwt., with sales of selected lots at $8 to $8.25, and heavy weights at $7.75 per cwt., weighed off cars. The supply of calves was somewhat larger, for which there is an active demand, and sales were made at $5 to $16 each.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 3.—Cattle—Receipts, 11,000; market firm. Beeves, $5.75 to $9.15; cows and heifers, $3.50 to $7.70; calves, $6.50 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 30,000; market higher; light, $6.45 to $6.70; mixed, $6.45 to $6.75; heavy, $6.30 to $6.65; rough, $6.30 to $6.35; pigs, $5.75 to $6.75; bulk of sales, $6.60 to $6.70.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 18,000; market weak; native, $7 to $7.90; yearlings, $7.75 to $8.65; lambs, native, $7.75 to $9.35.

EARLY BANK RUNS.

The Dutch Fleet in the Thames Started One in London in 1669.

The first run of which we have any account in the history of banking occurred in the year 1667. It was quickly stopped. At that date the bankers of England were the goldsmiths, who had a short time before begun to add banking to their ordinary business and had become very numerous and influential.

In 1669 the Dutch fleet sailed up the Thames, blew up the fort at Sheerness, set fire to Chatham and burned some ships of the line. This created the greatest consternation in London, especially among those who had intrusted their money to the bankers, for it was known that the latter had advanced large sums to the king for public purposes, and it was rumored that now the king would not be able to pay the money. To quell the panic a royal proclamation was issued to the effect that payments by the exchequer to the bankers would be made, as usual.

In 1671 there was another run on the London banks, when Charles II. shut up the exchequer and refused to pay the bankers either principal or interest of the money which they had advanced. On this occasion many of the banks and their customers were ruined.—London Standard.

Ten Stick Island.

In the Southwest bay, in the New Hebrides group, there is a small wooded island of considerable height above the sea, although only a few hundred yards in circumference. The story of its acquisition is a curious one. Southwest bay used to be considered a good place for target practice by the British men of war on patrol duty there, and this small islet was used as a target so frequently that it seemed in danger of being gradually shot away. The chief who owned it protested and wanted compensation. The captain of a man-of-war who understood the natives knew that these claims would be a ceaseless source of blackmail unless they were settled once for all, so he bought the island for the British crown, paying ten sticks of tobacco for it, and every one was satisfied. The place since then has been known as "Ten Stick Island."—London Standard.

Isn't a Loaf Always Bread?

"How is Robert getting on at college?" asked the minister, who was being entertained at dinner.

"Splendidly," said the proud father, who then went on to tell of his son's various social, athletic and scholastic successes, and the minister said it was a fine thing to be college bred.

That evening little James, who had been an interested listener, said, "Papa, what did Mr. Brown mean by 'college bred?'"

"Oh, that," said papa, who had been looking over his son's bills, "is a four years' loaf."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Scotch of Danzig.

One of the largest Scottish colonies of the continent formerly existed at Danzig. In the last decade of the fourteenth century a number of Scottish knights journeyed to Danzig to help in the crusade of the Teutonic order against the Lithuanian heathens, and one of the city gates—now known as the Hohe Thor—was christened the Douglas Thor, after Lord William Douglas, who was slain there.—London Spectator.

PAID TO GET THE GOODS.

Consequently He Felt That They Were His by Right.

A claim once made on the explorer Cameron in the neighborhood of Gaboon, Africa, shows the weirdly peculiar workings of the native African's mind. Some of Cameron's possessions proved unduly attractive to a native, and he determined on transferring the ownership to himself. He accordingly paid another native $200 to procure for him the coveted goods.

The assistant took the money and did his best to earn it, but Mr. Cameron had perversely locked up the very articles that the fellow's employer had set his heart upon. The man could not carry out his bargain, and neither did he feel that he could part with the money. Therefore he ran off with it.

What more logical than that the man who was the loser by $200 should expect the explorer to make the loss good? This he assuredly did expect.

He went to Mr. Cameron and told him the story, demanding in the first place the $200 which he (Cameron) by locking up his goods had compelled the complainant to lose and, secondly, the actual price of the goods themselves, which but for these arbitrary measures would now have been in his possession. It is not stated that his expectations were realized.—London Spectator.

Damascus.

It is estimated that at least 20,000 pilgrims pass through the city of Damascus each year. They are material to the financial welfare of the ancient city, spending in the neighborhood of $500,000 for goods of every kind. Damascus is busy, and the people are industrious. Nearly everything actually needed by the native is made there, and there is a surplus sufficient to supply a large surrounding territory and the pilgrims and visitors who pass that way. In this respect Damascus has not changed in hundreds of years. It has always been a maker and distributer of food and raiment.—Argonaut.

WADDELL QUARTETTE WON SECOND PRIZE AT OSHAWA

Both Primary and Consolation Events at Campbellford Won by Peterborough Rinks

Skip R. M. Waddell's rink returned to the city this morning with silk umbrellas, emblematic of second prize in the consolation of the Oshawa bonspiel. The local curlers speak very highly of the hospitality of the brithers at Oshawa and say the bonspiel was very successful. While it was impossible to give the visiting curlers hard ice for the opening games of the bonspiel, the Oshawa club took their coats off and worked with might and main when the temperature lowered and this brought greatly improved playing conditions.

The Brandon rink from the Toronto Aberdeens won the final duel with Waddell last evening. It was a one-point victory and the last shot decided the game. It was the Brandon rink that won the Seeman trophy at the Collingwood bonspiel this winter.

The Peterborough rink was T. Brightman, Jas. Skinner, Geo. Benore and R. M. Waddell. Skinner who was playing second stone could not remain and Herb Martin substituted for the last three games. The local rink had a big day of it yesterday having played a total of forty ends.

The primary final was won by Sanders of Stouffville, who won the consolation last winter.

In the first round of the primary Waddell defeated McLaughlin of Colborne, 9-8, while Martin was 13 shots down against Ellis of Oshawa. Telford of Cobourg put Waddell out in the second round by one shot, the score being 12-11. In the Consolation, Martin lost to Walton of Oshawa by two shots and Waddell defeated Besse of Claremont by one shot. The third round saw Waddell a winner again, this time over Ellis of Oshawa by three shots. Another three point victory came to the locals in the fourth round, in a game against Empringham of Toronto Aberdeens.

Two Wins at Campbellford.

At Campbellford, both Peterborough rinks were successful, skip Fitzgerald winning the primary event and skip Sturgeon the consolation. Sturgeon had a 14 point margin over Cole of Campbellford in the consolation final, the score being 22 to 8.

The rinks were:—

Primary winners—A. Archibald, R. Best, H. oster, J. E. A. Fitzgerald, skip.

Consolation winners—P. Fitzgerald, Geo. Hill, A. Moore, R. Sturgeon, skip.

WIARTON AND ORILLIA IN INTERMEDIATE O. H. A. FINALS.

Wiarton will know that they have been to the races before they defeat Orillia in the intermediate finals. The Orilla squad are a good, husky crew, with a good, sound defence, and plenty of method to their attack. Their two and three-man attack with a trailer is always dangerous, and they have adopted the professional habit of quick back-passing with the man who makes the pass dodging out of the road of the shot and doubling back for the rebound.

The first game will be played at Orillia tonight with Lou Marsh as referee. The return game as Wiarton will be played next Wednesday and Dr. Gilfillan of Uxbridge will be the official in charge.

HONUS WAGNER

The Poor Beneficiary.

Some nations were fighting fiercely

"Why are you fighting so?" inquired the bystanders, moved at length to curiosity.

"To save civilization," replied the nations severally.

Here a draggled figure rose from the mire under the feet of the combatants and limped lamely away.

"And who are you?" asked the by standers, with a disposition to get to the bottom of the matter.

"Don't speak to me! I'm Civilization!" the figure made answer, somewhat pettishly.—New York Post.

BEN BEEBE WILL BE WITH LONDON CLUB NO MORE

Big Right Hander Has not the Necessary Nerve

London, March 4.—The announcement that Manager Reisling intends to get rid of Ben Beebe, the big right hánder of the London Club, may come as a surprise to those fans who have seen Beebe in action, and know the amount of speed and curves he can put on the ball. When Beebe came to the London Club near the end of the season of 1913, he made a great showing and looked to be billed for the big leagues. His performances of last season were not half as promising, however, and this year Reisling does not want to bother with him.

Beebe was probably the most unpopular player with his teammates that ever donned a London uniform. Not a member of the London Club last season had a good word for him. He had the name of quitting whenever the opposing team got a couple of runs ahead of him or whenever one of the men behind him made an error. It got so bad finally that few of the London players would do their best when he was in the box. Beebe was never strong for taking his regular turn in the box, either. He always wanted two or three days' rest after pitching a game. He would seldom go in as a relief pitcher, particularly if the other club was a strong hitting one.

In a game at Ottawa last summer, he held the Senators without a score for seven innings, then he let them get seven runs in the eighth just because somebody made an error on an easy chance at the beginning of the inning. Beebe lacks the nerve to be a good pitcher and this is one reason why he never got into the big league. He had a world of stuff on the ball and speed to burn, but once the other team started to hit him he went up in the air completely. Cleveland had a string on him for several seasons but after sending him to Omaha, Charleston, Chillicothe and London without him showing any sign of getting over his lack of confidence in himself, they passed him up. The London Club has also decided to pass him up.

GOTCH DIDN'T FORGET.

Gets Back at Mayor Harrison of Chicago for Insult in 1913.

Chicago, March 4.—Because of an alleged insult hurled at him by Mayor Carter H. Harrison in 1913, Frank Gotch, world's wrestling champion, turned down an invitation to appear at a demonstration held in the Colliseum to boost the Mayor's candidacy for re-election.

In response to a telegram from the Mayor's secretary, asking him to attend the demonstration, Gotch replied:

"Mayor Harrison, in July, 1913, stated through an evening paper that he would never permit me to wrestle in Chicago again. Owing to this statement, I must decline the Mayor's invitation."

ALL-STARS FROM EAST AND WEST

Interesting Conflict of Juniors on March 13

Toronto, March 4.—The annual junior all-star O.H.A. game, East versus West, will be played at the Arena on Saturday night, March 13 and will likely wind up the local hockey season. This game creates a great deal of interest throughout the province, as it brings together the finest players in Ontario in this series. This season has been an excellent one for the development of new material, and a number of stars have been turned out among the O. H. A. teams. There will naturally be much speculation as to the personnel of the teams, and the selections will be noted with the greatest interest. So as to equalize the teams, the East team will consist of Toronto and eastern players, while the West team will be composed of western and northern players.

GRAND OPERA PURCHASED BY OTTAWA MEN

New Owners Have Plenty of Stakes for Famous Pacer

OTTAWA, March 4.—Announcement is made that Messrs. T. H. Brownlee and Company and Mr. P. B. Moyle had purchased the famous Canadian pacer, Grand Opera, 2.05¼. At the time of the Hull Driving Club's ice race meet in February there was a deal on between Messrs. Moyle and Brownlee to purchase Grand Opera from the owner, Mr. F. J. Daley of Peterborough. It fell through after Grand Opera had paced the fastest mile over the ice this winter, namely, 2.13¼. However, negotiations were reopened last week, with the result that the sale was completed yesterday. The sale price was not announced, but Owner Daley has shippel Grand Opera to Ottawa, and the great speeder will be turned over to Mr. Brownlee and Driver Jack Neville. The deal is one of the most important of the year in harness horse circles.

Grand Opera, according to Mr. Brownlee, will be staked along the Canadian and Lake Erie Associations during the coming summer. The new owners have found no fewer than 27 stakes at $1000 each in which the "big train" can start with good chances of success. Grand Opera is a seven-year-old, by Claus Forrester. He was bred in the Ottawa Valley, and his first fast work came to note around Kemptville. Grand Opera was bought four years ago by Mr. Jack Moore of Ottawa, who subsequently sold him to Smith and Proctor, of Toronto. They met with considerable success, and turned him over to Mr. Daley of Peterborough. At the Hull ice races this winter, Grand Opera excelled all previous performances, so it is only reasonable to expect that he will have a great season on the dirt tracks. Mr. Brownlee will campaign the pacer, with Jack Neville to do all the driving. Neville will also have in his charge T. C. S., another fast one from the mile wheels, with a mark of 2.14.

Elmer Fanter, aged 16, confesses he killed a man in the first shop hold-up in Chicago.

LOCAL SPIEL

Close Scores Mark the Games in Preliminary Round

With the silverware won by Skip Fitzgerald's rink at Campbellford reposing on a table at the curling rink and the members of Skip Sturgeon's quartette home with first honors in the consolation of the same competition, the curlers started the local bonspiel last night with added enthusiasm. The ice was in first-class condition, and all the games in the primary round and two in the first round were completed. As the scores indicate, many of the games were warmly contested.

Several of the rinks played substitutes, and two skips, Waddell and Moore, were absent, the former being at Oshawa. The latter did not return from Campbellford in time.

IT IS ROSS, NOT HALL WHO IS WITH ORILLIA

The Toronto Star says:—Orillia's defence pair, Harvey and McNabb, are big, husky, rangy boys, who both weigh around the 170 mark. Hall, at centre, the ex-Peterborough boy, is a 160-pound lad, and so is Macdonald, the wing man. Draper, the ex-Collingwood junior, and Jupp, the speedy Orillia junior wing man, are the smallest men on the team. Draper is a 145-pound boy of good, sturdy physique, and while Jupp probably does not register over 135 pounds, he is well-knit, and can give and take a bump with any of them.

The reference made to Hall as a former Peterborough player is incorrect. The writer evidently meant "Hounder" Ross who wore a Peterborough uniform two years ago. Art Hall, the former Peterborough centre man, is done with the winter pastime and is now in Rochester.

JUNIORS PLAY OFF FRIDAY.

The junior O.H.A. tie in the semi-finals between Collingwood and Berlin Union Jacks will be played off in a sudden-death game at the Toronto Arena on Friday night at 8.30 o'clock. The winner will play Varsity juniors for the championship.

A fire at Cullinan's farm, Oswego, N. Y., destroyed the desk used by Grover Cleveland.

BASKETBALL

Three good games were pulled off in the Y. basket ball league last night and interest is growing in the league as shown by the large group of both ladies and gentlemen in the gallery.

The type of basbet ball that is being displayed is about fifty per cent. better than that in the last league, and by the time the play off comes between the winners of A. and B. divisions the teams should be showing a very high type of combination and skill.

In the first game between the Beavers and Collegiate it was nip and tuck right through the first half, at no time was one team more than two points ahead of the other, and the half finished 9-8 in favor of the Collegiate. In the second half however the Collegiate boys got their eye on the basket and succeeded in caging the pill from all angles. Caniff and Jobbitt did all the scoring but Stuart played a fine game at centre, and Lewis and Eastwood stopped pretty near everything that came their way on the defence. The scoring for the Beavers was well divided as usual. Capt. Dobbin played his usual game covering all the floor all the time. The whole team played like trojans but fate was against them. This was from the spectators' point of view the best game of the trio, and there was something doing all the time.

In the Cressman-Unknown game it was all one way, the Unknowns had the game from the sound of the whistle. There is only one explanation, Cressmans had their off night. There was not a man on the team that played in his usual form. On the other hand the Unknowns were at top notch, and nothing could stop them, and if they continue to put up the brand of ball for the remainder of the league that they have thus far, they will make a big bid for the honors. W. Flowers was high score, he simply couldn't miss them, and scored twenty out of the thirty-eight points made by his team. The other eighteen points were divided between the other members. Geo. Robertson and M. McCarrell of Veteran fame showed that they haven't lost any of their old time form. McCarrell at centre was a tower of strength, and Robertson played his usual heady game. Smith and Mulhern both put up A1 ball. For the Cressman team the scoring was divided. Now that this team have had their off night they should come back hard for the next game. Tiny Palmer, one of the most consistent players on the team was off last night. This may have had something to do with the slump. The first half ended 13-3 in favor of the Unknowns the final score being 38-11.

De Laval succeeded in capturing the scalp of the Junior Business Men to the tune of 31-14. The first half was close, neither side being at any time in a position to feel at ease, and the half ended with the score [illegible]-10 in favor of "Creams." In the second half the Cream continued to rise to the top, and the Engineers did not seem to have enough current to stop it, with the result of the score being 31-14 in favor of De Laval.

Line-up:—

Beavers—Lees, H. Flowers, Dobbin, Waters, Gilchrist.

Collegiate—Caniff, Jobbitt, Stuart, Lewis, Eastwood.

Cressmans — H. Cressman, F. Cressman, Bartlett, Payne and Darling.

Unknowns—W. Flowers, Smith, Robertson, McCarrell, Mulhern.

De Laval — Taylor, Hamilton, Downing, Fitzgerald, Spratt.

Jr. Bus. Men—Cranfield, Metheral, Smyth, Sisson, Turner.

Referee—Carson. Scorer Heaslip. Timer Jones.

Time, 15 minute halves.

"BILL" CLYMER WILL MANAGE TORONTO LEAFS

Buffalo Comedian Signed by McCaffery to Fill Joe Kelley's Shoes

Toronto, March 4.—"Derby Day Bill" Clymer, of the funny hop on the coaching lines, will manage the Toronto Ball Club next season.

James J. McCaffery, who is over in Buffalo, signed Clymer last night, and the fighting, scrappy William will be the man in charge on the battlefront next summer. Clymer, originally a second-baseman, has a good record as manager. In 1912 he won a championship with Wilkesbarre, and the next year he had Buffalo well up in the race. Last year he engineered the Bisons into second place, only 24 points behind Providence.

Clymer, who has not played ball for some years, wore a Toronto uniform about twelve years ago, and was a favorite because of his ginger and aggressiveness. He was always in the game then, and now he spends all his surplus energy on the coaching lines. He is an astute leader as well as an entertaining coacher. Behind all his funny antics there is an active brain at work on some definite scheme to discomfit the other team and chase it to a break.

Circuses and zoological parks will be short of wild animals until after the war.

Judge Huycke is in Havelock today presiding at a sitting of the Division Court.

Mrs. J. H. Quinlan returned today to her home in Prince Albert after spending the last two months with her parents at 517 Albert Street.

The I. O. D. E. will hold the regular weekly tea in the Tea Room of the Oriental Hotel tomorrow. Mrs. A. W. Turner and Mrs. D. Walker will have charge.

The local Council of Women acknowledge with thanks a cordial invitation to be present at the patriotic and production meeting to be held tomorrow evening in the Collegiate assembly hall. This should be interesting to them, as it is in line with a branch of work taken up by local councils of women in many places.

Mrs. R. A. Mulholland was re-elected Regent at the first annual meeting of the Daughters of the Empire at Port Hope. The chapter was only organized last August, and since that time $2,666 has been raised, in addition to which $2,000 worth of clothing has been sent to the Belgians and $1,535 in comforts consisting of kit bags, socks, etc., to the soldiers. Subscriptions, entertainments and the Empire Tea Room conducted by the young ladies of the town have all contributed to the above.

THEATRICAL

MAE EDWARDS PLAYERS ALL NEXT WEEK.

One of the best attractions playing Ontario will hold down the boards at the Grand Opera House all next week. The Mae Edwards Players have a real treat in store for the theatre-goers of Peterborough. The opening play will be "At the Risk of Her Life," a play with a punch, that has never failed to please, being a beautiful story well told. Miss Mae Edwards, who will handle the title role, "The Woman," will surely add a number of new friends to her long list of admirers, and all those attending the opening performance will see her at her best. The Mae Edwards Players carry five big vaudeville acts, which assures the public that there will be no long tiresome waits between the acts but a good, up-to-the-minute performance that will please the tired theatre-goer.

The musical numbers, vaudeville and cabaret novelties are of the good clean wholesome kind and are changed each and every night. Peterborough will surely be pleased with the Mae Edwards Players as they play real plays, the kind the public likes to see.

Secure your seats early. Seats on sale at the box office Friday morning. Prices, 10c, 20c and 30c. Nothing higher. Matinees, Wednesday and Saturday, prices 10c and 20c.

Since President Madison's day Uncle Sam has received $500,000 "conscience money."

NOTICE

Owing to the scarcity of Dye and the exorbitant prices asked by those who have a small quantity on hand, Mr. Beach would advise all who are contemplating to have Garments, Drapes, Curtains, etc., dyed to have same done at once as the supply of dye stuffs are being nearly exhausted. Remember we are still in a position to give the same satisfactory service as in the past. We advise you to act at once.

To Manage Hotel.

Mr. Thos. Mulhall of Cobourg is in the city to take charge at the American Hotel. He is a brother of the late proprietor.

Insure Employes.

A meeting of the Utilities Commission is called for this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The matter of insuring employes will in all probability be taken up.

Meet Next Wednesday.

By mistake the secretary of the Poultry Association announced the regular meeting to take place last evening. The meetings are on the second Wednesday of each month and not the first.

"The British Navy and Its Work."

The above is the title of an address to be delivered in the Collegiate Institute Hall on Friday evening by Cecil G. Williams, an ex-engineer of the navy, and of twenty years' sea life. The address will be in aid of the Patriotic Fund.

John Seeney's Condition.

The condition of John Seeney who fell from a train about a week ago does not show much improvement. He is still in the Nicholls Hospital and the physician attending him is unable to say definitely whether or not he will recover.

Irish Evening.

Reserve the date of Tuesday evening, March 16th, for an Irish evening in the lecture room of Charlotte Street Church, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Further announcements will be made through the columns of the daily papers.

One Company's Proposition.

The committee recently appointed to go thoroughly into the matter of insuring the civic employes held a short meeting last evening and heard the proposition of one company. No action was taken. The committee will continue to go into the matter until sufficient data is secured to present a report to the City Council.

Women's Work in War Time.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, D. C. L., secretary of the Canadian Council of Women, will address an open meeting of the Local Council of Women next Tuesday afternoon, March 9th, at four o'clock, in the assembly hall of the Public Library. Her subject will be "Women's Work in War Time."

Shamrock Day.

"Buy a shamrock for the orphans" is the slogan citizens will be confronted with on Saturday, March 13. The Ladies' Aid Society of St. Peter's Cathedral, assisted by the ladies of the Church of the Immaculate Conception and Church of the Sacred Heart, will sell shamrocks on that day, and the proceeds will go toward the upkeep of St. Vincent's orphanage. The work will be carried on similarly to "Shamrock Day" and "Tag Day" of former years.

"Every Girl."

The young ladies and children of the Olive Mission Band of Charlotte Street Church will give their entertainment "Every Girl" on Thursday evening, March 4th, beginning at 8 o'clock. It is believed this will reach if not surpass the high standard attained by other entertainments of that church. Admission 25c., children 15c.

SOLDIERS OF THE KING

The local unit of Canadian Mounted Rifles received orders last night to move to Ottawa, thus their departure is expected to occur before the close of this week. As was previously announced Col. Johnston, who is in charge, received the necessary transport papers which gave him full power to make his own arrangements for a C.P.R. train as soon as possible after the order to move would arrive. With the order to move, here, it remains entirely with Col. Johnston as to the date and hour of departure. Interviewed by The Review today he stated that the officers are busily engaged in work preparatory to leaving and until tomorrow no definite time could be named.

The last of the uniforms arrived this morning so the men will leave fully equipped. The full strength of the unit is one hundred and forty-four.

THE BUSINESS OF BEING A WIFE

("Colliers")

A woman has just told us of what she did the night her young husband found himself bankrupt. His factory was closed, he had lost all he owned—plus a good deal more—and, as he looked at it, life was about at an end. He reflected that he had taken his wife from a happy and charming home, and that he had brought disgrace and poverty on her. It occurred to him that a well-placed bullet might be the best all-round solution of his difficulties.

His wife, at home, made a poignant surmise as to what he was thinking. Suddenly it occurred to her that here was a chance for teamwork—an opportunity to show what being a wife really meant. She prepared a delicious little dinner, she made her home as inviting as she could, and she arrayed herself in her most becoming dress.

Her husband returned, not to a disheveled and sobbing woman, to a neglected house and a drama of disaster, but to a home where everythink spoke of resolution, of continuity, of expectation. The fire on his hearth, his simple, well-cooked dinner, the courageous eyes of his attractive wife, restored him to a true sense of values. He was able, amid all his confusion of purpose and torment of realization, to see his failure as only a retrievable episode in his life.

He is now a successful manufacturer, his debts are paid, and he has a happy home with a son and a daughter in it. He has saved from being a suicide by the fact that a woman was sportsmanlike at the right moment.

Not a bad thing to think about in these days when unaccustomed poverty is bringing dismay to thousands.

THREE MILK HINTS.

How Cleanliness, Economy, Health, May Be Furthered.

In the interests of cleanliness, economy and health it is of the utmost importance to know how to take proper care of milk. No other article of food becomes so easily contaminated. Merely to make sure that the milk you buy is pure is not sufficient, for there are countless ways in which it can be rendered unfit for use after it reaches your home.

Before removing the cap from a bottle of milk the cap and the neck of the bottle should be washed and carefully wiped with a clean cloth. The cap should not be pushed down into the milk. It may be easily removed with a sharp-pointed instrument without injuring the contents.

The bottle when once open should be kept covered, and the milk should be kept in the original bottle until it is used up. The original cap should not be replaced, but instead an inverted glass may be put over the top of the bottle.

The bottle when not in use should, of course, always be left in the refrigerator, and any milk that has been poured from it into another vessel should not be poured back.

Onions and other foods having a strong odor, especially during the hot weather, very easily impart their distinctive smell to milk that is left uncovered. This is an additional reason for always keeping milk in a covered receptacle.

The Tsar as Bookworm.

The Kaiser has always prided himself on his attainments. He has given his friends the impression that he was a great soldier, and a great sailor, that he could write poetry and compose music, and that some of his paintings deserved to hang in the Berlin salon. As a matter of fact he has not the intellectual attainments of the Tsar, who has called himself the bookworm of Europe. Though narrow in his sympathies, the Russian Emperor is a wonderfully well-read man. His Asiatic tour instilled in him a love of Indian history.

The Tsarina, though admired for her cold statuesque beauty, has been as much a mystery as her husband. She has been described as an Empress who, for all the emotion she shows, might have been carved out of marble; he, as a religious exalte. This impression of the Tsarina is a false one. In the company of her children she is revealed as an affectionate, warm-hearted woman; away from the nursery she seems to hide all her real qualities. Once the Empress was asked what recreation she liked best. She replied, "A poem well read and aloud. Poetry calms the soul and makes it strong."

Out of His Line.

Mrs. Smith was young and inexperienced, but she was ambitious. So one afternoon she waded deep into the cookbook and dug out an angel cake, which she placed before the old man at the evening meal.

"What's the matter with the angel cake, Harry?" asked wifey disappointedly on noticing that he studiously avoided it. "Isn't it good enough?"

"It isn't that, dear," gently responded the old man. "I'm afraid that I am not good enough."

"Good enough for what?" queried little wifey with a puzzled expression.

"Good enough to become an angel, sweetheart," softly answered hubby.

Highest Endurable Temperature.

It is difficult to say what the highest temperature is that a human being can live in. In the kitchens of some of the great hotels and in the stokeholes of some steamships the temperature gets to 140 or 145 degrees. Cooks and their helpers and stokers have to endure that temperature for hours at a time, and they seem to get along pretty well. The hottest place perhaps where human beings work is in the vulcanizing factories, where the temperature is 212, the boiling point of water. There are a few who can stand this heat for a little while at a time, but that is the limit; man can endure no more.

sians pushing their offensive in the Caucasus, the near east is again coming into the limelight. The Russians have scored a distinct success by the capture of the Turkish port of Khopa, on the Black Sea, from which the Turkish army in the Caucasus drew part of its supplies.

Unofficial reports say that besides the ships which entered the Dardanelles and are bombarding the interior forts, some of the fleet are throwing shells overland into the Gulf of Saros, so that the Turkish garrisons will be subjected to fire from two sides. The Turks are concentrating stronger forces for the defence of Constantinople and the Balkan states are watching the operations with intense interest. The success of the allies' attempt to open the straits means much to the Balkan nations.

A despatch from Copenhagen says: "It is learned from a trustworthy source that Berlin hears all European Turkish forces have been concentrated in the region of Constantinople and the Dardanelles. If the allies force the straits and occupy Gallipoli Peninsula, it is stated the Turkish army will evacuate European Turkey lest the army be surrounded."

CHOCOLATE PIE NEW!

Something to whet the appetite of pie lovers at this 'tween seasons period is found in this inexpensive luxury; not too rich, either, despite its alluring name. Beat up three eggs, add a pinch of salt, four tablespoonsful of granulated sugar, one scant tablespoonful of flour. Mix well. Add one quart or a little less of milk, one heaping tablespoonful of Fry's Cocoa mixed first with a little of the milk. Pour into the pie crust and bake very slowly. Do not let boil.

Mount Clements, Michigan

Mount Clemens is famous throughout America as an all-the-year-round health resort, and thousands of people bear testimony to the benefits derived from its mineral waters in cases of rheumatism and kindred diseases. For bilious and liver troubles, digestive troubles, nervous disorders, general debility, etc., the efficacy of its waters is wonderful. Seventy-five per cent. of rheumatics are cured, and ninety per cent. benefited. Reached direct by Grand Trunk Railway System.

NO SEARCH TILL TAKEN TO CELL

In last night's report of the events leading up to the tragedy at the police station, The Review wishes to make it plain that the prisoner was not searched until after his will had been drawn up and he was about to be placed in the cell. The strychnine therefore had not been taken from him and placed on the table where he could get it, as the report would lead one to believe. It is not the custom to search a prisoner in the station until he is about to be placed in the cell.

Now is the time to prove ourselves the Granary of the Empire.

We have the soil, we have the resources, we must have the energy to use them to the greatest advantage.

As we acquit ourselves at this crisis, so will be our prosperity and pride in the years to come.

With more than half of productive Europe engaged in war and large sections decimated, other countries and especially those forming the British Empire, will have to make up huge deficiencies, both of foodstuffs and material.

Great Britain imported 51,786,915 bushels of wheat from Canada in 1913. She imported 80,013,879 bushels from the United States. She also imported 12,789,969 bushels from Russia and Central Europe.

Great Britain imported 24,148,833 bushels of barley in 1913 from Russia, Roumania, Turkey, Germany and Austria. From Canada she took 5,977,533 bushels, or less than one-fourth.

Great Britain took 22,454,683 bushels of oats from Germany, Russia and Roumania in 1913, of which one-half was from her bitterest and most savage enemy of today.

Great Britain imported 185,125,000 bushels of wheat from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914. Russia exported 163,267,000 bushels and Roumania 45,642,000 bushels in the same time. How far is Canada going to help to make up the deficiency?

Great Britain imported from August 1, 1913, to July 31, 1914, 54,307,000 bushels of oats. Russia exported 34,750,000 bushels, Germany 25,077,000, and Roumania 17,195,000 bushels. Who is going to make up this deficiency of seventy-seven million bushels?

ARBITRATORS' AWARD $154,615

A BIG STORM

It Reached Chicago Early Today

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

CHICAGO, March 5. — From four to seventeen inches of snow has fallen in Kansas, Missouri, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Arkansas. Railways in some parts are blocked and telephone and telegraph communication is interrupted. The storm reached Chicago early today.

HEAVY LOSSES

Austrians Hard Hit Fighting With Russians

WHOLE DIVISIONS ARE ANNIHILATED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 5. — Reports fro mvarious sources tell of terrible losses suffered by the Austrians in the recent fighting with the Russians. A Reuter despatch from Petrograd says Gen. Broussiloff's forces continue to repulse desperate Austrian advances in the Carpathians, and officers taken prisoner declare their troops never suffered so severely. Some divisions are reported completely annihilated.

ORDER TO MOVE IS RESCINDED

Mounted Rifles not Leaving This Evening

Word was received by Col. Johnston last night to the effect that the order to move to Ottawa has been rescinded and thus the local unit of the 8th Mounted Rifles will be in the city for at least another week. Asked if he could explain why the order was rescinded, Col. Johnston said he knew nothing other than the dispatch from Ottawa as appeared in last night's issue of The Review to the effect that all mobilization at Ottawa, Kingston and other points will be removed to Petawawa.

MR. PECK WAS CLOSE TO THE ACTUAL AWARD

The judgment of the Board of Arbitrators by which the city must pay $154,615 for property expropriated, has occasioned a great deal of discussion among men interested in municipal matters. Many have expressed their belief that the city has been called upon to pay too much while others believe that even at the price named the city has made a good bargain. Several who were present at the sittings of the arbitration had formed the conclusion that the amount named would be about $175,000.

Mr. E. A. Peck, ex-M.L.A., was one very interested listener to the arguments put up by the city and by the company before the three arbitrators. In speaking of the matters to a Review reporter yesterday Mr. Peck stated that after considering the evidence he expected the arbitrators to name one hundred and fifty thousand or one hundred and fifty-five thousand dollars as the price. It must be admitted that the calculations were very close.

CITY MUST PAY STEEP PRICE FOR LIGHTING PLANT

Cost of the Arbitration Also to be Paid by City Will be $10,000 or More --- Aldermen Express Disappointment When Informed of Judgment

One hundred and fifty-four thousand, six hundred and fifteen dollars—this is the amount the Board of Arbitrators consisting of His Honor Judge Huycke, chairman, Hon. Wallace Nesbitt of Toronto, and Mr. R. A. Ross, C.E., of Montreal has decided that the property of the Peterborough Light and Power Co., expropriated by the City of Peterborough and taken over October 1st, 1914, is worth. Mr. A. B. Colville, solicitor for the Peterborough Light and Power Co., came to the city this morning and on payment of $1,970.85, the fees of the three arbitrators, he secured a copy of the judgment from Judge Huycke. The judgment as handed out, is as follows:—

In the matter of an arbitration between the City of Peterborough and The Peterborough Light and Power Company, Limited.

Whereas under the Statutes of Ontario, being 2 Geo. V. cap. 117; 3-4 Geo V. cap. 114, and 4 Geo. V. cap. 87, the matters in difference referred to under the said Statutes were referred to the arbitration and award of His Honour E. C. S. Huycke, Judge of the County Court of the County of Peterborough, Wallace Nesbitt, and R. A. Ross.

And whereas the said arbitrators having taken on the burden of the said reference, were attended by the said parties, represented by counsel, and also counsel for the bondholders of the said Company appearing and submitting to be bound by the award, did, on the 26th, 27th and 28th days of January, and the 15th, 16th, 17th, 18th and 19th days of February, 1915, near evidence and argument, and after considering the evidence and arguments the said arbitrators do, under the said Statutes and following the directions thereof, award as compensation under said Statutes to the Peterborough Light and Power Company, Limited, the sum of $154,615.00, One hundred and fifty-four thousand six hundred and fifteen dollars.

And we do further award interest at the rate of five per cent. from the first day of October, 1914; and do further award to the said Company the costs to be taxed on the scale of the Supreme Court.

Signed by the said arbitrators at Toronto this 25th day of February, 1915.

E. C. S. HUYCKE.
R. A. ROSS
WALLACE NESBITT

Witness: Louis Cookson.

Before making the above award we were notified the parties had settled the items of electric signs and property outside the city.

CITY ALSO HAS TO PAY INTEREST.

As will be learned from the above the city will have to pay interest at the rate of five per cent. on the $154,615 from October 1st, 1914, which will amount to some $3,000, and also the costs of the arbitration which it is expected will be somewhat over $10,000. As to the property outside the city the Utilities Commission and the Peterborough Light and Power Co. have decided that the price will be $5,250. The item of electric signs will be in the neighborhood of $1,200 but is not as yet settled. Commissioner W. H. Moore expressed the opinion that the city will have to pay some $175,000 before the transaction is completed.

Commissioner Moore remarked that when the Hydro-Electric engineers and valuators estimated the value of the property the last time, their figures totalled some ninety-six thousand dollars and four thousand was added to make sure their figures were conservative. The judgment of the arbitrators was in Mr. Moore's mind, very very high. Asked how the extra seventy-five thousand dollars would be raised he could not make any statement but intimated that the increase in cost would call for a raise in the rates to the customers. He, of course, could not state to what extent the increase would be, but thought it would be about the same as the rate proposed at the meeting of the Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon by Manager Fisk for the customers outside the city limits. The increase referred to would be four cents instead of three cents per hundred square feet and three cents instead of two cents and a half per K.W. hour, which is an increase of about twenty per cent.

LOWER THAN MR. COLVILLE ANTICIPATED.

Interviewed by a Review reporter this morning Mr. Colville stated that the award was a trifle lower than he anticipated. He had thought, after hearing the evidence at the arbitration, that the figures would be about one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars. Mr. Colville noted the difference between the amount decided upon by the arbitrators and that which the Hydro-Electric engineers and valuators submitted. Basing their action upon the figures of the Hydro-Electric, the city first offered the company some eighty thousand dollars for the property.

A LITTLE HIGH SAYS THE MAYOR.

His Worship Mayor Buller did not know that the award had been made known until the Review man advanced the information. He thought the figures a little high and stated that he had been expecting the award to be about one hundred and forty thousand dollars. Mayor Buller, however, still contended that the city had acted wisely and remarked that the plant would pay for itself in a few years.

SATISFACTORY TO COMMISSIONER MATTHEWS.

Mr. T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission expressed his satisfaction on the judgment of the arbitrators and stated that he is firmly convinced that at that figure the city made a good bargain and will be able to make a comfortable margin on the investment.

ALD. JOHNSTON IS DISAPPOINTED.

Ald. Johnston, although severing his connection with the City Council, was very closely allied with the city's effort to bring about public ownership of the power system. When first informed by The Review as to the decision of the arbitrators he exclaimed, "That's too bad." He was greatly disappointed and thought the figures very high. He felt sure that the arbitrators had taken something else into consideration besides the value of the property itself. He thought the city had been called upon to pay too much for what they are getting

ALD. GREEN SAYS "GOOD HEAVENS."

It was likewise The Review's task to inform Ald. Green as to the amount set down by the three arbitrators. His first remark was "Good Heavens." He thought it very high and exclaimed, "The city always gets it." He was quite dissatisfied with the terms of the judgment and stated that in his mind the city "only got a scrap heap"

SOMEWHERE IN FRANCE

From "Somewhere in France" under date of February 16th, Howard Curtis, son of Mr. George Curtis, of the firm of Curtis Bros., brickmakers, writes a short but interesting letter to his parents. He enlisted at Edmonton. The letter follows:—

Dear Mother,—

Just a few lines to let you know I have at last left Salisbury Plain and I am at present within sound of the big guns.

The ninth Battalion was all drafted in to the first brigade and I am now with the second battalion with the Peterborough boys and Lieut. Ackerman of Peterborough is in command of the company I am in.

This country is not much different from England in regard to rain, etc., and the inhabitants seem to be a very obliging people.

I don't think it will be long before we get a taste of the Germans' steel but however we are fairly well prepared for them.

Sleeping in Barns.

It is much different to be sleeping in barns, etc., but I guess we will have a lot of great experiences before it is over. I am sorry I can't tell you where I am but I will try and write you every week if conditions allow me to do so.

Tell all who I have written to not to be expecting me to write now as it keeps a fellow busy getting enough to write one letter a week when we are not allowed to tell where we are. You can still send me papers, etc., just the same because they don't bother the mail that comes to us.

I must close now and please excuse my hurried letter and I will write as often as possible and let you know how I am. My new address is No. 1 Co., 14 Platoon, 2nd Battalion, 1st Canadian Division British Expeditionary Forces, France.

Wishing you all the best of health and pleasures you can have, I remain, as ever,

HOWARD.

Heber Rogers Writes.

Heber Rogers writes from France as follows:—

We have at last left Salisbury Plain but the rainy weather seems to follow us all round. It is snowing and raining now. The train stopped in a little village near here last Saturday and after departing we marched about three miles to our billets. Billets, yes we are in a barn here. The first night the wind almost blew the hair off my head.

We thought we were going into comfortable billets but if we go from here to the front soon, it will be alright. This place here was held by the Germans in October and there are many graves around; also pieces of guns and plenty of ammunition. Our barns have had shrapnel through the roofs.

Lieut. Chas. Ackerman.

Lieut. Charles Ackerman has written a letter home stating that his brother and he are both well and that he was in France, billeted in a good substantial farm house, while his company had comfortable quarters in buildings adjacent to the farm.

His letter was written just previous to being ordered to move forward to the trenches. The place from which the letter was written was not given, but the letter was dated Feb. 14th.

FUNERAL OF THE LATE DR. BROWN

The funeral of the late Dr. W. E. Brown took place this morning at 8.20 to the Grand Trunk where the body was placed on the train for Hastings. Interment was made at Roseneath. The funeral was private in character, only a few of the late doctor's friends attending.

MAKE GRANT OF $1000 FOR FIELD KITCHEN.

Perth, Ont., March 5.—At a special meeting of Lanark county council, by a vote of 12 to 2, it was decided to grant $1,000 to the 21st Battalion to assist in procuring field kitchen and other necessary equipment.

Those in opposition to the grant took the ground that it was the duty of the government to provide all necessary equipment, and that counties, towns and villages should not be approached for special grants.

ALLIES MAKE NEW PROGRESS

Most of the Advanced Trenches Lost to Germans Has Been Recovered

150 PRISONERS ALSO TAKEN

(Canadian Press Despatch)

PARIS, March 5. —(Afternoon Statement) — "To the north of Arras, near Notre Dame de Lorette, we have recaptured most of the advanced trenches we lost the day before yesterday. We took 150 prisoners.

"The enemy again bombarded Rheims Cathedral.

"In Champagne, to the north of Souain, Mesnil and Beausejour, there has been nothing fresh to report since yesterday evening's communication.

"In the Argonne, at Vauquois, we have repulsed two counter attacks and made new progress, inflicting appreciable losses on the enemy and taking many prisoners. We are masters of the greater part of the villages."

LONDON, March 5. — The Admiralty's report says that the examination of the steamer Thordis in a drydock shows injuries to her keel and propeller which confirm the commander's report that on February 28th she rammed and probably sank a German submarine, and that yesterday afternoon destroyers off Dover sank the U-8, taking her crew prisoners.

BRITISH DID NOT GIVE WRONG DIRECTION

WASHINGTON, March 5. — Commander G. Herardi's supplementary report on his investigation of the sinking of the American cotton steamers Carib and Evelyn by mines in the North Sea, received today from Berlin, says: "Both boats were sunk by mines. No false directions were given by the British. Both simply ran on a mine field."

It had been said in Berlin the ships were off their course, furnished by German authorities, and were following routes given by British officials.

ALLIES' SUCCESS IN DARDANELLES

LONDON, March 5. —The Chronicle says that Theodore Wolff, editor of the Berlin Tageblatt, writes in his paper that if the Allies are successful in forcing the Dardanelles, the results will be of tremendous importance, both in their effect upon Turkey and the Encouragement it will offer Roumania and Bulgaria, not to speak of Italy, to enter the alliance. Italy, he thinks, however, may withstand all inducements. Wolff fears that the Allies' success at the Dardanelles is probable.

It is announced officially in Paris that operations against the Dardanelles continued yesterday.

DARDANELLES AND ITS FORTS

Above is a sketch of the Dardanelles from Fort Kum Kaleh on the Asiatic side, showing the entrance 2¼ miles wide and the narrows, where the distance from shore to shore is but one mile. Fort Kilid Bahr, which is said to be a very strong position, has been damaged by the huge 15-inch guns of the Super-dreadnought Queen Elizabeth. The Allies have landed forces on the isthmus.

SUBS GONE

Germans Have Lost Submarines

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 5. — Two German submarines have been sunk in British waters, according to an official announcement given out in London today. The official news bureau confirms the report that the British collier Thordis rammed a submarine and sent it to the bottom.

APPEAL IS DISSMISSED

Fred Staires Must Pay $25 for Slander

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, March 5. — The second divisional court has dismissed the appeal for Fred Staires from the decision of Judge Huycke awarding Samuel Currie, a moulder of Peterborough, judgment for $25 for slander.

While Currie was attending a funeral, the defendant appeared and seized him, charging him with stealing his overcoat. Currie was bundled into an express wagon and carried to the police station. No charge, however, was preferred against him, as it was established that the coat was his own and was merely like the missing one belonging to Staires.

Currie sued for damages for malicious arrest and for slander. The jury awarded him $25 on each count, but the judge held that damages for malicious prosecution against Staires could not stand, as a judgment for $150 on the same charge had already been secured against another man.

TEMPERANCE PEOPLE SEE GOVERNMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TORONTO, March 5. — Five hundred members of the Dominion Alliance waited on the Government this morning. Their spokesmen were Controller Spence and Rev. Messrs. Leo and Grant. They asked the Government to prohibit the liquor traffic as far as lay within the power of the Legislature, and described the present liquor license act as one which neither protects the people from the evils of licensed liquor selling nor gives them power to protect themselves, and asked that whatever the Government's ultimate policy might be, the sale of intoxicating liquors in Ontario should be prohibited now and to the end of the war.

Before the members adjourned to the Legislature there was considerable discussion over the report of the legislative committee, which some members alleged there was an attempt to railroad through.

Mr. T. T. George moved an amendment to the report, proposing that the Government be asked to extend local option, the principle to embrace entire counties instead of towns and townships. The amendment was overwhelmingly defeated and the report was adopted.

A THIRD FIRE AT BRANTFORD

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Brantford, March 5.—Fire occurred this morning in the Canada Glue Works recently re-opened after being burned down. Automatic sprinklers sent in an alarm and extinguished the fire. The loss is eight thousand.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MARCH 5, 1915

LET THE CASE GO ON.

It is with a good deal of diffidence that we refer in these columns to the deplorable cases that have been before the authorities during the past week, but it appears to us that it is our duty, in the interests of many innocent and law-abiding citizens, to call the attention of the authorities to what the public welfare demands. Citizens on every hand are asking by what authority the police say this case is closed. It is true that, so far as Dr. Brown is concerned, and Helen Brown, the specific charge has fallen to the ground, but that is only a part of the carnival of immorality and perhaps of crime that has been going on in Peterborough. To say that the case is closed means that many others who have been shaking in their boots since the authorities decided to investigate Helen Brown's death, will breathe easily, will have suffered no punishment, and will shortly be pursuing the same actions that culminated so tragically and so suddenly a few nights ago. We say again, the authorities have no right to say this case is closed, but should pursue the investigation without fear or favour. Lodges, business connections, churches, should not be considered in bringing the facts to light. All over the city, citizens are saying that the investigation should be proceeded with regardless of those who are implicated in it.

The police have done good work up to a certain point. We know they do not like to act unless there is sufficient reason, because, if charges were made and not substantiated, culprits would be able to snap their fingers in the face of the law. But there are certain points about this deplorable case that call for the investigation being continued. We would prefer not outlining these in detail, and trust the further action of the authorities will not necessitate doing so.

One important and sufficient reason there is for continuing the investigation. A number of innocent persons have had their names bandied about in connection with this affair. In the interests of those who are quite innocent of any wrongdoing in regard to this case, and of all law-abiding citizens, this case should be cleared up. The authorities will no doubt have the support of all law-abiding people in this city if they clear up the case.

In the present state of affairs, much devolves on the ministers of the churches in this city. It does not appear to be in the interests of religion or consistent with Christian principles that persons, who, by common talk, that is not without foundation, should be taking a prominent part in the services. So long as disreputable persons can maintain respect for themselves by being ostensible church workers and by associating themselves with law-abiding citizens, they are able to provide a cloak for their misconduct that hampers the police and leads to such events as recently shocked this city. Unless further action is taken by pursuing an investigation, it is more than probable that there will be no improvement.

GREAT AFFAIRS OF EMPIRE.

THE PARLIAMENT of Canada has been in session for some time and has been considering mainly the Budget that was brought down by Hon. W. T. White. The Conservatives have made an effort to meet in a statesmanlike manner the serious and great demands of a state of war. The Liberals were supposed to be working to the same end and to continue the party truce, yet what has been their policy? They have been lengthening out the debate on the Budget, frittering away valuable time with picayune talk, when they ought to be bringing in measures for the safety of the country or supporting those of the Government, and which have this object in view.

The Liberals have declared themselves opposed to the new taxes proposed by the Minister of Finance. They have attacked them for several days, but have decided not to move an amendment. In other words, they do not approve of the new taxes, but have nothing better to offer in place of them. Could the Hon. Mr. White's measures receive stronger support than that? Could the Liberals display greater weakness and foolishness in their conduct in the House? It seems now that they recognize that their attack on the Budget was a mistake. When advocating no new taxes, they supported the curtailment or complete stoppage of public works, and this would throw a very large number of workingmen throughout Canada out of work, would increase the pressure on relief funds and municipal taxes, and prevent a large amount of money circulating in business.

They have also attacked the Made-in-Canada movement, and this has been admitted to be another blunder. It has been an undercut at manufacturers and factory employees, and the remarks of Mr. A. K. Maclean on this subject have actually been eliminated from Hansard. They have also attacked the Hudson Bay Railway and this has alienated the West.

But the "piece de resistance" was furnished by the Hon. William Pugsley. This valiant warrior of the Liberal camp consumed a whole half hour attacking the Government for placing a duty on "squid," which he describes as a fertilizer. It was pointed out that squid was a fisherman's bait and was on the free list. Naturally there was considerable amusement at the Hon. William Pugsley's expense.

What should be noted is the character of the Liberals' tactics in the House. While a great Empire is struggling to maintain its integrity, and while Canada is making strenuous efforts to do her share, the Liberals are blocking the proposals of the Government and wasting the time of the House by foolish disquisitions on squid. They admit they have nothing constructive to offer. They admit they have blundered. Under these circumstances, it is quite evident they have no excuse to expect public support, were an appeal to be made to the electorate. The Liberals, apparently, recognize that fact, or otherwise they would not regard an election with such terror as their attitude implies.

MR. GILLESPIE MAKES HIS BOW.

MR. G. A. GILLESPIE has made his maiden speech in the Legislature. As it was a maiden speech, he was given more than ordinary consideration, and thus got through it without forgetting a word. As a maiden speech it was not bad. We have read maiden speeches that would almost give one the colic. They are not all beauties by any means.

Mr. Gillespie held that the Government should give careful attention to agriculture. He did not criticize the Conservatives severely at all. How could he? Of course, he took a plunge into such exciting information as the increase in expenditure in the last ten years, while the population has increased only 15.8 per cent. The conclusion he wished to drive home was, apparently, that if the people raised big families, the Government would be able to spend twice as much as they do. If every head of a family had a dozen kids growing up into useful citizens, the Government would be able to send him hand-painted tax notices and other considerations.

Mr. Gillespie thought a commission ought to be appointed to inquire into rural problems. He merely mentioned the words "temperance legislation." He then called on the Government "to wake up," and closed his speech by sitting down. We had no idea, in reading his brief speech, that it had such soothing power. That he felt obliged to call on three-quarters of the House to wake up would indicate that his speech would have a salutory effect on those who can't sleep.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WE HAVEN'T heard of any "shining armour" speeches from the Kaiser lately.

Mr. EVANTUREL insists that he is a colleague of Mr. N. W. Rowell and Mr. G. A. Gillespie.

CORPORAL LEARY.

(A Parody.)

London, Feb. 18. — Among others who have received the Victoria Cross are * * * and Lance Corporal Michael Leary of the Irish Guards for conspicuous bravery at Cuinchy, February 1.

Leary formed one of a storming party which advanced against the German trenches. He rushed to the front and killed five Germans who were holding the first barricade, after which he attacked the second barricade, which he captured after killing three Germans and taking two others prisoners.

Leary thus, says the official reporter, "practically captured the enemy's position by himself, and prevented the rest of the attacking army from being fired upon."

Me name is Michael Leary, from a place called Tipperary,
The heart of Kaiser William I'm a thorn in,
For I lately tuk' the notion for to cross the briny ocean,
An' I joined Jack French's army in the mor'rnin'.

With me kit upon me shouldher, sure no Irish Guard was bouldher,
As I char'rged upon the foemen without war'rnin';
For I thought that whin I found 'em, all alone I would surround 'em,
An' I'd march 'em home before me in the mor'rnin'.

'Tis me own case I'm relatin', so I'll shun exaggeratin',
Very soon the German ar'rmy I was stor'rmin',
But they acted inconvanyent, though I thried to be quite lanyent—
So we had a weeshy ruction in the mor'rnin'!

Now this war will soon be over, sure 'tis then I'll be in clover,
With a grand V. C. me Irish breast ador'rnin',
With a futstep light an' airy, I'll go home to Tipperary,
An' the happy hills of Ireland in the mor'rnin'!

The Navy's Strangle Hold.

(London News and Leader.)

Count Bernstorff is said to have informed the United States Government that Germany would not submit to the attempts of Great Britain to starve her out. The pressure exerted by the British navy upon Germany may involve hardships to the civil population repugnant to a humane and generous-minded man. Much that is done in war is very repugnant to humanity. The British Government is entitled to plead that nothing that it has done in the exertion of this pressure has been as yet inconsistent with generally accepted international law, and that the German government has undoubtedly made the distinction between what is and what is not contraband more difficult by its own action. Nor is Germany, which is allowing starving Belgium to live on American bounty, in a very strong position to make this particular appeal. But the essential point is that it is no answer to the claim. America has no direct concern with the internal condition of Germany; she has manifestly a very direct concern in the safety of her own subjects at sea, and she has made it clear that she intends to assure it with a frankness which Germany will disregard, if she should be mad enough to do so, at her peril.

ALLIES NOW "TOP-DOG"

Phrase Heard Along the Lines in Army Accent

VICTORY BY THE AUTUMN

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, March 4.—(Via London, 6.20 p.m.)—For the first time accredited, newspaper correspondents have been allowed to enter that zone where men in khaki, speaking English, hold a portion of the allied line.

Where the trench crosses a road the French and the British are elbow to elbow facing the Germans. French peasants and villagers are living and working under shell fire, neighbors to the British guns, concealed from German aeroplanes, which shake their houses as they fire. Signs in English at the French crossroads give directions to traffic, and all French names are pronounced according to the English spelling, so that the soldiers or officers will not fail to understand them.

One is impressed with the immensity of the British resources, the number of motor trucks and the completeness and the thoroness of all the equipment. All food and all supplies are brought from England, while the French shops are thriving on the English luxuries which they sell to the troops.

The French are learning to say "top dog." That expression was the one most often heard the first day the correspondent arrived at the front, from both officers and men. "Top dog now," say Tommy Atkins and the generals. One gets it in the broad Scotch, Irish and Cockney accent, and in broken French. It expressed the opinion that a turn in the tide has come, and that the worst is behind them.

One might think from the stability of all the appointments that the British had no expectation except for a long war; yet the universal opinion is that the fall will see victory and the end.

The thin line which held in the defence of the channel ports is deep now.

TWO SOLDIERS KILLED.

Galt Street Car Strikes Cutter in Which They Were Driving.

GUELPH, Ont., March 4.—Percy Whalley and J. E. Gauhan of Galt, who were attached to the 34th Battalion C.E.F., which is stationed here, were the victims of a terrible accident which occurred on the street car system tonight.

In the morning they engaged a cutter to go to Galt to see friends, stating that they would return in the evening. Returning about 8 o'clock along Waterloo avenue, on the wrong side of the road, they endeavored to cross over the street, but failed to notice the approach of a trolley car, which was traveling south at a fast rate. The motorman was unable to avoid the accident owing to the suddenness with which the cutter turned on the tracks.

Not being able to find evidence of a wrench when the car was brought to a standstill the street car continued on its trip until Edinboro road was reached, when the conductor and driver were horrified to see a body dropping from the truck, and another caught in the motor. Both bodies were terribly mangled and could not be recognized. It is believed the horse bolted when crossing the tracks, and that the soldiers were thrown in under the trolley, where they were caught by the truck.

On the coroner being summoned the bodies were removed to an undertaking parlor. An inquest will be held.

Persuasive Eloquence.

"Weel, weel," said one canny old farmer to another as they left the church after listening to a charity sermon preached by a famous divine, "and he's a wonderful man entirely! He tuk half a crown off me—all the siller I had in my pocket. It's a terrible thing to go to hear a man like thon." "Eh, man," said the other, "it's a' that! But I had heard him afore. So or e'er I ganged to the church I tuk all the money out of my Sunday breeks save only ane bawbee!"

Another Heavy Fine.

THE HAGUE, March 5 (via London).—The Municipality of Antwerp, according to The Handelsblad, has been fined 50,000 francs ($10,000) by the German authorities because posters announcing the German East Prussian victory were damaged.

The population of Antwerp has been warned, the newspaper adds, that in future the inhabitants of houses situated near where posters are damaged will be held responsible for the damage, and severely punished.

1.—Give the amount of your claim in full?

2.—Have you received any payment on claim since the death of Emma Victoria Harrison?

3.—Give name of whom you received payment on claim?

4.—Date of when you received payment?

Fill out the above form, sign your name and address in presence of a witness, return to Thomas E. Harrison, (Sole Executor), Bracebridge, Ontario, on or before the eighth day of March, Nineteen Hundred and Fifteen.

Take notice that any creditors receiving this notice who fail to reply by the above date, will be liable to examination.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

A STRUGGLE FOR A FORTUNE

A Story of Eastern Superstition

By F. A. MITCHEL.

There is no end to the superstition of the eastern hemisphere. In India there is a firm belief in the transmigration of souls—that is, when a human being dies the soul passes into the body of an inferior animal.

There was a woman, Nirmal, who lived near Calcutta who was possessed of a larger share of this world's goods than is usual to any one in that country except the rulers. She was old and infirm, and the only person she had to comfort her was a son, who was in poor health.

Nirmal nursed her boy, he growing weaker every day, till at last he died in her arms. Leaving the body, she went out into the yard, and the first thing she saw was a newborn calf trying to balance itself on its legs and looking at her with its liquid eyes. She did not doubt that her son's spirit had passed into the calf and, going to it, threw her arms about its neck and crooned over it.

If ever a dumb animal was born into the world "with a silver spoon in its mouth" it was this calf. A room on the ground floor was prepared for it, with a door that would enable it to go out and in at will. At one end of the room a trough was built for its food, and since it did not eat dainty food it was given a plentiful supply of such as a calf requires.

When Nirmal died she left her fortune to the calf, appointing an administrator and guardian. At the animal's death the fortune was to pass to the testator's little niece, Agya, then seven years old. Nirmal was aware that it might be to the interest of some one to kill the calf in order to get possession of the property through Agya, who was but a child and unfitted to defeat such a purpose. Nirmal therefore appointed Kadur, a priest, whose sacred calling she believed would make him honest, to take care of the calf. This man had charge of a temple wherein was an oracle who told people what would happen to them and how to avoid adverse decrees of fate. The oracle was the priest himself, who was concealed at the other end of the speaking tube, whence came the voice. Those who received information dropped coins into a receptacle set up for the purpose, and the money was appropriated by the priest.

Business at the temple being dull when Kadur was left the care of the calf, he relegated the temple to another and accepted the new position, not that the salary he received as administrator was more than his profits as oracle, but the income of the estate would enable him to feed the calf and still have far more than he could make at the supernatural end of the speaking tube.

For a few years he enjoyed the perquisites of his administratorship; then the calf, which had meanwhile become a cow, died. Kadur, having no idea of giving up a good thing, substituted another cow and kept on heaping up the funds.

By this time Agya had come to a marriageable age. She had often visited the cow in its manger and knew not only its color, but every spot on its body. Kadur had matched as well as he could the cow of which he was guardian, but it was impossible that he should do so exactly. Every patch of color was duplicated, but there was in the original a black spot in white behind the right ear that was not present in the substitute.

After the ward cow died Kadur discouraged Agya from visiting the successor, fearing that she would discover the fraud. He told her that he had had a dream that her "cousin" would kick her to death. Agya grew suspicious and found a way to visit the manger when its guardian was absent and discovered the substitution.

Agya when she made this discovery had passed the age when Indian girls are married, for they wed in childhood, and, since unmarried girls in that country are considered undesirable, was fearful that she would be put out of the way. She had been thus far saved by the fact of her prospective inheritance; but, now that one cow after another would nominally hold her fortune and Kadur would absorb the income, she feared that if the matter became known she would be strangled. The original cow would now be ten years old, and Agya's father was thinking that it was time she should die. Agya, poor girl, was in an agony of fear lest he should suspect fraud, make an investigation and discover that a new heir had received her property, for she knew that no one would have power to defeat the rascality of a priest in the courts, and her fortune would be considered lost.

Agya about this time met a young man, Rustum, with whom she fell in love, and he loved her. She confided to him the situation, and the two put their heads together to form a plan of killing the cow and getting the property. This would be a difficult feat to accomplish. First it would be next to impossible to get at the beast, for Kadur had got wind of Agya's visit to the manger and kept several hirelings with orders to keep any one from access to the cow; secondly, there must be witnesses that she was dead.

One day a young man appeared at the place where the priest lived and applied for work. He declared that he had had no food for several days and begged as an especial favor that he be permitted to work for a little rice or a meal. He was turned away by the servants, but persisted in seeing the occupant of the premises. In this he succeeded, and Kadur gave him a temporary job to watch the cow with the others. The stranger on seeing the cow made a kotow, putting his face on the floor, for the cow is a sacred animal in India. This act of reverence won Kadur's confidence, and he gave the stranger a permanent position as cow guard.

One day a man living near the premises went to Agya's father and told him that a few weeks before he had started on a journey at 2 o'clock in the morning and had seen the dead body of a cow removed from the priest's premises and a live cow installed in its place. This settled Agya's fate, and her father made arrangements with some persons engaged in the business of strangling unmarried girls to put his daughter where she would cost him no more money.

Agya, who saw the men go into the house to confer with her father and suspected the purport of the conference, listened to it in concealment and heard her father agree to take her into a wood near by and deliver her to her executioners. The time appointed for this deed was one week from that day.

Now, it was Rustum who had begged Kadur for work and become one of the guards of the cow. Agya did not tell her father that she and her lover had laid a plan to secure her inheritance, for so great was his reverence for the priesthood that this would defeat the plan. Rustum could not solve the problem by marrying her, for he had not a rupee in the world.

Rustum in applying to Kadur for work hoped that he might be given the duty of watching the cow and intended looking out for an opportunity to expose the fact that she was not the original cow that as a calf had become the embodiment of the spirit of Nirmal's son and the heir to the fortune that was to pass at his death to Agya. If he could not expose the fraud possibly he might kill the cow. But this would be difficult since no one person was trusted with her care and any such attempt on his part would be foiled by the other care takers.

When Agya heard that she was to be strangled that day week she knew it behooved her to be up and doing. She contrived to get word to Rustum of the situation that he might make haste in the sacrifice of the cow that she might be saved. Rustum determined to put his scheme in operation at once.

There is no dearth of poisons in India, and Rustum would have no difficulty in mixing one of them in the cow's fodder. The trouble was to get witnesses of the animal's death. Indeed, this could only be done by corrupting the guard, for Rustum realized that when she died Kadur would pay those who were cognizant of her death to keep it a secret. If Rustum endeavored to forestall him by corrupting them himself in case he was betrayed by any of them he would be sent away and the girl he loved would be strangled. Rustum decided not to attempt to bribe any one; the risk was too great.

One dark morning before daylight Rustum arose and, partly dressed, stole out into the yard and, taking some combustibles from under a pile of rubbish where he had concealed them, placed them against the corner of the house where the cow was kept and set fire to them. When the flames were well started he raised a cry of fire and began to break down the door of the manger, ostensibly to rescue the cow. He had the day before weakened the door, and it gave way under his blows just before persons appeared on the scene. Rustum, rushing into the manger, took a little syringe from his clothing and thrusting it into the cow, squirted the contents under her skin. Then, unloosening her, he led her out into the yard.

By this time the guards who were on duty only by day appeared and persons in the neighboring houses began to throng in to help put out the fire. Kadur came down half dressed and, seeing that the cow had been saved, muttered thanks to Vishnu and promised Rustum, who, he was told, had saved her, a large reward. But suddenly while he was rejoicing at her safety she began to stagger and in another moment fell dead in presence of the assembled crowd.

As soon as Agya's father heard of the death of the animal that stood between his daughter and her fortune he instituted proceedings in the courts to give her possession of it and, there being many witnesses of the cow's death, had no trouble in getting it out of the hands of the administrator. When this had been accomplished instead of turning her over to the executioners he laid a plan to marry her to a rich merchant.

Agya told her father how Rustum had saved her, but he would not believe it. The lovers asked him if he would be convinced if it were proved that the cow had been poisoned. He said that he would and in that case would consent to the marriage. Rustum then exhumed the cow, cut a piece from her, took it to an English chemist and asked him to analyze it. The chemist reported finding poison, and the lovers were married with the consent of their parents.

As for the priest, he went back to the temple and resumed his work as an oracle, at which he continued to heap up money at the expense of those who believed.

This story may be considered "gauzy," but missionaries who have labored among the superstitious classes in India will testify that, while there may be incorrect features in it, there is little or no overdrawing.

A Treacherous Jewel.

If a faded turquoise be dampened its color is temporarily restored. SESSION GROWS WARM.

House Spends Hours In Debate on Dr Shortt's Statements.

OTTAWA, March 5. — A heated party debate raged in the House all day. It began upon a question of privilege raised by Sir Wilfrid Laurier respecting the criticisms of Prof Shortt, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, by Hon. Robert Rogers the Minister of Public Works. Mr Rogers a few evenings ago in the course of the budget debate denounced Prof. Shortt's recent deliverance on the dismissals and appointments of the Government as dishonest, dishonorable and unfair. As the chairman of the Civil Service Commission can only be removed by the Government upon an address from the two Houses of Parliament, Sir Wilfrid maintained that a question of privilege was involved. Subsequently Sir Robert Borden moved that the House go into commission of supply and upon this motion the debate continued for several hours.

The following history of a STRAIGHT LIFE POLICY with profits reserved for 20 years is interesting:

Pol. No. 27619. Amount: $1000. Premium $20.95. Age, 30

Total premiums paid from 1st February, 1890, to February, 1910 (20 years) $419.00

The premiums were then permanently reduced by the accumulated profits to $10.20 per year; this he paid for the past five years .. 51.00

Total cost in 25 years 470.00

Now his profits for the past five years reduce the premium to $2.00 per year.

Had this man taken a Non-Participating Straight Life he would have paid during the same period 475.00

and would still have to pay $19.00 per year as long as he lives, while his participating policy has not only cost him less in the aggregate, but his future premium is only $2.00 per year, subject to further reductions, as compared with $19.00 per year on the Non-Participating plan.

ALLIES HAVE NOW CLEARED LONG STRETCH OF STRAITS

Warships Have Now Destroyed Forty Turkish Guns Along the Dardanelles and Are Proceeding With Task in a Methodical Fashion.

LONDON, March 5. — The British Admiralty issued the following statement late last night:

"The attack upon the fortresses in the Dardanelles continued yesterday (Wednesday). The admiral has not yet reported on the result obtained within the straits.

"Outside, the Dublin demolished an observation station on the Gallipoli peninsula and the Sapphire bombarded guns and troops at various points in the Gulf of Adramyti.

"Six modern field guns at fort E have been destroyed, bringing the total number of guns demolished up to forty.

"French battleships bombarded the Bulair forts and wrecked the Kavak bridge."

The French Ministry of Marine last night issued the following communication concerning the allied attack on the Dardanelles:

"Methodical operations against the defences of the Dardanelles continued March 3, despite an annoying northwest wind.

"Numerous trawlers dragged the entire strait from its entrance to the south of Derech (on the European side, almost opposite Dardanus) in order to permit the warships bombarding Chanak Kalesi, to move about with security.

"The observation post at Kaba Tepeh (on the Aegean side) has been destroyed by a cruiser.

"At various points on the coast field batteries and formation of troops have been cannonaded by the allied vessels.

"On the Syrian coast the French cruiser, d'Entrecasteaux, demolished semaphore D, at Assos (on the Gulf of Adramyti, north of Mitylene Island) and the battleship Jaureguiberry destroyed oil depots at Saido (in Palestine, about 30 miles south of Beirut)."

Relays of battleships keep up an almost continuous bombardment against the Dardanelles forts. They have cleared the outer straits and are now attacking the forts which line the narrows and which are considered the most difficult to deal with.

BARON VON DER GOLTZ.

The destruction of what the British Admiralty calls fort No. 9 was a necessary operation before the warships could move further into the straits, as it was this fort which was designed to protect one of the mine depots of the Dardanelles. It was built at the water's edge on the European side, opposite Cape Kephez.

More important still is the work being carried out by the French ships in bombarding from the sea the Saros-Bulair line of forts, which stretches across the peninsula of Gallipoli at a point where it is only three miles wide. So long as the guns of the warships command this neck of land, communications between the forts on the European side of the straits and Constantinople are cut off.

LESS BREAD FOR THE GERMANS

BERLIN, March 5.—(Via London) —The North German Gazette announces that the daily bread ration throughout the Empire has been fixed at 200 grammes (a little less than half a pound) of bread or flour per capita from March 15, instead of 225 grammes, the amount previously permitted.

The returns on stocks of grain and flour taken on Feb. 1, which now have been received, show that there are sufficient of the supplies to continue the earlier ration until the next harvest, but it was thought best, according to the newspaper, to hold a reserve for contingencies.

The newspaper adds that the municipalities will be allowed a certain amount of elasticity in their distributions. They may cut the ration for children in order to allot larger portions to the classes of the population where the consumption is normally greater.

One of the most welcome effects of the bombardment so far as England is concerned is the reduction in the price of wheat which sold yesterday in the Bristol market at from 55 to 58 shillings a quarter, as compared with 60 shillings and over less than a fortnight ago.

A despatch to Reuter's from Athens says:

"The bombardment of the inner forts of the Dardanelles was resumed Thursday morning. Ten big warships took part in the operations. According to a British officer only two of the Turkish forts remain intact. Allied landing parties found the charred remains of soldiers in the damaged forts, showing that the Turks had buried their dead before evacuating these positions."

Little Aid For Turkey.

GENEVA, March 5. — A despatch from Munich says that Field Marshal Baron Von Der Goltz, who was sent to Constantinople from Germany to act as the adviser of the Turkish Government in military affairs, has telegraphed to the German military headquarters asking for 50 German artillery officers, on the ground that they were urgently needed for the defence of the Dardanelles. The field marshal received a laconic reply, the despatch says, stating that the Germans need their artillery officers, and adding: "Do your best."

FAREWELL BY KING GEORGE

Inspiring Message Was Read to Canadians

OTTAWA, March 4.—Following his inspection of the Canadian first contingent, on Feb. 4, on Salisbury Plain, His Majesty the King wrote a gracious message to the troops, to be read to all units on board ship, after their embarkation for France. The government today issued the text of the farewell, which follows:

"Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers and Men:

"At the beginning of November I had the pleasure of welcoming to the mother country this fine contingent from the Dominion of Canada, and now, after three months of training, I bid you Godspeed on your way to assist my army in the field.

"I am well aware of the discomforts that you have experienced from the inclement weather, and abnormal rain and I admire the cheerful spirit displayed by all ranks in facing and overcoming all difficulties.

"From all I have heard and from what I have been able to see at today's inspection and march-past, I am satisfied that you have made good use of the time spent on Salisbury Plain.

"By your willing and prompt rally to our common flag you have already earned the gratitude of the motherland.

"By your deeds and achievements on the field of battle I am confident that you will emulate the example of your fellow countrymen in the South African war, and thus help to secure the triumph of our arms.

"I shall follow with pride and interest all your movements, and I pray that God may bless you and watch over you."

INSTRUMENTS TO BE REPAIRED

Some of the testing instruments, included in the inventory of the Peterborough Light and Power Co.'s property expropriated by the city had been put down as not being fit for use. Manager Fisk stated at the meeting of the Commission yesterday afternoon that it would be possible to send some of the instruments to the repair department of the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario and have them overhauled, thus making them suitable for use. He was given authority to send such instruments as could be repaired to Toronto.

Some of the instruments recently purchased by the Commission are now in use.

BARE ESCAPE FROM DEATH

Canadians Left Trench Before Mine Exploded

LONDON, March 4.—One of the latest arrivals at Shorncliffe is Armitage Lawton, Toronto, who is suffering from rheumatism and strain thru a fall while making for the trenches. Despite his injuries, he did his forty-eight hours of trench duty along with the rest. In fact, it was some days later when his condition forced him to go sick.

Speaking to a Canadian Press representative today, he described how his platoon went forward to the trenches.

"We had the enemy's machine guns on us from the first moment that we moved forward from the trenches," said Lawton. "We were advancing in the dark, but rockets kept going up. Then we used to fall flat. Just as I was getting into a trench it was necessary to repeat the falling down business. Unfortunately, I fell more than I bargained for. I had been moving right on the edge of the trench and I fell to the bottom. I was badly shaken up. However, there I had to stop, and during forty-eight hours I fired away with the rest.

"Our men happened to be lucky, for as far as I know not one of them was hit. Another party came off much worse. Three were warming themselves round a pail close to me when a shell came along and took their heads off. Our party was relieved by another party who had not been in the trench above an hour when eighty of them were blown out, the trench having been undermined."

Lawton added that he had been in four different hospitals before reaching Shorncliffe. He emphasized that nobody at the front knew what was going on except in his own immediate neighborhood.

"All our boys want is for the Germans to come out," was Lawton's comment when asked as to the spirit of the Canadians.

Major George Higginbottom of the Q.O.R., Toronto, who was operated on Tuesday, is progressing slowly.

King's Garden to Grow Cabbages.

AMSTERDAM, March 5. — The Vossische Zeitung, in a recent issue, says it has heard from Vienna that on orders issued by Emperor Francis Joseph, the imperial gardens and all the available space surrounding the imperial palaces in and near Vienna should be used for the raising of cabbages to provide food for the people.

SOLDIERS OF THE KING

In order to facilitate the handling of mail at the front, and to insure prompt delivery it is requested that all mail be addressed as follows:—

(a) Rank. (b) Name. (c) Regimental number. (d) Company, squadron battery or other unit. (e) Battalion. (f) Brigade. (g) First (or second) Canadian contingent. (h) British Expeditionary Force, Army post office, London, England.

A Burnley soldier, Corporal Ross, of the 3rd Battalion Coldstreams, writing from France states:

The situation there is exceedingly good. I fancy the Germans are just waking up to the fact that the "contemptible little army" resembles a rubber punching ball — the harder you hit it the harder it hits back and I think their infantry especially will fight shy of us.

We have had some hardships I can tell you, especially in the trenches. One day our boots were full of water, and at night it was frosty. The consequence was our feet got slightly frost bitten. I have never been hungry since I entered France.

Mrs. O'Flynn, Bridge Street East, Belleville received a letter yesterday morning from her son at the front. He described the voyage from England to France. He said it was very rough but a very interesting voyage. He said they had good quarters in France and he found the French he studied under Mr. Milburn was coming back to him and he could make himself understood although he could not speak it well.

He mentions especially Lieut. Ponton and Lieut. Ackerman of Peterborough, and writes they are all well and all pleased that they have reached the battle line where they can do their part for the Empire and the flag, the letter was written as subsequent cables show two days before going in the trenches.

Selim the Grim.

Sultan Yawns Selim (Selim the Grim) is certainly not a pleasant Turkish potentate to recall. When he created his secretary Mohammed grand vizier the poor man had to be bastinadoed into accepting the honor. For "Mayst thou be Selim's vizier!" was a well understood equivalent of the time for "Strike you dead." Selim loved literature, however. The poem which his brother wrote, in the hour's grace granted before he was strangled with every other possible rival to Selim, moved the sultan to tears. But it did not save the poet.—London Chronicle.

When You Travel.

Don't wait until you reach the station, a few minutes before it is time for the train to start, before you find out the time for starting, arriving at your destination and the time of connection. AUSTRO-GERMAN SPRING CAMPAIGN IS SPOILED

Muscovite Troops Are More Than Holding Their Own in Fighting at Northern and Southern Wings of Long Line—Von Hindenburg Has Had a Long Series of Failures.

LONDON, March 5.—Through the Carpathian front, as far as the borders of Bukowina, the Russians have now succeeded in overthrowing the great Austro-German scheme for a spring campaign in Galicia. After a conference of the German and Austrian staffs at Breslau in December, a movement was initiated with great numerical strength, in an attempt to get under the Russian left wing approaching Cracow. Subsequent operations extending over a month, enabled the Russians to distribute a strong army across the Carpathian passes and to hold them against four armies which were attempting to force a passage northward. At the same time the Russian force facing the Cracow defences entrenched itself along the Dunajaz and Nida.

The Austrians had a month of terrible fighting with their German auxiliaries, the latter suffering appalling losses during their incessant attempts from the Munkacz road to pierce through the Tukhola Pass and to enter the Stryj valley. Instead of making progress the Austrians and Germans were steadily forced through the rocky ravines into Hungary. With all their new formations that could be raised, and with a strong backing of Germans, they brought a great new army through Bukowina and again attempted to envelop the Russian left, which lies facing southward near the Roumanian border.

This new army under Archduke Ferdinand pushed northward through Nadvorna by forced marches upon Stanislau, an old Polish town of many historical monuments. The Russians, who have had a small force there for six months, were reinforced and had their dispositions chosen for a great battle. They drew outside of the town and entrenched themselves eight miles north, while another Russian army crossed to the eastward from the Wyszkow Pass against the advancing Austrians.

This third Austrian army has probably made its final effort. With its failure and the destruction of the Archduke's advance into Bukowina, Austrian strategy against Russia is laid in ruins.

The Russian offensive continues to meet with success in North Poland and in Eastern Galicia, while in the Carpathians the Muscovite troops are Carpathians the Muscovite troops are more than holding their own in stern and bloody fighting.

One day's capture in the mountains and in the eastern end of Galicia totalled 47 officers, 3,000 men and 16 machine guns.

The War Office reported here yesterday that the Austrian rear guards in eastern Galicia are endeavoring to make a stand on the river Lukwa and as far along to the east as Jezupui. These positions are being attacked by the advance guards of the Russian army operating in this region.

The Russians in North Poland on the Niemen front are now moving the Niemen front are now moving forward along the roads from Olitza, north of Grodno, and are meeting with resistance from the Germans in the lake passages near Sjumo and Seres.

Fighting of great severity is in progress in the Vosges on the western front. Reports received here show that violent encounters are taking place between Pfetterhausen and St. Die, and in the Munster Valley, near Sulzern.

A French attack on Hartsmanns-Weilerkopf was precipitated by an attempt of the Germans to cut the French communications between Belfort and Saint Amarin, 18 miles northward.

Shells from German field guns have again fallen in Swiss territory.

MEETING TONIGHT.

The public are reminded of the meeting in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute tonight at eight o'clock. Justice Riddell will give an address.

TOO MUCH MONEY LEAVES CAMPBELLFORD

Money Orders Issued Show Total of $99,097 For Year

The Campbellford News, opines that too much money is sent out of the town, and points out that Peterborough which is six times the size of Campbellford, exceeds the Trent town by only $28,000. The News says:—

Look at the amount of money sent out of town, over $99,000 through the post office alone, last year. There is a serious problem for our merchants in the figures given below, from the 1914 report of the Postmaster-General. Besides this astonishing total of money orders issued, there is the large business of the banks and express companies.

	Orders Issued	Orders Paid.	Difference.
Campbll'd	$99,097	$24,726	$74,361
Cobourg	63,320	35,789	27,531
Bowmanv'e	71,798	24,343	47,455
Port Hope	67,090	42,752	24,338
Picton	44,637	32,504	12,133
Peterboro.	127,758	232,062	104,304

The amount from here is not exceeded by any of the larger neighboring towns. Peterborough, a city over six times our size, exceeds it by only $28,000, but it has a balance on the right side, with orders paid, of $104,804, the only one in the list so situated.

The third column represents how much less money remained in the towns at the end of the year, excepting Peterborough.

It is probably true that a large portion of the $99,000 was sent out by the foreign residents here, but for this deduct $30,000, and see where we stand. There must have been strong inducement for people to send away about $60,000 last year, the greater proportion of which we believe went to mail order houses. This inducement was continuous, consistent and persistent advertising.

And several of our merchants maintain that they cannot see the value in advertising. Does this give them any light?

How much better off our town would be if that $60,000 were spent here. Instead of that the benefit has gone to large metropolitan houses, and our whole community is thereby the loser.

OBITUARY

MRS. JAMES BUCHANAN.

Death knocked softly on the door Sunday evening, and summoned away the gentle spirit of Anna Carr McLarty, widow of the late James Buchanan. Eighty-six years ago she was born in Lochgilphead, Scotland, and came to Canada with her parents when a child, the family locating in Otonabee. In 1850 she was married to her late husband, who passed away in August, 1913. For the past thirty-three years Mrs. Buchanan has been a quiet respected resident of town, devoting herself to her home and family. Until greatly weakened by failing health, the deceased had been a faithful attendant of the Presbyterian church, of which she was a life long member.

Three sons, Messrs. John of Gravenhurst, James of Belleville, Archie of Preston, and six daughters, Mrs. Thos. Lancaster of Peterborough, Mrs. G. R. Pearse of town, Mrs. J. A. Beesmith of Preneveau, Mrs. E. Brooks of Leamington, Mrs. Jas. Turk of Toronto, and Miss Eliza at home, are left to cherish the fond memory of a kind and loving mother. One brother, Mr. James McNeil of Keene, and two sisters, Mrs. Peter McNeil of Keene, and Mrs. Wm. Sharpe of Westwood, also survive.

The funeral took place Wednesday afternoon to Mount Pleasant cemetery. Service was held at the house, Rear Street, at 2.30, and was conducted by Rev. G. A. Brown, pastor of St. Andrew's church.

Among the numerous floral tributes was a beautiful wreath from the Ritchie Company of Belleville, with whom the deceased's son, Mr. Jas. Buchanan, is associated.—Campbellford News.

MRS. ALICE O'BRIEN.

At the age of eighty, Mrs. Alice O'Brien, an inmate of the House of Providence, died last evening from pneumonia, after a very brief illness. Her husband predeceased her many years. She will be buried in St. Peter's Cemetery, the funeral taking place on Saturday morning at nine o'clock from the residence of Mr. Robert Hickson, 625 Cedar street, to St. Peter's Cathedral, and thence to the cemetery.

MR. FRED PETERS.

Fred Peters, aged 31, passed away at Hamilton yesterday after an illness of six weeks. Complications followed an attack of pneumonia. His widow and two small children reside in Lindsay. His brothers are Harry and Frank, Peterborough, William, Detroit, and George of Manitoba, and his sisters are Misses Pearl, Jennie, Jessie, Hazel, Lilly and Dorothy all of Peterborough.

The remains will arrive in the city tonight and the funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at two o'clock from the residence of his mother, Mrs. James Peters, 491 Parnell St., to Little Lake Cemetery.

Bernard W. Bass, clerk of Coney Island police court, is the fifth holder of that office to die a violent death.

"WHOLE ARMY IN HIMSELF."

Sergt. Michael O'Leary, V.C., the former member of the Royal Ninth West Mounted Police, at Regina, who was promoted on the field from Lance-Corporal, and awarded the Victoria Cross for conspicuous bravery at Cuinchy, on Feb. 1. O'Leary was one of a storming party which advanced against the German trenches. He killed five of the enemy who were holding the first barricade and captured the second barricade after killing three more Germans and taking prisoner two others. The official report of the feat states that he "practically captured the enemy's position by himself and prevented the rest of the attacking party from being fired upon."

MORE INSPECTORS ARE APPOINTED

Lindsay, March 5.—A deputation of citizens who awaited upon the Minister of Marine and Fisheries in Toronto some time ago succeeded in having five inspectors appointed to patrol the waters from Fenelon Falls and Bobcaygeon to Scugog lake for six weeks during the spring season. The time to commence duties will be specified.

The deputation spoke to the Minister on the excellent work done in the waters last year by inspectors, and how poachers were kept from depleting the streams of this district by their strict vigil. This had the effect desired, therefore, in accordance with their request Sturgeon lake and its numerous tributaries will be well watched this year, and poachers who are caught will be dealt with severely.

AGRICULTURAL VALUES

A press bulletin issued today by the Census and Statistics Office summarises the results of inquiries made by crop-reporting correspondents as to (1) the value of farm land, (2) the value of farm help and (3) the values of farm live stock in 1914.

Values of Farm Land.

For the whole of Canada the average value of farm land held for agricultural purposes, whether improved or unimproved, and including the value of dwelling houses, farms, stables and other farm buildings, is returned as $38.41 per acre, which is about equal to that of the last similar inquiry in 1910, when the value was given as $38.45 per acre. In 1911 the average was returned by the census as $30.41, but this value was based upon returns from all occupiers, including farms only recently settled and therefore of less value. By provinces the average values of 1914 range from $21 per acre in Alberta to $150 per acre in British Columbia. In this province however the high value is due to orcharding, ordinary agriculture being subsidiary to fruit culture.

Wages of Farm Help.

In recent years the wages of farm help have increased considerably, and they reached their highest point during the bumper harvest of 1913. But in 1914 the pendulum swayed back, less labour being required on farms owing to lighter crops. Since August the war has had for one of its effects an increase in the supply of farm labour and consequently a fall in the wages. The demand for labour this winter has also decreased because of the increased cost of board. For the Dominion the average wages per month during the summer, including board, were $35.55 for male and $18.81 for female help. For the year, including board, the average wages were $323.30 for males and $189.35 for females, whilst the average cost of board per month works out to $14.27 for males and $11.20 for females, as compared with $12.49 and $9.53 in 1910. Average wages per month in 1914 were lowest in Prince Edward Island, viz., $24.71 for males and $14.48 for females; in Nova Scotia they were $31.20 and $14.80 and in New Brunswick $31.93 and $15. In Quebec the averages were $33.56 and $15.65, and in Ontario $32.09 and $16.67. In the western provinces they were for males $39.13 in Manitoba, $40.51 in Saskatchewan and $40.26 in Alberta, females receiving $22.35 in Manitoba, $22.96 in Saskatchewan and $23.63 in Alberta. The highest wages were paid in British Columbia, viz., $47.85 for males and $31.18 for females, these averages being substantially less than in 1910 when males received $57.40 and females $38.

Values of Farm Live Stock.

Values are well maintained so far as comparison with the three years ended 1910 is concerned; but during 1914 there has been a substantial reduction in the value both of horses and of swine. It is a cause of general complaint that the demand for horses other than for military purposes has fallen off, and that prices are less by from 25 to 40 or 50 per cent. than they were in 1913.

Owing to the high price of grain the keeping of swine in the west is said to be no longer a paying proposition. Hogs have been sold for what they will fetch — frequently for as little as 3½ cents per lb. —and many have been marketed in an unfinished condition. On the other hand the prices of cattle have been well maintained and the average values for dairy cows and for other horned cattle are considerably above those of 1910. The averages per head for all Canada come to $127 for horses, $57 for milch cows, $42 for other cattle, $7 for sheep and $12 for swine. The following is believed to be a rough approximation of the total value of Canadian farm live stock in 1914: Horses $371,430,000, cattle $297,131,000, sheep $14,551,000 and swine $32,418,000, for an aggregate of $725,530,000 for all descriptions.

FOREMAN UPSET WHEN GIVING THE VERDICT

Dr. Robinson Smiled When He Heard He Was Free

NAPANEE, March 4.—Five hundred spectators at the trial of Dr. C. K. Robinson, charged with the murder of Miss Blanche Yorke in Tamworth on the night of July 8 last, broke into loud cheers here this afternoon when the jury after being out for approximately two and one-half hours returned with a verdict of not guilty.

"We find the prisoner, Dr. Robinson, guilty—I mean not guilty," stammered the foreman, and the whole room gasped at the error, which for a brief fraction of a second dazed the Robinson family. The jurors sat down, and for a moment a hush hung over the court; then a woman at the back of the hall giggled hysterically and the pent-up feeling of the throng broke loose in roars of applause.

Robinson's set face slowly relaxed after the verdict, his wife directly beside him buried her face in her gloved hands, and lifted it again in time to be the first one to catch her husband's smile. The wife instantly smiled in reply, but the young doctor's mother and sister seemed more inclined to burst into tears in their happiness.

Robinson was ordered to stand. "Dr. Robinson," said His Honor, "the jury have found on the evidence that you are not guilty. I have nothing to add to their finding. You must have already suffered punishment; you have gone thru a great deal of mental excitement and worry and have suffered great financial and professional damage. No doubt the jury has taken the view that your evidence was the correct story of the happenings on that night and that you did the best in your power to treat the complications with which you had to deal; as to your doings afterwards they evidently believe it was the result of your fear and apprehension rather than of your guilt. It is now my duty to discharge you; you may go a free man."

Intern 10,000 Boer Rebels.

NEW YORK, March 5.—A news agency despatch from Cape Town, South Africa, published here yesterday says:

"Ten thousand Boer rebels were taken prisoner during the recent rebellion against British authority in the colony and the losses on both sides totalled 1,000. Finance Minister Smuts announced in the assembly yesterday.

"The rebels will be imprisoned until the end of the European war, the Government announced, owing to the impracticability of meting out adequate punishment at this time. The 293 ringleaders will be prosecuted at once."

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Sensational reports that millions of dollars in orders for war material from the United States had been cancelled in the last 48 hours nearly knocked the bottom out of the wheat market here today. After a fall of 7½c a bushel, prices closed wild at 4¼c to 4 7-8c under last night. Corn suffered a net decline of 1½c to 1 3-8c, oats 1 1-8c. Provisions made a ragged finish, ranging from 10c off to a rise of 5c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 4.—On the local grain exchange a sensational drop in the price of wheat occurred today. A loss of ¾c to 4¾c was registered. Oats ¾c down, and flax ¾c to 1c higher.

Wheat futures closed ¾c to 4¾c lower. Cash closed ⅜c lower for No. 2 and No. 3. Oats closed ½c to ⅝c lower and flax ½c to ⅝c higher.

Inspections yesterday were 257 cars, as against 193 last year, and in sight today were 325 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 4.—The demand for Manitoba spring wheat from over the cable was better today, and as the prices bid were satisfactory to exporters, sales of a fair number of loads were made for May-June shipment. A weaker feeling developed in the local market for oats and prices scored a further decline of ½c to 1c per bushel. Local buyers bought freely. Flour was 30c and 40c per barrel lower. There was no improvement in the demand for local or export account and business is dull. Bran and shorts were reduced $1 per ton, but all other lines of millfeed remain steady.

The trade in butter continues fair and the undertone of the market is firm. Cheese in fair demand. Eggs easy and prices lower.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 4.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.39¼; No. 1 northern, $1.34¾ to $1.38¾; No. 2 do., $1.30¾ to $1.36¼; May, $1.33¾; July, $1.29¾.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 4.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 779 cattle, 1917 hogs, 155 sheep and lambs and 63 calves.

The market opened up in the morning, dealers paying about steady values with Wednesday's quotations, but as the day advanced trade became less active, the market closing at 10c to 15c lower values in the fat cattle classes, fat cows especially.

There was little demand for stockers and feeders, and values were barely steady.

Milkers and springers were slow sale for any but the choice fresh milkers and extra quality forward springers. There are too many of the common light, late springers, for which there is little or no demand. These sold at $10 to $12 per head less, or were shipped home again.

There was a light delivery of veal calves, consequently prices were steady and firm.

Sheep and lambs not being plentiful values for them were firm also.

Hog prices still kept climbing until $8.25 to $8.35 for hogs weighed off cars was reported by commission salesmen.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice heavy steers sold at $7.50 to $7.75; choice butchers' cattle, 1000 to 1200 lbs., at $7.25 to $7.50; good butchers, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.60 to $6.90, common, $6 to $6.50; choice cows, $5.75 to $6.25; good cows, $5.25 to $5.75; medium, $5 to $5.25; canners and cutters, $3.75 to $4.50, bulls $5.25 to $6.50.

Stockers and Feeders.

Feeders, 700 to 900 lbs., sold at $5.80 to $6, medium feeders at $5.25 to $5.75; stockers at $4.75 to $5.

Milkers and Springers.

Choice fresh milkers and early springers were quoted at $66 to $90, and common backward springers, $45 to $55 each.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $11; good, $8 to $9; medium, $7 to $7.50, common, $5 to $5.50; eastern calves, $4 to $6.

Sheep and Lambs.

Choice light lambs sold at $10 to $10.40; heavy lambs at $9 to $9.50; light sheep at $6.50 to $7.25; heavy sheep at $5 to $5.50.

Hogs.

Selects weighed off cars sold at $8.25 to $8.35, and $8 fed and watered.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 4.—Cattle—Receipts, 5000; market, weak; beeves, $5.75 to $9.05; western steers, $5.10 to $7.50, cows and heifers, $3.50 to $7.70, calves, $6.75 to $10.25.

Hogs—Receipts, 30,000; market, strong; light, $6.45 to $6.70; mixed, $6.45 to $6.75; heavy, $6.20 to $6.65, rough, $6.20 to $6.35; pigs, $5.75 to $6.75, bulk of sales, $6.60 to $6.70.

Sheep—Receipts, 12,000; market, unsettled; native, $7 to $7.90, yearlings, $7.75 to $8.65; lambs, native, $7.75 to $9.75.

HOCKEY CURLING ATHLETICS

THE SEASON OF 1915 WILL NOT BE AS LEAN AS ONE MIGHT EXPECT

So Says President Fitzgerald of the Canuck League — Annual Meeting Being Held To-day — No Local Representative

Toronto, March 5.—It is more than probable that the Canadian League will be composed of six clubs this season. The Erie, Pa., territory has been turned over to the Central League and the Peterborough club contemplates asking the league to allow it to retain its franchise and territory without operating it this season. The preliminary schedule meeting of the league will be held in this city today when thes matters will be discussed.

The Peterborough club called a meeting recently as which the opinion was unanimously expressed that it would be inadvisable to play this season on account of the conditions imposed by the war. With the Erie club out, it will be necessary either to secure one to take its place or reduce the circuit to six clubs.

There is a probability that the Toronto club will be transferred to Niagara Falls, N.Y. Conditions were not favorable to the local club last season, and there is no reason to expect that there will be any great improvement this season. The Niagara Falls territory has been thoroughly inquired into by the Toronto management within the past month.

"The season of 1915 will not be as lean as one might expect," said President James P. Fitzgerald of the league last night. "The hockey season which is now drawing to a close has been one of the best in many years in spite of war conditions. The outlook is not at all bad."

Rumors are quite current today that should the league refuse to allow the Peterborough club to retain the franchise without operating it, someone will take it up. The name of the prospective capitalist is not mentioned.

A Mighty Armada.

In order to gain an idea of the size of the mightiest armada that ever crossed the Atlantic, 32 transport ships loaded with troops from Canada going to aid the Mother Country, Canadians will be interested to read the following details regarding the fleet:

Hedged about with grim warships, fore, aft and alongside, the 32 steel gray transports steamed in triple line, headed by the cruiser Diana. The right file of ships was led by the Florizel, carrying Newfoundland soldiers. The file contained 11 ships. The middle file of 10 ships was headed by the Laurentic, while the left file of 11 ships was headed by the Royal George.

Thus day after day the ships steamed in regular line, a space about two miles intervening between the transports in file.

The right flank was constantly guarded by the battleship cruiser Princess Royal and the left by the battleship Glory. The rear was constantly guarded by three cruisers, H. M. S. Eclipse, H. M. S. Talbot and H. M. S. Charybdis.

The liners in the fleet were: Megantic, Ruthenia, Bermudian, Andania, Ivernia, Scandinavian, Sicilian, Montezuma, Lapland, Cassandra, Florizel, Caribbean, Manhattan, Royal Edward, Franconia, Canada, Monmouth, Manitou, Tyrolia, Tunisian, Laurentic, Scotian, Arcadian, Zeeland, Corinthian, Virginian, Alaunia, Saxonia, Grampian, Lakonia, Montreal, and Royal George

TINKER, SHORTSTOP, NOW ON SECOND BASE.

Chicago, March 5.—Joseph B. Tinker, manager of the Chicago Federals, after playing at shortstop from the start of his long career in the major leagues, has decided to switch to second base.

Tinker asserted that his place in the short field would be taken by James Smith, a 19 year old star, who acquired his baseball knowledge at Duquesne University, Pittsburgh. Smith was signed late last fall.

TWENTY-NINE HORSES FOR KING'S PLATE

TORONTO, March 5. — The 56th running of the King's Plate, which is set for May 22nd, the opening day of the Ontario Jockey Club's Spring meeting, has received twenty-nine nominations, which is just three less than last year, so that war conditions have had no decidedly adverse effect on the racing prospects. Seventeen owners are represented in the list, President Seagram having as usual the strongest numerical entry. An interesting feature of the list is that only six of the lot named are without racing experience, whereas before the adoption of the condition permitting two-year-old winners to run for the Plate, it was the exception to find one that had been seen under colors, unless it were some of the old-timers regularly entered and never figuring as anything other than starters.

LOCAL BOYS GET "T."

GALT WON NORTHERN.

GALT, March 5. — Owen Sound lost the Northern League junior championship to Galt last night by one goal. The locals won the game 5 to 4 and the round 9 to 8. The match was the fastest and most stubbornly contested played here this winter. The half-time score was 4-0 in the locals' favor.

ORILLIA WON FIRST OF INTERMEDIATE FINALS

Northern Septette Defeated Wiarton by 5-1 in the First Battle — Was Fine Exhibition of Hockey

Orilla, March 5.—Orillia O. H. A. intermediates demonstrated their superiority over Wiarton here this evening in the first game of the O.H.A. final by making a score of five goals to Wiarton's one. The game was brilliant from start to finish and was the finest exhibition of hockey played in Orillia this season.

Orillia had the best of the combination play in the first period, Wiarton making a feature of long shots, the puck often being sent from one end of the rink to the other. Johnson, in goal for Wiarton, was a star and as the play was largely in front of his net, he was kept busy. "Dad" Ashley played left defence for Wiarton, and was undoubtedly the strongest man on their team. Simmie and Myers were fast, and the latter scored Wiarton's only tally.

Corbould, in goal for Orillia, was very good. Long shots or shots near at hand were all the same to him. The only one that got past him was a fluke.

In the first period Orillia got the first goal after ten minutes of play. Draper shot and Ross took it on the rebound and dropped the puck into the net. Wiarton scored one shortly before time was called and the period ended one all.

In the second period Wiarton played better combination than they did in the first, but Orillia scored two more, Jupp and Ross doing the trick.

Both teams commenced the third period in good form and play was very even. Toward the close, Orillia got two more past Johnston, Macnab and Draper taking the honors. The game was clean and the penalties were few. The line-up:—

Orillia—Goal, Corbould; right defence, Harvie; left defence, Macnab; rover, Jupp; centre, Ross; right wing, Draper; left wing, McDonald.

Referee—Lou Marsh of Toronto.

HOME GUARD

Will Escort Mounted Rifles on March to Station -- General Information for Home Defenders

A splendid parade of the "Guards" was held at the sheds last night, between 300 and 300 men were on parade. A marked improvement in the drill is noticeable. Orders were read as follows:—

Peterborough, March 4, 1915.

Orders by Officer Commanding Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association "Home Guard."

Attention is drawn to extract from orders of Feb. 25th as follows:—

The "Nicholls" Cup match will be shot off as follows:—

Tuesday, March 9th, Companies 4, 5 and 6.

Wednesday, March 10th, Companies 7, 8 and 9.

Friday, March 12th, Companies 10 and 11.

Saturday, March 13th, Companies 1, 2 and 3.

Time of shooting 7.15, 8.15 and 9.15 respectively.

Range officers, Maj. R. E. Layfield, Capt. W. H. Moore, Capt. F. Bartlett.

By order,
F. D. KERR,
Capt. Adj.

After reading of orders, Major Layfield congratulated the members on the splendid turnout on Sunday the 28th, and also the parade of the evening with the marked improvements in drill.

Members of teams were warned that their absence for any reason would destroy the team's chance for a place on the prize list.

Owing to the fact that an hour had not yet been set for the departure of the 8th Mounted Rifles, it is requested that the members of the Home Guard watch for the announcement in the papers and fall in about that time at the armouries. They will assemble in the gun shed, as the "Guards" have some 30 members in the 8th Mounted Rifles, every member is asked to give his comrades a rousing send-off.

The parade to escort the 8th Mounted Rifles called for this evening is cancelled as their departure has been delayed.

Members are invited by the Minister of Agriculture to attend the lecture given by Mr. Justice Riddell this evening in the Collegiate Institute.

BONSPIEL SURPRISES

W. H. Taylor, Last Season's Winner Loses in Primary

"FITZ" IS OUT

W. H. Denham's Rink Loses Second Game by One Shot

There were several surprises in the bonspiel last night and among the features of the play, was the defeat of skip W. H. Taylor, who won primary honors last winter. Giroux did the trick his rink having a majority of three shots. In the Consolation W. H. Denham lost his second game by one shot. The score was 7-6 for Hall. Sturgeon and Davidson won by default. W. D. Campbell put away Jack Fitzgerald in the consolation when the latter made an unusually small score of four.

H. R. H. Kenner who is playing a splendid game, won his game in the second round of the primary and the genial president looks to be steering a straight course to the finals.

The scores:—

First Round.

McDermid	8	Morrow	9
Hicks	7	Wightman	11
Greer	9	Thompson	10

Stevenson defaulted to Harstone.

Taylor	8	Giroux	11
Lang	6	Matthews	10

First Round.

Sturgeon won by default to Waddell.

Davidson defaulted to J. H. Ferguson.

Denham	5	Hall	7

Appropriate.

"That's a queer design you have in the corner of your billhead," remarked Slopay.

"It's merely a little flower," replied the tailor.

"Think it's appropriate, eh?"

"Yes, it's a forgetmenot."—Philadelphia Press.

Do You Wear One?

One thing you can wear year in and year out, that never grows monotonous, that never is unbecoming, that people are always glad to see, that never has to be made over or trimmed or sent to the cleaner's, is a smile.—Florida Times-Union.

Wasting Money.

"I guess it's just as well I didn't marry that girl. She evidently has no idea of the value of money."

"How's that?"

"Spent 60 cents postage sending me a bunch of old love letters."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

BOWLING

Why the Earth Cannot Explode.

The theory is frequently advanced that planets and even suns sometimes explode and that the earth may some day blow up like a bombshell. No celestial body the size of the earth could possibly explode. If the entire molten interior of our globe could be replaced with nitroglycerin and detonated the explosion would not lift the earth's crust. In other words, if we assume that the crust of the earth is from fifty to a hundred miles in thickness it would require something much more powerful than even nitroglycerin to burst the shell. It is necessary only to do a little figuring to see that the pressure of the earth's crust at a depth of from fifty to a hundred miles far exceeds the pressure exerted by the most powerful high explosive.—Hudson Maxim.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Rev. C. Allum of Shawville, Que., is in the city visiting friends, having been called to the city owing to the illness of Mrs. Allum, Sherbrooke St.

Mr. T. Harry Adams left this week on a business trip through the West to British Columbia. He was accompanied by Mrs. Adams who will spend an extended visit with her sister, Mrs. (Dr.) C. C. Leach, Hamilton.

GIRLS

Entertainment by the Members of Mission Circle

For their age and experience the children who took part in the Mission Circle concert at Charlotte Street Methodist Church last evening acquitted themselves well. The entertainment lasted only one hour.

The program consisted of a small playlet entitled "Every Girl." The various types of girls were all portrayed such as the Jealous Girl, the Lazy Girl, the Indifferent Girl, the Clever Girl, the Industrious Girl etc. Readings, recitations and children songs made up the remainder of the program, the little tots going through each without being in the least nervous or afraid. The concert was well attended. Miss Ila Giles is president of the Olive Mission Circle.

COMPANY DOES NOT LIKE OFFER OF COMMISSION

As yet no settlement has been made between the Utilities Commission and the Toronto Savings and Loan Company in connection with the account the company has against the city for excavation at Richard Hall & Sons' last fall. The company has refused to accept the offer the city made and wants $150. The chairman reported at the commissioners' meeting yesterday that the Toronto Savings and Loan Company has threatened to take the matter to court. It did not scare the commissioners who decided to let the matter stand over.

The account of John McDougall of the Caledonian Iron Works Co. for services in testing the Venturi metre is also still unsettled. A letter was received from the company re the account, and it was referred to the solicitor.

C. A. MASSEY'S WILL.

Toronto, March 5.—The will of the late Charles A. Massey, who was murdered on the 8th of February in front of his home, was yesterday filed for probate. The estate is valued at $8,441.20, and principally consists of life insurance.

The widow, Mrs. Rhoda Frances Massey, is the sole beneficiary and also the executrix of the estate. She is also appointed guardian of the child.

DIVISION COURT

At the Division Court today the executrix of the Levis Estate sued Mary M. Doig for the payment of two notes and interest, in all amounting to $115. Judgment was given for the plaintiff but Mr. M. McAvoy, acting for the defendant, secured permission to have the payment of the money postponed till May 1st.

A Local Product.

A day or so ago, reference was made to the song "Memory's Flowers," the words of which are by J. Lewis Mulligan. The front page of the piece says the music is by Mr. A. E. Greenlaw who sang it here at Dr. Gordon's meetings. The music is really by Mr. Asa Huycke of this city, although Mr. Greenlaw has made it popular by singing it. It has met with marked success.

LADIES' AID CONCERTS.

The people may look for a splendid entertainment on Monday evening next when the Ladies' Aid concert in St. Andrew's Church will take place at 8 o'clock. The artists taking part are all of high order and promise a most enjoyable evening.

Purchase Site for Sub-station

At the Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon Manager Fisk brought up the discussion as the purchasing ground for a substation. Commissioner Hicks suggested that a price be secured on the property between Aylmer St. and Bethune St. south of Wolfe and north of the C.P.R. tracks. This suggestion will be acted upon.

Manager Fisk was authorized to make arrangements for renting the vacant lot on George St. north of Dalhousie St. to be used as a [illegible] ground.

JUDGMENT STANDS.

Mr. G. W. Hatton was in Toronto yesterday acting with Mr. G. K. Shepley, K.C., for the plaintiffs in the appeal of the Bank of Ottawa versus R. R. Hall. It was heard in the Court of Appeal, the appeal being dismissed and the decision of Mr. Justice Kelly upheld with costs. The case first came up before the latter and judgment given against the plaintiffs. Mr. Justice Kellys decision therefore stands. Mr. G. H. Watson, K.C., acted for the defendants.

King's Daughters' Musicale

A very enjoyable afternoon tea followed by a musicale of a high order in the evening was given on Tuesday at the home of Mrs. S. T. Medd. It was under the auspices of the King's Daughters and was a success in every particular. About seventy-five or a hundred were present. The decorations, which were very tasty and attractive, were of daffodils and violets, and different members of the King's Daughters took turns in serving. Miss Jean Hill and Mrs. Cruickshank played a number of piano solos and Mrs. A. E. Coulthard, the president, received with Mrs. Medd.

In the evening a musicale was given, the following being the programme:

Instrumental Solo — Mrs. (Dr.) Buchanan — Gurrlandes (Godard).

Violin Solo — Miss Laura Logan — Allegro Brilliant (Ten Have).

Mrs. Buchanan and Miss Logan were heartily encored, but did not reply.

Vocal Solo — Asa Huycke — Roses (Stephen Adams).

Mr. Huycke's encore was "Dream" (Bartlett).

String Quartette — Misses Palmer, Logan, Dean, and Mr. Warren Dean — Quartette by Heyden.

The reception of this piece necessitated the playing of another selection.

Instrumental Solo — Miss Ida Sanderson — Shepherds All, Maiden Fair (Neven), which was also encored.

Violin Solo — Miss Palmer — Sons Du Soir (Christian Kriens).

Miss Palmer replied to the encore with a second selection.

Vocal Solo — Miss Ada Richardson — Valley of Laughter (Sanderson).

The encore was Birthday (Woodman).

Violin Duet — Misses Palmer and Logan — Concertenant (Dancly).

Mrs. Logan accompanied her daughter; Miss Gwen Smith accompanied Miss Palmer and the violin duet; Mrs. Buchanan played for Mr. Huycke, and Miss Sanderson for Miss Richardson.

The selections were well rendered and heartily applauded by the audience. The appreciation was genuine and contributed much to the pleasure of the evening of those who rendered selections and of those who heard them.

Refreshments were served, and the members of the King's Daughters are grateful to Mrs. Medd and to those who assisted in the programme.

Talkative Persons May Find Themselves in Police Court

In spite of the absolutely unfounded stories circulating, there is no further legal action contemplated by the crown or the police in connection with the Helen Brown affair. Furthermore the crown attorney states that those parties indulging in talk of an insinuating character, who have allowed their tongues to carry unsavory stories that reflect on the character of respectable citizens, would do well to stop it at once, lest they find themselves faced with actions in police court.

STATEMENT FROM HEADQUARTERS

London, March 5.—The semi-weekly communication from Sir John French's headquarters dated yesterday, says the situation is unchanged since the previous communication. The results of artillery exchanges has been consistently satisfactory. Minor enterprises have been of daily occurrence, usually on our initiative. South of Ypres Canal we captured a German advanced trench during the night of March first but it was rendered untenable by the enemy's artillery fire during the next day and was evacuated.

In the same neighborhood on March second, the enemy were forced to evacuate a trench by our artillery fire enabling our infantry to inflict several casualties by firing from trenches.

During the night of March second a German party were dispersed by a small party who advanced and bombed them.

On March second one of our aeroplanes flying behind the German lines was twice attacked by two German machines and forced them both to descend.

RUSSIAN FLEET IS REPORTED.

Company Offer Reduced Price for Meters and Transformers

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission yesterday afternoon the manager reported that some 280 meters were installed in the city during the month of February. In all over 600 meters have been installed in the city. He has asked the Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario to forward 700 more but to date he has received no reply to his letter. He further reported that the Canadian General Electric Company have made an offer to him to supply meters and transformers at a reduced price providing the local Commission sign an agreement to purchase all their meters and transformers from the C.G.E. for a year. The reduction in the regular price of meters was a considerable amount while in the case of the transformers the Commission would be guarded against a raise in price.

Mr. Fisk was ordered to prepare a report on the matter to be presented at the next meeting.

Insuring Employes.

T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Commission reported that he had held a conference with the committee of the City Council which is going into the matter of insuring employes, but as yet nothing definite had been done.

A GOOD BARGAIN SAYS MR. HALL

Former City Solicitor Discusses Arbitrators' Award

Former City Solicitor E. H. D. Hall who greatly assisted the city's solicitors during the arbitration, was informed by the Review this afternoon as to the amount set by the arbitrators. He expressed no surprise and remarked that he personally had thought it would be somewhere between one hundred and forty and one hundred and fifty thousand. He expected the judgment to call for the city paying more than the company had been offered. As to the city's offer being two-thirds of what the arbitrators decided upon, Mr. Hall stated that the Hydro-Electric valuators valuated only the material of the company, while he felt confident that the arbitrators had taken more than the actual physical value into consideration. He still thought the city had made a good bargain, and remarked that as the evidence at the sitting of the arbitration had shown the company's profits for the past few years were about $40,000 per annum the plant would soon pay for itself.

Greece and the War.

PARIS, March [illegible].—A second crown council to deliberate on the question of the course Greece shall pursue in the present crisis was called for to-day, says an Athens despatch to the Balkan Agency.

From the same source it is reported that Premier Venizelos proposed to King Constantine that Gen. Dousmanes, who recently retired from the position of chief of the general staff of the army, be recalled to his former duties. King Constantine consented, and Gen. Dousmanes immediately began work.

RATE PROPOSED FOR LIGHTING, TO NON-RESIDENTS

Customers Outside the City Limits May Pay More

Once again does public ownership score. The injustice to citizens by persons living in the surrounding vicinity enjoying the use of the various city utilities yet not contributing to the upkeep of the same could not be alleviated when a corporation owned the lighting system but now that it belongs to the citizens, non-residents will be rated higher than residents inside the four boundaries. At the Utilities Commission yesterday manager Fisk reported that he had been working on a scheme whereby the customers outside the city limits would pay a little more for their light than customers in the city.

The Commissioners were unanimous in the opinion that the idea was a good one and Commissioner Matthews remarked that it would be but right to charge more to those who were not responsible for the debenture debt. Commissioner Hicks thought it would be but justice as non-residents enjoyed the street lighting, good roads and good sidewalks yet contributed nothing to their upkeep.

The rate proposed by Mr. Fisk was 4 cents per hundred square feet and 3 cents per K.W. hour. The rate for the city, and now enjoyed by non-residents is 3 cents per hundred square feet and 2½ cents per K.W. hour. The out-of-city customers would, of course, be granted the usual ten per cent. discount for prompt payment. The following monthly account of one non-resident customer, also his monthly account with the proposed rates enforced will help to explain the extent of the increase:

The matter was referred to the Utilities Commission of Ontario for their approval.

"I must compliment you on the remarkable lightness of your bread," said the customer.

GERMAN LOSSES TOTAL THREE MILLION MEN

Paris, March 6, (C.P.)---Official press bureau declares that German losses since the beginning of hostilities in killed, wounded, sick and prisoners, reaches a total of 3,000,000. This is based on known casualties in ten German regiments.

ALLIED ARMIES NEARING READINESS FOR ORDER TO MOVE ON GERMAN HORDES

Unqualified Optimism Shown in Comment by London Papers is Attributed Largely to the Work of Czar's Troops

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 6. — The end of the thirty-first week of the war and the first signs of better weather conditions after a hard winter, find the allied armies in the western theatre nearing readiness for that concerted onslaught on the Germans, in preparation for which General Joffre and Sir John French have been doing so much spade work during the last four months.

From the sea through the dunes of Flanders to Arras in France, British and Belgian armies appear today to have withstood successfully all attempts of the Germans to break through their lines, while from Arras to the snow-topped ridges of the Vosges the French continue to move slowly forward.

This is especially true in the Champagne district, although skilful German commanders exact a heavy price for every step gained in this section towards what the French hope soon will result in freeing the city of Rheims from the attention of German howitzers.

Unqualified optimism with which, judging from the trend of comment in the London newspapers, the outcome of the approaching gigantic struggle is regarded in Great Britain, France and Russia, can be attributed largely to the remarkable recuperative powers shown by the troops of Emperor Nicholas. These soldiers have been able not only to bring Teutonic progress to a standstill, but to push the invaders back along virtually the whole front, until along one point at least it is admitted in Berlin fighting has again moved very near to the East Prussian frontier.

FALL WAS FATAL TO WM. SISSON

Young Man Received Internal Injuries

A fall on the ice while cutting and drawing wood resulted in the death last night of William Sisson, aged 19, residing in Cavan. The accident happened on Wednesday afternoon and from reports brought to the city the young man fell across a logging chain hurting himself internally. After the fall however he went to working but took sick that evening. He was not brought to the city till last evening at eight o'clock on the local, and taken to Nicholls Hospital where he died about one-thirty this morning.

Besides his parents he leaves four brothers and two sisters viz., Lorne, Bruce, Bertram, living in the west, Cecil at home, Mrs. Edward Morton in Cavan, and Olive at home.

The deceased will be interred in the Ida cemetery.

PEDAGOGUES HELD ANNUAL GATHERING

School Teachers Made Merry Around Festive Board

Over seventy-five were present at the third annual public school teachers' banquet held last night in the dining-room of the Oriental Hotel. An excellent menu was provided for the occasion, and as a result everyone had compliments for the chefs. A toast list of nice length was run off, Inspector Mowat being selected to attend to this end of it. The toast to "The King" was responded to by singing "God Save the King."

"Our City" was proposed and responded to by Mr. F. J. Voaden and Mr. Munro; "The Profession" by Miss Ross, Mr. F. E. Kerr and Mr. Rouzel; "The Ladies" by Mr. Malcolm Clark; "The Gentlemen" by Miss Clara Adams and Miss Letitia Elliott.

A choice musical program was also supplied by the following: Vocal solo, Miss Flossie Jackson; quartette, Messrs. Park, Kerr, Downey and Steer; duet, Mr. Downey and Miss M. Armstrong; duet, Mr. Park and Mr. Steer, and readings by Miss Thomas and Miss Jean Jackson.

"Auld Lang Syne" brought the affair to a close shortly after eleven o'clock.

COMMITTEE WAIT ON JUDGE HUYCKE

Would Trustees Abide by His Finding?

The committee appointed to wait on Judge Huycke held a conference with His Honor today. The committee informed Judge Huycke that it was the desire of the Council to have him interpret the law as to the eligibility of Messrs. G. N. Gordon and W. H. Hill to sit on the Board of Education. Judge Huycke explained that his decision would not be final unless both trustees agreed to abide by his finding. The matter will not be acted upon until the proposition is placed before Messrs. Gordon and Hill.

DOCTOR BROWN LAID AT REST

In the presence of his family, relatives and his many friends, the remains of the late Dr. Brown were yesterday laid at rest at Roseneath. Rev. R. G. Peever, B. D., conducted a very impressive funeral service.

The address of Rev. Mr. Peever, which was delivered with eloquence and feeling pathos, voiced the thoughts of every person present.

"The late Dr. Brown, our friend, was big in body, big in mind and big in his sympathies for human sorrows. High principled, possessed of a keenly sensitive nature, many of his kindnesses were never known beyond those whom he benefitted and those of his nearer friends who accidentally came to know of them. Our Saviour, when asked to interpret the commandments, said, 'Love your fellow-men,' and in this respect and in all others, our friend was a sincere tender and true Christian gentleman. Now God in His wisdom has been pleased to call him to Himself. Let us emulate the doctor's good deeds and alleviate the sorrows of the world.

"Yet we trust that, somehow, good will be the final goal of ill, pangs of nature, sins of will, defects of doubt and taints of blood; that nothing walks with aimless feet; that not a life will be destroyed and cast as rubbish to the void, when God has made the pile complete."

The Cortege.

The high esteem and the tender place the doctor held in the hearts of those who knew him best was amply shown by the numerous, beautiful wreaths and other floral designs that were sent in by the societies with which he was connected and by his numerous friends. It required a vehicle to carry the floral emblems.

The body was interred in Roseneath cemetery, amid a large concourse of sorrowing friends. The pallbearers were Dr. Morgan, S. A. Oke, R. W. Davidson, T. C. Elliot, M. A. Turner, J. P. Cunningham.

Had there been time, ample proof could easily have been produced that would have fully proved to the most doubting mind that the doctor did not intentionally destroy himself. The jury was justified in bringing in the verdict they did, upon the evidence before them. But upon fuller evidence they would without doubt reverse their decision.

It was known to his immediate friends that he did carry the package of strychnine in his pocket and had been carrying it not for a week or two, but for considerably over a year. His heart was seriously affected and it was only a matter of another year or two, or until some great excitement came to him, that he would succumb. He frequently spoke of this to his family. The reason he carried the strychnine in his pocket was because he frequently used it as a stimulant when wearied with extra work or when the weakness incident to his condition of health would affect him.

Russians Keep up Their Success

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Petrograd, March 6. — An official communication in Petrograd from the Russian army in the Caucasus, dated March 4th, says the Russian troops are continuing with some success their offensive operations in the vicinity of the Tchoruk river, in Turkish Armenia, southwest of Batum.

LADIES ARE ON THE JOB

Mounted Rifles Will be Given Farewell Banquet This Evening

The Mounted Rifles will leave the Armouries at nine o'clock and proceed to the C.P.R. station. The parade will be featured by the presence of the 57th Regimental Band, the Salvation Army Band, and the Home Guard.

The Women's War Fund Comittee intend doing the handsome thing this evening by the departing soldiers of the Third Overseas contingent by giving them a farewell banquet in the band room of the Armouries. Not only will they be given a spread such as every healthy soldier loves, but each man will be presented with a couple of khaki colored handkerchiefs made by the ladies who compose the Women's War Fund Committee.

His Worship Mayor Buller will likely occupy the seat at the head of the tables and propose suitable toasts. Other leading citizens will be invited. Altogether there will be plates laid for one hundred and fifty-two. All the officers of the contingent are to be present and a rousing time is anticipated.

It is hoped that the members of the Women's War Fund Committee will be present.

Home Guards.

The following orders are issued for the Home Guards:—

Peterborough, March 6, 1915.

Orders by Officer Commanding Peterborough Civilian Rifle Association Home Guards.

The battalion and bands will parade at the Armouries this evening, Saturday, March 6th, 1915, at 8.45 p.m. to escort the 8th Mounted Rifles to the station.

CALL EXTENDED TO PASTOR AT MILVERTON

Milverton, March 6. — Rev. T. J. Robinson, pastor of Milverton Presbyterian Church, has received a unanimous call from the Presbyterian congregation at Lakefield, Peterborough Presbytery.

TOOK WEAK SPELL WHILE AT DINNER

Mrs. Thomas Quinlan Expires at Her Home

Death came very suddenly a few moments before noon today to Mrs. Thomas Quinlan, 542 Rogers street. The deceased was sitting eating her dinner, when she fainted, and passed away before medical aid arrived. Death was due to heart trouble, to which she had been subject for some time.

Born in the township of Otonabee some sixty years ago, the late Mrs. Quinlan came to Peterborough nearly forty years ago, and had since resided here. She was held in high esteem by a wide circle of friends, who will regret to learn of her sudden demise.

Left to survive are her husband, one son, David, and two daughters, Mrs. James Grisdale and Mrs. William Walsh, all of this city, also four sisters, Mrs. Charles Taber, Hamilton, Mrs. Peter Zettler, of Hamilton, Mrs. M. Young, city, and Mrs. W. Grisdale, city, also three brothers, Alexander, Edward and John O'Brien all of this city.

The funeral will take place Monday morning at nine o'clock from her late residence to the Church of the Immaculate Conception and thence to St. Peter's Cemetery.

PROTEST TO ARCHBISHOP

OTTAWA, March 6. — A letter signed by the mayor of Hull, the members of the city council, and 58 prominent representatives of all walks of life in that city, has been addressed to Archbishop Gauthier at Ottawa, protesting at the statements regarding the late Archbishop Duhamel, which were alleged to have been contained in Rev. Father Whelan's open letter to Cardinal Begin and Sir Lomer Gouin.

The letter, which is strongly worded, declares that in addition to maligning the memory of the late Archbishop Duhamel, it has resulted in injury to the Roman Catholic religion in the eyes of Protestants.

CHALLENGE FROM THE OPPOSITION.

Ottawa, March 6.—"If you want to go to the country, let us go to the country—we are willing." In such language Hon. George Graham challenged the Government to go to a general election. The complete explosion of Prof. Shortt's charge has left the Opposition in a quandary. They had no idea that Prof. Shortt would fall in his figures.

ALLEGED TERMS OF THE LEASE WERE VIOLATED

Owner of Royal Theatre Asks for Order Compelling Tenant to Quit Premises

When the case of Pappas vs. Clayton came up this morning in the judge's chambers there proved not only to be "a woman in the case," but three of them. Mrs. Pappas, who owns the Royal Theatre, was endeavoring to secure an order to have the tenant quit the premises on the ground that the terms of the lease were violated by the tenant going behind in the rent. Mr. O'Connell, who was acting for Mrs. Pappas, also claimed that Mrs. Clayton must forfeit the $800 which she gave Mrs. Pappas when the lease was first signed as a surety against non-payment of the rent. Mr. O'Connell stated that Mrs. Clayton's indebtedness to Mrs. Pappas on January 18th was $1,670, and has since increased to $2,485. The rent charged by Mrs. Pappas when the lease was first signed in February 1913 was $800 per month, but since has been reduced until at present the rent is $500 per month. It appears that Mrs. Pappas secured money from Mrs. Osias de Laplante to the extent of some $700. This money was secured, it is claimed, for Mrs. Clayton, and notes covering the amount were endorsed by Mr. J. McNabb, Mrs. Clayton's brother. Mrs. Pappas assigned all the rent to Mrs. Laplante till the total amount was paid. Mrs. Clayton, therefore, has been paying the rent to Mrs. Laplante and also paying on the amount of indebtedness to Mrs. Pappas. In all, the amount, being paid per day by Mrs. Clayton was $29. The amount paid up to the present time on Mrs. Laplante's loan has reduced it to $465.

Mr. Gordon claimed that it was beyond the jurisdiction of the court to try the case, as no demand had been made for the rent, and the proceedings were defective because of a breach of the overholding tenant act. The landlady, Mrs. Pappas, was indebted to the city for taxes, and the tenant was liable for this. This should be paid, Mr. Gordon claimed, before the case proceeds. Mr. Gordon further claimed that Mrs. Pappas divested herself of all rent until the amount owed to Mrs. Laplante was paid. He pointed out that Mrs. Pappas is not the landlady, but rather Mrs. Laplante.

Mr. O'Connell remarked that if Mrs. Clayton would pay the $2,500 now owed to Mrs. Papas, the taxes and the amount still due Mrs. Laplante would be paid. If tenant quits the theatre now, Mrs. Pappas asks that Mrs. Clayton be held liable for the balance of Mrs. Laplante's loan.

The case was adjourned till two-thirty.

VESSEL ON FIRE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

New York, March 6.—Advices have been received that the passengers and crew of the La Touraine are safe. She has aboard thirty-eight first class passengers, including five doctors and ten nurses on the way to join the new war hospital at Sens in France and forty-six in the steerage. The ship carried several thousand cases of ammunition.

A despatch from London said the steamer was on fire in latitude 48.06 north and longitude 20.14 west. The message came from the wireless station at Valentia, Ireland, and stated that the steamers Rotterdam, Cornishman, Arabic and others were going to her assistance.

PARIS OFFICIAL

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, March 6.—(Afternoon official statement)—Somewhat lively artillery actions have occurred around Nieuport and Ypres. From the Lys to the Aisne, there was very heavy cannonading.

"In the Champagne our progress yesterday in a ravine northwest of Beausejour, caused the Germans last night to undertake fresh counter attacks, which we repulsed.

All our advance in the region of Perthes, reported in yesterday evening's communication, has been maintained.

Near Viville en Haye northwest of Pont-a-Mousson, well directed fire upon a farm caused panic among the soldiers occupying it. They fled to the woods.

Near the forest of Narroy, bodies of the Germans unsuccessfully attempted attacks on our outposts.

ALLIES CONTINUE BOMBARDMENT

Dardanelles Partly Cleared of Mines

BULGARIA ACTIVE

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, March 6.—A despatch from Tenedos says the Dardanelles have been cleared of mines for one-third their length and warships continue a steady bombardment of the forts on the European side.

A despatch from Saloniki, says Bulgaria has mobilized three divisions possibly to be used for an advance on Adrianople.

A despatch from Athens says the decision of the Council in session discussing the policy of Greece towards the war is eagerly waited. If the decision is to remain neutral, it is expected Premier Venizelos will immediately resign.

BERLIN UNEASY OVER LOSS OF SUBMARINES

People Only Have Belief as Authorities do not Admit Losses

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 6. — A Daily Express despatch from Amsterdam says Berlin is uneasy over the belief that two submarines have been lost. German naval authorities do not admit the loss, but warn the public that the enemy cannot be smashed without ships being lost.

The people of the German capital are represented as being in a rage over the attitude of Greece, and the newspapers sadly admit that the Allies have made a great stroke in attacking the Dardanelles.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MARCH 6, 1913

DR. SHORTT'S UNTIMELY STATEMENT.

AN ALL-DAY argument took place in the House of Commons on Thursday on Dr. Adam Shortt's statement referring to the Civil Service. Speaking at the People's Forum, Ottawa, on Sunday, Feb. 15th, Dr. Shortt, head of the Civil Service Commission, made the statement that there had been 2,000 dismissals and 10,000 appointments in three years, professing to found his statement upon a return brought down to the House. A week later he declared his willingness to stand by his statement as published.

Liberals have made much use of Prof. Shortt's utterance. Hon. William Pugsley quoted it a few days ago, and Hon. Robert Rogers described it as "dishonest, dishonourable, unfair and untrue." Sir Wilfrid Laurier on Thursday raised the whole question on a motion to go into supply.

The charge was vigorously challenged and discussed by most of the ministers. Reading through the discussion, it appears very evident that Dr. Shortt made a serious mistake in saying what he did. It appears that he either based his statement on insufficient data or made it for partizan reasons. Premier Sir Robert Borden stated he would bring down all the information asked for and some that was not asked for. All ministers who spoke, reiterated with emphasis that Dr. Shortt had taken no account of deaths, resignations, desertions, superannuations, transferrences and increased business. As Dr. Shortt's statement stands, it implies that the Government has been making changes by wholesale in the Service, and the obvious conclusion is for partizan reasons. This is absolutely false, as will appear when a complete return is brought down, but the following statement made in the House by the Postmaster-General will show, in part, how misleading and mischievous Dr. Shortt's statement was.

Hon. Mr. Casgrain, Postmaster-General, said that in 1913 the amount of mail matter sent had increased by 11 per cent., and in 1914 by 6½ per cent., 43,519,000 more letters and postcards having been sent in that year; 648 new post offices and 48,000 rural mail delivery boxes established. The 9,000 new appointments in the Post Office Department included temporary employees taken on at Christmas and New Year's and also in Summer to allow the regular staff to go on holidays.

When these figures in only one department are considered, it is evident that Dr. Shortt was taking a long shot for some reason that it is difficult to understand. We think, however, that a man in his position should not make "wild" statements. He should know why he speaks.

WHY SHOULD THEY OBJECT!

THE LIBERAL OUTCRY against the movement to supply Canadian troops with extra hand-knitted socks and other comforts is to continue. It was raised in the first instance by J. G. Turriff of Assiniboia, because of the appeal made for such comforts by Sir George Perley as head of the Canadian War Contingent Association. The Prime Minister explained at that time that the Canadian troops were equipped with socks exactly on the same scale as the British armies in the field, but that in both Canada and England there were commendable movements by private individuals and associations for adding to these and other comforts. Since then it has been explained that the desirability of providing the troops with extra socks was recognized by Lord Kitchener in an appeal which he made and which met with a ready response in the Old Country. Despite these facts, the Opposition continues dissatisfied. Hon. Charles Murphy has given notice of a long question dealing with the purchase of socks by the Government, and ending with, "Have the Canadian soldiers been supplied with a sufficient number of these socks to keep them comfortable and warm while on active service?"

It is plain that the Liberals do not take the condition of a state of war seriously enough. Partizanship overtops Imperial and national necessity. The same underlying spirit of disunion, an incapacity to estimtae things at their true value, no doubt prompted them to oppose so vigorously the Borden naval proposal. If extra hand-knitted socks are needed for the soldiers, why should the Liberals object?

CEREAL CROPS ON EXPERIMENTAL FARMS.

CEREAL production has occupied an important position in the work of the experimental farms since their inception some twenty-eight years ago. By selection; the best varieties of grains for Canadian conditions have been brought to light, and, by breeding, many important sorts have been produced. Pioneer wheat, a new early sort possessing many merits, gives promise of filling an important place in northern sections. The results in 1914 with this and other sorts of wheat, as well as oats and barley, at the Central Farm and sixteen branch farms and stations and two sub-stations, are presented in Bulletin No. 81 of the Experimental Farm Series. This seasonable pamphlet is available at the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

WHY BRITAIN CANNOT DO IT.

THE GERMAN Government is extorting $8,000,000 a month from the Belgians who are left in the country that the German army has devastated, says the Boston Herald. This has to be paid in money, the Germans having already seized the agricultural produce and even transported Belgian cattle and grain to Germany. Thus the invaders are "living on the country" in imitation of the merciless freebooters of barbarous times. For Belgium is systematically robbed to feed and pay the military machine which has wrought her ruin, and which still is fighting against her and her defenders. These shameful facts are clearly disclosed through the correspondence between the British Foreign Secretary and the chairman of the American Commission for Relief in Belgium.

No time need be wasted in condemnation of German militarism. It has neither a body to be kicked nor a soul to be saved. But consequences of its doings in many ways are being forced upon the attention of neutral nations, and the German way of starving the Belgians cannot but deeply interest the Americans who are trying to save the innocent people from starvation. Why is there no food for the remaining inhabitants of "German Belgium?" Because Germany has confiscated the food there was. Why is there no money with which the people might buy themselves? Because their money has to go continually to meet the levies made by Germany. And those levies help to sustain the despotism that will levy more.

That is why the British Government has reluctantly decided not to contribute further to the fund of the American Commission of Relief. Britain and her colonies have officially given some $2,000,000 to alleviate the distress, but how can they give anything to encourage Germany in causing the distress and to assist her in fighting against themselves?

EDITORIAL NOTES.

GADSBY, the special writer for the Liberal press, says: "If anybody can set the Opposition fanning the air, it's Ham. Burnham."

"WANTS to also stop supplying Allies with munitions of war," says a heading in a Toronto newspaper. Referred to "On the Side" for censure.

DR. SHORTT has apologized for the statements he made in regard to appointments to the Civil Service, and advances as his excuse insufficient evidence. That lets him out, but what can the Toronto Globe say?

"HOW can you in bare words portray all the picturesque charm of the reception held last night at beautiful and historic Rideau Hall?" asks a lady society writer. She is right. You can't. Bare words are most unseasonable. A few decollette observations, however, would be permissible. — Toronto Globe. The Globe has approached a most dangerous subject and gone about as far as covert words could go.

MAJOR SAM SHARPE of North Ontario has given notice of a Senate reform resolution. It states that the present condition of the Senate is "inconsistent with the Federal principle in our system of government, and is in no other respects defective, as it makes the Senate independent of the people and uncontrolled by the public opinion of the country," and "should be so amended as to bring it into harmony with the principle of popular government." No doubt Major Sharpe will bring out some interesting details. He does not propose to abolish the Senate. That drastic butcher's method is being dropped for one more in keeping with reason and consistency.

Father Lacombe.

(Calgary Herald.)

To those of us who are at all familiar with the history of the West it is a source of pleasure to be able to think that when Father Lacombe, the pioneer Roman Catholic missionary of the great plains, is called to his eternal rest he will be able to leave behind him a tangible monument in the shape of the splendid home at Midnapore, which has been built and equipped entirely through his efforts.

Father Lacombe is one of the most wonderful figures of the age, so far as Western Canada is concerned. Few people perhaps realize that he came to this country in 1849, long before a great majority of us were born. Not alone a preacher of the gospel, he spent years of his life in ministering to the physical needs of the community, both white and Indian. He was priest of the first parish church of his faith in Winnipeg; some years later he filled the same office in Calgary.

A man of many parts, he might have risen to a great place in the church, but he preferred to minister to the humble and lowly, to the poor disease-stricken Indian and to the lonely settler on the prairie. He paved the way for the Roman Catholic Church in this country.

It will not be long now before Father Lacombe is called away from us. Speaking to those who did honor to his birthday at Midnapore the other day, he said that this would probably be his last address to them. Surrounded by the faithful sisters who minister to his proteges, he spends his declining days at the home which it was his last work to build up, and where everybody, Catholic and Protestant, will wish him peace until his call comes.

Germany and the Balkan States.

(Westminster Gazette.

Whatever benevolence Germany may have expressed for the independent ambitions of the Balkan States, she gave herself body and soul at the critical moment to the Austrian view which threatens them all alike. What Austria and German most fear is the creation of a strong block of Balkan States, each guaranteeing the other's independence and all solid against the territorial ambitions of the greater neighbours. What they most desire is a weak and divided Balkan community, through which they may drive their path to the sea or overhead to Asia Minor.

The Right Policy.

(Barrie Advance.)

While the Canadian contingent is doing its part at the front and the Canadian business man is doing his part at home, it remains for the Canadian citizen also to do his part. It is patriotic and it is good business to buy goods, first, that are made and sold in our own town, second, in our own country, and, third, in our own British Empire.

Germany's Condition.

(Wall Street Journal)

But no man could have foreseen that in a bare six months, Germany, blind, furious, futile and despairing, would be fighting like a cornered rat, and screaming like a smacked baby.

WHAT IS THE REASON?

Editor, Review:

Sir—Allow me to compliment you on the manly stand you took in your paper of Friday regarding the deplorable Helen Brown incident. In this case at least two lives were snuffed out within a week. If the police drop this case, in my humble opinion, they are committing a cardinal crime. Is their reason for dropping the case the fact that young men implicated are the sons of rich men? An illegal operation is known to have been performed. The one performing this operation would not take such a chance without being well paid. WHO PAID THAT MONEY? If I pay John Smith to murder William Jones, I am as guilty as Smith. To suppress further details of this case to shield rich young men is putting a direct premium on immorality and would encourage girls to go joy-riding in the autos of some of our local young men. Mr. Editor, keep up the good work you have begun. "Fiat Justicia."

READER.

THE DUTY OF THE AUTHORITIES.

Editor, Review:

Sir, — I wish to express my appreciation of your editorial in last night's Review on "Let the Case Go On." I hope that you will not let the case go, and that you will follow it up as a hound would the chase. I am sure you will have the sympathy of every minister in town, and his co-operation as well. Surely it ought not to be necessary to tell our public prosecutors and policemen what is their duty in the circumstances. No stone should be left unturned, no money spared, to seek out the wretch who got the young woman in trouble and was directly responsible for the death of two citizens and the murder of an unborn child. No doctor is justified in baulking the law of the land. There is only one thing that will sometimes tempt a doctor to yield, and that is the pitiful pleading of a young woman who sees nothing before her but disgrace and a life of sorrow. A big-hearted man will sometimes allow his feelings to get the better of his judgment and his conscience, and will yield in such a case, that the girl may be spared. This is not said to justify him, by any means. But is the girl to lose all—her good name, her life as well—and the fiend who was responsible for her misfortune to go "scot" free"? Why cannot our policemen and detectives get busy and hunt out and bring to justice the real offender?

Yours,
R. POGUE.

THE POWER OF MONEY?

Editor, Review;

Sir,—Will you allow me space to ask the citizens of our fair city if they are going to stand by and allow those who are paid out of the public treasury to say there shall be no further investigation into the most lamentable tragedy we have had in Peterborough, lest some of our respected citizens should have to appear in court to prove their innocence?

Where is the jury that brought in the verdict that Helen Brown met her death at the hands of parties unknown? In this case, every sane citizen will concede there were at least three individuals connected with the crime. To my mind, the first real offender is a so-called man. The first to pay the penalty for wrong-doing a poor orphan eighteen years of age; the second, the much-lamented Dr. Brown, whom I believe under the circumstances was more sinned against than sinning. From what we know of the past case, the poor fellow standing with a sorrowful girl of tender years, and a so-called respectable man with two or three hundred dollars, which he is willing to sacrifice in order to have the name of respectability. Are we to be a party to hiding this style of character that he may have an opportunity to rob another of our fair sex of her character, and result in death?

About a year ago there was a great cry about the immoral state of our city, which resulted in another pull on the treasury in the way of a police woman. Now, when the immoral condition has come to the surface, resulting in the death of two of our citizens, are we going to allow this work to go on, because we are threatened with police court if we should throw suspicion on our highly pure citizens? If the innocent are being accused so much, the more the need of a fuller investigation that the crime may be placed where it belongs.

The Scripture says, "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn." This might mean in this case, "Muzzle not the ratepayer who has to help pay the fees of doctors and lawyers who have already been well paid in this case."

This is not the first case in this city where men have got young women into trouble and closed the lion's mouth with their money, leaving a broken-hearted mother to fall back on Christianity to wipe away the blood stains of sorrow and disgrace.

Thanking you for space,

Yours sincerely,
R. J. TODD.

CO-OPERATIVE MOVEMENT.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I notice a comment in your issue of today on the failure of the so-styled Householders' Co-Operative Society of Toronto. As a reader of your worthy paper will you kindly permit me space to explain that this concern never has been a true co-operative organization by design or intent. The title "co-operative" was knavely applied to cover their individual profit-making scheme to the detriment of the participating public, in view of this the Co-Operative Union of Canada — the governing body of the co-operative movement throughout the Dominion, has continuously dissipated that spurious adventure through the medium of the Toronto press during the last six months, and no doubt it is owing to such action on the part of the Union that the affair has been timely wound up. There has been many such fakes brought to book by common disaster throughout the country and these have led to the popular belief that co-operation is a dead letter in Canada. True co-operative effort has just the same place for doing good and becoming a boon to the people of this country, as in all other countries where it has been introduced and is flourishing under Government supervision, the fakes who imitated true co-operation (imitation is the best form of flattery) can easily be detected on application to the Provincial Government in regard to their charter, as all bona fide co-operative societies are chartered in order to protect the shareholders.

Objects of the Union: (1) The recognition, by affiliation with the Union of all bona-fide Co-operative Associations in the Dominion of Canada, in order that the public may be able to distinguish the same from institutions which are now or may hereafter be organized with a Co-operative title for purposes of personal or private advantage or profit. (2) The propagation in the Dominion of Co-operative principles to the end that the practice of truthfulness, justice and economy may be secured by the abolition of false dealing. (3) Conciliating the conflicting interests of the capitalist, the worker and the purchaser, through the equitable division among them of the fund commonly known as profit. (4) Preventing the waste of labor now caused by unregulated competition. (5) Cultivating a spirit of mutual service by self abnegation expressed in the Co-operative motto: "Each for all, and all for each," and to promote, by the same means, moral, educative and refining enterprises designed for the improvement of the people generally.

P.S.—Will you kindly reprint the objects of this union above mentioned to warn the public.

Yours truly,
W. G. ROGERS,
Hon. Sec. Co-operative Union Board.

CHURCHES AND CONCERTS.

Editor Review,

Sir,—I notice by last night's papers that there is to be a grand concert at St. Andrew's Church. Tickets 25c. I thought that churches were for the purpose of preaching the word of God, but it seems not when they advertise concerts.

If this church wishes to run concerts, then they should be made to pay taxes and a license. Churches are given exemption from taxes because the word of God is supposed to be preached there, and I think it is a desecration of the church by holding a concert in it.

Yours,

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

CANADIAN DAY AT THE PANAMA EXPOSITION

THE KING FEELS THAT THERE IS NO DOUBT THAT THIS GREAT UNDERTAKING WILL BE ATTENDED BY MARKED SUCCESS AND PROVE WORTHY OF THE VAST ACHIEVEMENT WHICH IT CELEBRATES. HIS MAJESTY REJOICES TO THINK THAT HIS DOMINION OF CANADA IS TAKING PART IN THIS EXPOSITION, THUS TESTIFYING TO THE APPRECIATION OF THE BRITISH EMPIRE AT THE LINKING OF THE ATLANTIC WITH THE PACIFIC, AND AT THE HAPPY RESULTS WHICH MAY BE EXPECTED FROM THE MINGLING OF THE WATERS OF THE TWO OCEANS. — Exact text of King's Message.

(By Our Special Correspondent.)

SAN FRANCISCO, March. — The Panama-Pacific International Exposition is already a success beyond one's wildest dreams. The first five days attendance has been 572,729, as compared with 253,577 at Chicago, and 293,822 at St. Louis. It has many distinguishing features. It is the first exposition to celebrate a great contemporaneous achievement (the completion of what has been called the Thirteenth Labor of Hercules — the building of the Panama Canal), the first one to be open on time and to be built within its budget, and, best of all, the first to open practically free of debt.

The idea originated with Commissioner Hale, who made the suggestion early in 1904. It was immediately taken up, and the project launched shortly before the commencement of work on the canal, which dates from May of the same year. Its chosen name is "The Jewel City." Its various buildings are multi-colored, embodying the most exquisite shades ever devised by the mind of man, Jules Guerin, the great colorist, being the master-magician. This feature alone means untold benefit to the thousands who visit the Exposition, for much injury to the eyes resulted from the dead white of the Chicago Fair buildings.

We hope from time to time to write fully concerning the specially impressive features of this twentieth century masterpiece, the P. P. I. Exposition, but yesterday witnessed the dedication of the Japanese Concession, and this is Canadian Day, so we will deal with those objects now. With Japan as a faithful ally in the great conflict now raging, our heart goes out to her in her splendid endeavor to show the resources of her beautiful country, and truly she has brought to us a finished product. Yamato Kushibiki, whose life has been devoted to the conception and direction of Japanese exhibits, is the manager. The entrance reveals a Buddha one hundred feet in height, an exact reproduction of the original one in the temple of Nara, and inside may be seen diminutive temples, Tokio's famous street, Asakusa — a theatre that is the reproduction of the Kabukiza, Japan's most noted place of amusement; a restaurant where Japanese viands are served by charming maids from the land of the cherry blossom and chrysanthemum; a feudal playground with crude toys of the long ago; quaint native shops where artificial flowers, porcelain, gorgeous kimonos and embroideries are made, and an amphitheatre where gladiatorial combats will be staged, and where jiujitsu artists will demonstrate the art that for two thousand years has been a favorite with the Japanese.

"Poetic Japan."

The crowning feature of the exhibit, however, is the inner one called "Poetic Japan," entered through two gates, one a reproduction of the entrance to a feudal castle, the other commemorating the conquest of Japan by the first Mikado in 660 B. C. Here, an artist who went to Japan to study details, has painted Fujiyama on a canvas a hundred feet high, and, with a valley of flowers at its base, the mountain is natural enough to have stepped out of its place in the Flowery Kingdom. Tea and Japanese rice cakes beneath the snowy dome complete the spell.

The dedicatory exercises began with Shinto ceremonies of purification and blessing by a priest brought specially here for the occasion, it being the first observance of the kind in America. To describe them. When ground is broken, an earth-quieting fete is held, the national beverage, sake, sprinkled on it and pounded in to make the foundation secure. When a house is finished, arrows are fixed to stretched bows, to ward off evil spirits; and when a garden is completed, the waterfalls must start with a celebration. Thus, at a given signal, Miss Moore, daughter of the Exposition's president, pulled a red, white and blue cord of silk, and the released waters filled the basins, ponds and lakes of the Japanese garden (hitherto kept dry for this event), and at the same time a flock of doves was unloosed and hovered over all, forming as poetic a scene as one could possibly imagine. Commissioner Harada's oration afterwards at the formal ceremony in Festival Hall will pass down as a classic. It emphasized the friendships and goodwill subsisting between the United States and Japan, and thrilled his hearers to the core. Each guest was presented with a cherry blossom for a boutonniere, as well as a Japanese flag, and the beauty of action and diction will long be remembered.

A Ton of Violets.

Today, San Mateo County celebrated by bringing a ton of violets to the Exposition, and by holding a reception and ball afterwards at the California building, but the big event of the day was the dedication of the Canadian building at two o'clock—a building unanimously conceded to be the costliest and most remarkable contribution to the Exposition. It was held in the open air upon the wide steps leading to its main entrance between two enormous bronze lions. It is estimated that nearly twenty thousand people congregated before the building, and never have we seen so many silk-hatted gentlemen since we left London.

Canada's minister of agriculture, the Hon. Martin Burrell, had a company of U. S. marines as guard of honor. The Australian and Japanese commissioners were present, General Murray and his aide, and many distinguished ladies and gentlemen besides. Minister Burrell acted as master of ceremonies, and speeches were made by himself, Governor Johnson, Mayor Rolph, President Moore, and William Bailey Lamar, chairman of the United States Commission. Feeling reference was made to the closeness of the bond between the United States and Canada, and the messages of goodwill were most impressive. The climax was reached however, when Minister Burrell read the greeting from England's King, one expressing confidence in the success of the undertaking, now crystallized within the walls of the Exposition, and rejoicing that in the midst of war his rich Dominion of Canada was taking an important part. This message, coming so unexpectedly and at such a time, when Britain's monarch is harassed and strained by heavy burdens, so affected President-of-Exposition Moore that he found it difficult to make reply, and lips trembled with emotion throughout the crowd.

The exercises over, a reception was held in a flower-bedecked room of the Canadian building, where visitors registered and where Minister Burrell greeted many an old friend.

Cost of Buildings

The Canadian building cost $600,000, and an additional $200,000 was spent gathering the exhibits and installing them. It covers an area of 70,000 square feet and fully two million feet of lumber was used in its construction. The main floor is divided into three large halls, 230 feet long and 40 feet wide. In the entrance hall are splendid paintings of Kings Edward and George, Queens Alexandra and Mary, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Lord Strathcona, the Hon. Sir John Macdonald, Sir Wilfrid Laurier and the Hon. Sir Robert Borden. The exhibition halls are decorated with red felt upon which are bisques and other figures worked out in Canadian grasses; a diversion being made in the centre room in favor of a handsome rope decoration, bells of the same being hung from the red felt scroll, and at intervals handsome heraldic devices placed. Very beautiful and striking is a wide frieze with relief work, made of grasses, leaves and shrubs, depicting rural scenes in Canada: farm life of all kinds and in different localities; the lumber industry and camping sections, as well as summer resorts. Five photographs of Canadian cities form a frieze in another room.

But the glory of the building consists of huge paintings, that on the west wall depicting rolling fields of grain, the perspective of which is wonderful. In the foreground are huge grain elevators, and then comes along a miniature train worked by electricity. It travels among the elevators, illustrating the transportation of grain from the fields to the shipping point. Then one is introduced to "the oldest wood-cutter and dam-builder in the world," and seeing his habits so graphically illustrated one can easily understand the saying, "busy as a beaver," for, disporting in the pond adjoining his well-simulated haunts, are several of the species brought safely from the Province of Quebec. On the opposite side of the room is another realistic piece of work. The harbor of Vancouver, with real water and real ships sailing on it. Old residents declare they can pick out familiar buildings in the city of Vancouver on the farther side. Land development is shown also from the primitive time to that of cleared spaces and the erection of modern homes. For the fishermen, there is the fish exhibit, where the finny tribe is at home in its own country, and for lumbermen and sportsmen there is the forest region. There are also five mounted heads of elk, moose and deer.

The Housewife.

But for the housewife — what? Let us tell you, for this is the place where adjectives fail, the place of fruits and farm products. Picture, then, an apple orchard, made extensive by the painter's skill, with trees loaded and men picking the fruit, and at the base of the picture real apples on a wide turf field covering 2,000 square feet and dotted with large baskets of fruit, the puzzle being to detect where the real ends and the imaginary begins. All around are displays, under glass, of 250 different specimens of Canadian agriculture, all properly labelled. And that is one of the merits of this entire exhibit; a guide book is not needed; the whole story is told about everything shown in delightfully brief and concise language. Thus, we find thirty varieties of apples alone are displayed; special attention is called to the strawberries under glass. Two posters excite much comment. One reads: "California has the trees which grow the rich-flavored 'Sunkist' oranges," and the other, "Canada has the 'Frost and Snow-kist' trees that produce the rich-flavored apples." We noticed Californians putting on their thinking caps after that.

But we must not forget the splendid display of minerals, including gold, silver, copper, iron, lead, coal, nickel, mica, and asbestos, of which Canada, we are told, produces 90 per cent. of the world's supply. Cobalt ore is shown, valued at $10,000, some of it running as high as $8,000 to the ton, it is said. No wonder visitors were enthusiastic. One woman turned to us and exclaimed: "Oh, how I wish I were a Canadian! It is all so wonderful." "Are you one?" "No," we answered, "but the next best thing to it." "And what is that?" she asked. "A representative of a Canadian paper," was our reply. "I congratulate you," she exclaimed again, "for surely you have something worth while to write about."

Don't you agree with her?

Is it any wonder that at Ghent in 1913 Canada's exhibit was always crowded, even when everything else was deserted?

The Canadian building here has no ball-room, neither does it make provision for dinners or entertaining, but it has rooms where everybody is made welcome, outside of which, however, the commission confines itself to its business of advertising Canada. It does one thing, and does it so well that it has set the world a-talking.

We have heard it said that the farsight displayed by the Canadian commission is the result of its being a permanent one, the plans of which are worked out in accordance with a wide experience with expositions, and which goes to every one big enough to make it worth while to advertise Canada. Whatever the explanation may be, however, California extends congratulations to "Our Lady of Snows" for her magnificent participation in the Panama-Pacific International Exposition.

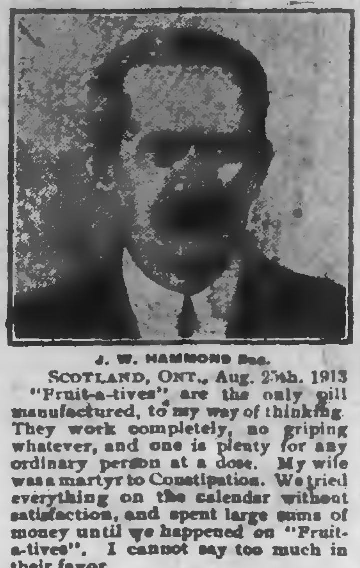
WHOLE FAMILY USES THEM

"Fruit-a-tives" Keeps Young And Old In Splendid Health



J. W. HAMMOND Esq.

SCOTLAND, ONT., Aug. 25th. 1913

"Fruit-a-tives" are the only pill manufactured, to my way of thinking. They work completely, no griping whatever, and one is plenty for any ordinary person at a dose. My wife was a martyr to Constipation. We tried everything on the calendar without satisfaction, and spent large sums of money until we happened on "Fruit-a-tives". I cannot say too much in their favor.

We have used them in the family for about two years and we would not use anything else as long as we can get "Fruit-a-tives".

Their action is mild, and no distress at all. I have recommended them to many other people, and our whole family uses them".

J. W. HAMMOND.

Those who have been cured by "Fruit-a-tives" are proud and happy to tell a sick or ailing friend about these wonderful tablets made from fruit juices.

50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size 25c. At all dealers or sent on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS A GREAT BLESSING

Mrs. Jas. E. Mailman, Gegoggin, N. S., writes: "I gave Baby's Own Tablets to my baby boy for constipation and teething troubles and have found them a great blessing. I think the Tablets should be in every home where there are young children." The Tablets are an absolutely safe remedy for little ones, being backed by the guarantee of a government analyst to be free from opiates and narcotics. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

RATION CUT DOWN

Teuton Soldiers Get Loaf of Breads to Three Men

LONDON, March 6.—The German army bread ration has been reduced from one loaf a day for two men to one loaf for three men, according to the British official eyewitness at the front. His latest report, dated March 2, follows:

"It is said that henceforth all German passports for travelers to neutral countries are to be endorsed 'Gott strafe England' ('May God harm England')."

The Amsterdam Telegraaf says it learns that all the motor bus services in Berlin has ceased, but that the companies believe the prohibition against their running is temporary.

According to Berlin newspapers received here an official celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of the late Prince von Bismarck has been ordered by the Minister of Public Instruction. Bismarck was born April 1, 1815, and died July 30, 1898.

GEN. FRENCH HONORED.

British Field Marshal Is Given the "Medaille Militaire."

PARIS, March 6.—The "Medaille Militaire," the highest French military honor obtainable, was conferred upon Field Marshal Sir John French, commander of the British Expeditionary Forces, by Gen. De La Croix of the French army at General Headquarters on Thursday. Sir John is the only person of the British race ever to receive this decoration.

Gen. De La Croix, in presenting the medal, declared that the French people are confident of ultimate victory for the allies.

"VICTORY"

The cold wind sweeps o'er the snow clad plains,
And chills the blood in the sentry's veins;
The dawn on the distant peaks forsee
The coming battle of victory.
All subdued are the signs of life
As grim visaged men prepare for strife
In the world's greatest battle about to be
For the rise or fall of a Monarchy;
And the "Purple Gold" in the Eastern sky
Seems to mock "Ambition" from on high,
As it fades away to the vast unknown
In the splendour of the rising Sun.
Tense and drawn in the shimmering snow
Two great armies await the blow.
The fate of Europe now will be
In the coming battle of Victory.

The distant roar of a mighty gun,
The trumpet blast and rolling drum
Challenge the foe of land and sea
To come and battle for Victory.
The batteries throw their deadly sleet
With never ending rythmic beat,
And the screaming shells in harmony
Seem a devilish blend to musketry.
Horses plunge and scream with pain,
Men are riddled and trenches gained.
Repulsed again by the stubborn foe
They struggle bravely to and fro,
And the leaders far from the scene of strife
Take little thought of the loss of life.
Bondage; or freedom, our destiny
In this awful battle of Victory.

The acrid smoke like a funeral pall
Seems to drape the scene of the rise or fall
Of the Armies, striving valiently
To win the battle of Victory.
The world, agape with awe and fear,
With bated breath and listening ear,
Waits spellbound, in expectancy
The epoch of the century.
Ambition, greed and vain desire
Arrogance, hatred, sword and fire,
Wealth and wisdom, home and life,
Honour, religion, child and wife,
Art and science, pleasure, love,
Freedom on earth, and up above.
These are the pawns we strive to see
Through the pall that hangs o'er Victory.

—Peter Maxwell.

TRADES AND LABOR COUNCIL

Notes by Official Scribe

There was another good gathering of delegates this week when President Hartley called the meeting to order.

The Property Qualification.

Secretary Wm. Stevens, the man chosen to represent the local council on the delegation to interview Premier Hearst re the abolition of the property qualification, presented his report. The delegates, he said, were introduced by Fred Bancroft to the Premier and members of the cabinet N. W. Rowell being present also. After each of the delegates had spoken, they were informed by Ontario's chief law maker, that the matter would receive most careful consideration. A measure could not be introduced this session as all available time was already well provided for. The Peterborough representative was last on the list of speakers but was not the least as evidenced by the fact that when Premier Hearst gave the delegates a parting handshake he declared he had been much impressed especially by the last speaker. "Our Bill" emphasized that a bill for the abolition of the property qualification for candidates to municipal honors was a democratic movement purely, therefore what more democratic government is there than the one presided over by Mr. Hearst, the right one for the job.

Mr. Burnham Obtains Results.

The committee who were nominated to respond to Mr. Burnham's appeal to let him know anything the Trades and Labor Council desired, reported showing the member for West Peterborough up as a desirable labor member. On receipt of a letter from the chairman of the aforementioned committee, Mr. Burnham had taken a copy then forwarded it to the Hon. Mr. Crothers. The Minister of Labor treated the letter inasmuch as it dealt with his department, then had passed it on to the others. One point of interest was the complaint of government contracts going to firms paying starvation wages to its employes. Mr. Crothers declared that the fair wage clause was inserted in every contract, and in writing him of a delinquency generalities must not be used. Specific cases only will be investigated. With regard to ignoring communications sent him, Mr. Crothers said that personally he believed that all letters to his department were answered. A vote of thanks to Mr. Crothers and Mr. Burnham concluded the committee's report.

Municipal Committee's Report.

The Municipal Committee reported impressions gathered at the last meeting of the city fathers at the council chamber. One thing struck the member reporting was that no minutes of the previous meeting were read. The doctors he considered, got a raw deal. All they asked was a dinner for the visiting medicos, and when the large amount of unremunerative labor now performed by our physicians during the present financial stress is taken into consideration they were not asking too much. The aldermen with the democratic vote were also taken account of, Alderman Adgar from the south coming in for a special boost, having gained favor by his refusing to vote away thousands of dollars to one department without an itemized account.

Next meeting March 17th.

Will Save Constantinople

NEW YORK, March 6.—A special to the United Press from London says:

Constantinople will not be bombarded. The Old Turks have sent word to England that once the allied fleet batters its way through the Dardanelles they will flee to Asia to save Islam's capital from destruction.

This sums up the statement made yesterday by a high official of the British Government.

According to rumors prevalent here, the Russians will be permitted to take possession of Pera, a suburb of Constantinople, but the Dardanelles will be declared neutral for ever.

Australia Guarding Leather Exports.

WASHINGTON, March 6.—Exportation of leather from Australia has been prohibited, except on consent of the Trade Minister, according to a cablegram received at the Department of Commerce yesterday from Consul-General Skinner in London. The consul general at Christiania cabled that Norway had placed an embargo on copper and brass plates, bars, bolts, spikes, nails, pipes and foundry pieces.

WOMAN FEELS 10 YEARS YOUNGER

Since Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Restored Her Health.

Louisville, Ky.—"I take great pleasure in writing to inform you of what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I was weak, nervous, and cared for nothing but sleep. Now I can go ahead with my work daily and feel ten years younger than before I started taking your medicine. I will advise any woman to consult with you before going to a doctor."—Mrs. INIZE WILLIS, 2229 Bank St., Louisville, Ky.

Another Sufferer Relieved.

Romayor, Texas.—"I suffered terribly with a displacement and bladder trouble. I was in misery all the time and could not walk any distance. I thought I never could be cured, but my mother advised me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I did.

"I am cured of the displacement and the bladder trouble is relieved. I think the Compound is the finest medicine on earth for suffering women."—Mrs. VIOLA JASPER, Romayor, Texas.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Robinson Visiting in Kingston.

KINGSTON, March 6.—Dr. C. K. Robinson is spending a few days here at his home. His plans for his future have not yet been arranged, but he stated that he might return to Tamworth and resume his practice. It was not generally known that he came to Kingston Thursday night after the trial, and when he appeared on the streets yesterday his friends were given a great surprise. He had a busy time receiving congratulations.

It was stated that the jury had decided on the acquittal of the young physician at the time the jury was called back by the judge, and that a vote for acquittal had been recorded, but that the signatures of the jurors had not been secured.

PLEA IS MADE FOR MORE PRODUCTION

"Patriotism and Production" Meeting Well Attended by Farmers and Citizens

JUDGE RIDDELL'S POWERFUL ADDRESS

It was a great pity that the Collegiate Assembly Hall was not packed last evening to hear Hon. Justice Riddell deliver his powerful and soul stirring address on Patriotism. Without exaggeration it was one of the best addresses of that character ever delivered in Peterborough, an opinion in which all present would assuredly concur. Possessed of a voice and delivery equal for a public platform, strengthened by a broad knowledge of events upon which to draw, Justice Riddell is particularly fitted to deliver just such an address. At frequent intervals during a speech that lasted well over one hour his audience broke into spontaneous applause. His address contained a strong appeal to young and able bodied men to awaken to the seriousness of the great international struggle and decide for themselves without delay what part they would play in it.

Justice Riddell.

In commencing he said it was always a pleasure for him to come to Peterborough. He was not going to speak on farming or poultry raising but on patriotism.

"Most of our ancestors lived under royal government. It required many insurrections; blood and agony of thousands, to put away that form of government and bring about the rule of the people. Our King is now content to reign and leave the ruling with the will of the people.

MR. JUSTICE RIDDELL.

"The King is more beloved today than any king ever was. The right to govern ourselves was the birthright of the people, a privilege which we would only give up with our blood. Neither the Senate or the House of Lords would dare oppose the will of the people.

"How is it with Prussia. The King of Prussia believes himself specially appointed and not so very far below the Almighty Himself. The Kaiser, "the chosen of the Lord.' It was that very swelled head which caused the Kaiser to throw over Bismark and sail the ship of state himself.

"In this country as in the Mother Country, the people govern. How long would a red blooded Britisher stand the sort of tyranny that prevails in Germany? The state in our country has no superior. It is the colossal inconceivable self conceit of Germany that has brought about this war. There are just two theories that enter into this war and they are might is right, or right makes might. It is impossible for any nation to exist with that as the cardinal moving principle.

Right is Right.

The other principle is right is right That is the law of a civilized and enlightened nation. That is the law that has enabled we and our neighbors across the international boundary to live in peace. Any person who violates the laws of God is a wrong doer and any nation, strong, irresistably strong, or obstentiously pious is a transgressor, and a criminal before the God, or there is no God.

"The first act of Germany was an attempt to crush out the freedom of a free and honest people. When their rush on Paris was prevented this brutal nation vented their hatred on old and young, young men and maidens, aye, even the very infant in the cradle were the objects of their venomous hate.

The Germans say they've treated the Belgiums pretty hard, but it is nothing they say to how they will treat the British when their turn comes. When the Germans were being sent to China, the Kaiser said "Remember Attila and the Huns."

It may be that the German hordes may rush the allied lines but pray God they will not. Then the allied fleets will have to spread out and do yeoman duty.

"What are we going to do? Nobody here knows what is going on in Belgium. Kitchener and French are saying 'more men, more men.' Are we whose ancestors fought and bled on many a stricken field; are we whose brethren died for us; are we to turn a deaf ear now in the time of trial?

Canadians Always to the Front.

What are we going to say now? For one hundred years, in every struggle of the Empire, Canadians have nobly fought. Paardeburg was won by Canadian dash and valor. We are proud the Canadians are where they are needed, but the trained Englishman is the greatest soldier the world ever knew, except the trained Scotchmen and the trained Irishmen.

We have'nt got nearly enough men. This is no child's play we are in. South Africa was nothing to this. It takes a long time to make a soldier out of the average man. This is a war of masses. It is the trained man now who is needed. No Canadian soldier can start too early to train. The Ministers of Justice, all with military training offered themselves. But those who couldn't go bought machine guns. There was nothing too small or too great to help the Empire. But business must go on, production must go on as usual or better than usual. Every young man of age to be a soldier must look into his soul and ask himself, what is my duty?

Must Determine Their Duty.

Must I stay at home and produce or go to the front? The young men of Canada, of soldier age, must look into their hearts and souls and determine for themselves what is their duty. But no man should be influenced by the feeling that he will be better off financially by remaining at home: that he will have more money by hanging back. The cripple cant go. He is to be pitied. The coward is to be despised. It is sickening to see the crowds in the bars and pool rooms when they ought to be in uniforms. God forbid that there should be any such in Peterborough. He would not insult them with such an insinuation.

Justice Riddell spoke in beautiful language of the self sacrificing mothers of the land. There were hundreds and thousands parting with beloved sons.

The young women could do something. Are they lavishing their smiles and favors on the sneaks who remain behind. In some countries they are decorating such with a white feather. Don't say there is no fear for Canada.

He felt that perhaps there were some people who were not awake to the seriousness of the war.

Country Was Not Awake.

Once this country woke up to the fact that Canada was at war there would be no hanging back. It may happen that the thin battle front may fail. Britain would pay a terrible penalty. Germany knows how to make war pay. Anything you pay now in war taxes was nothing to what you would then pay. Don't hide behind the Monroe doctrine. It is a worthless piece of paper. It would be laughed at, if Britain were to fail.

Our American friends are serious and ardent lovers of individual liberty. We demand their sympathy. Let no one be persuaded that American sympathy was not with the allies. At least 95 per cent of the American people were strongly in favor of the allies. But we can't advise them what to do. Every nation is guarded and guided by its own self interest and that is what the United States is doing.

Let the Canadian who sneers at United States now ask himself what Canada did under the last similar circumstances. The British people asks the assistance of no nation. We'll fight this thing out ourselves, and God helping us we'll succeed. Every one had heart, brains, intelligence and freedom under the grandest flag that ever floated. All must face the problem here and now. What can I do to advance and help Canada and the Empire? Should I fight or stay at home. As you value your soul, and self respect, be honest with yourself. Don't cloak it with hypocrisy or falsehood.

Afternoon Session.

Never in the history of the world has such an insistent appeal been made to the agricultural population of the Dominion for increased production. From the public platform from legislative halls; in newspapers and periodicals over the entire country goes out the cry to the farmers "produce more, produce more." Inspired by the pressing demands brought on by the great European struggle and the consequent need for adequate food to feed those who can no longer produce, the farming portion of Canada is keenly alive to the responsibility that has devolved upon them in the great crisis and are settling down determined that 1915 will witness a greater yield from the soil which they possess than ever before

What are the farmers in this county and more particularly in this township going to do? Are they determined to put their shoulder to the wheel and do their share. That they are is more than shown by the way they rallied yesterday afternoon and evening to the series of meetings held in the Public Library and the Collegiate Institute Assembly Hall to hear addresses by government experts on ways and means to increase the production of their farms. The first meeting started at two o'clock and was addressed by Prof. Grisdale of the Experimental farm, Ottawa, on grain production.

These meetings are being held under the auspices of the Farmers' Institute of which Mr. Charles Moore of Smith is president.

Prof. Grisdale.

"No man should raise two crops of grain off the same field in succession. Almost invariably it was better to change the crop. Now was the time to invest a little extra money in grain. He would be the last man to ask any farmer to waste any money in seed. He advised a seeding of twenty-five pounds to the acre. One would obtain three times more than the extra cost. The quality would be ever so much better. If the land was adaptable for alfalfa by all means it should be sowed.

One year corn, one year grass seed, one year hay, was the best order for rotation. The best for horses in America were those that were fed on alfalfa. After 17 years of handling the experimental farm at Ottawa he could guarantee that his methods of seeding would lower the cost of production, besides increasing production greatly.

If they would follow his methods he could guarantee them getting just double production right in this county and in this township. If they would increase their output in 1915, they should get busy immediately.

Prof. Grisdale had not many good things to say of sweet clover. His experience was that it was not very palatable. He did not recommend the farmers present to grow it.

He did not advise the use of commercial fertilizers. Barnyard manure was the stuff. Sweet clover was not such a crop as he would advise farmers to take up. It was more difficult to handle. Its one advantage was that it was a first class bee feed. It was not near as good a feed as alfalfa.

Mr. Elford.

Mr. Elford, poultry expert, who was the next speaker, congratulated the president, Mr. Charles Moore, on occupying such an important office He was still better pleased to see him making a success of his own farm and his dairy herd last year came near making a world's record.

Turning to poultry he claimed there was insufficient production in

Sick Headaches Permanently Cured

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Correct the Cause of This Trouble

There are few ailments that cause more genuine misery in the home than attacks which are generally termed sick headaches. The attacks are often periodical and when the mother of a family is prostrated at intervals there is not only her own suffering to consider, but the discomfort caused the other members of the household. Sick headaches arise from a variety of causes, and most of them can be relieved or cured through the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Hugh Docherty, Rocaville, Sask., says: "I suffered for years with what the doctors called nervous prostration and sick headache. When these spells came on I could not work nor walk, and the pains in the head were almost unbearable. At times the pain in my head were so dreadful that I feared it would drive me mad. I tried four different doctors at times, and not only took bottles of medicine, but quarts of it, but to no avail. Then I quit taking medicine altogether and tried dieting, but it made no difference. I was still an agonizing sufferer. Finally my husband urged me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and got me a supply. After taking the Pills for some weeks I felt a little better and I gladly continued their use. My nerves began to feel stronger, the terrible headache came with less frequency, and after taking the Pills for some months disappeared altogether. From that day to this I have had no return of the trouble, and all who knew of my illness regarded my cure as marvellous. I cannot say too much in praise of the Pills as they certainly saved me from a life of almost constant agony."

It is by building up and enriching the blood and strengthening the nerves that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills work seemingly marvellous cures, and what they have done for others they will do for all ailing people if given a fair trial. If you do not find these Pills at your medicine dealers you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

From a purely business standpoint, every Farmer should own an Automobile.

It will pay him in many ways. It frequently saves life by securing medical aid quickly in case of accident or serious illness.

It enables him to take produce to market quicker and when prices are highest, or to get repairs and parts for machinery quickly in seed time or harvest, when time is precious.

A woman can easily drive a McLaughlin Car and thus avoid the danger fro mrunaway or bad-tempered horses.

It is always ready for work, no harnessing or hitching up to do.

It helps keep the young folks on the farm and brings you in closer touch with the neighboring towns and cities; in fact, makes life happier and easier for yourself and family.

Model C25 Touring Car, 28 H. P. 4 cylinder motor, 106 inch Wheelbase, $1,250, f.o.b., Oshawa.

"Passed and approved by the Canadian people."

Remember, every McLaughlin has the famous Valve-in-head Motor, that is guaranteed to develop and deliver more power than any other motor of equal size, either American or European make.

THE McLAUGHLIN CARS

are built in Canada by the oldest Carriage Company in Canada, and have earned a wonderful reputation among motorists for economy and power.

McLAUGHLIN SERVICE

Our Company is one of the oldest Carriage Companies in Canada—is a purely Canadian Company—built up with entirely Canadian capital.

Having our own Branches distributed throughout the Dominion, from Halifax to Vancouver, we are in a position to give owners of McLaughlin Cars unexcelled service and constant, prompt attention—also to give quick repairs and parts.

Write us to-day, and let us send you our Literature, FREE.

No entry fee whatever. Any Farmer, Dairyman, Market Gardener, Stockman or any member of their family — or any person actively and legitimately engaged in agriculture or resident on a farm is eligible to win a grand cash prize.

All residents of towns and cities absolutely barred.

The above sum is divided into eleven (11) prizes, as follows:

1st Prize	$100.00	in	cash
2nd "	25.00	"	"
3rd "	20.00	"	"
4th "	10.00	"	"
5th "	10.00	"	"
6th "	10.00	"	"
7th "	5.00	"	"
8th "	5.00	"	"
9th "	5.00	"	"
10th "	5.00	"	"
11th "	5.00	"	"

In addition, the winners of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes will receive a further prize of one hundred dollars ($100.00) each, provided they purchase a new McLaughlin Car during 1915.

Competition

The prizes are offered for an article giving the best reasons and arguments,

"Why An Automobile is Profitable to a Farmer"

There are absolutely no strings attached to his contest, but we want to know the views of people on farms who would like to have an automobile, or who have one.

Think of how it would help keep the young folks on the farm—make farm life brighter—save many a crop by fetching parts to repair machinery—carry stuff to market cheaply—and all the other many advantages it would bring.

The judges will be:

Mr. John Weld, Prop. Farmer's Advocate, London, Ont.

Mr. Geo. Bertram, Vice-Pres., Canadian Farm, Toronto.

F. Albany Rowlatt, Advertising Specialist, Toronto.

Competition will close April 1st. Fill in the following coupon and mail as soon as possible to McLaughlin Carriage Co., Ltd., Oshawa, Ont. (Competition Dept.).

A PLEA FOR PRODUCTION

that line. It was unfortunate that eggs and poultry had to be imported. Eggs were imported from China and though they were far from good it was possible to believe many of the citizens were eating them. He prophesied a shortage this year on the egg market. The average consumer ate twenty dozen eggs annually. At this crisis it was not right for us just to raise just enough poultry for our own use. Never was there a better opportunity for developing the production of poultry and eggs than this year. Great Britain had to import twelve million of eggs last year and now that much of her import was shut off, she was going to be from 75,000 to 100,000 eggs short this year. Canadians should increase the number of hens on their farms. Every farmer should raise the number of his fowl from his present average of 40 to 100. Then poultry breeding would be profitable and the production would be sufficient. He advocated nothing but pure bred fowl for breeding purposes. He suggested that the management of fowl production be taken out of the hands of the lords of creation, the farmers, and placed in the hands of the woman on the farm. A clean, convenient hen house could be cleaned out every day in just five minutes. He thought it would help to keep the boys and girls on the farm.

He then touched on the marketing end of egg production. Eggs must be got off in good condition. The only way for the average farmer to do that was by co-operation between the producer, the man who handles them and the customer. Particular customers and particular producers were essential. Last year over $1,000,000 was lost in bad eggs. Stuff that was ready for sale, should be sold right away and thus prevent glutting the market in the fall.

W. T. Macoun.

W. T. Macoun, of the Central Experimental Farm, was the last afternoon speaker. He urged increased potato production. This was a year farmers should take a chance on potatoes. There was bound to be a great demand for potatoes from across the water. Methods of preparing the soil for potatoes was almost identical with those for raising grains. Arsenic of lead was being used along with paris green as a potato spraying mixture with good results. It was important to use a good variety of potato, as a difference of 500 bushels had been found to result between the production per acre with poor and good varieties. One good type was known as the Green Mountain potato. He suggested June potatoes planted earlier. Potatoes that were matured in cool weather were apt to be hardier than those matured in hot spells.

Evening Session.

Prior to the arrival of Justice Riddell at the evening session Mr. Elford spoke for half an hour on poultry raising taking up chiefly the same lines as in the afternoon.

He had been making some enquiries in the city and had found that no Chinese eggs had reached here for which the people should be extremely thankful. He favored the widespread of poultry in cities as a combatitive factor to the high cost of living. The probability was that Canada would be short ten to twenty-five million eggs this year. The chances were that England would be seventy-five to one hundred million short.

W. T. Macoun.

W. T. Macoun of the Experimental Farms next spoke on the cultivation of city gardens.

He favored a patriotic vegetable garden competition. Vegetables could be grown for home consumption for which one would otherwise have to pay. Any surplus could be sold and the money given to the Belgian Relief, or Patriotic Relief Funds. Any person who desired to grow vegetables this year could obtain literature concerning the work by applying to Ottawa.

During the evening Miss Johnston contributed a piano solo and Misses Palmer and Logan, a violin duet. Miss H. Dean being accompanist.

Mayor Buller presided at the evening session and on the platform besides the speakers from Ottawa and Justice Riddell, were F. D. Kerr, G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., and Mr. Basil Hall, president of the Board of Trade.

"How Did We Do?" Asks Dying Tommy

A Liverpool chaplain at hospitals at the front, writing to friends, pays a striking tribute to the spirit of the British troops. "The ... pluck of the men," he says, "is wonderful. One, a dying soldier, who was bleeding inwardly, opened his eyes and said, 'Well, how did we do?' I told him of the grand charge his regiment had made, and he said, 'That's all right, then,' and died on the spot.

SUBMARINES DWINDLING

Germany's Latest Loss Believed to be Seventh One Sank

LONDON, March 6.—The sinking of the German submarine U8 as officially announced yesterday, makes the fourth of these vessels to be sunk by British warships since the beginning of the war, the others being the U15, the U18 and the one rammed by the destroyer Badger off the Belgian coast. It is believed that a French destroyer also sank one and the captains of two British merchantmen are claiming the prizes offered for the first merchant captain to account for a hostile submarine.

The claim of the captain of the steam collier Thordis, in connection with which the Admiralty says he probably sank a submarine, is being disputed by the captain of the steamer Alstow, who says he previously sank one.

The Admiralty's statement expressed the opinion that the claim of Captain Bell of the Thordis was borne out by injuries to the vessel's keel and propeller.

The crew of the U8, numbering 29, were landed at Dover yesterday, and taken to Dover castle.

Being honest is hard work under most circumstances. Added to that is the indubitable fact that it is poor pay.

A PROMOTION FOR JELLICOE

Returns to Admiralty and Admiral Meux Takes His Place

LONDON, March 6.—Vice-Admiral Sir John Jellicoe was promoted to admiral yesterday, and Admiral Sir Hedworth Meux was appointed admiral of the fleet in Sir John's stead. Sir Hedworth has until yesterday been commander-in-chief of Portsmouth. He is 59 years old.

The shift in command of the home fleet came as a great surprise.

SIR JOHN JELLICOE.

It is supposed that the exceptional talents of Admiral Jellicoe are required in an advisory capacity at the Admiralty, during the enforced inactivity of the home fleet. Sir John was Lord Commissioner of the Admiralty and controller of the navy in 1908-10, after which he became commander of the second squadron of the home fleet. In July 23, after the war broke out, he was given command of the home fleet.

Admiral Meux is the third son of the second Earl of Durham, and commanded the naval brigade at Ladysmith in the South African war.

STILL ACTIVE

Survivors of Emden Pretend Distress to Entrap Vessels

TOKIO, March 6.—The Japanese steamer Luson Maru, which hails from Moji, reports that the schooner Aysha is still active in the Indian Ocean. The crew of the Aysha feign to be shipwrecked, attempting by this means to entrap steamers flying the flags of Great Britain and her allies.

There have been several conflicting reports regarding the schooner Aysha. When the German cruiser Emden was sunk by the Australian cruiser Sydney in the Indian Ocean on Nov. 10, some forty members of the crew of the Emden, under command of Lieut. von Muecke, escaped. These men were members of a landing party which was on Cocos Island at the time of the battle. They commandeered the Aysha and sailed away. From that time their movements are in doubt.

A Berlin despatch on Feb. 5, however, said that the Aysha had reached Hodeida, Arabia, where the members of the crew were given an enthusiastic reception by the Turkish troops.

Entered Ostend By Error?

BERLIN, March 6. — Army headquarters has issued a report saying that a French steamer loaded with ammunition and on her way to Nieuport had gone into Ostend by mistake, Ostend being in the possession of the Germans, the steamer was shelled and sent to the bottom. The wounded members of her crew were saved.

The report claims that this mistake of coming into the wrong port was made because the crew on board the steamer were intoxicated.

RUSSIANS ADVANCING

Latest German Plan Has Been Definitely Defeated

LONDON, March 6.—Except in the central Beskid Pass of the Carpathians, where the fierce Austrian attacks have moderated, the Russians are now on the offensive along the whole length of their extremely long line, from the Baltic Sea to the Roumanian border. Apparently they have definitely disposed of the German and Austrian attempts to outflank their two extreme wings and, having turned, are making slow but steady progress westward.

After retiring right back to the Dniester river, the Russians again have crossed into Bukowina and are unofficially reported to be back in Czernowitz, which military men say is extremely probable, as they have already captured Sadagora, a few miles to the northeast of the capital. Further to the west they are again in possession of Stanislau and have crossed the Lukwa river, a forward step which, in the opinion of military experts, probably will compel the Austrians to evacuate Bukowina.

In the Beskid, Tukholka and Uzsok Passes the Austro-Germans are in possession of strong positions whence they are continually attacking the Russians, while in the western passes, especially the Dukla, the Russians are on the Hungarian slopes, where the fighting has degenerated into trench warfare. The Russians are sending large reinforcements to this southern line.

In northern Poland the Russians are advancing slowly westward from the Niemen river, and the Germans are fighting a rear guard action. Only at one point is the German attack being seriously pressed against the fortress of Ossowiec. Here the Germans can use their railway from Lyck and there is a good road across the marshes, but with their armies falling back on either side, they cannot remain long, British military experts say.

To the south, according to a Berlin despatch, the Germans have evacuated Myszieniec, which is right on the East Prussia border, northwest of Lomza, while further west, near Mlawa, they are believed actually to have crossed the border after their defeat at Przasnysz. The Russians also show revived activity in central Poland, and have attacked the Germans east of Plock, and near Skierniewice, southeast of Warsaw.

The German invasion or raid in force from East Prussia has finally been resolved into a number of isolated columns, with each of which Russian forces are adequately dealing. None of these enemy columns is advantageously placed, even apart from the all important problem of supply at this season of the year.

On the main front of the Carpathians the story continues of appalling slaughter without any material changes as yet. The Austrian and Austro-German corps continue throwing their life away without hope against the Russian positions. Whole divisions of Austrians are reported to have been destroyed, and they are precisely those divisions which contain Austrian best troops, namely the Hungarians. Stories about the possible reconquest of Galicia have amused us here. The famous flank attack into East Galicia meant nothing more than the weakening of the enemy's front, where strength was perhaps most needed, and as such was very welcome to Russians. It has now melted down into rear guard actions with the retreating enemy.

The trenches captured by the Germans north of Arras did not stay long in their control, but were retaken by the French troops yesterday in a brilliant advance, together with many prisoners, including a machine gun company. The enemy made a new attack yesterday, but he was thrust back and all the lost positions were regained.

As time goes on the French troops operating against the German trenches in the Champagne region accelerate their speed of advance and increase their daily gains. Near Perthes a company of the Prussian Guards was surrounded and captured. Next the Germans were expelled from a trench northwest of Perthes, and north of this point a salient was seized with its garrison. Northwest of Mesnil a group of trenches about six hundred and fifty yards wide and 227 yards deep fell into French hands. Further advances were made in the adjoining woods, the ravines northwest of Beausejour were entered, and several more trenches carried in a brilliant dash. Prisoners taken aver that the losses of the Germans were extremely high.

The French have practically driven out the Germans from the village of Vauquois, in the Argonne region, the finishing touches to the enemy being administered yesterday.

The French defeated a German attack in the forest of Le Pretre, and in the regions of Badon, Villers and Celles they have advanced as far as the German wire entanglements.

The French have solidly organized an advanced trench to the north of the sand dunes in Belgium, and they dispersed twelve attempts of the enemy to push forward his trenches.

The French attack on Hartmanns-Weilerkopf, in Alsace, has made some headway, a trench, a small fort, and two machine guns having fallen into their hands yesterday.

LOCAL MARKET

How to account for the variety of prices asked by market vendors is puzzling. For example, eggs were quoted at 30c and 35c today, and parties asking for these prices vouched for the quality of their supply without hesitation. About 11 o'clock all the eggs brought on had been sold.

There was a "Christmassy" appearance about today's market that bespoke activity among the farmers and the buying public alike. Every buyer who goes to market is on the watch for good values for his money, which is having a tendency to keep down prices. As it is, however, eggs for instance are quoted higher on the local market than in Toronto by from four to eight cents, notwithstanding that Peterborough is situated in the midst of a good poultry-breeding district. The egg production of Canada, however, is on the decline, according to experts, and this probably is responsible for the continued high price of this commodity.

There was an ample supply of meat available which sold at regular prices. Beef fetched 11c and 12c, pork 13c and 14c. One farmer felt he was not getting enough, but it was the best that could be done.

Potatoes were fairly plentiful, going at 65c a bag. There were not many apples to be seen.

The prevailing prices are:

Potatoes, per bag	$ .65	$ .70
Apples, per peck	.25	.35
Onions, per peck	.30	.35
Parsnips, per bag		.75

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Fears that export demand for wheat from the United States might suddenly halt had a disturbing effect today on prices, but at the finish the market, altho unsettled, was at the same level as last night to 1 5-8c off. Corn closed 1-8c to 1-4c down, and oats at a decline of 1-8c to 3-8c. Provisions wound up with gains of 2 1-2c to 10c.

Possibilities of bearish developments in the European situation were at the outset dreaded by many wheat traders owing to a decided drop in quotations at Liverpool. About midday peace talk concerning Austria led to similar misgivings. Breaks that in some cases extended nearly four cents under yesterday's close were witnessed in consequence. Invariably however, buying of a persistent character on the part of cash houses here and at other western centres, as well as at the seaboard, came into play on declines, and resulted in a succession of rallies.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 5.—The biggest drop of any one day since Feb. 3 occurred today in wheat prices. Exporters were buying all the No. 3 northern they could lay their hands on of both spot and for opening of navigation. In oats No. 2 C.W. and extra No. 1 feed were wanted, but practically nothing was done, while other grades were not asked for. Barley and flax were quiet.

Wheat futures closed 3c to 3⅝c down, cash 3⅝c lower, oats 1¼c to 1½c lower, and flax 1⅛c to 1½c lower.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 5.—Owing to the continued downward tendency of prices there was no demand from foreign buyers today, and business in this direction was dull. There was no further change in the market for coarse grains, but the feeling is easy with only a limited amount of business doing. Flour was quiet and unchanged at the decline, and the demand for millfeed was fair. Eggs easier. Cheese firm.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 5.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.37½; No. 1 northern, $1.32⅝ to $1.37⅝; No. 2 do., $1.29⅝ to $1.34⅝; May, $1.32⅝.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 67¼c to 67⅝c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 52c to 52½c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $6.90; first clears, $6.

Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, March 5.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.39⅛; No. 1 northern, $1.38⅛; No. 2 do., $1.33⅛ to $1.35⅛; May, $1.36⅛.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

TORONTO, March 5.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 63 cattle, 202 hogs, 55 sheep and lambs and 5 calves.

Rice & Whaley sold 7 decks of hogs at $8.25 to $8.35, weighed off cars.

Dunn & Levack sold on Friday:

Butchers—2, 780 lbs., at $6; 3, 1000 lbs., at $7.

Cows—7, 1060 lbs., at $5.70; 2, 1275 lbs., at $6.50; 2, 900 lbs., at $5.50; 1, 730 lbs., at $4.

Bulls—1, 2000 lbs., at $6.50; 1, 1760 lbs., at $6.50.

Calves—5, 150 lbs., at $9.50.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 5.—Cattle—Receipts 2000. Market firm. Beeves, $5.85 to $9.15; cows and heifers, $3.50 to $7.70; calves, $6.75 to $10.25.

Hogs—Receipts 26,000. Market higher. Light, $6.55 to $6.85; mixed, $6.65 to $6.85; heavy, $6.30 to $6.80; rough, $6.30 to $6.40; pigs, $5.75 to $6.75; bulk of sales, $6.70 to $6.80.

Sheep—Receipts 8000. Market firm. Natives, $7 to $7.90; yearlings, $7.65 to $8.65; lambs, native, $7.75 to $9.75.

WHY AN AUTO IS PROFITABLE TO THE FARMER

Who said anything about hard times? The McLaughlin Carriage Co. are going to give away $500.00 in prizes for the best article on "Why an Automobile is Profitable to a Farmer." It should be stated that more than farmers are eligible. Dairymen, stockmen, market gardeners are also eligible for these prizes. There is a big advertisement in the Review telling all about this grand offer, but, if a personal consultation is wanted Mr. C. R. Banks, the local agent for the McLaughlin automobile will be pleased to give what advice he can. There are splendid chances for many to win prizes and the opportunity should not be missed.

THE DOMINION LIFE'S FINE RECORD

Policyholders of the Dominion Life Assurance Company of Waterloo, Ont., are waking up to the fact that they are insured in one of the best Policyholders' Companies in Canada. This Company, whose annual report appears in our issue of today, is run at an astonishingly low cost, and this fact, combined with its high earning power, enables it, to make the most substantial returns to its clientele. Its interest rate is high, due to the fact that the whole of its funds is kept constantly invested in productive securities, mainly in western mortgages approximately an 8 per cent. yield. The Company informs us on enquiry that it lends only up to 50 per cent. or 60 per cent. of a property's value based on a conservative estimate, and that it has never lost a dollar of principal in its 26 years of operation.

The policy contract of the Dominion Life is liberal to a degree, and contains many unique features for the benefit of the holder. The mortality experienced by the company has been particularly low and has averaged well below 30 per cent. since its inception in 1889. Taken altogether, the policies of the Dominion Life are worthy of the careful attention of anyone seeking insurance protection. Mr. P. A. Ferguson is manager for Central Ontario: office, 172 Hunter street. 'Phone 72.

"I should have told you the other day, when I was speaking of 'Eddy's' Washboards, that it is just as necessary to have an Indurated Fibrewear Tub to hold your clothes, if you want to make a success of wash-day."
MRS. NEWLYWED says:
"I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and wooden ware?"
"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece. It cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

Toronto and Local Clubs Get Permission From League

SIX CLUB CIRCUIT

Salary Limit is Fixed at $1600

TORONTO, March 6. — The Canadian League will for this year at least have only six clubs in its circuit, Toronto and Peterborough dropping out for a year, while Guelph or some other city will take Erie's place. This step was taken at the preliminary schedule meeting of the league, held yesterday afternoon at the Prince George Hotel. The clubs represented were: London, A. E. Somerville, S. Stevely; Brantford, T. J. Nelson; Hamilton, W. Crystall; Toronto, J. J. McCaffery, Geo. Lee; Ottawa, F. Shaughnessy; St. Thomas, Wm. Rawleigh.

The main business of interest was the consideration of the circuit for the season of 1915. With the turning over of Erie, Penn., as unsuited to Canadian League company, it left the league with seven clubs. The question for the meeting was whether to take in an eighth club or cut one off to make a six-club circuit of it.

It was finally decided to allow Toronto and Peterborough to retain their franchises in the league for one year without playing.

Mr. O'Neil was granted permission to transfer his Erie franchise to Guelph or any other city acceptable to the league.

The week's limit to the training season was rescinded, and the salary limit fixed at $1400, exclusive of manager, and that the player limit be 13 men, including the manager, 20 days after the opening of the season.

New Army Chief.

General Hugh Lenox Scott, succeeding General Wotherspoon as chief of staff of the army, the latter having reached the age limit after forty-one years of service, was the first officer honored with a promotion by President Wilson after he became president. Following a brilliant tour of duty on the Mexican frontier as the cavalry commander at El Paso, he was ordered to Washington as General Wotherspoon's successor when the latter was named to succeed General Wood as head of the general staff. He is a native of Kentucky and a graduate of West Point.

Famous Old Trotters

It is a remarkable fact that many of the most famous horses of the trotting turf years ago were not appreciated until after they had arrived at maturity. With a great many the trotting quality was discovered by accident.

It is on record that Flora Temple was once sold for $13, and the great mare Princess, dam of Happy Medium, brought her breeder about $40. Tacony pulled a stage and Mack likewise. Abdallah would have been made to haul a fish cart had not his lofty spirit rebeled at the indignity. Billy Button was used as a runner to force the pace of Peralto. Goldsmith Maid was once sold for $100, and the dam of Ethan Allen was sold at the age of ten for $25.

Dutchman worked in a brick yard, as did old Columbus, and Andrew Jackson was foaled in one. Charley B. was used to haul stone up from a quarry by derrick and pulley. Godolphin Arabian drew a watering cart in the streets of Paris. Justin Morgan was long a wheel horse in Vermont. The granddam of Monbars did farm drudgery. The dam of Billy Button hauled garden truck to market and pulled a milk wagon alternately. Gifford Morgan drew slabs from a sawmill and was at one time sold for $100.

The dam of Flying Morgan was used to peddle woodenware. The sire of Rarus was worked to a butcher cart, and it is said that the dam of Black Hawk also drew a butcher's cart. The first authentic account of Canadian Pilot places him in the hands of a Yankee peddler in New Orleans. The dam of Lady Griswold was used by a patent medicine vender. The dam of old Green Mountain Morgan ground apples in a cider mill.—Horseman.

Absurd Beliefs About Hedgehogs.

In olden days the hedgehog was accredited with the possession of many wonderful powers. Pliny and after him Aelian and others have related how it would climb apple and fig trees, shake down the fruit and afterward fall upon and impale the fruit on its spines and carry them off upon its back. The belief that it was in the habit of milking cows during the night is likewise a very old one.

Frank About It.

"See here, madam, when are you going to pay up?"

"Pay up?"

"Yes; pay up."

"As soon as my husband concludes to settle down and bring around his pay envelope."

Nothing Overlooked.

"Whom were you talking with?"

"The iceman."

"What did he charge you for it?"

"Nothing."

"It will be in the bill, all right."

Community Habits.

Communities are like humans, they get habits. Each community makes its own collection, selects the particular kinds it likes. This makes it a "peculiar place"—as the phrase goes—gives it individuality, really makes it different from the rest. Now the character of a community—whether it is good or bad—depends on the kind of stuff it packs into its habit trunk. Furthermore, communities sometimes get chronic. They get "sot in their ways." The habit ruts get deep. Judgments about things get twisted. Ambition grows tired and quits. Whatever the community is it stays until it begins to slip back—back perhaps to the condition of that rural community which finally raised only two crops a year—"huckleberries in summer and hades in winter."—Countryside Magazine and Suburban Life.

Shot by His Son.

BUFFALO, N.Y., March 6.—John J. Roth was shot and killed yesterday afternoon by his 16-year-old son Leo, who was endeavoring to save his mother from a beating. Roth came home intoxicated, and started a quarrel with his wife. The boy interfered, and the father attacked his son with a knife. The boy then seized a gun.

Platonic affection is a disguise that sometimes both the foolish and the experienced adopt.

Being a liar doesn't prevent a man from being several other things.

Wounded Sailors.

When a soldier fighting on land is wounded he is generally carried out of the firing zone without much delay and is soon made as comfortable as possible in a hospital out of range of the enemy's guns. Not so the sailor on board a warship. Warships are, above everything, fighting machines. There is very little spare room on board, and in the confusion of battle the wounded sailor cannot get the best attention all at once, nor can he be carried out of range of the big guns of the enemy. But efforts are made to carry him to a place of safety. Such places, easy of access and not too hot, are scarce enough. Of course all that can be done is done. The wounds are dressed, and the men are made as comfortable as possible in the circumstances. Then as soon as an opportunity presents itself they are transferred to a hospital ship.—Pearson's Weekly.

LEAST RESISTANCE.

THERE is really nothing in it
As you journey day by day
To be fussing with the neighbors
And the folks along the way.
You can as you labor daily
Pull as many dollars down
From the place where they are hiding
With a smile as with a frown.

If you care to lay a wager
It's a safe and certain bet
There is nothing for the kicker
That the others do not get.
For in meeting with a stranger
He can very soon depend
On a man who hates his picture
Where he might have had a friend.

It's a rough and tumble mixup
That at best we have to face,
And a grouch as excess baggage
Wins us neither friends nor place.
When you jolt a fellow being,
When his head you try to crack,
You can bet that he is laying
For a chance to hand it back.

Down the line of least resistance
It is easier to sail,
Winning with the softened answer
Where an angry word might fail,
Tossing here and there a favor
In this world of give and take,
Casting bread upon the water,
Bread that may return as cake.

Explained.

"What a beautiful woman!"

"Yes."

"Friend of yours?"

"Yes; I know her intimately."

"What is her name?"

"Er—er—I am not certain."

"What! How can that be when you know her so intimately?"

"She marries so often, you see."

His Rich Relation.

"He is a distant relative of yours, I believe."

"Yes."

"You are fond of him no doubt."

"Not at all."

"He is rich, isn't he?"

"Yes, and, although merely distantly related, when I came to make a touch I found him too close."

Point of View.

"He owes a lot of money."

"Poor fellow!"

"Why?"

"Debt is so harassing."

"That isn't the way he looks at it."

"No?"

"No. He is always thinking what a good time he had spending it."

The Smart Alec.

"Did you make the train?"

"Yes."

"Did they give you a mint of money?"

"A mint of money?"

"Yes."

"What for?"

"Making the train."

One Warm Heart.

"I am the assessor."

"I am pleased to meet you."

"That is the way I like to hear a man talk. Most men act as though I were the smallpox."

"But, you see, I have no property."

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Edna Davis is visiting friends in Toronto for the week-end

Mr. Geo. Needler of Millbrook is reported seriously ill.

Mrs. A. W. George, Port Hope, will receive on Monday, from 3.30 until six. Mrs. T. J. Blois of Peterborough will receive with her.

The president of the Kitchener League, Mrs. Knox, Gilmour St., would be very grateful to any ladies desiring to assist the league by knitting as there is a great demand for socks for the fighting soldiers. Yarn may be obtained any time from the president.

On Tuesday afternoon, March 9th, Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, sec'y of the National Council of Women will address the women of Peterborough on the subject of Women's Work in War Time.

The meeting will be held at 4 o'clock in the assembly room of the public library. Mrs. Cummings who is on her way to the meeting of the National Council in Ottawa will be the guest of Mrs. W. L. Morris while in Peterborough and be entertained by the executive of the local council on Tuesday evening in the Y.W.C.A drawing room.

SOMETHING UNIQUE PANORAMIC VIEWS

Speaking of panoramic views, the Canadian Pacific itself has just produced something out of the ordinary in this respect. The official photographer of the railway, Mr. J. C. S. Bennett, has made a print 22 feet long on one piece of paper, representing a panoramic view from Burgess Pass, in the Canadian Rockies. This photograph, the largest ever made in Canada, which will be hung in the rotunda of the Windsor Hotel, at Montreal, shows Mount Field (8,645 feet), Mount Dennis (8,326 feet) Mount Goodsir, the Van Horne range, Mount Burgess (8,463 feet), Mount Emerald (8,332 feet), Mount Wapta (9,990 feet), and Mount Vice-President (19,049 feet), and embraces a hundred miles of snow-clad peaks and glaciers, with the hotel at Field shown in the valley at the left, and to the right a glimpse of the Yoho Valley.

CARDINAL BOURNE'S VISIT TO BRITISH ARMY AT FRONT

Cardinal Bourne, who is the ecclesiastical superior of all the Army and Navy Roman Catholic Chaplains has returned to England from a visit to the British Army. During his stay at headquarters he visited various points in the British Isles, where he constantly addressed the Roman Catholic regiments. He had an opportunity of watching from an elevated position, just beyond reach of the shells, an artillery duel between the British and German guns, and witnessed shells bursting over the German lines. On one occasion he spoke to three regiments in a church which had been subjected to shell fire, which had destroyed the tower and part of the roof. Another time he was addressing several hundred Irish Guards when an aeroplane, the nationality of which was not immediately apparent, soared overhead. On the last evening of his visit to the front he preached in the principal church at headquarters and gave the Benediction. Before his departure from headquarters he paid a final visit to the Commander-in-Chief and the Adjutant-General to whom he expressed his appreciation of all that was being done to meet the spiritual needs of the Roman Catholic soldiers and the facilities offered to the chaplains to carry out their work efficiently. In his journey to the front his Eminence lunched on "bully beef" and "hard tack," thus experiencing the actual food of the soldier in war time. At Havre, His Eminence called on the French Admiral, the English Consul, and the representatives of the Belgian Government. He then visited the Quay hospital, and spoke to a number of the men. Afterwards he paid a visit to the hospital ship "Asturias" which was ready to start on the homeward journey. This hospital ship, it will be remembered, the Germans nearly torpedoed. A journey to the large camp followed, and his Eminence visited the site where Roman Catholics are putting up a big recreation hut for the troops. Here, addressing a large number of soldiers, he said that two things were needed to make a brave soldier. One was their's already—the justice of the cause. The other necessary thing depended upon themselves, and that was: to be, and to remain, in the peace and friendship of their Maker. He prayed God to give them courage in the fight, to bring them back safe, if it be His will that they should return, to family and friends; and to grant them, above all, grace to pass fearlessly into His Divine presence, conscious of His friendship, if, on the other hand, it should be His will that they should give back their lives to Him.

FINE LIST OF OPTIONS

Announcement by Horticultural Society

The many advantages open to the citizens of Peterborough and surrounding country by becoming a member of this Society has not as yet been realized by many people. The Society annually receives from the Ontario Government a grant equal to about eighty cents per each member joining, this altogether with the membership fees of one dollar is used by the directors of the Society for the purchasing wholesale of flowering plants, shrubs, bulbs, etc., for distribution to its members. All that is necessary to participate in this co-operative scheme of enjoying the luxuries of these flowers and incidentally beautifully our city is to send in your application to the secretary stating which of the following options you desire delivered your address in good planting season

The Options.

Option One.

In the fall another distribution of chioce bulbs suitable as pot plants for winter blooming will be made.

It will be seen that each member really receives more than one can buy in the ordinary way for twice the amount of their subscription. Now is the time to join, the directors look for a hearty response from our citizens and any enquiry will be cheerfully answered by application to the secretary, C. H. Williamson, 203 King Street. Join now and boost the already large membership

STATEMENT BY CITY SOLICITOR

Gives Figures Relating to Arbitration Proceedings

Mr. G. N. Gordon returned from Toronto last night and when interviewed today said he did not wish to give an opinion as to whether the price is excessive or not by reason of the fact that the city's arbitrator, Mr. Ross, signed the award and apparently was perfectly satisfied with it. Mr. Gordon said that Mr. Ross was one of the most eminent electrical engineers in Canada and after he had the advantage of hearing the six electrical experts as to the value of the plant, he would be in a better position to state the value of the plant than anyone else. The fact that the gross operating income amounted to about $105,000 while the gross operating cost was about $50,000 per annum when the city took over the plant would indicate that the company made a profit of 50c. on every dollar it took in its coffers, so that if the plant costs $150,000 the city would be able to pay for it in about 3½ years with the same rates as the company carried.

Mr. Gordon further said that the suggestion of the increase of rates mentioned by Mr. Moore was a surprise to him for he understood that the present reduction of meter rates varying from 30 to 38 per cent. since the city took over the plant was estimated on a capital cost of $250,000 for the plant instead of $150,000, so that the award making it approximately $150,000 would mean almost $100,000 leaway for the Utilities Commission.

Mr. Gordon said that after the arbitration he understood from one of the solicitors for the company that they would be very much disappointed if they got under $180,000 in the award while on the city's part it was felt that the award might run up to $125,000. The award as a matter of fact is almost evenly between the two estimates, that is each party was about $25,000 out in the calculation.

However the fact that the plant was earning from the electrical end of it as profits 50c. on every $1.05 taken in makes it a fairly good buying proposition particularly as it now gives the city its first right to decrease rates of light.

CHICKENS WERE UNDER WEIGHT

Fine of $5 Was Imposed in Police Court

On the market this morning the Sanitary Inspector came across some chickens which when weighed were found to be 6½ pounds under the weight given by the vendor. A police court case followed this afternoon and a fine of $5 imposed.

"BILL" CROWLEY GOES TO WAR

All the way from Calgary comes the report that "Bill" Crowley, who was connected with the home guard there, has graduated in the military world and is now an officer of the third contingent training for overseas service. This is the same "Bill" Crowley who brought rugby and lacrosse fans out in multitudes and the same "Bill" who was allied with every move to further amateur athletics in Peterborough a few years back. There has been no definite confirmation of the rumor received in this city, but it is in all probability true. It is a certainty that if "Bill" Crowley ever tries to "buck over" against a line of Germans, the said line will be smashed beyond recognition.

AN INTERESTING EXPERIMENT AT NORMAL SCHOOL

Dr. Chant Explained the Rotation of the Earth

A fair-sized audience greeted Dr. Chant at the Normal School last evening to hear an address on the Rotation of the Earth. Dr. Chant in the beginning of his lecture explained by means of experiments and lantern slides the workings of the Foucault Pendulum, which he had erected in an adjoining hall. This pendulum, a 25-pound ball suspended from a 30-foot fine steel wire, was set in motion and continued to vibrate in one plane while the earth moved on. The pendulum marks the distance travelled by the earth. Dr. Chant started the pendulum and for 30 minutes continued to lecture, illustrating the different phases of the moon. The meeting then adjourned to the adjoining hall and he fully explained the movements of the pendulum and the earth. The arcs placed on the table showed the building and the earth had moved forward while the pendulum continued to vibrate in the same plane. The experiment was exceedingly interesting, and those who were fortunate enough to be present greatly benefitted. Citizens of the opinion that the meeting of the astronomical society are dry and uninteresting should give up the idea as they are quite the reverse. It is expected that Dr. Chant will return in April or May and give an outdoor lecture on Constellations.

SUCCUMBED TO HIS INJURIES

John Seeney Died Early This Morning

After hovering between life and death for two weeks, John Seeney who fell from a passenger train, passed away in Nicholls Hospital last night. Seeney was travelling from Norwood to Havelock two weeks ago tonight, on the C. P. R. midnight, when he fell off and lay exposed and severely hurt until five o'clock the following afternoon, when he was found. He was hurried to the hospital where Dr. Cameron attended him. It was seen that his condition was most serious and fears were entertained that he could not recover. He took a turn for the worse last night.

His family besides his wife consists of five sons and one daughter. Two brothers and two sisters also survive.

Don't worry about the goodness of other people. It is quite sufficient to see that your own is up to test.

AU REVOIR TO THE BOYS IN KHAKI

Mounted Rifles Are Given Enthusiastic Send-off by Citizens

Once again has Peterborough responded to the appeal of Kitchener! Once again has the father smothered sobs and softly reminded his boy to do his duty; once again has the mother pressed her pride and joy to her bosom, and amid tears gazed sorrowfully upon his bowed head and prayed for his safe return; once again has the loyal and noble wife courageously divested herself of the companionship and assistance of her husband; once again has the child been held, for probably the last time, in the loving arms of "daddie" and kissed a fond good-bye; once again has the maiden sweetheart solemnly promised to remain true to her soldier lover; once again have the citizens in general turned out in thousands to give a proper and fitting send-off to many of the city's best who have volunteered to assist in the great battle, that truth, righteousness and justice might triumph over tyranny.

Never in the history of Peterborough was any body of men more clearly shown the best wishes of their fellow citizens than the Peterborough Squadron of the 8th Canadian Mounted Rifles, which departed on Saturday evening for Ottawa, mobilization centre for the Third Canadian Overseas Contingent. The event will go down in military history coupled with memories that time can never erase. It was one of those sights which can never be banished from the mind. A quota of men, arrayed in khaki, leaving their homes and loved ones to do their share in preserving Britain's honor and thousands of admiring fellow-citizens wishing them a bon voyage and safe return. The first men who left the city were already in the trenches, the second lot were embarking on the shores of the Motherland to complete their course of training and the third unit was taking the initial step to follow.

For two months the Mounted Rifles had been recruiting at the Armouries under Col. Johnston and for two weeks the order to move had been expected hourly. Training was gone on with daily under Major S. T. Medd, the officer commanding and when the men formed ranks on Saturday morning at nine o'clock the announcement was made that they would leave that evening. It had been expected yet it came with great suddenness. The news spread rapidly and almost immediately preparations were under way to make the departure a memorable one. Truly the efforts of those who worked with that aim in view, were crowned with success. The squadron had been made up of many local men and they as well as recruits from surrounding districts claimed a high place in the esteem of citizens because of their exemplary conduct. Everyone was willing to take part in the last tribute to them.

A Farewell Luncheon.

When the squadron fell-in at eight o'clock in the evening in the Armouries the men presented a perfect military appearance. No confusion whatever was present, which spoke very highly for the work of the officers in charge. Before any order was given, each member of the squadron was presented with a box of "smokes" by Mr. L. Yeotes and immediately afterwards they were marched to the band room where supper was served. The repast which was given by the Women's War Fund Committee was ably catered by Mr. T. H. Hooper & Sons. At the close of tghe luncheon each volunteer was presented with gifts of handkerchiefs and other comforts by the ladies. Major Medd made a few remarks on behalf of the squadron in which he thanked the ladies for their kindness and then the function was brought to a close by three rousing cheers for "the ladies of Peterborough."

The squadron marched back to the main auditorium and stationed along the north wall. The 57th Regimental Band, under the leadership of Lt. Gliddon, the Bugle Band, under the leadership of Sergt. Sharpe, the members of the 39th Battalion under the command of Capt. Spencer, the Home Guard under the command of Major R. B. Layfield, and the Salvation Army Band under the leadership of Bandmaster Beer, as well as an enormous crowd of citizens taxed the huge floor space to its utmost. A temporary platform had been erected on the north side of the building and from it a few short addresses were made. The first speaker was Col. Johnston, the recruiting officer. He expressed his thanks for the excellent manner in which the members of the Mounted Rifles and the officers have treated him and assured them that he was never connected with a better body of men. He was sorry he was not accompanying them further but as he had made application for active service he hoped to follow 'ere long. Col. Johnston showed plainly that it was with difficulty he bade the men farewell and

ACCIDENT TO COASTING PARTY

Miss Pearl Jopling Fractured Bone of Right Arm

Miss Pearl Jopling, daughter of Mr. G. J. Jopling, of Bridgenorth, had the misfortune to fracture her right arm between the elbow and the wrist, on Saturday evening. The young lady, as well as many other young people of the village, was coasting on a hill near by. The "bobs" on which Miss Jopling was riding jumped out of the tracks and overturned. In the mixup which followed, the accident occurred. The young lady was removed to her home and Dr. Kelly of Peterborough summoned. He reduced the fracture and reports today state that Miss Jopling is doing as well as can be expected.

Boys in Ottawa at Five O'clock

Mr. James Skinner, C. P. R. ticket agent, returned from Ottawa this morning, he having accompanied the Mounted Rifles to the Capital, where they arrived at five o'clock Sunday morning.

Mr. Skinner says the trip was marked by splendid behavior on the part of the men.

CHURCH IS DESPISED

When It Becomes a Sheltre of the Persistent Wrong-doer

"Let no man despise thee," Titus 2.15. This was the text taken by Rev. J. R. Webb in speaking to his evening congregation in Murray St. Baptist Church. Mr. Webb in speaking on the subject said that Paul was not specially concerned about men hating Titus or persecuting Titus but he did not want Titus, a minister of the gospel, to be despicable in the eyes of the people. The church and Christian become despicable when they are anything less than sincere. The church is despised when it becomes a shelter of the persistent wrong-doer. A man who is notoriously evil in his every day life ought never to be tolerated even as a doorkeeper in the house of the Lord. The Review is quite right in its editorial of Friday. The church should always be the shelter of a "great rock in the weary land" for any sinner no matter how low, who is sick of his sin and anxious to be helped, but it should never allow itself to be a trench in which a scoundrel can hide while he sends out his shafts for the destruction of innocence and virtue. When a young man has not once or twice, but often, offended the community and has on occasion left the city to get rid of the indignation of the citizens, he ought to be embarrassed by the law even when he cannot be convicted by the law; and when such a one is brought before the people, charged with a serious offence, when the community feels that he has been guilty in this and other cases, his humiliation will have a deterrent effect while a conviction may not be possible.

A Satanic Scheme.

At St. Andrew's Church yesterday, Rev. Jas. Rollins, took as his text: "We are not ignorant of his devices," and in speaking of the way Satan uses men, Rev. Mr. Rollins said one of Satan's schemes is to get men to describe the serious deeds of men by names that are not at all serious.

When a man has been flagrantly wicked he is too often spoken of as weak. When one is immoral, he is described as simply sowing his wild oats. "It's a pity," said Mr. Rollins, "when Satan is able to secure a minister as his agent in this regard."

STATEMENT BY REV. R. G. PEEVER.

Editor, Review:

Sir,—In justice to myself I feel that your report in Saturday's issue on the funeral service of the late Dr. Brown should call forth from me a brief statement in reply. I made practically no reference to the life, character and tragic death of the deceased; neither to the inquest decision. I stated that the sad occasion necessarily called for silence on my part. I tried to have a comforting service by reading simply scriptural selections, briefly encouraging the bereaved family and friends to find in God strength, hope and comfort to face the present and the future, and then concluded with prayer.

Yours truly,
R. G. PEEVER.
George Street Methodist Church Parsonage.

In reference to the above letter, the public should be informed that the account of the funeral service of the late Dr. Brown that appeared in the Review was contributed by a well-known business man of this city. In deference to parties concerned, the report was published.—Ed.

SAY ITEM WAS MOST UNFAIR

Ministerial Association Deplore its Publication

The Ministerial Asociation met this morning in the Y. M. C. A. parlors. After the transaction of routine business Rev. Mr. Pogue read a paper on "The Christian Ministry and the Social Order," from Rev. Dr. McFarlane's recent book.

An interesting discussion followed. In connection with routine business, great regret was expressed that it was possible for anything to occur in our city which is so manifestly unfair to the ministry as the item which was published on Saturday in connection with the funeral of the late Dr. Brown. While the utmost sympathy is felt for the bereaved family, it was deplored that the city newspapers inserted a lengthy obituary which put upon the lips of one of our ministers sentiments which he did not express and which would lead the casual reader to think that the minister was of the opinion that the jury had brought in a mistaken verdict, and the hope was expressed that whether the article was prepared by one of the reporting staff or was furnished by an outside contributor, the newspapers would let the public know who was responsible, thus freeing the minister who, while trying to conduct a suitable funeral service, made no personal reference.

THE GREAT MOSQUE AT CONSTANTINOPLE, BUILT NEARLY 1,500 YEARS AGO.

Greatest among Constantinople's 379 mosques is that of Agia Sofia, formerly the Church of Saint Sophia, which is 250 by 235 feet in size and was begun in the year 532. It was built in five years. Its shape is that of a cross. The dome in the centre rises to a height of 180 feet. In 1453 Mohammed II. changed the church into a mosque.

TRENCH WON BY ALLIES

Violent Counter Attack in the Vosges Repulsed With Heavy Loss to Germans

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 8. — The French statement says the Allies captured four or five hundred metres of trenches between Perthes and Beausejour, with some prisoners, and dismantled a 42-centimetre gun which had been taken to the rear for repairs, and repulsed, with heavy loss to the Germans a violent counter attack at Reich Ackerkopf in the Vosges.

OSTEND BOMBED BY ALLIED AIRMEN.

BERLIN, March 8. — A German war office statement today says the aviators of the enemy have dropped bombs on Ostend.

LONDON, March 8. — Germany is imposing a tax on the profits of manufacturers of war materials.

The activity of German steamers with coal cargoes on the west coast of South America indicates the probable proximity of German cruisers.

It is believed the Dresden is hiding in some Chilean inlet.

HEAVY FIRE REPORTED FROM NORTH SEA.

AMSTERDAM, March 8. — For the first time since Sir David Beatty engaged a German squadron in the North Sea the latter part of January, heavy fire, according to a despatch from the Hook of Holland to the Telegraff, was heard in the North Sea today.

LONDON, March 8. — The economic situation in Spain grows worse. Scarcity of food has caused bread riots. Some families get food only every other day.

Horn Shed Tears When Handcuffed

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Machias, Maine, March 8.—Werner Horn, the German officer who blew up the Canadian Pacific Railway bridge at Vanceboro, imagining he was committing an "act of war" was taken to Bangor today for trial on the charge of transporting explosives.

Horn wept when in spite of his protest, he was handcuffed to a deputy sheriff.

TROUBLE HAS BEEN AVERTED

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 8. — Threatened trouble with engineering workers at Sheffield to the number of fourteen thousand has been averted by a grant of a war bonus amounting to ten per cent. increase in wages, but the shipyards at Southampton are threatened with a stoppage unless an increase of five shillings weekly with ten per cent. increase in overtime rates is allowed.

Stockholders of the Union Bank of Brooklyn must pay up their $1,000,000 liability, orders the law.

Fire Discovered by Toiling Inventor

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

West Orange, New Jersey, March 8.—Thomas Edison, working in his laboratory just after midnight, discovered fire in one of his buildings, where valuable gramaphone records are kept. The building was practically destroyed but most of the records were saved.

AN ELECTION NEXT MONTH

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

VICTORIA, B. C., March 8. — The British Columbia Legislature dissolved today, and the government will go to the people in about a month. The precise date has not yet been named. It is reported that the election was decided on when certain Conservative members in the caucus refused to support Premier McBride's proposals to advance seven million dollars to the Pacific and Great Eastern railway to enable them to complete the line from Vancouver to Fort George.

The premier is now determined to ask the people to support this policy. He says he will make some changes in the cabinet.

COMPLAINTS SHOULD BE TAKEN TO POLICE CHIEF

Crown Attorney Refers to Correspondence Relative to Recent Tragedies

Editor Review,

Sir,—Referring to correspondence published in your issues in connection with the late sad tragedies—and much as I dislike writing for publication in newspapers in response or reply to correspondence regarding complaints of this nature. If any person or persons has or have any reasonable complaint to make that action can be taken on and punishment inflicted, the proper place to go is direct to the Chief of Police and although he has to listen to dozens of complaints every week, the great majority being only hearsay and others after investigation failing to show the slightest foundation for action, he is always ready to listen to the next. Should he however refuse to entertain the persistent demand for action, the injured one may communicate in a most informal manner to the Police Commissioners: The County Judge, Police Magistrate and Mayor under whose control and supervision the police force is, and investigation follows promptly. There is therefore not the slightest ground for going into print and suggesting graft, rich sons, money and all that twaddle. If the people will only volunteer to help the police and endeavor to create a public feeling for them in the discharge of their most unpleasant duties, great benefit to the community can not help but accrue.

In almost every case after days and nights of preparation, a criminal prosecution is launched, and at once is felt the cold, antagonistic atmosphere of the public, the so called "fellow feeling for the under dog." The friends, relations and connections and their friends, relations and connections, and so on down the line all combine to contribute to the utmost the defeat of justice.

The greater the crime the more ability and experience in defending; the counsel for the accused uses every tactic and some of a most unprofessional nature are deemed fair in defending the criminal, whilst the representative of the Crown on the ground that he represents the State of which the accused is a member must be very careful not to make addresses of an inflamable nature or unduly excite the sympathy or passions of the jury.

As the Mail and Empire newspaper says:—

"It appears to be a growing objection among Ontario jurymen to hang any one. It may be that the wholesale crimes comitted in Europe have quashed the important isolated crimes of individuals, and with the jury's findings in the last three or four sensational cases tried in Ontario, findings concurred in by the boots, yells and actions of frenzied mobs, is it any wonder then that the police forces throughout the Province are not too anxious to court failure on every hearsay rumour, about the town."

The people may rest assured that the police know facts in connection with the late sad cases that are not known to the scandal mongers on the street, or to those who air their superficial knowledge for one reason and other through the press.

In closing, again let me say if any citizen of any standing in the community will call and interview the Chief, and lay before him a bona fide complaint that will justify his taking action, it will be done.

$25 FINE FOR USING CUSS WORDS

Amendments to The Telephone Act to be Introduced

Toronto, March 8.—Several amendments to the Ontario Telephone Act will be introduced this session by the Hon. Mr. Lucas. The amendment of most general interest is suggested by the telephone companies and provides that any one using profane language or engaging in insulting conversation over any telephone line may upon conviction be fined $25 or sentenced to thirty days in jail.

Other amendments prepared by the Ontario Railway Board provide as follows:—

All telephone systems owned by unincorporated companies, associations or partnerships must in future take out charters and issue share capital. Where telephone systems established by municipalities are at present assessing their rate-payers in ten year instalments, the period may be extended by order of the Railway Board.

Existing municipal systems may be extended into unorganized territory.

Questions as to the validity of rates levied by a municipality on its ratepayers for any telephone system, may be referred in case of dispute to the Railway Board.

WILL NOT SEEK NAVAL BATTLE

German Navy to Retain Command of Kiel Canal

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 8. — The Daily Express says it is understood that at the recent naval council at Berlin, Admiral Von Ingenohl's policy of seeking battle with the British fleet was condemned, and it may be taken for granted that the German fleet will remain hidden until peace is declared.

LIEUT. DOXSEE IS WOUNDED

The latest casualty list includes the name of Lt. W. J. Doxsee of Campbellford, who went to France with the first Canadian force. Mrs. G. H. Weatherstone, 120 Hilliard street, is a sister. Mrs. Doxsee received word the latter part of last week that her husband had been wounded.

Lt. Doxsee is a former mayor of Campbellford and he is well known here.

MORE RECRUITS FOR 39th BATTALION

There is not so much activity in the Armouries today since the Mounted Rifles have departed. The 39th Battalion, however, is still with us and according to the opinion of Capt. Spencer no order move will be received this week. It is doubtful if the men will be equipped here, as the other companies are being equipped on arriving at Belleville, the present mobilization centre.

Evidently the demonstration on Saturday evening instilled a little more patriotism into citizens. This morning seven made application for enlistment with the 39th Battalion. The total strength is now one hundred and sixteen.

Famous Detective is Dead at Paris

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, March 8.—Pierre Fortand Jaume, a detective of international reputation, is dead.

It may be that I will reply to the correspondence. To do this will necessitate publishing comments that I much deplore seeing in print and are best left out.

PETERBOROUGH, MONDAY, MARCH 8, 1915

LET THE CASE GO ON.

SINCE the publication of the first article dealing with the Helen Brown case, a number of leading citizens have intimated that they think the case should be proceeded with. They have spoken to us directly or by telephone to that effect, and others have written letters that emphatically expressed the same opinion. The evident feeling of the majority of law-abiding citizens is that the case should go on.

A young woman has died from an illegal operation, a doctor has been poisoned, a charge of murder has been laid. Even though the specific charge cannot now secure a victim, yet for the moral safety of this city the case should not be dropped.

Suppose the case is dropped. The real culprits who were the primary and contributing cause of Dr. Brown's death and of Helen Brown's death, are scott free. They have received, no doubt, a temporary shock, but no punishment nor loss in reputation. They can still associate with innocent people and possibly perpetrate the same misconduct that has led to this tragic case. Do the citizens of this city want a repetition of the Helen Brown case? Do they want innocent girls ruined? How is there to be any improvement, unless the authorities make their influence felt and make law-breakers fear the police, by providing an example? There are some concerned in this case who have passed the heart-to-heart talk stage. They are what are called seasoned, and the authorities have got to act as severely with them as their powers permit, to have any salutary effect. The public demnad is for the investigation to proceed, and the authorities will not be doing their duty unless action is taken. Those innocent of any implication in this case want to be cleared from imputations that rumors have credited to them, and this cannot be done unless the investigation is continued. If the authorities say they have nothing to go on, it is up to them to find something. However, we believe they have the material that would justify further prosecution of the case. Why are they holding back? Whom are they trying to shield from merited punishmnet? Why not go on with the case?

HAS THE SUBMARINE WAR FAILED!

A SHORT TIME AGO, it will be remembered, Germany declared war on all British shipping and on all neutral shipping that ventured within a proscribed zone. This war was to be one of submarines, without warning to the ships attacked and without mercy. At first, a number of vessels were sunk, possibly ten or twelve ships, and people began to ask where is the British fleet of submarines? Before the war began, Britain had 64 submarines and over 300 torpedo craft built, with 22 submarines and 38 destroyers building, whereas Germany had 18 submarines and 200 torpedo craft built, with 14 submarines and 9 torpedo vessels in process of construction. So, there was some justification for the question.

It should be remembered that Britain, being on the offensive in naval matters, has undertaken to keep the seas clear, and has to spread her fleet over many thousands of miles, that they have to put into port constantly for supplies and repairs. Thus, it was possible for the enemy submarines to get in the way of commerce. But the best answer to the question, and to Germany's submarine war, is that for some days there has been no news of vessels being sunk by German submarines. On the contrary, there are reports of the sinking of German submarines. It seems that the German declaration could only be a wild boast, spasmodically carried out at great risk, and which could not last for any length of time.

THE MONTREAL GAZETTE DIDN'T BREAK THROUGH THIS TIME.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that 4,000 Canadian troops of the Second Contingent sailed from Halifax on February 22nd will be news to everybody and somewhat of a shock to the Montreal Gazette. This enterprising journal broke through the censorship when the first contingent sailed, and received some attention from the authorities. The Review also referred to the matter and was forthwith cut off the Gazette's exchange list. While we felt the deprivation keenly, we have still been able to publish a daily newspaper, but in our loss it is comforting to note that the censorship this time was bull strong, horse high and pig tight.

THOSE CANADIAN SUBMARINES.

THE LIBERALS have been raising a big noise about the submarines purchased by Canada on the eve of the present war. They have been trying hard to find out something crooked, but alas! nothing is forthcoming. The Toronto Mail and Empire puts the case clearly when it says:

> "Being the purchaser for the Dominion Government of the two submarines in Seattle at the outbreak of war, Sir Richard McBride is chief witness in repudiating Mr. Pugsley's insinuations of impropriety in connection with the purchase. In the House of Commons, when Mr. Pugsley made innuendoes, Premier Borden and the Minister of Marine warmly defended the purchase, which was advised by the British Admiralty, in view of the exigencies of defence on the Pacific coast. The price paid, which was arranged by Sir Richard McBride, did not seem unreasonable, in view of the haste which was necessary to get the two vessels. Sir Richard McBride has now given to the British Columbia Legislature a detailed account of his negotiations, denying flatly and specifically the Pugsley suggestions of commissions or rake-off, and showing how false were some of the premises upon which the ex-Minister of Public Works built them.
>
> "Sir Richard McBride says the British Columbia Government was first informed of the submarines by Captain Logan, representative of the London Salvage Association. In view of the undefended position of British Columbia, a German fleet being in the Pacific, the acquisition of these submarines before war was declared by Britain was urgent. He bought them for $1,150,000 — a price which the naval men of the coast thought quite fair. This amount, says Sir Richard, 'was paid over in the form of a cheque which was made out to me (by the British Columbia Government) and endorsed to Lieut. Pilcher, the senior naval officer here.' The cheque was turned over when the submarines were taken over at sea. 'There were no commissions, no brokerage, or exchange, or profits of any kind or description whatere.' Moreover, he says that the transaction scarcely closed when 'a detective agency in Seattle was instructed to search out the whole business in all its details; and I may say that these instructions were given by some prominent Liberals resident in Victoria.' The connection between these detective-employers in British Columbia and Mr. Pugsley's so-called 'information' does not seem so very remote to the British Columbia Premier.
>
> "Information in the possession of the Naval Department, and referred to by Mr. Hazen in the House, and now corroborated by Sir Richard McBride, shows that the German fleet at one time was quite close to the British Columbia coast cities, and the submarines, along with the Rainbow, were the sole protection against attack. That no attack was attempted is largely due to these submarines."

EDITORIAL NOTES.

EXPORTS of Canadian manufactures for the year 1913 were $43,966,733. It is an axiom in manufacturing that the larger the output the less the proportionate cost. If Canadians, by purchasing made-in-Canada goods, enable Canada's manufacturers to increase their output to the extent of 50 per cent. of her imports, it would permit such a reduction in their manufacturing costs as to give them a greater opportunity of meeting competition in the markets of the world. This would again call for the employment of more Canadians and the further use of Canada's raw material.

THERE is this to be said for Germany — the large number of German soldiers killed and buried in Belgium and Russia does give her some title to calling the ground German soil. Still we think the Allies won't admit the claim as a sufficient one.

Those Frightful Zeppelins.

(London Chronicle.)

A few years ago a section of the English public allowed itself to be scared in a most discreditable way by imaginary cruises of Zeppelins over England. The German authorities, remembering this, have tried during the present war, to work the airship threat for infinitely more than it is worth. Their own lack of faith in these craft may be sufficiently inferred from the fact that they have never sent them over Paris, and confined their single flight over England to our nearest unfortified district.

Will Begin on Time.

(Springfield Republican.)

Kitchener's new army was to be ready in the spring, and it is reported that it has for some time been landing in France at the rate of 15,000 troops a day. British ways are not always so showy or so picturesque as the continental, but the British programme is in the habit of being carried out. The new act in the world tragedy will begin on time.

Their Guns Are Spiked.

(Brantford Courier.)

The Liberals at Ottawa are still trying to hatch out some objections to the budget. The fact of the matter is that Hon. Mr. White presented such an equitable plan for meeting the war taxes that the gentlemen of the Opposition cannot find any joint for attack. Their guns are spiked.

MADNESS OR WHAT?

Editor Review.

Sir,—Would you be good enough to publish the following extract from Hansard. The opposition recently inaugurated by the Liberal party to the "Buy in Canada" campaign, is led by Hon. A. K. Maclean, the Liberal financial critic and the man upon whom in case the Liberals came into power would devote the making of the tariff a party way object to a law "protecting" the trade of a country but upon what theory of trade or sanity it is possible for a party to object to such a request as "Buy in Canada" or "Buy in Peterborough?"

It is true that the logical sequence of free trade is the failure to patronize one's own people but this present step one would think would not only ruin Liberal hopes of a return to power but would go far to ruin Canadian hopes of home prosperity as well.

J. H. BURNHAM.

Hansard (official report of Parliament), March 5th, 1915:—

Questions of Privilege.

Mr. A. K. Maclean: Mr. Speaker, I desire to refer to a matter of privilege. My attention was called yesterday to the fact that one or more newspapers during the past week have alleged that I eliminated from "Hansard" a portion or portions of my remarks upon the Budget in reference to the Buy-in-Canada propaganda. I do not complain about the newspapers in question, because, as a matter of fact, the remarks that I did make did not appear in "Hansard,' and consequently there was some justification for the remarks made by the newspapers. When my attention was called to this, I was of the opinion that possibly I had been responsible for the elimination myself, but upon investigation I learned that I was not responsible, and I have the authority of "Hansard" officials to say that the deletion of this portion of my remarks was not due to myself. I should not take the trouble to refer to the matter had I not been charged with the elimination of my remarks in this respect, and consequently with receding from the position which I took with reference to the indiscriminate and thoughtless campaign in respect to the Buy-in-Canada propaganda, both of which charges were incorrect.

EARL OF CADOGAN DEAD.

Former Lord Lieutenant of Ireland Was a Wealthy Landlord.

LONDON, March 8.—The Earl of Cadogan died here Saturday at the age of 75 years. He was one of the wealthiest London ground landlords and a great entertainer of royalty. Three heirs to the title died during his lifetime.

Earl Cadogan was Lord Lieutenant of Ireland from 1895 to 1902. He also had been Lord of the Privy Seal; Under Secretary of War for the Colonies, and member of Parliament for Bath.

Five years ago the aged Earl caused considerable surprise in London by his marriage to his cousin, the Countess Palagi at Florence. His first wife, a daughter of the second Earl of Craven, died in 1907. She was the leader of the Cadogan regime at Dublin Castle, which was one of the most brilliant on record.

Earl Cadogan's son, Viscount Chelsea, will succeed to the title.

Bankrupt Banker Ends Life.

CHICAGO, March 8. — While several policemen were struggling to maintain order among hundreds of anxious depositors in the private bank of Meccia and Manno, which closed its doors Saturday, another policeman discovered the body of Ignazio Meccia, senior partner of the firm, on his lot in Mount Carmel cemetery here Saturday. He had committed suicide by shooting probably Friday night.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

HE GETS THERE.

DON'T jeer about the self made man
Or on him use a hammer
Because in making known his wants
He uses self made grammar.
Though at the college on the hill
He did not take a course full,
He always can make known his wants
In language plain and forceful.

He may not know just how to act
When he gets up in meeting,
He may not juggle with his fork
When he is busy eating,
But when the dinner bell resounds
You find that he is able
To have the best the market holds
Load up his groaning table.

In making love to some sweet girl
He cannot sing her praises,
Although his feelings are intense,
In fine and fancy phrases,
But when it comes to leading off
The sweetest little treasure
You bet you'll find him on the job
Where you can take his measure.

He is not versed in Greek and French,
With art he does not dally,
But in a business deal it's hard
To chase him up an alley,
Without advantages from books
The world alone he faces,
But, oh, he makes the money dance
And puts it through the paces!

Coming to a Choice.

"Yes, sir," said the street orator, "the trusts are a menace to the common man."

"Think so?" asked the flippant one.

"Think so? I know it. We must destroy the trusts or they will destroy us."

"Is it as bad as that?"

"Yes, and worse."

"Now, candidly, as a fair man who has given much thought to this subject, which do you think the country could get along the best without—the trusts or us?"

Undoubtedly.

"Have you heard it?"

"What?"

"The latest thing."

"No. What is it?

"It is very interesting."

"Is it?"

"Yes, and long."

"What in the world is it?"

"It isn't in the world at all. It is the comet's tale."

Ambitious.

"Every woman is ambitious."

"Is she?"

"Yes; she has two ambitions."

"What are they?"

"One is to be rich and fashionable."

"Yes."

"And the other is to be more rich and fashionable."

Consoled.

"Why did you think your wife would like a pet monkey?"

"Why?"

"Yes."

"You know, I am away so much."

"Well?"

"She misses me awfully."

At Government Expense.

"They are talking of having a health department at Washington."

"That will be fine."

"How will that help?"

"Can't the congressmen send out pills then, as they now send out seeds?"

Particular.

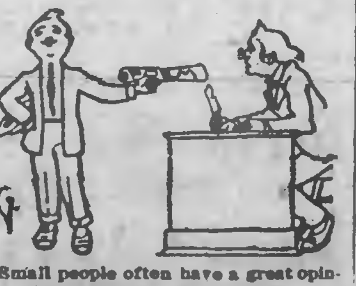
"Why did your cook leave?"

"She said she didn't like either our politics or religion."

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

Don't feel so bad over the way things are going. The universe may be able to pull through, after all.

Any man believes in taking chances when they are all on his side.



Small people often have a great opinion of themselves.

Money that is laid by for a rainy day sometimes becomes so moth eaten that it is entirely useless.

It is well to be frank, but choose carefully the subject upon which you exercise that quality.

There is a remarkable difference between emotion and commotion; but, strange to say, there are persons who can't perceive it.

Don't go looking for trouble unless you have a letter of recommendation that will put you right with it.

And too often the price you pay for a thing has no relation to its value except through you.

There are always as many people at hand to tell you how not to do it as there are to tell you how to proceed. The how-not-to-do-its get in their work, however, after you have failed.

It wouldn't so much matter if the price of beef doesn't come down if some way could be found to proportionately multiply the number of dollars in the pocket.

Total premiums paid from 1st February, 1890, to February, 1910 (20 years)	$419.00
The premiums were then permanently reduced by the accumulated profits to $10.20 per year; this he paid for the past five years	51.00

A Message From Marjorie

It Was Speedily Answered

By NELLIE TRAVEY GILLMORE.

Farrington turned from the bookcase with a little gesture of annoyance. His Shakespeare, of all volumes! How stupid of Thomas to have let out his books without his knowledge or consent! Only last week he had missed his favorite, much marked copy of Rochefoucauld. Prentiss had nabbed that.

But this was a little too much, especially in view of the fact that "Hamlet" was playing that night and there were a couple of passages he felt he must run over.

He crossed the room impatiently and pushed the call bell. It was answered at once by the redoubtable valet.

"It seems still more of my books are missing, Thomas. I am afraid you have been careless. I can't locate that red calf edition of Shakespeare anywhere."

"You left orders, sir—begging your pardon—to accommodate any of the young gentlemen"—

"When I rushed off to Europe, eh?" A whimsical smile made its transient passage across Farrington's scowling face. "Very well. I presume you are right. I was a bit upset, I remember. You may go."

But as the man started toward the door he called him back.

"By the way, are there any bookstores hereabout?"

"No first class ones, sir."

"Any—er—first class neighbors?"

"A few, sir."

"Good! Scrimmage around and find me a Shakespeare before night and I'll"—

But Thomas had already disappeared.

* * * * * * *

Marjorie Hayward was just coming out of the front door when Farrington's man stepped up on the veranda. His request surprised her a little, but she was very glad, indeed, to be able to accommodate him.

She had a copy of Shakespeare somewhere, she said, an old, battered one, but his "master" was welcome to the use of it, certainly. And with this information she went back into the library to search for it.

What sort of people were they anyhow, the new neighbors who had just moved in the day before and were already beginning to borrow people's books? she wondered good naturedly.

At last she came across the rusty little volume, stuffed to overflowing with old letters, clippings and scraps of memoranda.

She held it up and shook them out in a shower, a swarm of memories suddenly aroused by the long buried sight of certain familiar bits of writing, pressed flowers crumbling to atoms, yet vaguely redolent still of a dear, dead past.

With a smothered sigh she caught herself back sharply from her foolish reflections and returned to the door with the book. Thomas thanked her elaborately and hastened away. Marjorie waited till he had passed up the short stone walk of the house next door. Then she buttoned up her coat and walked down the gravel path to the gate.

* * * * * * *

Farrington took the volume eagerly, turning the yellowed leaves with deft fingers till he should come to "Hamlet." But suddenly he paused, his eyes narrowed curiously and his heart gave a startled jump. A brief extract from "The Merry Wives of Windsor" caught his attention. "Ask me no reason why I love you, for, though love use reason for its precision, he admits him not for his counselor."

The passage was heavily underscored, and below it were scribbled in corroboration the initials "M. H."—"W. F." They were hers—and his!

Marjorie Hayward! The name sent his thoughts tumbling tumultuously back over the past; sent the blood tingling even to his eyelids. How many years—nearly ten—since he had called that name! Yet how many days, indeed, had it been absent from his heart?

The minutes flew by as he sat there wrapped in meditation. At last he began again to slip the leaves absently through his fingers, when abruptly they came in contact with something alien.

He glanced closer, almost indifferently, and started again as his gaze rested stupidly upon an envelope stuck to one of the pages and addressed in full to himself—addressed in Marjorie Hayward's clear, resolute characters half a score of years ago, when they had both lived in the same little western town.

Without a second thought as to whether he should or should not open it Farrington deliberately tore the letter from its inclosure and read:

> Dear Walter—I have been thinking things over, and, after all, you must be right. I made the mistake, and I am willing to acknowledge it. We love each other too much, do we not, to let a silly quarrel separate us for life? Come to me tonight. I shall be waiting for you. As ever, MARJORIE.

For an indeterminate space Walter Farrington sat half stunned. What had happened? What could it mean? Had she changed her mind about sending the letter, or had there been some oversight, some carelessness, in the posting?

And Marjorie herself, where was she now? Could it be that she was less than a block away at this minute? Perhaps she was married! Had fate chosen this ironical opportunity to thrust an added misery into his bitter memories?

Farrington was not a man to hem and haw. He thought quickly, and he acted with proportionate dispatch. He took out his watch. It was almost 8. In fifteen minutes he was ringing the doorbell next door.

But he was destined to disappointment. Miss Hayward had gone to "Hamlet." Farrington hurried down the avenue that led to the playhouse. Luckily his ticket was to be called for at the box office. It was a good seat and commanded a sweeping view of the audience.

After the first act their eyes met—locked—across the sea of faces in the orchestra. The girl paled, flushed and paled again. Then her eyes fell away from the deep, ardent gaze riveted upon her.

After the play Farrington stationed himself at the door, but Marjorie left by a box entrance, and he went home with a sinking heart to a dream haunted pillow.

The rain washed sky was blushing pink when he opened his shutters at 6 the next morning. The flowers made a rainbow of color in the garden below, and the air was vocal with the matutinal chirping of birds.

Suddenly the door of the house across the way swung open, and a young woman in a trim brown traveling dress, suit case in hand, emerged upon the porch.

Farrington caught a desperate breath. The northbound train left in twelve minutes, and he was still in his bathrobe and slippers.

After Providence had thus delectably tossed them together again she was running away from him.

Seven minutes later, decidedly ill groomed, he whizzed up to the platform of the O. and G., jumped out and sent Thomas speeding on his way in the runabout.

Miss Hayward was just turning from the ticket window as he came up, and again their eyes met, hers evasively, his with the old compelling power she had never known how to resist.

"Marjorie!"

"Walter!" The name escaped her unconsciously.

"I just received your message, dear," he said, "and that is why I am here." He displayed to her bewildered gaze the faded writing on the yellowed paper.

"Why," she breathed wonderingly—"why..I don't understand. I wrote you that letter over nine years ago and"—

"For some reason which is not presently apparent it was never mailed. See, the stamp is uncanceled. I found it in the little old Shakespeare we used to read so often together."

"And which I have never opened since you went away," she interposed in a little tremulous whisper.

The engine bell rang. With a little exclamation Marjorie started toward the train. Farrington took her suit case from her.

"Where are you going?" he asked.

"To Pittsburgh. And you?"

"Wherever you are—always."

And they stepped aboard the moving train.

Dog and Master Serve the Colors

The Paris Figaro makes itself responsible for the following story of the adventures with the French Army of a dog that rejoices in the name of Fend l'Air. Fend l'Air, it explains, was born in Algeria of unknown parentage, a street arab, that fended for itself from puppyhood. Intelligent and affectionate, he devoted himself passionately to the master that chance gave him. The war called his master to serve under the colours, and the dog managed to get on board with him. From Marseilles he crossed France and went to Belgium taking part in the grand retreat. He was in the victory of the Marne, shared the life of the regiment in the trenches, and one night the trench which his master was helping to guard was blown up by a shell. Fend l'Air's master was buried, wounded. The dog scented out the exact place where he lay and started digging, until at last he succeeded in summoning the stretcher bearers, who saved the wounded soldier from what seemed certain death. The man had been taken to the American hospital at Neuilly and is recovering while the hospital rules have been relaxed so as to avoid the separation of the two friends.

Kitchen Kinks.

Camphor will remove white spots from the furniture, and it will also take out fresh peach stains from table linen if the camphor treatment is followed by soap and water.

When using whipped cream if you add the white of an egg to the cream and whip it it requires less cream and is more delicate in taste and flavor.

Graham Fruit Bread.

Two cupfuls graham flour, one cupful white flour, one cupful sour milk, one teaspoonful soda, two teaspoonfuls each of brown sugar and molasses, one teaspoonful of salt and one-halfcupful each of chopped nuts and seeded raisins, dates or prunes cut in bits. Bake slowly almost an hour.

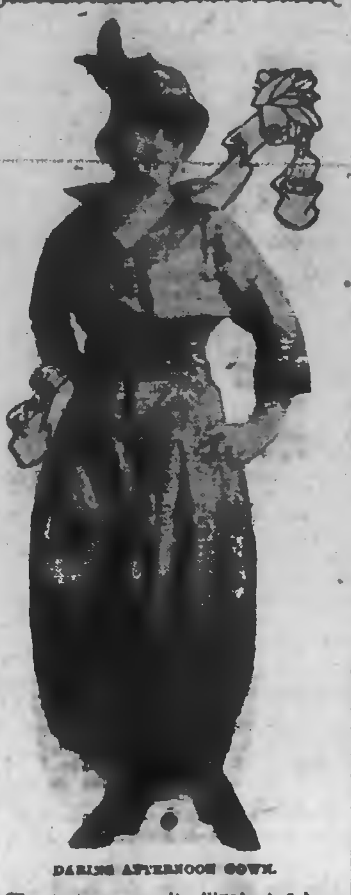
NOVELTY COSTUME.

Model That Combines the Harem Skirt and One Piece Blouse.



DARING AFTERNOON GOWN.

The costume novelty illustrated here includes a harem skirt and one piece blouse. The skirt is closed below, and the waist is fashioned of a square of silk. The opening at the neck is cut large enough to permit the blouse to be slipped on over the head. It is fastened without the use of buttons, hooks or eyes. The ribbon hat to match the costume is of corbeau blue taffeta. This striking style novelty was designed by Ora Cue.

COLORED HANDKERCHIEFS.

Dainty and Attractive Ones Are Permissible This Season.

For a long time women viewed the colored handkerchief with aversion, considering that good taste demanded plain white. Of course, the white handkerchief may be used, but the colored handkerchiefs grow more and more dainty and attractive, and beyond a doubt a handkerchief to correspond is now one of the prettiest and most usual accompaniments of a smart toilet.

It is even acknowledged that vivid borders are allowable when the costume demands it, for if the handkerchief has any color at all it must correspond with the gown.

The monogram or initial is always embroidered in color to match the border, and the woman who likes fine work is embroidering and hemming by hand dainty bits of linen for very acceptable gifts for her friends.

Cleaning a Rusted Sink.

Rusted ironware or sinks can easily be cleaned by smearing with fat or grease, then covering with quicklime, which should be left on for a few hours. Wash off with hot water to which a large amount of common soda has been added, and use a cloth tied to a sink broom, so as to avoid touching with the hands.

This is a great help to persons moving into a house which has been vacant a long while and where the sink is all rusted.

Cubist Shades the Latest.

The latest thing in lamp and candle shades are round or pagoda shapes of black with classic figure designs in white or with white ground and the figures in black. They are wonderfully effective when lighted up. Remarkably quaint white and black candle shades in cubist and striped designs are another new fad, and beautiful examples of floral shades, large and small, are also seen.

HINTS FOR HOUSEWIVES.

Squeaks in shoes are obviated by dipping the soles in kerosene.

Red wall paper, especially in a small room, is often trying to the eyes and temper.

A teaspoonful of lemon juice in a cup of black coffee will cure a bilious headache.

The best scrapbaskets are the simplest ones, closely woven and free from any decorations of ribbons, etc.

No gritty scouring soap should be used upon the enamel of a bathtub. A powder is much better, and stains may be removed with a brush.

To stiffen starch add to one quart of prepared starch a teaspoonful of gum arabic and one of baking soda; dissolve in a little water and stir well.

Instead of gluing on the handle of an umbrella which is not wearing well, try winding a thread around the stick and then screwing on the handle.

To remove paint from clothing saturate the spots two or three times with equal parts of ammonia and turpentine and then wash out in soapsuds.

Everybody is loyal—to No. 1.

Milady's Mirror

Avoid Nervous Grimacing.

A great destroyer of beauty lines in the face is the nervous twisting of the lips and grimaces. Many women are guilty of these when talking. They are unbecoming habits and are the means of developing many ugly lines and wrinkles that prematurely age one.

Time, worry and habit are three things that line the forehead with furrows and bring a sagging condition of the muscles, especially affecting the muscles under the chin. When these muscles lose their elasticity the result is the unsightly double chin.

The reason that furrows (wrinkles) make their appearance on the countenance of an aged person is due to the fact that the fat underlying the skin becomes absorbed. Consequently the cuticle loosens and becomes wrinkled. To remedy this condition gently massage these parts with good skin food; then before retiring adjust a forehead band which has been annointed with skin food. This should be worn each night.

Sagging cheek muscles may be strengthened and contracted with massage and an astringent lotion and, as has been said before, tightly bound up overnight with a band—either muslin or rubber.

In regard to premature wrinkles caused by worry or habits, they should not only be treated with massage, as previously directed, but one should learn to control the muscles to obtain a calm and pleasant expression, which is a great aid to beauty.

A Graceful Figure.

Quite often the figure of a pretty girl is spoilt by stooping shoulders, a contracted chest or a careless, slouching gait. Yet by devoting a little spare time every day to some physical exercises these evils may be overcome. Many and various are the forms of calisthenics. The daily use of dumbbells will strengthen all the muscles of the arms and chest and at the same time promote a free circulation of the blood.

Then there is the expander. This is formed of a strip of the very strongest kind of elastic, with loops or handles at each end to hold. It can easily be made at home. It should be held in both hands and be slowly expanded and passed over the head. This tends to develop the chest and strengthen the back.

Exercises of this sort should be performed regularly every day, and they must be done steadily, slowly and firmly.

Dress for any form of muscular exercise should be light, flexible and woollen. No corsets should be worn, and the bodice and underclothing must be large enough to allow perfect freedom of the arms.

The Hands In Cold Weather.

To preserve the hands in good condition in cold weather they should, whenever possible, be washed in tepid water, and if this is softened by a teaspoonful of borax so much the better.

Be sure to use a soap of good quality, and when drying the hands take the precaution of rubbing each finger separately.

If the hands are rubbed over once a day with a slice of lemon and a little cold cream or if mutton tallow is rubbed into them thoroughly before going to bed at night there will be little danger of the skin becoming chapped or rough.

Chapped hands are almost always caused by insufficient drying after washing or perhaps the water was icy cold and very hard or used too hot. Both extremes are bad for the skin.

Tonic For the Hands.

An excellent tonic astringent and bleach for the hands is made from one ounce of strained honey, one ounce of lemon juice and one ounce of cologne.

Blend thoroughly and rub into the hands at night, then draw on a pair of large kid gloves, having the palms slit for ventilation. Wash off in tepid water in the morning.

Where a woman does her own housework or assists with it to the extent of coming in contact with grime and grease, hot and cold water, the lemon rub after washing the hands will tend to keep them in good condition.

With rubber gloves to wear when housework is done it is possible to shield the hands from strong soap, varying temperatures of water and direct contact with dirt which coarsens the texture of the skin.

Beautiful Gray Hair.

Once gray hair is an accomplished fact and not merely a threat, its possessor soon begins to realize its beauty. It should be frequently shampooed so that it is even in color and smooth in texture, and it should be brushed carefully and regularly and often indulged in sun and air baths.

Gray hair will be of a more uniform shade if borax is put in the water in which it is washed, and if the hair is an ugly yellowish gray or white a little bluing will remove the offensive tinge.

Of course gray hair must be carefully dressed, and the best effects are got when it is slightly undulated and then dressed high on the head or rolled off the ears and brow and into a soft French twist at the back.

MRS. WISENEIGHBOUR says:
"I should have told you the other day, when I was speaking of 'Eddy's' Washboards, that it is just as necessary to have an Indurated Fibrewear Tub to hold your clothes, if you want to make a success of wash-day."

MRS. NEWLYWED says:
"I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and wooden ware?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece. It cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

For the Children

Emootuk, a Real Eskimo Boy, Who Likes New York.

Among the varied peoples that make up the population of New York city are representatives of almost every race and nation under the sun. From every quarter of the globe they hail. Perhaps the most interesting of the many queer peoples is a group of Eskimos from Greenland. They comprise father and mother and two children—a boy and a girl. They were born north of the arctic circle, where summer is very short and the winter long and severe. Inured to the frigid weather of their native land, the Eskimos in New York laugh at our mild winters. They enjoy the snow when it comes, and the coldest day has no terrors for them. In their Greenland home they live in winter in igloos, or huts built of stones and earth. In order to enter their dwellings they are obliged to crowd through a long tunnel dug under the snow. The tunnel is necessary to keep out the cold winds. At the entrance to the tunnel a block of snow is used for a door, and at the inner end is hung a curtain of sealskin. The hut, which contains but one room, is lighted and heated by a stone lamp containing seal or whale oil and provided with a wick of moss. Sometimes when they are traveling the Eskimos build a temporary house of blocks of snow. This is said to be fairly comfortable for an Eskimo, but boys and girls of this latitude would find it a pretty chilly place. The name of the boy in the picture is Emootuk, and he is about twelve years of age.

Land of Wiggy Wug.

In the land of Ugway Wiggy Wug
An elephant lived on a Persian rug;
His automobile was a Wiggy bug
That sped over Ugway road.

He had a messenger fat and strong
That sang to him daily an Ugway song;
I'll tell you the words—you see it's not long—
"I'm a beautiful Ugway toad."

The elephant laughed and grew so fat
That the toad had to find a Wiggy cat
To carry his cane and hold on his hat
As they rode through Ugway Wug.

They went one day for a pleasant ride,
And the toad made the Wiggy cat his bride,
And they all lived together side by side
On the elephant's Persian rug.

Saved His Cigars.

"Will you have a cigar?" said the host. "These are some my wife gave me for a birthday present. Help yourself. Let me give you a light."

Every man present said he had sworn off smoking.

"Why did you tell a lie about those cigars, John?" asked his wife after the gentlemen had gone. "You know I didn't give them to you for a birthday present."

"You just keep quiet, Mary. That box of fifty cigars cost me just $10, and I can't afford to give any of them away."

Bottled Soda Water
A Cold Weather Delight

You drink Cold Water in winter. Why not Cold Soda Water?

Every member of your family needs soda water in winter even more than in summer, because the blood grows sluggish and the system becomes clogged with impurities because of lack of out-door exercise.

Liberal draughts of our delightful bottled beverages flush out the system, tone up the nerves, and digestion, and gives both health and happiness —especially to the children. Try a case. You will repeat the experiment. Be sure you get Knox's.

AU REVOIR TO BOYS

that the men were also sorry to leave him was clearly demonstrated by the enthusiasm put into "three cheers for Col. Johnston."

The Farewell Words.

Rev. Jas. Rollins, representing the Ministerial Association, was the next speaker, and his remarks were followed by a short address by His Worship Mayor Buller. The Mayor had evidently become quite popular with the members of the Mounted Rifles and prolonged cheering greeted his appearance on the platform. He spoke of the great cause the men were going to fight for and exclaimed that he was sure they would do as the Canadians at the front at present are doing, bring credit to this great and glorious country. He assured the men that while away they can be content so far as the supporting of their families is concerned. Peterborough would see that no dependent of a soldier would want for anything. The promise, he said, was made to soldiers who left on previous occasions and it is being kept and it will be kept in the future. In conclusion His Worship told the men that should they return, as he hoped they would, they would find Peterborough prepared to give them a Cheers for Major Medd.

Lt.-Col. Stevenson was the next speaker and he was followed by Major Medd. The commanding officer of the Mounted Rifles was given a great ovation and the building rung with echoes. He thanked the citizens of Peterborough for this demonstration and their good will and again took ocacsion to thank the ladies of Peterborough for their many kindnesses. Although the men would carry away only pleasant recollections of this city, Major Medd remarked that such a send-off tended to make the recollections even more pleasant. He assured the citizens that the Mounted Rifles would do their part to bring credit to Peterborough and to Canada.

After the cheers for Major Medd had died away, Maj. Davidson, chaplain of the 57th Regiment, conducted the farewell service. All military men in the building stood at attention while all others bared their heads. A death like silence settled over the great assemblage, and all seemed impressed with the solemnity of the function. Various prayers were read, one verse of "Fight the Good Fight" sung and the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. Major Davidson's benediction was "Go from your homes, your city and your country to do your duty in the name of the Lord of Hosts." The very impressive service was brought to a close by the members of the squadron saying with the chaplain, "May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ and the love of God and fellowship of the Holy Ghost be with us all evermore. Amen."

March to Station.

The march to the C.P.R. depot was then begun. The 57th Regimental Band rendering "Soldiers of the King," went first followed by the members of the City Council. Next came the officers of the 57th Regiment, then the Mounted Rifles and the 39th Battalion volunteers. They were followed by the Bugle Band, the Home Guard, the Salvation Army Band and a monster parade of citizens. That march down George St. was one which never will be forgotten. Traffic was suspended and on both sides citizens lined up and cheered enthusiastically as the boys in khaki marched past. Stores, theatres and all other places of business were vacated. All were taking part in the grand send-off. The Mounted Rifles marched in sections, and from their ranks to those on the side exchanged many a "good-bye," "safe return," "bon voyage," and "farewell." Occasionally in some section of the ranks the cry "Are we downhearted?" rang out and was always answered by a loud "No." A few of the more light hearted boys in the crowd of spectators requested the volunteers to "Hand old Kaiser Bill one for me," or "Have one for me in Berlin."

What cared the enthusiastic citizens if two or three inches of snow and slush made the walking bad! Everyone forgot about the slush so eager were they to see the men entrain. As soon as the military men and home guard passed on the street, the two walls of human beings closed into the centre of the street and followed the amrch to the depot, at least as close to the depot as they could get. Long 'ere the men arrived the platform was well filled and the crowd was not long present till every available inch of space was taken up. It was one surging mass of humanity with the volunteers saying their final farewell to their loved ones and then breaking franticaly through the crowd to the coaches. There was cheering and singing by some of the spectators but the majority were silent onlookers. They realised to a certain extent the meaning of what was going to. They gazed on the great inanimate engine with a solemn gaze and the six coaches seemed to awake greater interest than any other six coaches had ever done. Many noted the number of the engine, which was 997, others asked for the name of the engineer and conductor. The man at the throttle was Engineer Laing of Havelock while Conductor Burnette also of Havelock was in charge.

The members of the squadron filed into the coaches and windows were immediately opened. Hands from the crowd reached up and clasped the hands from the windows and hearty wishes of good-luck were given. To the casual onlooker the scene was far from being one of sorrow but had he retired to the ladies' waiting room his impression would have changed. There was the pathos caused by the departure of the married men. The younger element, who were in the majority, were the ones singing, and those of the spectators who joined in were merely acquaintances of pals. For the man who was leaving his wife and children the occasion demanded no signs of lightheartedness. He stood on the steps of the coach and peered anxiously into the crowd to have a last look at the faces of his dear ones. He usually searched the multitude in vain for they were in the ladies' waiting room.

Scenes were to be found in that waiting-room that would touch the heart of the coldest. Ladies almost hysterical were reclining upon chairs with heads buried in their hands. Scarcely a second passed but a sob was audible, while children cried continually. One blue-eyed tot stood on the table in the centre of the room trying to see "daddie." His mother heartbroken, was being cared for by a few lady friends, and no one was comforting the boy. Tears covered his tiny face as he murmured "Daddie won't be home no more." Another lady standing beside a Review reporter held in her arms a mere infant, who likewise had been brought there to bid father good-bye. The mother of the child had broken down completely, and even the lady minding the baby could not restrain tears. The engine bell commenced tolling, almost mournfully, and then came the short whistles. Slowly the wheels began to turn, and one by one the coaches went past the odor. Ladies raised their heads, children waved their hands, and then—they were alone. No longer were they to be comforted by the presence of "daddie." Scarcely one left the room without a tear-dimmed eye or a lump in the throat that withheld speech.

The train pulled out at 10.15, and was due to arrive in Ottawa about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. The advance guard, consisting of Squadron Quartermaster Sergt. A. L. Kent, Corporal Norman Young, Trumpeter Robert Carr and Privates Footit and McMonagle, had left at noon on Saturday to make arrangements for the arrival of the squadron. Lt. Johnston acted as transport officer, while each coach was under the supervision of a sergeant and corporal.

PRESS BUREAU IS CRITICIZED

LONDON, March 8. — Lord Selborne, in a letter to The Times on 'Foolish Optimism,' protests that the Press Bureau "consistently slurs over bad news and exaggerates good news." Frequently, lately we have seen a roll of casualties of a battalion in Flanders amounting to 200, 300 or 400 men, or even to half the battalion. These casualties took place in February, January, or December, but who can recollect that at the time he received any impression of such loss by the news published?

"My own belief is that at the very best there are many months of cruel war before us, and that we have need of every effort which every civilian in the United Kingdom can make as well as of every effort of the seamen in the fleet and that by far the greatest danger which now confronts us is, lest slackness in the United Kingdom from whatever cause arising, should protract the war many months beyond the time at which it could otherwise be finished."

Victuallers Want Bylaw Quashed.

LONDON, Ont., March 8.—Justice Middleton, of Toronto, at the weekly session of the High Court here Saturday, reserved decision in the motion of the London Licensed Victuallers' Association to quash the license reduction bylaw indorsed by the ratepayers in January last. The hotelmen claim that the petition upon which the vote was based was insufficiently signed.

Germans and Turks Fall Out.

LONDON, March 8.—Telegraphing from Cairo, The Daily Mail's correspondent says:

"During the retreat of the Turks after the recent Suez operations the German officers had an open conflict with their allies and three hundred of the latter were killed in a single affray near Jerusalem."

SWELLS IN THE RANKS; THREE OLD CHUMS WENT WITH FIRST CONTINGENT

Correspondent in Canadian Expeditionary Force Tells of the Meeting at Montreal of Hon. Richard Scott-Proctor, Tommy Dashwood, and a Nephew of the Earl of Wemyss, Old Rugby Boys.

"The Hon. Private Richard Scott-Proctor, No. 25,764, 14th Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, Salisbury."

An orderly in the base postoffice, which is located on the first floor of a two-storey ancient shack in the town, picked up an envelope bearing the above address. He pondered over it.

"Well, what d'ye know about this?" said he, scratching his head. "That's the limit. Some day there'll be one addressed to Lord Arbuthnot or the Duke of Swansea. These Canadians are great kidders. Here, Bill, ever hear of this swank?" passing the letter to his brother sorter.

"Nope, must be a josh," said Bill, as he passed it on to another, who had just finished reading a fresh appeal from a widow who wanted a Canadian soldier-husband.

"Never heard of him," said this one. "It's not a lady's hand-writing, so he might be an honorable, but what the deuce is he a private for when there are so many commissions floating about?"

"Well, we'll send it to the 14th Battalion; they can josh him out there," said the man who made the discovery.

Just then Lieut. Murray, O.C. of the postal corps, came in.

"We've discovered another lord," said the sorters in chorus. "Ever hear tell of the Hon. Scott-Proctor, Mr. Murray?"

"Never have," said Mr. Murray. "I'll take care of the letter and will inform Col. Meighen about this fellow."

But Mr. Murray carried the letter to his office and placed it in another envelope, which he addressed to plain "Private Scott-Proctor." He did this by the request of Col. Meighen, who did not want the boys in the orderly room of the 14th to know that there was an "honorable" in their lines, especially in the ranks.

Yes, the Hon. Private Richard Scott-Proctor is a real private. He also is a real blood, one of the aristocracy, which has risen several notches in the estimation of the English people since the war began, so many of this class having gone to the front and fought and died for their country.

One day shortly after war was declared an Englishman walked into a Montreal restaurant on St. Catherine street. It was a chair lunch. While devouring ham and eggs he was greeted by another.

"Is that you, Dick?" asked the newcomer. "What are you doing here of all places?"

"Tommy Dashwood, of all people in Montreal," said Scott-Proctor, shaking his friend's hand as though it were a pump-handle. Tommy Dashwood was the son of Sir Thomas Dashwood, an English baronet, a big man in the army.

"I'm just going back to enlist; taking the next boat," said Dashwood. "I'm waiting for money."

"So am I," said Scott-Proctor. "I just arrived two days ago on my through Canada to Australia. Let us go together."

After leaving the quick-lunch establishment they walked along St. Catherine street to Windsor. On the corner they ran into another pal. He was the nephew of the Earl of Wemyss. All these three had gone to the famous rugby college together and had not met each other for several years. The latter was also going home but after a little thought all decided to join the Royal Montreal Rifles, commanded by Lt.-Col. Burland. They entered the ranks, trained at Valcartier, came over in October with the regiment and went into camp on Salisbury plains. It is understood that Dashwood will take a commission in Kitchener's army, but the other two are going to remain with the 14th battalion.

Scott-Proctor wears a Zululand ribbon, having fought in the campaign of 1906. At that time he was a lieutenant in the Durham Light Infantry. One naturally wonders why he does not return to his regiment, but he has two good and sufficient reasons. One is the fact that he likes the Canadians and the other is that his uncle, the Duke of Buccleugh, bet him several pounds that he wouldn't stick to the ranks, but would be seeking something "soft" before the force left for France.

"I'm going to show him and win the money," said the Hon. Scott-Proctor to the writer. "I like soldiering and I would just as soon not have a commission. I can do just as good work for my country as a private or sergeant. By the way, I was a sergeant for a couple of days, but I lost the stripes because I called a lieutenant a liar. I forgot myself but I may get the stripes again. I have some good pals among the Canadians. In my tent a few weeks ago—we are in the huts now—was a farmer, an east London Jew, a race track tout, a Scotchman, and the son of a judge. We are all the best of friends and we'll stick together. No one knows I have a title and I have tried to forget it because it is no use to me. I would forget entirely if a couple of relatives would not persist in addressing letters to me as "Honorable Pte. Scott-Proctor."

Scott-Proctor's statement about the boys in his tent brings to mind the remarks of a prominent English Socialist, who said in the press recently that the aristocracy and the commoners were getting together. This war was having a great effect on their relationship.—John A. MacLaren in The Toronto World.

FOOT COMFORT ESSENTIAL TO SOLDIERS IN WARFARE

The German Military Sock is in the Form of a Large Napkin, is the Result of Years of Study and May be Folded About the Foot Thirty Different Ways to Relieve Pain.

The famous field marshal, Von Moltke, once said that the Anglo-Saxons are a warlike people, but that the Germans are a military people. The Anglo-Saxon fights to the death when war comes, careless of his previous preparation. After the war is over he drops his arms, dismisses all thoughts of war from his mind and returns to his civil pursuits. The German, on the other hand, feels in time of peace as keen an interest in war as he does in the midst of a conflict. He takes note of his errors in one war and when peace comes devotes himself to remedying these errors.

A German officer who was visiting America spoke of the way in which his people addressed themselves to war problems in time of peace.

"Here is an excellent illustration," he said, and, lifting his foot, he took off his shoe. From about his foot he then took, not the ordinary sock that men wear elsewhere, but a sort of napkin or handkerchief, which was carefully folded about it.

"This," he said, "is the German military sock. It is the result of years of study and experiment by the best minds, not only in the German army, but in German science and medicine. During the Franco-Prussian war of 1870, when our armies were making forced marches around Metz and on to Sedan, our infantry was much impeded by sore feet. When it came to having a certain number of men at a certain point at a certain time for a decisive stroke we were usually from 10 to 20 per cent short, because so many men had fallen out of the ranks from sore feet.

"We got through the war all right, for our enemies were as badly off in that respect as we were, but as soon as the war was over the government ordered every man in the service to turn his attention to contriving a form of footwear that would be more serviceable to the man of peace when suddenly called to war. It was years before the present sock was adopted. Thousands of dollars were spent in experimenting. Thousands of soldiers marched in all kinds of footgear, tested every possible kind of sock and stocking. After years of trial this form was chosen. Here are some of the ways in which it can be worn."

Thereupon the officer took the napkin, which was about eighteen or twenty inches square, made of cotton and linen and folded it about his foot with the deftness of a Turk winding his turban about his head. Then, unwrapping it, he folded it about his foot in a different manner and then in still a third way.

"There are about thirty different ways of folding this sock about the foot," he said, "and during his three years in the army the soldier is taught to become expert in using them all. Each manner of folding it has a different purpose. One will relieve a soreness of the heel; another a weariness of the instep; a third will protect an irritated corn, and a fourth will relieve the inflamed ball of the foot. At the same time that the soldier is taught these different methods of wrapping the sock he also learns the anatomy of the foot, and just why the different wrappings relieve the different foot ailments.

"After serving his two years in the army," continued the officer, "the soldier goes back to civil life and becomes, let us say, a clerk at a desk. For ten years he doesn't walk a mile a day. At the end of that time war breaks out and he is called to the colors. He goes to the depot of his regiment and there finds among his other accoutrements two pairs of these military socks.

"Next morning he starts to march with his regiment. At the end of an hour, when he has tramped two or three miles over a country road, he is allowed ten minutes for rest. Now, the chances are that that soldier has a pair of very sore feet. He sits down, takes off his shoe, diagnoses his sore places, and, recalling his early training, folds his sock back on his foot so as to give immediate relief. When, a few minutes later, he falls into line, he has virtually a new pair of feet. And this he does just as often as new foot troubles appear.

"The tremendous advantage that an army thus equipped has over one that wears the old fashioned sock is obvious. If 'getting there with the most men first' is the science of war the army with the German sock is at least one-third more effective than the other."—Youth's Companion.

NOTABLE VICTORIES WON IN THE VOSGES AND ALSACE

Drive For the Rhine is Gaining in Force and Several Advances Are Recorded—Two Peaks of Great Reich Ackerkopf and Hill 856 Are Captured—Germans Repulsed Near Arras.

LONDON, March 8.—The most important news from the battle front this week comes from the Vosges and Alsace, where the French armies are gaining the victory. Advances were recorded at four or five points. First two peaks of the little and great Reich Ackerdopf were carried in succession. Two counter attacks of the Germans from Muhlhausen in the south, and St. Ollfwehr, to the north, were repulsed. On the right bank of the Fecht river French troops seized Imberg, two-thirds of a mile southwest of Fultzeren. Further north hill 856 was captured. It lies south of Hautenhutten and its possession enables the French soldiers to hold Imberg. At Hartmanns-Weilerkopf a counter-attack of a German battalion was repulsed with the capture of many bewildered Germans and the destruction of others. The French captured about 325 yards of German trenches at Hartmanns-Weilerkopf Saturday. They also repulsed a German counter attack opposite Uffholtz and blew up an ammunition depot at Cernay. They prevented the enemy from establishing himself on the the Sillakerkoff, east of Honneck. They also made progress on the flanks of the Reich-Ackerkopf and repulsed five counter attacks at Hartmanns-Weilerkopf.

The Germans suffered a serious check at Notre Dame de Lorette, north of Arras. They made a counter attack on the French, in which they used large effectives and suffered a serious reverse. Several of the German trenches were captured in the rout and important losses were inflicted.

The allied artillery has begun the bombardment of Westende, a town about seven miles south of Ostend.

Owing to heavy rains and unfavorable weather in the Champagne country fighting was impeded Sunday and but slight progress was made north of Perthes and northwest of Beausejour, and a German attack in the ravine northwest of Beausejour was repulsed. West of Perthes a footing was gained in a strongly fortified wood on Sunday and some prisoners were captured. Another trench was carried north of Beausejour.

Although the news from the eastern front is somewhat meagre, it records continued progress of the Russian armies in Poland and Galicia. The defeat of the Austrians before Stanislau was overwhelming, thousands of the enemy being captured. On the left bank of the Niemen the Germans were driven back, and a great battle is being fought farther south, in the region of the Pilica.

Austrian troops who tried to reach the right bank of the San, in Galicia, were wiped out.

GENTLEMEN OR CRIMINALS?

Will Crew of U8 Be Treated as Pirates? Asks London Telegraph.

LONDON, March 8.—In connection with the rescue of the officers and crew of the U8, The Daily Telegraph asks what is to be their fate?

"They were engaged in operations which Sir Edward Grey denounced to the world as piracy on the high seas. Are they to be regaled in some country mansion and provided with a routine of servants, or are they to be treated as pirates? It is childish to denounce certain acts as piracy, if, having caught some of the persons engaged in such operations, we entertain them as honored guests of the nation. This is a matter on which the British public will want enlightenment, particularly in view of the harsh conditions under which our countrymen are held prisoners in Germany.

SAYS THE CAPTAIN SAVED "AUDACIOUS"

A correspondent who signs himself "S" writes to the New York Evening Post as follows:

"From someone connected with the Admiralty I have learned that the captain of the Audacious, realizing that the vessel was in a sinking condition, ordered 'full steam ahead' and succeeded in getting her beached in shallow waters. The heavy guns were removed and she was taken to Birkenhead, where she is being overhauled. In substantiation of this statement, insurance was taken out on H. M. S. Audacious since the accident by the contractors at Birkenhead, and I know from the president of one of the London insurance companies that the policies are still running."

BANDITS BEAT CREW OF CAR

Montreal Conductor Thinks He Fractured Thug's Skull

MONTREAL, March 8.—The police of this city have had a strenuous time Friday night and Saturday morning. At midnight Friday five bandits boarded a St. Catharine street car and when the conductor demanded their fares he was attacked. There was a fearful fight in which the conductor, motorman and a passenger battled the bandits. The five got away, but the street was covered with blood and the conductor is positive he fractured the skull of one of his assailants with his cash box.

Two men attempted to rob a Chinese grocer because he would not give them cigarettes on credit. He fought and police landed the two in jail. Then Saturday morning 500 Italians besieged the road department office in the north end division. Police had to be called to quiet the riot among the unemployed foreigners.

Hiram Rupture, of Middleton, N. Y., was badly bitten by a woodchuck in whose hole his leg was caught.

A BATTLE ON PERSIAN GULF

British Troops Inflict Heavy Losses on Tribesmen

LONDON, March 8. — British troops occupying the head of the Persian Gulf located two Turkish forces accompanied by hostile tribesmen during the past week and in the fighting which followed heavy casualties were inflicted on the Turks and their allies, while the British also suffered considerably, according to a report on the fighting issued last night by the Marquis of Crewe, Secretary of State for India. The statement says, in part:

"For some time it had been known that about two or three regiments of Turkish troops together with Turkish Beni Fam tribesmen from Amara (on the Tigris river) with contingents of Persian Beni Lamu Tureef and other disaffected tribesmen hostile to the Sheik of Mohammerah had been collecting west of Ahwaz (in Khuzistan.) The Ahwaz garrison was despatched on a reconnaissance in force to ascertain their numbers and disposition.

"On March 3, the enemy, who had been located at Ghadir, and who apparently had been further reinforced the previous day, turned out in great strength. Their number was estimated at about 12,000. In the course of our withdrawal the enemy made repeated and determined efforts to cut off a reconnoitering party.

"Several hand-to-hand encounters took place, in which the attackers were held successfully at bay, while our party made good its retirement.

"On the same day a cavalry reconnaissance was made in the direction of Nakala, about 25 miles northwest of Basra (on the Persian Gulf). The reconnoiters, on returning to camp, were followed by a body of some 1,500 hostile horsemen. This enemy force was skillfully drawn on to a concealed position occupied by infantry with machine guns and field artillery. The enemy fled back to Nakala after having suffered heavily."

Wants Federal Aid.

MONTREAL, March 8. — Mayor Martin claims that the people of the Dominion, who are thrown out of work as a result of the war, have as much right to protection from the Government as have the families of those who have volunteered for active service, and he wrote Saturday to Premier Borden about the matter.

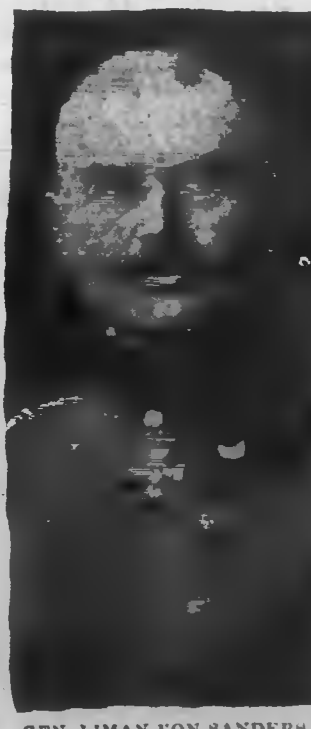
Mayor Martin, who says there are 100,000 in need of the Government's help, asks that a law be passed empowering municipalities, during the war, to draw on the Federal war budget, so that lodging, food, warmth and medical treatement where necessary, may be provided for families who may be said to be without means of subsistence, and that the municipalities be allowed to delegate their powers to charitable organizations.

GERMANS PREPARE TO DEFEND CONSTANTINOPLE

Sultan and Government Are Still in Turkish Capital But Officials Are Ready to Get Away at Any Moment—Queen Elizabeth in Gulf of Saros Bombards Strong Positions—Good Progress is Made.

LONDON, March 8. — "According to the latest advices received here," says a Reuter despatch from Sofia, "the Sultan and the Government are still in Constantinople. The Government is prepared to cross to Asia Minor at any moment, but the Sultan is in favor of remaining in the capital.

"It is understood that it has been decided to entrust the defence of Constantinople exclusively to the Germans, under command of Gen. Liman von Sanders, the instructor of the Turkish army, while Bedri Bey, the prefect of police, will be invested with the general control of the city, with powers equivalent to those of a viceroy.



GEN. LIMAN VON SANDERS.

"Measures of precaution already have been adopted to prevent the capture of the city. It is reported that all the troops at Adrianople and Demotica have been hurriedly despatched to the Gallipoli Peninsula."

The bombardment of the Dardanelles was continued Saturday by the allied fleet, according to an official statement issued in Paris last night. The communication says:

"The British battleship Queen Elizabeth, posted in the Gulf of Saros, bombarded by indirect fire two big works on the Asiatic side, alongside of Chanak, and defending the straits (forts Hamidieh and Hamidieh 3 Sultanieh).

"At the same time cruisers inside the Dardanelles continued a direct fire against the works at Dandanus, on the Asiatic side, and Sousindere, on the European side Saturday."

The British battleships Queen Elizabeth and Prince George and the battle cruiser Inflexible, with their eight 15-inch guns and an even dozen 12-inch guns, on Friday opened an attack on the principal forts on the European side of the narrows in the Dardanelles. Two of the forts were damaged and the magazine of a third was blown up. These forts which guard the narrowest part of the straits from the European side, are believed to be the strongest along the entire waterway, although those on the opposite side of the narrows almost equal them.

One of these forts, marked on the Admiralty maps as L, is armed with two 14-inch guns that could hardly reach the Queen Elizabeth, which fired 29 rounds from her 15-inch weapons by indirect fire and had the advantage of aeroplanes to direct her gunners. The other two forts were armed with three 11-inch guns and some smaller cannon.

Meantime lighter cruisers continue attacks on the forts along the coast of Asia Minor, from Besika, which is near the entrance to the Dardanelles, to Smyrna, doubtless with a view of preventing reinforcements being sent to the straits, where there already are a large number of Turkish troops with whom the marines who were landed to complete the destruction of the forts at the entrance to the straits have been in contact. It was in this land fighting that the allies suffered casualties, according to the British report, of 19 killed, 25 wounded and three missing.

Saturday night's official despatch from the Admiralty disclosed that the East Indies fleet under Vice Admiral Sir Richard Peirse, who is flying his flag on the Euryalus, has joined the allied fleet and that he undertook the bombardment of the fortifications of Smyrna, which were seriously damaged.

ALMOST EXTINGUISHED.

LONDON, March 8. — The fire on the La Touraine is almost extinguished and the vessel is steaming to Havre at fourteen knots an hour, says a wireless report from a cruiser escorting the La Touraine.

A MASSACRE IS CERTAIN

Young Turks Will Suffer at Hands of Infuriated People

PARIS, March 8.—A Turkish gentleman who belongs to the school of old Turks, and who, though being a resident in Paris for a long number of years, is in close touch with what is happening in Turkey, discussed yesterday the aspect of the situation at the Dardanelles as it appears to be developing. He said: "From what I know of Turkey and the Far East, the fall of Constantinople will mean the complete discrediting of Germany. Hitherto the people in Constantinople and throughout the empire have been fed on lies, and once they realize the truth, as they will do when Constantinople is forced to capitulate, they will be furious with the Government that misled them. A massacre of Young Turks will be one almost certain result, and I have, for my own part, little doubt that as soon as the first battleship is seen from Constantinople the people will take things into their own hands, and white flags will be seen flying from windows in every house in town."

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 6.—The upward move in prices on yesterday's close was continued this morning. Opening prices on wheat were 2c to 3½c higher, oats were ⅛c to ⅝c higher, while flax was unchanged.

Following the opening there was a turn to easier prices, but, for the most part, the market showed nervousness and a certain amount of indecision regarding shipping. Exporters were carrying thru new sales at firmer prices, one firm contracting for 100,000 bushels wheat quite early in the day, and expected more business before the day was out.

Barley and flax are at a standstill at the moment.

Inspections yesterday were 272 cars, as against 196 last year and in sight today 250 cars.

Wheat futures closed 1⅛c to 1⅝c higher, cash 3⅛c to 3⅜c up, oats ⅞c to 1c higher, and flax ¼c to ⅜c up.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 6.—There was a fair enquiry from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat today, but owing to the big jump in prices in Winnipeg, the prices bid were all out of line and no business was done. The local market for coarse grains is quiet, the demand being only for odd carlots of oats and corn at steady prices. In flour the feeling was steady, but there was no improvement in the demand and the volume of business doing is small. Demand for millfeed is fair. A fair trade continues to be done in butter, and the undertone of the market is firm. Receipts for the week 819 packages, as compared with 396 for the same week a year ago.

Demand for cheese locally is steady at firm prices. Receipts for week 41 boxes, as against 325 a year ago.

Eggs active and easy. Receipts for week 7832 cases, as compared with 2413 for the same week last year.

Stocks: Wheat 336,118, corn 126,780, oats 965,096, barley 246,210, rye 14,720, buckwheat 7766, flour 35,081 sacks.

TOUCHING A CONSCIENCE

How a Crime Was Robbed of Its Reward

By EUNICE BLAKE.

David Herrick and his wife had no children, and as they were growing old they decided to adopt some one to be with them while they lived and to enjoy after their death a snug property they had accumulated. There were two persons from whom they were disposed to select this companion and heir, the one Julia Andrews, the daughter of a sister of Mr. Herrick; the other Kate Armitage, a girl who had at times been employed by them for various purposes.

Mrs. Herrick let out the secret of their intention to a friend who told it to Kate Armitage. The consequence was that when Julia Andrews was chosen Kate was much chagrined. Quite likely, if she had not received the information given her, this story would never have been written.

Julia Andrews was a lovely girl, very sensitive and high spirited. She entered upon her life as companion for her uncle and aunt and resolved to do all she could for their happiness. Not long after she did so a will was made in her favor.

Kate Armitage found it impossible to relinquish not only the comfortable home, but the fortune, that would have been hers had the decision been in her favor and resolved to make an effort to oust her successful rival that she might step into her place. When a person is determined to ruin another, if the work is properly planned and without any regard whatever to truth or justice, in many cases the effort will be successful.

Kate Armitage's first object was to get possession of a specimen of the handwriting of the girl she was desirous of supplanting. She wrote Julia a note under an assumed name, taking care even to disguise her hand, telling her a pitiful story of a sick mother and a lot of starving children and begging her to send her a little pecuniary assistance. Julia inclosed a bill in a sympathetic letter and thought no more about the matter.

Not long after this Mrs. Herrick received an anonymous letter inclosing one purporting to have been written by Julia, in which she said that she was getting very tired waiting for the old couple to die, and she wished they would hurry up. The letter began "My dear" and ended "Your loving Julia." Therefore the identity of the person to whom it had been written was concealed. The person who sent the letter—evidently a woman—declared that she could not bear to see a good woman so basely deceived and had therefore sent her the proof of her niece's ingratitude.

Mrs. Herrick was naturally very much shocked. She recognized at once Julia's handwriting, or supposed she did, for she did not know that Kate Armitage had practiced for weeks imitating it, and it seemed to her that there was no question as to her niece's guilt. Her husband was not at home then, and she could not wait till he returned to charge Julia with her baseness. Julia, who did not suppose she had an enemy in the world, was thunderstruck. She denied having written the letter, and when her aunt called upon her for proof of the fact, yielding to her sensitive, high strung nature, she walked out of the room, put on her wraps and left the house.

When Mr. Herrick returned and learned what had occurred he was not so disposed as was his wife to believe in his niece's guilt. He explained to his wife that the law was full of peculiar checks that were intended to protect persons accused of crime, not only from false evidence, but from the taking of steps calculated to place them in false positions. He therefore advocated recalling Julia and hearing what she had to say in her defense. His wife opposed this because, she maintained, Julia had acknowledged her guilt by going away.

Having failed in their first effort to get some one to be a comfort to them and inherit their property, they decided to make another trial in the person of Kate Armitage. She was asked by Mrs. Herrick to a conference which resulted in her being invited to live with the couple on trial. She quickly assented and became a member of the family. She proved more satisfactory than Julia as a helper, because what Julia had done for her aunt and uncle from choice Kate did to make herself solid with those from whom she hoped to inherit a fortune. Nevertheless there is a difference between true and false affection which appears at times, for it is a different matter for the pretender to keep up the pretense. Mr. Herrick regretted his niece and failed to take any interest in Kate Armitage.

Kate proving eminently satisfactory to Mrs. Herrick, the old couple decided to make a will in her favor. Mr. Herrick had accumulated the property, and he willed the property to his wife, who made a will in favor of Kate. The attorney who drew these wills recommended certain restrictions. If Mrs. Herrick should be disabled from making a subsequent will the one she had made must stand. It was therefore possible for Kate to marry, leave her benefactress and yet inherit the property at the latter's death. A clause was therefore introduced into Mrs. Herrick's will that in case Kate married the will should be void. In such event, there being no will, the property would be distributed among the heirs at-law.

Mr. Herrick died when Kate had been living with them three years, and his wife followed him six months later. Kate had been told by Mrs. Herrick that she had made a will in her favor, but the restriction was not mentioned. After the old lady's death the lawyer who had drawn it and in whose care it had been ever since produced it and signified to Kate that he had deposited it with the surrogate. She had only to go to that official to sign the necessary documents and receive her inheritance.

It is not to be assumed from this narrative that Kate Armitage was a good girl. Not long after she went to live with the Herricks she fell in with a young man, and a love affair resulted. She could not marry without leaving Mr. and Mrs. Herrick, which would be equivalent to relinquishing a fortune. After Mr. Herrick's death she consented to secretly marry her lover, she to retain her residence with Mrs. Herrick. The marriage was performed by a clergyman and with witnesses to whom the bride was personally unknown, for she would trust no one except her lover with a secret on which so much depended.

Kate concluded to receive her property under her maiden name, though she had been advised that property left her as a spinster was equally hers as a married woman. She went alone to the surrogate, who showed her the will. She read that all Mrs. Herrick's property was hers and breathed a sigh of relief. Then she read on and saw that provided she married the will was void.

She uttered a suppressed cry.

All that she had sinned for, all that she had waited for during five years, was lost. But was it lost? One who had ruined another by a forgery was not incapable of signing a lie. Might she not receive the property as an unmarried woman?

The surrogate obliged her before acknowledging her right to the property to sign a statement under oath that she was not married. This was a more serious matter than forging a letter. She did not dare sign without consultation or at least deliberation. She went to a lawyer and stated her case hypothetically. He informed her that a married woman under the circumstances signing a statement that she was not and had not been married would commit a felony and was liable to imprisonment.

In her perplexity she informed her husband what she was obliged to do to secure the property they had been waiting for. He saw at once that it could be secured only by the perpetration of a crime and told her so. A quarrel resulted between them, and he left her.

The fear of prison kept the beneficiary of the will from signing a falsehood, and after much delay she was forced to admit to the attorney who had had charge of the Herrick property that she was a married woman and had no claim on the property. The lawyer before notifying the heirs-at-law that Mrs. Herrick had died without a valid will made a search among the family papers to be sure that there was no prior will. He found one that had been made in favor of Julia Andrews soon after she had gone to live with the Herricks.

One morning Julia Andrews received a letter informing her that she had inherited an estate worth $300,000. Julia believed there was some mistake. She called on the lawyer who had sent the notification, and he told her that Kate Armitage, who had taken her place in the Herrick household, had been left the property, but with a proviso which had nullified the will.

Julia had known that her uncle and aunt had supplied her place, but knew little or nothing about the person who had taken it. If she accepted this property she would take advantage of a technicality to secure an inheritance that was not rightfully hers. She thought the matter over, then asked for an appointment to meet the person whom she considered the rightful heir.

The two women met at the lawyer's office and were left alone in a private room. Julia was as calm as a summer sky. Kate was pale as a ghost.

"I presume," said Julia, "that you went to live with my uncle and aunt with the understanding that you were to inherit their property."

"I did," said Kate in a faint voice.

"How came it that my aunt put the provision in her will that if you married you should lose your inheritance?"

"I don't know. I never knew of such provision."

"You completed your part of the contract, I believe—you remained with my aunt so long as she lived."

"I did."

"Then the property rightfully belongs to you."

Kate made no reply to this. She hung her head to conceal her features, which showed the workings of conscience. There was a long silence, at the end of which Julia continued:

"I cannot accept this property for two reasons. The first is that my aunt did not intend to leave it to me; therefore it is not mine. In the second place, when I was wrongfully accused by means of a forged letter my aunt believed the forgery instead of my denial, and I am too proud to take it on this account. I am ready to turn it over to you."

No police inspector could have applied the third degree to a criminal more effectively. Kate broke down and confessed that she was the author of the forgery.

Because of her repentance Julia granted her an allowance.

THE KAISER AT HOME

Many interesting facts bearing upon the kaiser as a family man and also as the proud ruler of an empire are given in "Memories of the Kaiser's Court," by Miss Anne Topham, who was for some time English teacher to the monarch's only daughter, now the Duchess of Brunswick. From this book we learn that the kaiser was wont to make jokes with his family at the breakfast table and even to indulge in punning.

Miss Topham and the kaiser frequently held conversations on the subject of England, and upon one occasion her imperial master remarked:

"You English people, you drink those awful fiery spirits—horrible stuff—whisky, brandy, what not! How can you imbibe such quantities of poisonous liquid, ruining your constitutions, simply ruining them—whisky and soda everywhere? No, it's awful! I tasted it once—like liquid fire—ugh! Your drinking habits are fearful!"

Though professing great admiration of English everyday life, the kaiser had a profound contempt for English politics and politicians.

"Not one of your ministers," he said to me on one occasion, "can tell how many ships of the line you have in your navy. I can tell him—he can't tell me. And your minister for war can't even ride. I offered him a mount and every opportunity to see the maneuvers. 'Thanks very much for your majesty's gracious offer. Sorry can't accept it. I'm no horseman, unfortunately.' A minister of war, and can't ride! Unthinkable!"

During his visits to England he evidently took careful note of valuable relics and mementos of bygone ages, and after one of these visits he thus expressed his thoughts:

"Ah, you have never had a Napoleon to plunder and burn your country houses! Your Reynoldses and Gainsboroughs, where would they have been if Napoleon's marshals or his soldiers had seen them? Perhaps burnt or destroyed or sent to the Louvre. Think what it must mean to the children of a house to live with one of those pictures, to absorb it unconsciously into their mentalities! They must grow up with a love of beautiful things. They cannot help it. We have nothing of the kind. Our houses were stripped and burnt."

QUEER ANIMAL TRAPS

Not Intended as Such, but They Prove Deadly Lures.

That almost unerring instinct which carries animals through grave dangers has led in many instances in the Midway and Sunset oil fields of California to their undoing. Chief among such victims are rabbits and water fowl.

A jackrabbit and a cottontail find a nice round, smooth hole. There are many such in the oil fields, where oil piping is a necessity for the transportation of oil to the refineries. The rabbits decide to set up housekeeping there. The cottontail desires a permanent home, and the jackrabbit wants a refuge safe from malevolent man.

Soon they discover their habitat is being moved. No doubt they are frightened, but they instinctively stay within their retreat. One end of the hole is closed. Even then they do not leave. Soon the other end of the hole is darkened. Then it is darkness eternal for the furry pair.

Some time later it is discovered that a newly laid oil pipe line is choked. After great labor the line is disjointed and the remains of many rabbits removed. Thousands of rabbits have been thus exterminated in the oil fields.

The death rate among water fowl is even greater. Again, as with the rabbits, instinct leads them to certain destruction. Every little lake of oil in the vicinity of a gusher is a trap for the unthinking birds. At twilight and dawn these tar colored lakes appear as bodies of water to the deluded fowl.—Scientific American.

The people who are easily fooled aren't really worth the trouble.

News Value of Advertising

AN EDITORIAL may stimulate thought. It may arouse men to action—but usually its value lies principally in its ability to entertain—to inform on general or specific questions.

¶ An advertisement—nine out of ten times—contains more information than an editorial, and in addition answers either a social or an economic question.

¶ There is only one way for the readers of any paper to keep the advertising news up to date, and that is to patronize the firms who use the columns of the paper.

¶ Readers of The Review should, therefore, buy the goods advertised in these columns.

LACROSSE SHOULD BOOM IN PETERBOROUGH THIS SEASON

Canada's National Game Will Likely Have Big Year — President Stevenson's Appeal

With no professional baseball in Peterborough this summer, lacrosse should become quite popular. The national game of this country was once quite popular in this city but it lay dormant for years. Last year an O.A.L.A. team was formed but as the pro. ball was in strong little interest was taken in it. It should be a different story this summer. A meeting will be held in the interests of lacrosse sometime this week and a big turnout of fans is expected.

President James Stevenson of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association has issued a circular letter stating that last season the association doubled its membership and this season the desire is, if possible, to have every town in the province represented. In part the letter says:—

"Lacrosse is Canada's national game, and I think you will agree with me that, being such, and being unquestionably the greatest summer pastime played, we should not have it supplanted by any game foreign to our country.

"Every country has its national sport. Lacrosse is Canada's national summer pastime, and we want it to lead."

TORONTO VICS. MET MELVILLE

Played a Tie on Saturday — O.H.A. Suspends the Victorias

The Toronto Vics played Melville in the first game for the Allan Cup on Saturday night. The result was a tie 8-8. Gordon Meeking scored seven on the goal, Aird got the other one.

By ignoring the instructions of the O.H.A. Executive the Victorias have suspended themselves, and formal notice has been sent to both the Canadian Hockey Association and the Saskatchewan Association, the latter of which Melville represents, that the challenge of the Ontario Hockey Association for the Allan Cup has been withdrawn. Since no club is entitled to play for the cup except as representative of a Provincial association, the withdrawal of the challenge leaves the Melville team in possession, and the game arranged for tonight will have no bearing on the cup. No doubt it will be played, and will be announced as a game for the trophy, but that will not make it such. The O.H.A. is not concerned in it, and the Vics have no standing as an individual team.

The suspension provided for in the rules applies to the officers of the club, as well as to the players, though some of the former, seeing the difficulty which would follow, the defiance of the regulations, had given notice to the O.H.A. that they had got from under.

Further consideration of the situation so far as the Victorias are concerned ~~will be taken up at the next~~ meeting of the O.H.A. Executive.

The schedule for this week is:—

Tuesday, 7 to 8, George St. vs. Charlotte St.

Wednesday, 6 to 7, All Saints vs. Knox.

Thursday, 7 to 8, Mark St. vs. St. Johns.

Team of Other Days

The passing of Eddie Collins, Frank Baker, Jack Coombs, Eddie Plank and Chief Bender from the ranks of the Athletics has led Grantland Rice, the baseball poet, to pen the following lines which will be read with interest by baseball fans everywhere. The poem is entitled The Team of Other Days:

Beneath the grandstand's drifting shade
When hits begin to fly,
I sit me down to watch alas!
Another ball game die;
With blood-red eyes I see the score
Against the sunset's haze—
Sainted Diana!—Give me back
The Team of Other Days.

Ah! Shades of Collins and The Chief,
Of Coombs and Eddie Plank,
Of Baker's smash across the field
Beyond the distant bank;
When game by game we ripped the race
Along remembered ways,
When Siege Guns boomed the glory of
The Team of Other Days.

But Collins' clout has vanished now
And Bender's day is done;
No more the smash from Baker's bat
Drives in the winning run;
No more the hook from Eddie's curve
Awaits my hurried call,
No Collins tears around the path
As Home-Run slams the ball.

Glare down, Fanatic, from your perch,
And bid the Rooter roar,
While down the field we charge in vain
To meet the winning score;
But when the battle dust has cleared
Across the star-swept haze,
My pipe brings back the Old Machine,
The Team of Other Days.

BIG CROWD AT DOUBLE HEADER

Two Well Contested Games at Y.M.C.A. Gym

A big crowd turned out to see two well-contested games of basketball at the "Y." on Saturday night, and they were well repaid as both games proved fast and exciting. Capt. Richardson's Maple Leafs were downed by Heaslip's Hustlers, while the Excelsiors succeeded in flooring the De Laval. In the first fixture, between the Maple Leafs and the Hustlers the latter had things all their own way in the first half, as far as scoring was concerned, but in the second half the Maple Leafs got going and had the big end of the score, but not enough to overcome the lead. Every man on the Hustlers' team had a hand in the scoring, and every man but one on the Maple Leafs succeeded in caging one or more baskets. H. B. Cowan and Capt. Richardson, though carrying considerable cargo, showed they were capable of as much speed as their allies and competitors. Capt. Richardson was high scorer for his team, while Capt. Heaslip and Bert Carruthers divided up the honors for the Hustlers. Final score: Hustlers 21, Maple Leafs 11.

The line-up:

Maple Leafs — Horsfield, Cowan, Richardson, Dunsford, H. Flowers.

Hustlers — Heaslip, Carruthers, Jones, Lewis, Laing.

Referee, Carson. Scorer, Long. Timer, Thackeray.

The Excelsior-De Laval contest was anybody's game right up till near the end. For the first half it was see-saw, back and forth, first one team leading and then the other. Both teams were keeping close watch on each other and keeping the score down to 8-6 in favor of De Laval at the end of the first half. In the second half the Excelsiors seemed to get more steam and gradually pulled away. Neither team had its regular line-up out, so were not at full strength. Each team used two substitutes. The final score was Excelsiors 16, De Laval 8. Line-up:

Excelsiors — Long, Carruthers, Stewart, Darling, Cowan.

De Laval — Hamilton, Taylor, Downing, Heaslip, Flowers.

Referee—Ross Dobbin. Scorer—Carson. Timer—Thackeray.

HAROLD PARKER ON JUNIOR ALL STARS

Harold Parker, the lanky defence lad of the Hamilton Rowing Club Juniors, has been asked to play in the All-Star junior game to be played in the Toronto Arena on Saturday next.

LACROSSE should boom in Peterborough this summer mainly because of the absence of professional ball. The national game was quite popular here a few years ago and it is to be hoped that it will regain that position in the calendar of sports. It will mean work and lots of it, so the organization meeting should find only the best men selected as officers.

THE JUNIOR O.H.A. finals between Berlin and Varsity have occasioned a great deal of interest. It looks like the Toronto team for the cup.

COMMENT

As You Like it

THE O. H. A. is making a grand stand for "principle" in the dispute over the Allan Cup. The Ontario organization appears to be in the right and it is to be hoped it stands by its guns and calls the Toronto Victorias to time for playing Melville, with the McKenzies and Smith on the line-up of the western team. The Toronto Star, the mouthpiece of the O.H.A., stated as follows Saturday in regard to the squabble:—

"The O.H.A. is not fighting for the Allan Cup. It has set little store by that in the past, and the trophy would have no representative value if the oldest, largest, and most successful association in the world were not concerned i nits disposition. The Ontario Association took a large part in the formation of the Canadian Association, for the extension of its principles and policies throughout the country, and for the establishment of a national body for the national winter game, but the O. H. A. has nothing to gain and the game has nothing to gain if those principles are not to be sincerely and thoroughly enforced."

PETERBOROUGH has dropped out of the Canadian League. Despite the warnings given, citizens have saw fit to pass up pro. ball and permit the city to go back to the same amusements as were to be had some three or four years ago. A huge mistake has been made. The team should have been put in again this season and even if loss looked inevitable are there not money men enough in this city to bear it for the good it would accomplish? Even though some $13,000 has been dropped in three years, the good it did this city can be estimated far above that figure. True the men making fifteen dollars per cannot be expected to finance the club but they would not be called upon to contribute anything but their patronage if the wealthy men of Peterborough had the interests of Peterborough at heart. The argument we have advanced and still advance may look weak but time will prove it is correct.

THE GALT JUNIORS, champions of the Northern League have challenged the O.H.A. Juniors to home-and-home games. The O.H.A. has saw fit to ignore the challenge on the grounds that the Galt Club was given an opportunity to play for O. H. A. honors at the beginning of the season. In our opinion games between the Northern and O.H.A. champions would be better for the good of the game than the battle between the East and West O.H.A. stars.

A WRITER using "Frontenac" as a nom de plume spoke wisdom in the Toronto News of Saturday. He was urging that O.H.A. referees give a little more time to studying the rules. In part he said:—

"The late Chaucer Elliott, one of the best referees, claimed that he never read a rule book. However, there are few "Chaucer Elliotts" left. So we would suggest a more thorough "reading" and "living up to" of the O.H.A. rules."

A CITY LEAGUE will very likely be in operation during the coming baseball season. It looks like the only reasonable league to form as the factories are so short of hands that a Mercantile League could not provide a very good class of ball. Speaking of the Mercantile League it strikes us that many of last year's players will not be on hand when the bal tossers begin practising. A large number of the younger element has "drifted."

JOHNNY KILBANE and Kid Williams will clash in Philadelphia on March 17th. The prize for which they will battle will be a purse of $11,000. Kilbane is rated as the best man of his class since the days of Terry McGovern.

HOW FAMILIAR this sounds — "Yaningans beat the Regulars." It came from Marlin on Saturday. The New York Giants fell before the seconds by 5-4 in the first nine-inning game. Larry Doyle played for the Yannigans.

JUNIOR O. H. A. FINALS.

The junior O. H. A. finals between Berlin Union Jacks and Varsity will be two grand battles. The first game will be played in Berlin on Tuesday and the second in Toronto on Thursday.

Tired out men and run-down women certainly do "pick up" on

New Officers Are Installed

For Amalgamated Total Abstinence Societies

The meeting of the Amalgamated Total Abstinence Societies of the city held yesterday afternoon in St. Alphonsus Lyceum was very largely attended. His Lordship Bishop O'Brien installed the officers of the central board, and the constitution was gone over. Everything points to there being a very successful temperance campaign being held in the next few months. It is the intention to have Peterborough as the centre of the proposed diocesan temperance union.

The following were the officers installed:

Spiritual adviser—Rt. Rev. M. J. O'Brien, D.D.

President—Joseph Maher.
1st Vice-Pres.—N. Bibby.
2nd Vice-Pres.—M. O'Heron.
Rec. Sec.—A. H. Lahane.
Fin. Sec.—A. J. Rose.
Treasurer—J. H. Primeau.
Marshall—H. Galney.
Asst. Marshall—W. J. Grady.
Guard—J. McCabe, Sr.

Trustees—D. Holland, chairman; James Hickey, Joseph Picard, James Drain, A. J. Sharpe, Peter Milloy.

Rev. Dean McColl, Rev. C. J. Phelan and Rev. J. J. O'Brien are members of the board ex-officio.

STORSTAD CASE OVER.

After over three weeks of exhaustive evidence and argument, the Empress of Ireland-Storstad case has been completed at Montreal. Mr. Justice Dunlop, before whom the case has been tried, will deliberate before returning a judgment.

CABLE FROM FRANCE.

Mr. T. F. Matthews received a cable from his son Harold this morning, sent from somewhere in France. The message stated that he and all other officers of the 2nd Battery of the First Brigade were well.

Rev. J. A. MacKenzie extended a cordial welcome to the members of the 39th Battalion who attended Knox Church Sunday morning. He assured the volunteers that the prayers of the congregation were with them, and he hoped they would safely return.

The service was bright and helpful and a large congregation was present. Private Lightheart contributed a solo in good voice.

Moral From Life of Jacob and Esau

Many interpretations have been placed upon the story of Jacob and Esau, but Rev. R. G. Peever, pastor of George Street Methodist Church threw additional light on these famous Bibilical characters last night. He claimed that the representatives of Esau have done very little for the uplift of the race while the descendants of Jacob were the strong and leading men of the world. Though Jacob and Esau came from the same home, received the same careful nurture and training, they turned out widely different in character. Esau was the likeable kind of man, careless, adventuresome and of roving disposition, fond of the hunt. He lived for the enjoyment of the present to fulfil his immediate desires. But Jacob lived in the future. Esau was the father's delight. Jacob was the favorite of the mother. There were many defects in Esau's make up. He was a profane person. By the word profane is meant worldly, living for the present. He was not a part of God's plan. Jacob was quiet and home loving.

The story of these two brothers said Rev. Mr. Peever, arouses us to a sense of our own folly. Many of us, like Esau, had no place for God in our lives, no hope of a future life pressing upon our lives. His was the example of multitudes today. Esau's great mistake was to let the future take care of itself. It typified giving way to passion and desire.

It was all right to live in the present said the pastor in summing up as long as the present life was in harmony with God. Every man was supremely and primarily responsible for his own destiny.

GREECE EAGER FOR BATTLE KING STRIVES FOR PEACE

Political Rupture Arising Out of Present Crisis in the Near East is Token to Mean That the King and Prime Minister Are at Loggerheads Regarding Action—Populace is Warlike.

LONDON, March 8.—Greece apparently is at the parting of the ways with her king exerting his influence to maintain the neutrality of his country in opposition to Eleutherios Venizelos, the retiring Premier and the man to whom Greece owes her revival.

The report of the resignation of the Greek Premier, M. Venizelos, and his entire Cabinet, owing to the Cabinet's dissent from the crown's policy of neutrality, has fallen like a thunderbolt in Rome, where it is interpreted as presaging the intervention of Greece in the war.

The king's attitude is attributed in some quarters to Queen Sophia, who is the sister of the German Emperor.

A despatch to the Havas Agency at Paris from Athens says the newspapers there consider as certain the intervention of Greece in the European conflict. Several opinions are expressed with regard to the extent of Greece's co-operation with the allies.

A despatch from Geneva says all the Greek army officers in Switzerland were recalled Saturday. Other Greeks of a military age must present themselves at the offices of the consul-general in Geneva before March 11. The opinion is expressed by many at Geneva that there is to be a general mobilization of the Greek army.

Telegraphing from Athens The Exchange Telegraph correspondent says that the university students in the Greek capital made a demonstration in favor of immediate action by Greece. The legations of the triple entente powers was visited by the students and cheered.

M. Venizelos Saturday announced the resignation of himself and his Cabinet, as King Constantine did not approve the policy of the Government. Yesterday in the Chamber of Deputies M. Venizelos clearly indicated that the difference between him and the monarch was over the question of peace and war. He said he had advised the king to select as a new Premier M. Zaimis, governor of the National Bank, who, he said, "will follow a policy of neutrality which I hope will not endanger our newly-acquired territory."

A Grand Council of Ministers was held at Athens yesterday under the presidency of King Constantine, and as Venizelos was leaving the palace at its conclusion he was acclaimed by the populace.

King Constantine won great popularity by the successful manner in which he led the last two Balkan wars. This popularity, however, he shared with M. Venizelos, to whose diplomacy in the conference following the war Greece is said to owe her success and whose organization was largely responsible for her ability to fight as she did. The retiring Premier also was the moving spirit in the Balkan alliance which united the Balkan states against Turkey.

There seems to be some doubt whether the deputies will follow any other leader than Venizelos. M. Zaimis, who has been requested by the king to form a new Ministry, requested 24 hours in which to consider the matter.

A despatch to the Havas Agency from Athens, says:

"The Turkish Minister to Greece, Salieh Bey, has declared openly during the last few days, that massacres would take place in Turkey if Greece broke with the Porte, while Count Mirbach, the German Minister, informed the diplomatic corps that Austria and Germany would immediately declare war on Greece the day that Greece moved against Turkey."

MISSIONARY SUCCUMBS TO ATTACK OF BLACK SMALLPOX

COBOURG, March . — Word was received in town of the death in Shanghai, China, on January 18th of Miss Elizabeth Woods, second daughter of the late William Woods, Front Road west. Miss Woods was one of the band of noble-minded young women who gave her life to the furthering of her Master's work in foreign lands. For four years she had been a missionary to Honolulu, and for the past seven years she had been a missionary to China. She was taken down with black smallpox, and after a week's illness passed away. Miss Woods intended coming home this summer on furlough had not one of the terrible scourges of the far east intervened.

MRS. ELLEN CROWLEY.

Mrs. Ellen Crowley passed away on Sunday at her residence, 6 Inverlea street. The funeral will be held Wednesday morning at nine o'clock to St. Peter's Cathedral and cemetery.

MEETING FOR BOARD OF TRADE

The anual meeting of the Board of Trade is billed to take place tomorrow night, in the City Council chamber and it is important that every member be on hand. The election of officers for the ensuing year is to be held and reports presented including one from President Basil Hall on his trip to Toronto where he attended the meeting of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern Canada. The secretary and treasurer's reports will also be read. It is likely also that ways and means of stimulating renewed activity in Board of Trade circles will be discussed.

THE PRIVATE BILL.

Peterborough's Private Bill will come before the private bills committee in Toronto tomorrow. T. F. Matthews and E. H. D. Hall will be present on behalf of the Utilities Commission, E. A. Peck will represent the township of Smith and City Solicitor Gordon, Mayor Buller, Ald. Dobbin and Ald. Duffus will represent the city. Ald. Duffus is in Toronto today in conection with letting the contract for underground cable work to the Independent Telephone Co.

REABORO MAN TAKES POSITION HERE

LINDSAY, March 8. — Mr. Chas. Foster, who for some years has been associated with Mr. R. G. Allan in the Reaboro cheese factory in making and curing cheese, will take the place of the latter, who has taken a position with a firm of cheesemakers in Peterborough. It is understood that Mr. Allan received a very tempting offer from the Peterborough firm which was his sole reason for leaving Reaboro. His successor, Mr. Foster, is highly spoken of, and there is no doubt that he will keep the reputation of this well-known factory up to its previous standard.

BATTERY RECRUITS.

Recruiting for the two batteries and ammunition column which are being raised from this section of the province is quite brisk at the local headquarters. Major Hall, who is recruiting officer, has fourteen men in uniform. They are drilling with the 39th Battalion.

Two Tales Told by Blacklister

Two more stories that failed to go with the court were told this morning by a blacklister who was fined $10 for being intoxicated while on the prohibited list. One story was to the effect that he gave a man $1 on Saturday to buy him a bottle of whisky. He did not know his name and did not ask. The man was going away with the soldiers. The other tale was that he had come across two men in the market arcade two weeks ago one of whom was hopelessly drunk. He ordered a cab for him, and while assisting him in, the sober man gave him a whisky flask to hold. It was that whisky that had made him drunk that time.

The magistrate remanded him until the chief secured further evidence.

LARGE CONGREGATIONS.

Rev. W. H. White, the new rector of St. Luke's, preached to very large congregations yesterday. In both his sermons he made reference to it being his first Sunday, and hoped that the usual co-operation between the rector and people would always exist. The regular Lenten services will be held this week on Wednesday and Friday evenings.

UNION MEETING

Young People to Gather at Murray St. Church

This evening, March 8, at 8 o'clock, a union meeting of the young people's societies of the various churches of this city will be held in Murray street Baptist church. The object of this meeting is a very worthy one and should receive the hearty commendation of all. A year ago a piano was presented to the Protestant Home for the use of the inmates by the combined efforts of these societies. A balance of $42 is still owing. A silver collection will be taken at the door for the purpose of defraying this amount.

A splendid literary programme has been arranged by the central executive. It will take the form of a Canadian evening, consisting of an appropriate address on Canada by Judge Huycke, with Canadian songs and recitations. It is hoped that the members and friends of the various societies will make a special point to be present, if possible. The meeting is open to the public.

ITALY CANNOT NOW STAY OUT

Attack on Dardanelles Said to Settle the Matter

ROME, March 8.—(Via Paris.)—The Giornale d'Italia, which, although it is not the official Government organ, represents the political majority supporting the Cabinet, in an editorial argues that it will be difficult for Italy longer to remain neutral, declaring that the attack by the allied fleet on the Dardanelles has brought up three great problems affecting Italian interests.

"The future of these problems," the newspaper says, "is the new rule to allow Russia access to the Mediterranean through the Dardanelles, the second concerns the equilibrium of the Balkans, and, the third, the partition of Asiatic Turkey, which affects the equilibrium of the eastern Mediterranean."

A despatch from Copenhagen quotes The Vorwaets Satta as saying that the discussion between Austria and Italy must not be allowed to end in open conflict.

"Germany has risked everything for Austria," it says, "and has the right to demand that Germany's interests and political necessities be brought to a successful solution first as having more weight and involving greater moral considerations."

An editorial Saturday in The Taegliche Rundschau undoubtedly represents the view of an influential section of the German public. This view is that it might be advisable for Austria to cede to Italy the Province of Trent and a narrow strip west of the Isonzo river, which flows to the Gulf of Trieste. The advocates of this policy, however, believe that Austria should be supported in a refusal to surrender Trieste, even though such refusal should be at the price of making impossible a peaceful settlement.

Company Calls For Help.

WINDSOR, March 8.—A Walkerville clothing company, which has a contract for making 300,000 pairs of trousers for British soldiers has sent out an appeal to any woman or girl who can sew by hand to come to the factory and assist in getting out the work, which calls for 5,000 pairs a day.

Many married women of the border municipalities have given their services, deeming it an act of patriotism, as the sooner the trousers are made the sooner the men can get to the firing line.

UTILITIES COMMISSION.

At the meeting of the Utilities Commission on Saturday the proposed legislation in the city's private bill, before the Legislature, that referred to waterworks and hydro-electric matters, was considered.

It was decided that the expenses of the commissioners in attending the Private Bills Committee of the Legislature when the city's bil comes up, be paid.

It was resolved that an account from the Bank of Montreal for the sum of $77.10 be paid.

HEARING OF ITALIAN ON THEFT CHARGE

On a charge of stealing $160 from Leonard Capone, on October 1st, 1914 a young Italian named Pancrazio D'Ermegildo came up for a hearing today before Magistrate Dumble. Mr. C. R. Widdifield who defended him refused to elect and put in a plea of not guilty. The complainant was the first witness.

The prisoner was a roomer at the house occupied by Capone for about four months. He left on October 1st about eight o'clock in the morning. He shaved that morning, contrary to his usual custom. D'Ermegildo was employed by the waterworks system. Copane had $160 in his house, all in bills. It was secreted in a little box under the bed where the witness and his son slept. The box was locked and witness had the key. The prisoner had seen the money when it was restored by Nicholas Minecola to witness, Minecola, having been entrusted with it for safe keeping. The money was in a pocketbook and the pocketbook in the box. The last time he saw the money was that morning when he went to work. Capone came home that night, found the prisoner gone and missed his money when he went to look for it. Afterwards they found the empty pocket book in the prisoner's trunk. The next time witness saw prisoner was the night he was arrested and brought in to the police station.

"See You in New York."

When he departed, D'Ermegildo penned the following words on an envelope, leaving it on the table.

"I leave you with best regards sons, friends and relatives. I will see you in New York."

After D'Ermegildo was brought back, Capone said he would let the matter drop if he got his money back.

Capone said he always took his money with him when he left the house in the morning, but that morning he left it at home, as his son was sick. He used to put it in the box at night and take it out in the mornings.

Examined by Mr. Widdifield, the witness said the prisoner and one of his sons slept together. When witness left the house that morning the house was occupied by the prisoner, his daughter and the sick son. The son did not know the money was upstairs. Witness admitted that his own son Phillip once got a month in jail for stealing a shirt from Jay's store. Under questioning witness admitted there was just $159 in the pocketbook. He stated that the only reason he left the money there that day was because he left his son there sleeping and thought he would protect it.

J. Meharry, the next witness, foreman for the waterworks at the time, said the prisoner was working in one of the gangs. When he left, there was wages for 9 days and 3 hours coming to him, or $18 altogether. He could have got the money October 1st.

Mr. Meharry said he was a good worker and his conduct was good.

A daughter of Leonard Capone, housekeeper for her father, saw the prisoner October 1st, between seven and eight o'clock in the morning. Donato, the sick son was suffering from scalded feet.

The prisoner told the boy to place his feet in vinegar and water. The prisoner came down with Donato and then went upstairs again. Donato had his feet in the vinegar and salt when Pancrazio went upstairs. When he went back she heard a noise, but paid no attention to it. She heard her brother cry upstairs before he came down, crying because he did not want to get up. There were just the two upstairs at the time. Prisoner came downstairs about twenty minutes later. He was dressed in a new suit of clothes. He did not say good-bye to the children that morning as was his habit.

The court adjourned at one o'clock with several witnesses to be called.

Mr. George Needler Dies at Millbrook

One of the oldest and most highly respected residents of Millbrook passed away on Saturday in the person of George Needler. Deceased, who was in his 85th year, was a son of the late Walker Needler, and belonged to one of the oldest families in that vicinity. His father was proprietor of the old Needeler mills, and he organized the Needler mill in Millbrook. His wife, who was formerly a Miss Stewart, of Otonabee, predeceased him a number of years.

Left to mourn his demise are one brother, William, of Lindsay, one sister, Mrs. (Dr.) Burroughs, Lindsay, one daughter, Miss Etta, at home, and three sons, Charles and Alfred, at home, and Prof. Needler, of Toronto University.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon to St. Paul's Church and cemetery.

British Government Takes Steps to Increase Output of Munitions

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 9. — A drastic amendment to the Defence of the Realm Act was unexpectedly presented to the Commons this afternoon by Lloyd George. His proposal was that the Government be empowered to commandeer all factories required for war purposes. Up to the present time, firms and factories alrady producing war material could be taken under government control. The amending bill of the Chancellor extends this power to cover all other concerns which the Government may wish to utilize for this purpose.

Mr. George laid particular emphasis upon his statement that not only the duration of the war but the success of the war depended upon the output of munitions. The Government proposed to organize the entire engineering community through a committee headed by business men, with the idea of assisting in the increase of output.

The amendment passed all its stages.

TOOK "JIGGER" TO HASTEN ON HIS JOURNEY

Geo. Sutherland Late of This City Didn't Like Marching

Brockville, March 9. — A young man named George Sutherland of Brockville, but who has been in Peterborough recently, left the latter place to return to Brockville with the intention, he states, of enlisting for overseas service. He arrived at Smith's Falls where he found that the Sunday passenger trains had been discontinued, and started to walk to Brockville. The march proved rather arduous and when he arrived at Yule, near Smith Creek, and about twenty miles from Brockville he broke into the sectionman's shanty and took possession of a three-wheeled track velocipede, seating himself on which he continued his journey by hand power which proved more agreeable than foot locomotion. Section Foreman Curley, however, discovered the absence of the "jigger" and promptly telephoned the Brockville police to arrest Sutherland. And this the police accomplished on the completion of the young man's journey. Sutherland was arraigned before Magistrate Deacon yesterday morning and committed for trial.

PETROGRAD, March 9. — An official communication from the general staff of the Russian Caucasus army says:

"Our troops on March seventh occupied an important position in the region beyond the River Tchoruk (Turkish Armenia), throwing back the Turks to the southwest and inflicting upon them serious losses."

ITALY ON EVE OF GREAT AND DECISIVE EVENTS

Premier Salandra's Remarks Attract Considerable Attention

Rome, March 9.—Premier Salandra after his visit Sunday to Gaeta to inaugurate the new military harbor, a journey during which a very considerable degree of national feeling was manifested, had a long interview with foreign minister Sonnino today. Tonight the Council of Ministers were in session. These facts together with other indications lead to the widespread belief that Italy today is upon the eve of great and decisive events.

One of the premier's remarks at Gaeta is attracting considerable attention. Referring to the kind of brown bread allowed in Italy after March 22, Signor Salandra said "This is a noble bread; our soldiers will be the first to be sacrificed and Italians will see the destiny of their country accomplished."

NO CHANGE ON FRONT HELD BY BRITISH

Advances Have Been Made in Certain Sections

SUCCESSFUL MINING OPERATIONS HELPED

Activity of Enemys Artillery Makes but Slight Effect

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 9. — The semi-weekly report from the headquarters of Sir John French, issued today, says:

"The situation on that part of the front held by the British forces is unchanged. In certain sections, advantages have been gained."

The report continues: "This result was materially assisted by successful mining operations. On the night of March fifth to sixth a mine was exploded under a German trench southeast of Ypres. Several of the enemy were killed.

"The mine crater was occupied temporarily by our troops, and the enemy's trench on either side was rendered useless. The enemy's artillery has been more active than usual, but the effect has been slight."

CLEANING THE PAVEMENTS.

The very warm sun of the past few days has almost cleared the snow and ice from the streets which are paved. Today a gang of men is at work cleaning the mud off George and Charlotte Streets. In a week or so while the average street is a bed of mud citizens will reap the benefit of having the main thoroughfares coated with asphaltic concrete.

BERLIN CLAIMS TRENCHES WON

Also Credits Germany With Many Captured Russians

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, March 9. — The German official report says the Germans have captured trenches in the hills of Lorette from the French, taking 250 prisoners and several small guns.

In the eastern areas eight hundred Russians were captured northeast of Lowas, three thousand west and northwest of Przasnysz, and 1,750 north of Rawa.

ITALIAN LOSES MONEY HE SAVED FOR TRIP HOME

Evidence not Sufficient to Convict Man Charged With Theft

Pancrazio D'Ermegildo, a young Italian, was acquitted in Police Court last evening of a charge of stealing $160 from one of his fellow countrymen, Leonardo Caponi. The hearing lasted from ten in the morning till 5.15 p.m., save for an adjournment at noon for lunch. Insufficient evidence was brought in by the Crown to satisfy the Magistrate, who stated that he would not be warranted upon such evidence in committing the man. He therefore discharged him, after briefly reviewing the evidence.

The case attracted a good portion of the Italians of the city who packed the court room during the whole trial.

At the afternoon session, Donato Capone, son of Leonorda Capone, was called to the witness box at 2.55. He said he stayed at home October 1st because of sore feet. He saw the prisoner that day about seven o'clock. He came into his room and told him to get up and go down town with him to buy some meat and apples. Witness told him he didn't want to get up because his feet were sore. Witness got up and put his feet in vinegar and water, taking the advice of Pancrazio. The prisoner stayed about five minutes downstairs and then went upstairs. Later he came down, stood there a little while and went out. Witness did not go out of the house all that day.

Donato did not see the purse or the money at all that day, neither did his father say anything to him about it.

Examined by Mr. Widdifield, witness said Pancrazio pulled him out of bed and made him get up. He squeez

KEEP HEAVY LOADS FROM LOCAL ROADS

TORONTO, March 9. — If a bill now before the Legislature becomes law, heavy loads will no longer be seen upon Ontario highways, and any damage which may accrue from teaming companies will be chargeable directly against them by the municipality which suffers. Geo. H. Gooderham introduced a measure yesterday to make owners of heavy motor trucks and wagons liable for rutted roads, and giving municipal corporations power to recover the amount of the damage from them, by appeal to a county judge. Another to the same purpose required submission of all bridge plans to the provincial highway engineer for approval.

Geo. S. Henry of East York would limit the weight of all loads permissible on provincial roads. No more than three tons to a wheel should be allowed, and a bill of his will impose this limit in view of the extensive road system that is to come. He sets the load at 12½ tons, roughly speaking, taking as a guide American regulations.

GERMAN EXPERT REALLY BELIEVES DARDANELLES OPERATIONS ARE NO BLUFF

Composition of British Fleet Indicates an Addition of Two Squadrons Since War Began

NO ANXIETY REGARDING NORTH SEA

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 9. — The Berlin Vorwaert's expert says the composition of the British fleet at the Dardanelles, particularly the presence there of the Queen Elizabeth, indicates that Britain has added two squadrons of new ships to her navy since the war began and entertains no anxiety regarding her superiority in the North Sea.

The same writer thinks the difficulty of forcing the Dardanelles without heavy land forces may be exaggerated and that the operations are no bluff.

LONDON, March 9. — The Russian government has prohibited, except on special permit, all exportation of food and forage.

A GRACEFUL COMPLIMENT TO RUSSIA.

LONDON, March 9. — A Morning Post despatch from Petrograd says that a graceful compliment was paid to Russia and the solidarity of the Allies was emphasized when the Russian cruiser Askold was invited to lead the advance into the Straits where ordinarily the flag of the nation having the largest squadron would take precedence.

SAY BRITISH LOST FOUR HUNDRED MEN.

AMSTERDAM, March 9. —An official statement from the Turkish war ministry says that the ritish lost four hundred men in a recent battle at the head of the Persian Gulf. The statement follows:

"Three battalions of British infantry with two quick-firing field guns, two mountain guns, one machine gun section and one squadron of cavalry, attempted on March 3rd to attack our positions in the region of Ahwaz, in Kkuzistan. After a counter attack by our troops the British fled in disorder to their ships, leaving four hundred dead or wounded. Among the dead were one British major and four other officers. We captured three guns, five hundred rifles, two hundred horses and a great quantity of Red Cross material.

"Our losses were insignificant."

CALL KAISER TO ACCOUNT

For Ill-Treatment of British Prisoners

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, March 9.—The Morning Post says information it has received about the ill-treatment of British prisoners in Germany is revolting. The British press have been recommended to say as little as possible on this matter lest their protests should aggravate the prisoners' lot but the Post calls on the government to make the German Emperor understand he will be strictly called to account for these barbarities.

NO CHANGE MADE IN CITY'S BILL

A wire was received at noon today from City Clerk Armstrong stating that the Peterborough Private Bill passed the private bill committee of the Ontario Legislature this morning without any change.

United States probes of land problem will open at Dallas, Tex., March 15th.

Blockade of the Enemy Has Failed

London, March 9.—The Admiralty announces the following results of the German blockade:

"From January 21 to March 3 the arrivals at British ports numbered 4,519 vessels; the sailings during the same period, 4,115.

"British merchant vessels torpedoed, fifteen; lives lost, 29."

Out of a total of 1,513 ships arriving at and 1,342 leaving Great Britain during the period from February 18, when the German blockade was declared, to March 3 only seven were torpedoed by hostile submarines.

The Admiralty statement gives the names of 14 steamers which the German submarines have unsuccessfully attacked.

There is no mention of any steamers being torpedoed for the past week.

The list of vessels unsuccessfully attacked included the Southwestern Railway steamer Lydia, which narrowly escaped being hit by a torpedo while voyaging from Jersey to Southampton. The torpedo missed the steamer by about forty feet when it passed astern.

This is the first news of the attempt to sink the Lydia, and is the second attack on these unarmed passenger-carrying Channel steamers.

MADOC MAN A SUICIDE

Willis Hudgins Ends His Life With Carbolic Acid

MADOC, March 9. — Willis W. Hudgins, a well-known citizen of this village, is dead as the result of a fatal mistake through which he took a large dose of carbolic acid. On Saturday morning he complained of not feeling well and went down street to the drug store, where he made purchases of four ounces each of brandy and carbolic acid. He explained to the druggist that owing to the presence of smallpox in the district he wished to use the carbolic acid in the wash water as a preventive. Upon his arrival at home he retired to his room upstairs. Owing to his indisposition he was left undisturbed for a time, but when Mrs. Hudgins went to call him at noon she was horrified to discover that life was extinct. The partly emptied bottle of carbolic acid and the unopened bottle of brandy of the same size and appearance told the story of a terrible mistake. Medical aid was summoned, but could do no more than to confirm the cause of death.

The late Mr. Hudgins was about 52 years of age. He had for many years conducted a very successful mercantile business in Madoc, but retired about five years ago to a farm he purchased adjacent to the village. He entered with great enthusiasm into whatever he undertook and had a full measure of success. He was of an exceedingly genial disposition and made friends wherever he went. In all business transactions he was rigidly upright and honest, and in all his commercial enterprises he was governed by a high code of honor. In politics he was a prominent Liberal, and in religion he was an adherent of the Methodist Church.

SUCCESSOR TO ALD. JOHNSTON

Ex-ald. Kerneghan May Re-enter Municipal Arena

It is possible that ex-Ald. D. H. Kerneghan will accept nomination as representative in council from the North Ward. An election will be necessary owing to the resignation of Ald. W. J. Johnston. Mr. Kerneghan did good work when in the council, and he should have little difficulty in being re-elected. Ex-Ald. Langford who was defeated at the polls last January would accept the seat by acclamation but he is averse to an election. Several other names are mentioned, including R. J. Kidd and W. S. Dodd.

INSTRUCT POLICE AND FIREMEN IN FIRST AID WORK

Stratford, March 9.—At the next meeting of the police commissioners Mayor Barnsdale will urge that first aid instructions be taken up by the members of the police and fire departments. Police Chief Lannin already holds a certificate for efficiency in first aid work

PETERBOROUGH, TUESDAY, MARCH 9, 1915

CERTAINLY, LET THE CASE GO ON.

THERE ARE certain phases of the Helen Brown case that give rise to criticism, and which will not down. The charge of murder was laid against Dr. Brown BEFORE the woman in the case had made her statement to the police. It was her statement that unnerved the Doctor and probably led him to commit his rash act, but the police had enough information to warrant them laying the most serious charge in the calendar against Dr. Brown before that statement was made.

Another point is that the police were cognizant of a house of ill-fame flourishing on Water street weeks, and no doubt months, before the death of Helen Brown caused one person to depart for pastures new. We believe the police know who were frequenters of this place, both men and women. The police were watching it for a considerable time before the tragedy occurred. This place was, we believe, related to the Helen Brown case. It is said she was taken to these rooms. Having all this information which relates directly to the primary cause of such a tragic occurence, the authorities are saying they cannot proceed with the case! They say they have nothing to go on, and that the case should be dropped! Why should these people be screened?

It is all very well for the authorities to say if anybody has any complaints to make they should go to the Chief of Police. For what are our police and other authorities here? Is it to be left to private citizens to do the real work of detectives and police? Such a position is not only preposterous, but an attempt at evasion. Surely the duty of the authorities is sufficient to urge them to further action. If nothing can be done by the authorities here, perhaps the Attorney General of the Province would be able to take some action.

Then, as to those who are innocent of any imputation in this case; they are entitled to consideration.

Some people have thought this house of ill-fame located in a different place from where it was, and have gone so far as to say they saw the police watching this other place. That is only one point of the many in this connection that shows how the people are talking about this case, blaming innocent parties, and which should be cleared up by an investigation.

Unless the authorities offer some tangible and sufficient reason for not acting on what they know, the public demand for further prosecution of this case should be satisfied.

DID THE KAISER PUT THE CART BEFORE THE HORSE?

(By J. P. Laycock, M.A.)

TO BE WISE after the event may cause a sarcastic twist to the mouth of the critic, but the fact remains that this learning by experience, this rooting up the errors of the past, forms the rock-bottom of human progress. The more one observes the testimony of events on the soundness of the German plan of campaign, the more one feels that there have been more than earthly forces contributing to the gradual overthrow of German militarism. Those whom the gods would destroy they first drive mad.

Look at what has actually happened. The Teuton's disregard for international treaties, his worship of expediency rather than of right, led directly to the opposition of Belgium and the participation of Belgium, the delay at Liege, and the stubborn rearguard action from Mons, which enabled the French to withdraw their surplus troops from the Alsatian frontier and from the Parisian defences to fling Von Kluck back from the Marne, and to establish the line of unyielding steel from the Yser Canal to the Vosges Mountains, the condition of stalemate which has given France and the United Kingdom breathing space in which to marshal their reserves and train their volunteers. The swift crushing of France, so essential to the German campaign, that even the danger of British participation must not interfere with the progress of its realization, has failed. The efforts to settle accounts with the Muscovite have had to be carried on with an increasingly active republic to the rear, while ever and anon the wonderful elasticity of the Russian defence, retreating here before a tremendous German drive, advancing elsewhere where the Teutonic forces are weakened, has rendered futile, at least for purposes of aggression against Russia, the superior military railways of Eastern Germany, and the agile attacks of Von Hindenburg. The German fight against time is unavailing. The economic blockade of Germany, her commercial isolation, are already being felt, while behind the human bulwarks of her enemies are gathering the hosts for a whirlwind campaign in the Spring.

But suppose Germany had adopted the opposite plan of operations; instead of having tried to crush her enemy in the greatest stage of preparation before the eastern foe was ready, had sought merely to hold France along the strategic frontier planned by Von Moltke, while, with the assistance of the Dual Monarchy, she assumed a tremendous agggressive against the Colossus of the North—what then?

Would not her campaign in the West have been rendered easier? Might she not have avoided that violation of the neutrality of Belgium, which first lost her the goodwill of neutral nations? Might she not have been able to release larger forces from the western theatre of activities, when the frontier to be defended extended, not from the Atlantic to Switzerland, but merely from Luxembourg to the Vosges? Might she not have had a better opportunity of avoiding that participation of the United Kingdom in the struggle, which has cut off the food, military and other supplies of Germany secured from other parts of the world? Or, even if the advent of Great Britain into the continental war was inevitable, through the dictates of self-preservation, might not her entrance have been delayed until some decisive decision had been reached in the East? When one thinks how nearly successful the German drives towards Warsaw were, even after a defeated Austria had been hurled out of Galicia, even while over-confident, the war lords sought to assume the offensive on the Yser and on the Vistula at the same time, or even while the gallant battle-scarred French legions compelled enormous forces of the best German troops to remain in the western theatre of the war, surely one may be pardoned if he ponders over what might have occurred.

Then weigh the matter from another point of view. A modern war cannot be carried on without adequate supplies of munitions of war. Look, then, for a moment at a map of Russia; observe the narrow Baltic sea coast, remember the German naval control of the Baltic because of her possession of the strategic Kiel Canal, and recall the effective results of German siege artillery. If the Kaiser had set the united German and Austrian forces in motion to seize the Baltic coast and to destroy the Cronstadt gun works, before Russia could have efficiently assembled her millions, where would the Muscovite giant have secured his munitions of war? Would not the stores at different military centres throughout the empire soon have played out? Would not the long railway to Vladivostock have proved a weak crutch to have leaned upon for support? Would not the Black Sea route have been closed to the Czar through the hostility of the Sultan?

But the over-confidence of Germany spelt her own ruin. Belgium would be frightened by the voice of the bully. France would soon be entered and the republic crushed before she could look around. Decadent Britain would not dare to place itself between the mailed fist and its prey. Belgium was not frightened; France was not crushed; the United Kingdom was not afraid. The German failure is the failure of the swaggering bully. Probably even though she was not so well prepared as today, she should have struck for her place in the sun in 1905, when her chief enemies—Russia, France, Japan and the United Kingdom—were divided into warring camps; but in her love for thoroughness, in her desire to have every cog in the military machine perfect, in her determination to build up a navy equal to that of Britain, she let the moment of her destiny pass by, and it has not returned. In days of old, France sought to boss both sea and land at the same time, and failed; in present times, Germany has tried to control Europe and the waters of the world by one supreme effort, and is failing. Both should have concentrated their efforts first to one task and then to the other. But both chose the impossible task. The bully forces France, an independent people, to drive M. Delcasse, its strong man, from office, simply because of his hostility to Germany, and later on, through the same threats of war, wrung concessions from the French in Morocco. This figure in shining armor made an unprepared Russia acquiesce to Austrian aggression in Bosnia-Herzegovina. But if a nation can bully Europe part of the time, it cannot all the time. The bullied drew closer together, and replied to German preparations by their own preparations. The time arrived when neither Russia nor France would back down. And the bully is now meeting the usual fate of the bully. Those whom the gods would destroy they first drive mad.

LIBERAL MADNESS.

THE OPPOSITION financial critic amazed his parliamentary friends on Friday last by rising in his seat and manfully acknowledging that the omission of his caustic reference to "Made-in-Canada" from Hansard was not his doing. Liberals worked hard to suppress all appearance of party opposition to this patriotic movement, but Dr. Michael Clarke and Hon. A. K. Maclean have shown it up. People may have different trade theories, but what madness could prompt a party to object to Canadians patronizing their own country if they wish to do so? Having wedded themselves to a preference which "prefers" other people, even if they are our kin, to ourselves, they are determined to put Canada to the bad, even if it puts them there, too, as it surely will.

LIBERAL PREPARATIONS.

OTTAWA:—Liberal nominations are coming in fast and furious these days. With the news that all is ready, the Liberal leaders in the House of Commons are again challenging the Government to an election. Add to the fact that, notwithstanding Liberal protests of innocence, it has been proved in the House by the documents themselves, that the Liberal party campaign monthly is being rushed all over the country, and the warning to the Government not to be bluffed into unreadiness is complete.

ADVANCES MADE

Paris Newspaper Gives List of Loans to Smaller Nations

PARIS, March 9.—The Temps yesterday gave details of the advances already made or which are to be made by France, Great Britain and Russia to the small allied countries as agreed upon by the Finance Ministers of the three powers during their recent conference in Paris.

The total advances for the present, according to the newspaper are to be 1,300,000,000 francs ($270,000,000), which amount is to be borne equally by the three powers. These powers already have advanced to Belgium 250,000,000 francs ($50,000,000), to Serbia 185,000,000 francs ($37,000,000), to Greece 20,000,000 ($4,000,000) and to Montenegro 400,000 francs ($100,000). There remains to be advanced 294,500,000 francs ($178,900,000), which will be divided between Serbia and Belgium.

France, The Temps says, will take care of Russia's share for the present by placing sums against grain to be bought in Russia for French account. A bill now before the French Parliament authorizes this arrangement.

CANADIANS TOOK TRENCH?

Correspondent Reports a Gallant Exploit Near Lombaertzyde.

LONDON, March 9.—A despatch to The London Daily Telegraph from Boulogne states that recentl ya company of Canadians, after a gallant fight against enormous odds, captured a trench from the enemy, near Lombaertzyde. The enemy's losses were heavy. The Canadians had no casualties.

This may have reference to the exploit of a section of the Princess Patricias, officially reported.

Italy and Austria In Conference.

BERLIN, March 9.—(Via London) It is announced in diplomatic quarters that a decided relaxation of tension in the Austro-Italian situation is noticeable. This is attributable probably to the initiation of direct negotiations between the two countries in response to the Austrian overtures.

How far the negotiations have progressed and whether tangible results have been obtained, has not been learned, but it is believed improbable in diplomatic circles that any decisive result has been reached.

War Searchlights

New searchlights that form exceedingly difficult targets for an enemy's shots are now used in the European war, having been perfected just before it commenced. Ordinary searchlights are, of course, good marks for an enemy, though not so good as might be expected. Their use on a battle line has many restrictions because of the aim they afford.

The new lights are designed to have all the power of the biggest searchlights in the service but to offer a target no larger than a baseball. The reflectors of these lights are three feet in diameter, but all the light rays are so accurately reflected that they can be sent through a three inch orifice. Thus the light can be armored against attack by small arm fire or quick firing machine guns, leaving open only a three inch aperture.

As a further protection against shots the reflector glass is composed of many small sections, bound together by wire netting, which will hold the parts together even after being hit.—Saturday Evening Post.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

CHEERED HIM UP.

A CRITIC sat beside his desk,
And he was thin and pale.
Impatiently he turned the page
And read a simple tale
And said, "The author of this book
Deserves to go to jail."

The critic's wife was rated as
About the poorest cook
That ever o'er the frying pan
The salt and pepper shook,
And he had breakfasted with her
Before he read the book.

A friend dropped in to have a chat
And said: "Come out to dine.
I know a place not far from here
Where everything is fine.
Come, have a beefsteak and a smoke
Before you write a line."

The critic saw his work and knew
He had no time to play.
He had to read a dozen books
Before the close of day,
But still he grabbed his hat and said,
"I'll do it anyway."

They found the pleasant little joint
Where things were cooked just right.
The waitress had a pleasant smile,
And everything was bright,
And here he found the place to stop.
He ate an awful sight.

Returning then, the selfsame book
He lifted from the pile,
And as he ran the pages o'er
His face broke in a smile.
"Thank goodness!" he observed. "At last I've found a book worth while!"

Generally.

"There is a lot of difference in the money a man can save if he chores around the house himself and that he can't save if he doesn't."

"Sounds complicated."

"Maybe it is. But did you ever try it?"

"Tinkering round?"

"Yes."

"I've tried it."

"Was it a success?"

"Yes—for my tailor. I had to get two new suits of clothes to replace those I spoiled in cheating the plumber and wood sawyer out of their jobs."

Would Be Equal to It.

"What would your wife say if she saw you flirting with the pretty waitress?"

"What would she say?"

"Yes."

"Say, I haven't got time to repeat all of the words in the dictionary and invent a lot of new ones."

Sad.

"Did you ever notice?"

"What?"

"Freckles are sure to be hereditary, but the dazzling beauty of the woman who first introduced them into the family failed to accompany the freckles."

Notice to Creditors

In the matter of the Estate of THOMAS FITZGERALD, late of the Township of Douro, in the County of Peterborough, retired farmer, deceased.

Notice is hereby given, pursuant to Chapter 121, R.S.O., 1914, that all creditors and others having claims against the estate of the above-named Thomas Fitzgerald, who died on or about the twenty-ninth day of November, 1914, at the Township of Douro, in the County of Peterborough, are required, on or before the twenty-seventh day of March, 1915, to send by post prepaid, or to deliver to the undersigned, solicitor herein for the Administratrix of the estate of the said Thomas Fitzgerald, their names and addresses and full particulars in writing of their claims and statements of their accounts, and the nature of the security (if any), held by them.

And further take notice that after the said twenty-seventh day of March, 1915, the said Administratrix will proceed to distribute the assets of the estate of the said deceased among the persons entitled thereto, having regard only to the claims of which she shall then have had notice, and the said Administratrix will not be liable for the said assets, or any part thereof, to any person or persons of whose claims she shall not then have received notice.

Dated at Peterborough this 1st day of March, 1915.

A Train to Happiness

After the Crash There Came a Surprise

By ANITA WENTWORTH

Yes, she wore the blue and white dress which had been her wedding gown, much against Aunt Nykirk's will, and the latter had said disagreeable things in consequence, even going so far as to prophesy that something would happen.

But what could "happen?" Simply nothing. Was not this the old reliable evening train, forever on time and without a hint of hoodoo or any other bloodcurdling thing in its record?

Of course! Rose Engle settled the question satisfactorily in her own mind and from a multitude of feminine trinkets in her wrist bag fished out her ticket and waited complacently for the conductor. By and by, as the "old reliable" rolled along, the moon came up, revealing the landscape in picturesque panorama, and the owner of the blue and white gown laughed at the prophecy, flattened her pretty nose against the dusty pane and fell to enjoying the scenery.

Suddenly above the peaceful hum of the train rose demoniac shrieks from two locomotives. The next moment a terrific shock sent the passengers in all directions.

Out from beneath the wreckage of the shattered northbound crawled a half dozen men and women, one with a cruel slash across the left cheek and another with a broken arm, while the remaining four were only "shaken up."

Among the latter Rose Engle struggled to her feet and stood, white and trembling, endeavoring to grasp the possibility of the "old reliable" making such a departure.

While the others began the search for their belongings or for friends less lucky than themselves she stood still, wondering whether it was the blue and white gown or the wickedness of her intention which fulfilled Aunt Nykirk's prophecy.

Not since the "word from up north" that Jack had gone back to his old habits and was actually "sowing his earnings broadcast" had she taken time for sober second thought. A year ago, when she kissed him goodby in the low doorway before he went to the Klondike, he had pledged himself to continue in well doing, and she had rested in his promise.

Often she entertained herself picturing the home they planned to have on his return, one with a large, airy kitchen, plenty of sunshine and lots of happiness.

But when the "word" came she decided that Jack Engle's wife was a shamefully neglected woman, especially as he had not written for months. Then a wild determination to be free from the man who had gone back to his old habits and didn't care seized her, and—well, here she was on her way to begin legal proceedings for a separation and stranded and alone!

Aunt Nykirk's parting shot rang in her ears as she clung to a twisted section of the vestibule.

"I'd expect something to happen if I should start on such an errand, banking only on hearsay and wearing my wedding dress. Bless me! When folks take the bit in their teeth and rush headlong I always think of Jonah."

Shaky little Mrs. Engle cast a horrified glance down over the blue and white gown, now streaked with dust and grime and torn in several places.

Some one beckoned to her from the farther end of the wreck. Why did she stand there like a dummy when people needed help?

Away she went over broken ties and around an overturned boiler from which the steam hissed vindictively, the blue and white gown fluttering in the moonlight like a flag of truce.

Ah, there they were—a man prone on the ground, and kneeling by his side was a physician with his open medicine case.

"Stay by this poor fellow," said the doctor as she came up, "while I go for water," and he was gone.

In a few moments he returned and, pouring something from a vial into a basin of water, gave it to her to hold while he bathed the unconscious man's face.

She turned her head away. She could not bear to look upon another victim of the headlong—

"Too bad!" broke in the physician on the self condemnation. "It is really too bad! He was going home with a year's hard earnings with which to surprise his wife."

The slender hands trembled and the basin came near falling to the ground. Jack could have saved, too, if he had loved his wife, but he hadn't.

The doctor was so interested in his patient that he did not notice her agitation, so he followed his thoughts audibly and continued: "Engle is a fine fellow. I'll warrant his wife is proud of him."

A low, smothered cry startled the man of medicine, and the basin fell to the cinder parched sward, spilling the contents over the blue and white gown.

"You must be braver than that," said he sternly. "It may be that my friend's life depends on your quiet courage."

With a desperate effort she refilled the basin and resumed her position, but now her gaze was fixed on the upturned face so familiar in every outline.

It depended on her, did it? Surely this was the atoning hour! Heaven heard Jonah in his extremity. Would her petition of agonized silence prevail?

As if in answer the man to be proud of slowly opened his eyes and made an attempt to rise.

"Ah, Jack, old boy, you're coming around all right!" cried the doctor, supporting him and giving him a reviving draft.

After a few minutes, when the other grew stronger, the physician continued in tender, kindly tone: "I am glad I was with you, seeing we were booked for casualties. Some one might have taken your money and left you to die. As it is, everything is all right."

"Oh, Horton, I am so glad, too, for my wife's sake!" And Jack's hand sought that of the doctor.

The blue and white gown drew back into the shadows.

"Here we are!" exclaimed the doctor as the rumbling of the relief train came to their ears. "Now let us see how well you can walk."

The blue and white gown, torn and bedraggled, followed closely in the wake of these devoted friends, and little Mrs. Engle climbed the steps of the homeward bound coach behind them.

After Jack was comfortably settled his friend said, "Now I must look after the lady who so bravely helped bring you back from the borderland."

The gown with the medicine splashes on it slipped into the seat just behind them, and Rose looked up as Dr. Horton rose to go.

"Ah!" he said. "Pardon me, madam, for my seeming neglect. I was so taken up with Jack that I nearly forgot you."

She smiled faintly in answer, and he resumed his seat. Presently a hand was laid timidly on his shoulder, and he looked around.

"Would a surprise—a glad one—hurt him?" she asked tremulously.

The wondering doctor shook his head in the negative and waited for her to go on. Leaning forward a trifle, she whispered something in his ear.

With a misty gladness shining in his eyes Dr. Horton grasped the situation as best he could and asked, "You don't expect to meet your wife on this train, do you, Jack?"

"Oh, no; she is safe at home!" was the quick reply.

"But suppose now," continued the doctor, "that she is here somewhere. Would you know her, old fellow, if you saw her in this car?"

"Horton, what makes you talk that way?" queried the other, sitting erect and growing curious.

A movement behind them drew Jack's attention, and his question was answered, so Dr. Horton simply changed places with the owner of the blue and white gown, leaving his friend to solve the problem of Mrs. Engle's presence at his own sweet will.

When Aunt Nykirk opened the door at midnight for her niece she grumbled in sleepy disgust. But little Mrs. Engle threw her arms around her neck.

"Hush!" she whispered imperatively. "Here comes Jack."

SOME SCRAPS AND A DINNER

A French Chef's Feat With Food That Had Been Discarded

A year or two ago I was chef in a country gentleman's household in England. The morning after my arrival I looked around the kitchen garden, and in the dust bin that stood in the back yard I saw a mixture of food that could have been turned into a first class dinner.

In about four quarts of milk that had turned sour were swimming stale half loaves, drumsticks of fowls, old ham bones, cold boiled potatoes, trimmings of dough made for piecrusts, cracked eggs, some old codfish and some spoiled macaroni.

Next day I found a second consignment, very similar, about to be carried away and thrown out. I stopped this lot, sorted it out and, with the help of a little stock, half a dozen eggs and a hare that had been shot on the estate, served a seven course dinner for a family of ten that night, and the master of the household called me up and complimented me before the whole family on the best dinner they had had for a year.

Afterward his wife sent for me and told me that, though pleased with the dinner, she feared I had been too extravagant and said that her rule was not to allow more than 7 shillings per head in housekeeping. It was a severe shock to her to hear I had fed the family on the sins of the cook that had left the day before, the cost being but over ninepence per head.—From an Interview With a French Chef in National Food Magazine.

The Market in Cauls.

We believe that there is still some market for cauls among sailors, who retain their belief in the efficacy of the membranes as a protection against shipwreck and drowning. Notices of "Cauls For Sale Within" were to be seen recently in windows in the vicinity of the docks of both London and Liverpool, but it is some time since we have noticed an advertisement of a caul for sale in the daily press. It may be remarked that the sale of cauls, so far from being a very ancient custom, is a comparatively modern innovation. The witchcraft of the middle ages declared against the caul retaining any virtue whatever if parted with by gift or sale to any but a member of the child's kindred.—London Lancet.

A Casual Observation.

"We are living in an age of exceptional culture," said the woman with angular features.

"Mebbe we are," said Farmer Corntossel. "But I can't help noticing that people walk right up to the news stand to buy some pretty fluffy stuff, while it takes a mighty good book agent to work off a set of Shakespeare."

Southern Baked Cabbage.

Chop enough cabbage to make three cupfuls and boil tender. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, stir in a tablespoonful of flour, a tablespoonful of mustard, a tablespoonful of sugar, five tablespoonfuls of grated cheese and two cupfuls of water. Turn into a baking dish, lay over three slices of bacon and bake fifteen minutes.

GOING MAD FROM THE TERRIFIC PAIN

Prominent Merchant Thinks His Life Was Saved By "Fruit-a-tives".

DRYSDALE, ONT., JUNE 15th. 1913.

"I am a general storekeeper at the above address, and on account of the great good I have experienced from using "Fruit-a-tives", I recommend them to my customers. They were a great boon to me, I can tell you, for about two years ago, I was laid up in bed with vomiting and a terrific pain at the base of my skull. The pain nearly drove me mad. Doctors feared it would turn to Inflammation of the Brain, but I took "Fruit-a-tives" steadily until I was cured. I have gained fifteen pounds since taking "Fruit-a-tives", and I verily believe they saved me from a disastrous illness". J. A. CORRIVEAU.

SALARIES OF SINGERS.

Present Day Stars Would Laugh at These Old Time Payments.

In the good old days of 200 years ago or so singers and actors gave the world their greatest efforts for what was undoubtedly considered excellent remuneration, but what in these enlightened times of high priced voices and talents would seem to be pitifully small. And who shall say the performers of the past were not fully as capable as the pampered darlings of the present?

The highest salary paid went to Chassé, who received 8,000 livres, or $600, a year as her fixed salary, 1,000 livres extra for perquisites, 1,200 livres for Easter and 200 for bread, wine and boots, in those days an extraordinary allowance.

Mlle. Antier, the first soprano of her day, was a close second, with 4,800 francs, or nearly $1,000, a year. Today a prima donna receives more than that for a single evening. In a year "La Camargo," the most beautiful woman of her day, received in francs what many of the lesser singers of today receive in a week in dollars—2,700 francs.

Louis XIV. had the reputation of being a most generous manager and dramatic agent, since he granted 200 livres (about $40) for the first ten performances and about 100 livres for the following. The deviser of the ballet received 120 livres for the first six performances and sixty for later ones.—Argonaut.

Quick Bridge Work.

Exactly eleven minutes after a Pennsylvania train moved over a 720 foot three span steel bridge weighing 7,000,000 pounds, which was in a temporary position, another train passed over the bridge, which had been moved sidewise forty-seven feet to its permanent place. Between the breaking of the rails and reconnecting them ten minutes and seventeen seconds elapsed. The new bridge spans the Muskingum river at Tyndall, O.

Our Alaskan Boundary.

Last summer saw completed the demarcation of the boundary line between Alaska and Canada, straight north along the one hundred and forty-first meridian to the Arctic ocean. No other boundary demarcation has extended into such high latitudes, and few boundaries of equal length are so straight. The line follows the meridian without deviation, regardless of mountains, swamps and forests.

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Dropsy.

Dropsy is an accumulation of watery fluid beneath the skin or in one or more of the cavities of the body. Like some other symptoms, it is often mistaken for a disease in itself, and we constantly hear it said that some one has "died of dropsy." But people do not die of a symptom; they die of the disease that lies back of the symptom. Any disorder that causes the blood to become impoverished and watery and at the same time to flow through the veins with increased pressure can cause dropsy. For that reason it is often associated with serious forms of heart or kidney disease.

When the dropsy is a symptom of organic disorder it is the disease that must receive treatment. At the same time much can be done to alleviate the dropsical condition. That part of the body which contains the excess of fluid should be kept elevated. If it is the abdomen the patient should remain lying down. When the kidneys are at fault there are certain drugs that can be taken, always under the advice of the physician. They will increase the action of the kidneys and reduce the blood pressure. When the accumulation of fluid is excessive and does not yield to treatment, and especially when it is in the abdomen, it can be relieved by "tapping," a process that can be repeated as often as the physician thinks it wise.

Woman's World

Helen Gardner Thinks Moving Pictures an Aid In Beauty Culture.

MISS HELEN GARDNER.

Miss Helen Gardner, the beautiful star of the moving picture theaters, has very decided views as to what constitutes beauty. Real loveliness lies in the poise and control of expression, she avers.

"I believe," says Miss Gardner, "that as a promoter of real beauty, the beauty of expression, the picture play is without an equal. Symmetrical features and clearness of skin are desirable gifts, and the possessor of them is fortunate, indeed, but beauty of expression is to be envied more than a beautiful complexion.

"Unlike upon the speaking stage, the figures on the screen are enlarged to many times their natural size, and in the closing 'close up' scenes every muscle of the face and every movement of the eyes used to express the different emotions are shown as though under a magnifying glass.

"The successful motion picture actress is a thorough mistress of the art of expressive action and by it attracts and holds the interest and sympathy of her audiences. Paint and powder and colored stage settings play no part in the influence she exercises or the attention she commands. It is her beauty—not the symmetrical beauty of face or figure, but the beauty of truth and the magnetism of soul reflected and glorified in 'expression'—that is the real charm.

"Stick to your creams and your rouges if you will. They are harmless little vanities. But study beauty of expression if you would be genuinely attractive."

PERSIAN GULF PEARLS.

The Divers Are Practically Slaves of the Boat Masters.

Bombay, noted for its pearl markets, is not a pearl producer, though the gems are bought there for shipment to all parts of the world. The pearls sold in Bombay come from the Bahrein islands, a small archipelago on the western side of the Persian gulf, which, although adjacent to territory under the control of Turkey, is governed by an independent sheik under special British protection, the British government maintaining a political agent there.

Of this group of islands only those of Bahrein and Maharak are of any size. Their importance, however, is out of all proportion to their extent, for they are the great center of the Persian gulf pearl fisheries, which are the world's chief source of supply for pearls. The sheik of Bahrein is said to have a customs revenue amounting to about $400,000 per year, which makes him the richest ruler in the Persian gulf. The pearl fisheries under his control may in a good year bring to his islands as much as $2,500,000.

It is difficult for newcomers to obtain the services of good divers owing to the system in vogue, which practically makes this class of men slaves to the masters of the pearling boats. The men's earnings in the majority of cases are insufficient to keep them all the year round, and consequently they take advances from their masters year after year to such an extent that they can never repay their debt. When a diver elects to engage himself to another boat the owner of the latter has to pay up the debt due to the former master should he engage him.—Argonaut.

REMARKABLE CASE of Mrs. HAM

Declares Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Saved Her Life and Sanity.

Shamrock, Mo.—"I feel it my duty to tell the public the condition of my health before using your medicine. I had falling, inflammation and congestion, female weakness, pains in both sides, backaches and bearing down pains, was short of memory, nervous, impatient, passed sleepless nights, and had neither strength nor energy. There was always a fear and dread in my mind, I had cold, nervous, weak spells, hot flashes over my body. I had a place in my right side that was so sore that I could hardly bear the weight of my clothes. I tried medicines and doctors, but they did me little good, and I never expected to get out again. I got Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier, and I certainly would have been in grave or in an asylum if your medicines had not saved me. But now I can work all day, sleep well at night, eat anything I want, have no hot flashes or weak, nervous spells. All pains, aches, fears and dreads are gone, my house, children and husband are no longer neglected, as I am almost entirely free of the bad symptoms I had before taking your remedies, and all is pleasure and happiness in my home."—Mrs. JOSIE HAM, R. BEAT THE HOUSE OF LORDS.

Olden Time Ladies Who Took the Galleries by Storm.

The English house of lords has never been particularly kind to its fair visitors. Long ago, in the days when duchesses sold their kisses for votes, the house of lords forbade them to enter, and a battle royal ensued between the ladies and the peers.

The lord chancellor had sworn that he would not let them in, and the Duchess of Queensberry had sworn that ladies should come in. "This being reported," we read in an old diary, "the peers resolved to starve them out. An order was made that the doors should not be opened till they had raised their siege."

These amazons now showed themselves qualified for the duty even of foot soldiers. They stood there till 5 in the afternoon without either sustenance or intermission, every now and then playing volleys of thumps, kicks and raps against the door with so much violence that the speakers in the house were scarcely heard.

At last by strategy worthy of a general the ladies "all rushed in and placed themselves in the front row of the gallery," where they remained till an hour before midnight, applauding or hissing to their hearts' content.—London Saturday Review.

Origin of the Periwig.

The periwig, which played so important a part in the toilet of a man of fashion during part of the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, owed its origin to Louis XIV. of France. When a little boy (he succeeded to the throne at five years of age) he possessed a profusion of remarkably beautiful waving hair which fell in clustering curls over his shoulders. The courtiers imitated the boy king by having heads of false hair to imitate his natural locks, and when Louis grew up he adopted the periwig himself.

During the reign of William and Mary periwigs were worn in exaggerated dimensions, and the beaux used to comb their wigs in public with special combs of ivory and tortoise shell, which became at last quite indispensable to these fine gentlemen.

OUR NEW TELESCOPE

It is confidently expected that the mounting for the great new 72-inch reflecting telescope of the Dominion Government Observatory at Ottawa will be completed by October. Excellent progress is also being made on the great disc for the main mirror. The glass casting measured 7? 5-8 inches in diameter, 13 5-8 inches in thickness and weighed 4,962 pounds. The disc started from Antwerp about a week before the war broke out, and in due time it landed in America. It took the railroad people about a week to find a suitable car to transport it to Pittsburg, as the package was an enormous one, the crate adding 1,200 pounds to the weight. Then it was some time before an iron wagon could be got to take it to the workshop, and on arriving there the six-foot doorway had to be removed to admit the disc, stripped of its packing case. But at last it was safely placed on the grinding table which had been prepared for it.

Then the first operation was to grind off the edge, and in doing so about half a cable foot was removed. The grinding was done with a 30-inch steel circular saw, rotated so as to touch on the side of the saw near the edge, coarse emery, mixed with crushed steel being supplied to it. The steel cuts about three times as fast as the emery. After about three weeks' labor the edge was successfully trued up and preparations were made for grinding out the central hole which was just six inches in diameter on the upper side tapering irregularly.

Flexible cutters were used at first so as not to endanger the disc by undue pressure. The cutter was shaped somewhat like a letter S, and was rotated about an axis through its middle, and the wings being so curved they readily yielded to any extra pressure coming upon them. In this way the hole was bored out to nine inches in diameter, when cast-iron cylindrical cutters were put in place of the sheet steel cutters and in a short time the hole was enlarged to over ten inches. Its edge was then smoothed up and made exactly square with the surface, and after that the top edge of the hole was bevelled off. This work of enlarging and smoothing off the central hole was the most dangerous part of the operations and happily it was done with complete success.

The upper and lower surfaces will next be made plane and then the surface which seems the best, will be ground into its parabolic form. The more the disc is examined the better it seems to be, and hopes are high that it will prove a great success.

Steamboats on Land.

The unsophisticated visitor to the lumber districts of Canada may occasionally see what is to him a very remarkable sight, a primitive looking steamboat high and dry on a road, crawling along quite comfortably, apparently just as much at home as in its natural element. These boats are known as "alligators," and are used for towing the rafts of logs down the rivers and lakes to the mills. Sometimes it is desired to transfer one of these craft to a new sphere of operations, which can only be reached overland, and the boat is then hauled out of the water, placed upon rollers, and travels to its destination by means of its own power.

THE GRIM REAPER'S WORK—STERN REALITY OF WAR

Dead German strewn on a battlefield between Soissons and Barry-au-Bac, France, after making a heavy charge

MATTERS PARLIAMENTARY

PROF. SHORTT'S RETENTION IS IMPOSSIBLE

His Misdemeanor Calls for Serious Treatment by House

OTTAWA, March 9. — The action of Prof. Shortt, the head of the Civil Service Commission, in "reporting" to the Forum Sunday theatre, instead of to Parliament, and in reporting falsely and improperly at that, has made his retention by any government impossible. Prof. Shortt could "lay on the table" of Parliament anything he liked at any time, but laying it on the table of a theatre is a misdemeanour that calls for serious treatment. If the civil service, which he is supposed to "reform," followed his example, departments would be a mass of treachery and falsehood.

RAILWAYS UNDER FIRE

House Spends Day in Dealing With Charter Legislation

OTTAWA, March 9. — Canadian railway enterprises came under the searchlight of Parliament yesterday. There was some plain speaking, and practically the whole day was spent in consideration of problems involved.

Hon. Robert Rogers asked for a limitation of time of commencement on the Dunvegan and British Columbia Railway, which sought an extension of charter. His amendment was passed.

Mr. W. F. Maclean led the opposition to the Canadian Pacific Railway bill, which proposes to allow that railway to sell its ocean steamers to a new company which would be known as the C. P. R. Ocean Services, Limited, and to allow the parent company to guarantee the bonds of the new company. The new company was to be incorporated in Britain, and would be beyond Canadian jurisdiction, he argued. He wanted the bill to wait the passing of the new railway act. J. G. Turriff and Major Sam Sharpe supported the contention.

Hon. Dr. Pugsley pointed out that the C. N. R. and Grand Trunk had been given the powers the C. P. R. now sought.

Hon. Frank Cochrane said he thought there was no question as to the power of Parliament to place the steamships under the Railway Commission. But he did not see how it would do us any good. It would only drive the ships away to other ports.

The result of our refusing these powers to the C. P. R., said the Minister, would be only that they could sell their stock or bonds on less favorable terms on the markets.

Sir Robert Borden said that the passage of the bill before the House in no way interfered with or affected the working out of a solution of ocean freight rates. They could pass the desired legislation later on. The bill was finally passed.

Dynamite Under Bridge.

KINGSTON, Ont., March 9.—Seven sticks of dynamite were found yesterday afternoon secreted under some planking over the railway crossing of the C. P. R. and G. T. R. at Cataraqui street. Whether it was placed there to do harm is not known. The police are working on the case. A lad who had dynamite in his pocket is being detained. He says he found a stick on Princess street.

CHINESE CAN LEAVE CANADA

Remain Away Till After Peace Has Been Declared

Ottawa, March 9.—An order has been passed by the government by which Chinese can leave Canada and remain away until the war is over and for six months after peace has been declared. Then they will be permitted to return and enter Canada without fresh charge.

It costs the ordinary Chinese five hundred dollars to get into Canada. If he leaves and does not return for a year it costs him another five hundred dollars to get in.

The motive of the government in issuing post-war rain checks to the Chinese is to ease the problem of unemployment, chiefly on the Pacific coast.

The order is now in force. The action is taken under the comprehensive "war measures act, 1914."

SUFFRAGE BILL IS UP AGAIN

Second Reading Discussed in the Legislature

TORONTO, March 9.—The second reading of the bill to extend the municipal franchise to married women was discussed. In the absence, through indisposition, of Mr. J. C. Elliott (W. Middlesex), in whose name the bill stood, Mr. J. C. Tolmie (Windsor) moved the second reading. Hon. Mr. Lucas, the Attorney-General, opposed the bill. Mr. Sam Carter (S. Wellington) supported the bill, and Mr. Donovan (Brockville) opposed it. Mr. Rowell was the last speaker, and after addressing the House for a short while moved an adjournment which was agreed to.

Geo. H. Gooderham introduced a measure yesterday to make owners of heavy motor trucks and wagons liable for rutted roads, and giving municipal corporations power to recover the amount of the damage from them.

Defining a Siege.

In international law a siege is thus defined by Oppenheim: "Siege is called the surrounding and investing of an enemy locality by an armed force, cutting off those inside from all communication for the purpose of starving them into surrender or for the purpose of attacking the invested locality and taking it by assault. Bombardment is the throwing of shot and shell upon persons and things by artillery. Siege may be accompanied by bombardment and assault, but this is not necessary, since a siege may be carried out by mere investment and starvation caused thereby."

Difference in Time.

A large, slow footed darky was leaning against the corner of the railroad station in a manufacturing town when the noon whistle in the big factory blew and the hands hurried out, bearing their grub buckets. The darky listened, with his head on one side, until the rocketing echo had quite died away. Then he heaved a deep sigh and remarked to himself:

"Dar she go. Dinner time fur some folks, but jes' 12 o'clock fur me!"—New York Times.

"I shall never marry," remarked a girl of a certain age, but not specified.

"Never mind, dear," replied her best friend. "Everybody will know that you made a heroic fight against the inevitable."—Philadelphia Ledger.

LIBERALS ARE BUSY WITH NOMINATIONS

Thirty Have Been Held Since First of the Year

OTTAWA, March 9. — F. B. Carvell, M. P., New Brunswick, the fighting front-bencher of the Opposition, has called his convention for re-nomination. Thos. McNutt, M.P. (Lib.), was nominated on Saturday for his Saskatchewan constituency in his absence at Ottawa. The Liberal party is evidently preparing to make good their challenge to an election. They have held thirty nominations since January 1st, 1915.

H. H. STEVENS WOULD CUT DOWN LONG SPEECHES

OTTAWA, March 9.—H. H. Stevens, of Vancouver, wants to cut down the speeches of members of Parliament to reasonable limits. Cases have been known when members have held the floor for hours at a time, and Mr. Stevens wants to compel them to be brief.

He has given notice that he will move for the appointment of a committee of the House to consider and report on the question of limiting all speeches to 45 minutes in regular session, and 20 minutes when the House is in committee of the whole, excepting the mover of a bill or resolution and the reply thereto, or a Minister of the crown and members replying to them.

LAWS OF WAR ON LAND.

Adopted to Save Conquered States From Organized Pillage.

The Hague laws of war on land, drawn up in 1899 and 1907 and adopted by all nations, were designed to check the rapacity of conquerors and to save vanquished states from organized spoliation, says Case and Comment.

Pillage is formally forbidden. This is a prohibition against the looting of captured towns, against acquiring booty at the expense of private property, but does not, of course, forbid the seizure of horses, arms or military supplies taken on the field of battle.

The laws further permit a military occupant to levy, in addition to the ordinary taxes, money contributions for the needs of the army or of the administration of the occupied territory. Contributions are to be required only on a written order and on the responsibility of a commander in chief.

Their collection is to be regulated by the rules in force for the assessment of taxes, and in every case a receipt is to be given to the individual payer. But this voucher, while evidence that money, goods or service has been exacted, implies in itself no promise to pay on the part of the occupant.

Getting at the Truth.

At twenty-three he thought fate was making a special effort to keep him down.

At thirty-five he thought he might have done great things if his wife had not been such a handicap.

At forty he believed he would have been a great man if his children had not made it necessary for him to cling to the sure things.

At fifty he was positive that there was a conspiracy against him on the part of his fellow men.

At sixty he felt that if he could have been thirty-five again nothing could have stopped him.

At seventy he began to believe that he had failed because of a lack of courage and inability to make the most of his opportunities.

At eighty he was almost sure of it—

POWER OF COTTON REACHES ALL PEOPLE

This Staple is the Basis of High Explosives and Smokeless Powder and without it not a Modern Big Gun Could Be Fired--Its Many Uses

Cotton reaches all around the world and is the master and the servant of all the people. Without cotton not a modern gun could be fired. Cotton is the basis of high explosives and of smokeless powder, and the warship carries relatively more cotton than was used by the frigate of a century ago with all its sails. The Hottentot spreads a film of cotton cloth across a few poles to keep out the sun's heat. The arctic explorer pads his duck suit with cotton and finds it warmer and lighter than fur.

It is evident, therefore, that cotton touches all the world, and its uses are manifold. Clothing is only one of the many points of contact. Did you ever comb your hair with a cotton comb? Yes you did, for celluloid is nothing but cotton treated with acids. All those useful celluloid things would be unheard of it were not for cotton.

Cotton even has its uses in the automobile. Some of those soft cushions are cotton felt covered with more cotton that looks like leather. Without cotton there could be no great office buildings, for fireproofing would be impracticable. Besides, it would be too expensive to get the cement to the spot without the bags that consume 180,000,000 yards of cotton cloth every year. C. T. Revere, the cotton expert, has drawn up some interesting figures regarding the use of cotton which are drawn upon here.

Light your pipe and think them over, but as the smoke rolls up to the enameled ceiling remember that the foundation of that enamel is cotton and that one single company requires a million yards of cotton cloth to shade tobacco plants growing in Cuba and Florida and 4,000,000 yards for the little bags in which that same tobacco goes to the consumer.

The ordinary citizen thinks only of sheets and pillow cases and dress goods when one speaks of cotton, but such things are relatively unimportant compared with the vast consumption of cotton for other purposes. The railroads and trolley lines of the United States use more than 250,000 bales of cotton a year for enameled ceilings, plush chairs, leather seats and air-brake hose. The automobile consumes about 400,000 bales a year. Most of it goes into the cotton duck basis, which is the essential feature of the tires, and the rest goes largely for cushions and seats.

The largest individual contract for cotton goods in the world is the one placed annually by the greatest of the harvester machine companies. It calls for millions of yards of cotton duck, the consumption for the entire harvesting machine industry being estimated at above 50,000,000 yards of duck yearly. In normal times the New York market alone consumes 400,000 pounds of yarn weekly for the electrical industry. It is necessary for insulation.

Cotton bags have displaced barrels to a great extent, and a few days ago one of the greatest sugar companies announced that in the future cotton bags would be used exclusively. With cotton at 15 cents a pound, bags are cheaper than barrels. It takes about 15,000,000 yards of cotton duck annually for coal bags for delivering the coal where a chute cannot be employed. Cotton duck is used extensively for ventilating chutes in coal mines. Tarpaulins have replaced other covers for flat cars, vans and wagons. In South Africa the cotton blanket has driven out the woolen one.

Fully 20,000,000 yards annually of cotton duck are consumed in the Canadian northwest for overcoats, replacing fur. With a padding of cotton between layers of duck, these garments are lighter and warmer than fur. Cotton cloth has taken the place of wall paper in thousands of modern houses. Buckram, made of cotton, covers books. Pottery establishments use millions of yards of army duck annually for squeezing water out of clay. The government uses 4,000,000 yards of cotton duck per year for coin bags. It takes 2,000,000 yards of cotton duck annually to make feed bags to hang over the noses of horses. Duck is used for filtering oils—millions of yards of it every year.

It takes more than 50,000,000 yards every year of cotton ducking for rubber belting and rubber hose. The same substance is used for stiffening the gauntlets of gloves and leggins, tennis and gymnasium shoes, canopies for shower baths, where rubber formerly was used, and the covering of trunks and telescopes. About 4,000,000 yards annually are used for draining mines.

Wood pulp paper mills, and other paper mills use cotton duck for driers. Cotton drills and duck to the extent of millions of yards annually are used for wagon tops, cushions and waterproof coats. Mattresses of cotton felt rival hair mattresses.

This is the age of cotton. The world has achieved its greatest progress since Eli Whitney invented the cotton gin. Eliminate cotton and the mere stoppage of spindles and looms would be but a trifle compared with the paralysis that would visit countless other industries.

Unless a man works he cannot find what he is able to do.—Hawthorne.

PRAYER BEFORE BATTLE.

When a Whole Army Knelt Before the Order to Attack.

During one of the numerous wars waged by France two centuries ago a strange scene took place near Saluzzo a disputed outpost, which well illustrates the religious spirit which often prevailed among the soldiers of earlier times.

The French approached the besiegers' lines, and both armies were arranged for a conflict. The sun shone from a cloudless sky; every detail on each array in the field was visible to the other, and both were beheld at once from the citadel.

There were three French marshals present, and it was Schomberg's turn to command. He drew up his 20,000 men in four lines, with skirmishers in front, and the regular cavalry were placed at stated intervals, ready to charge.

In this impressive order and in absolute silence the French advanced until nearly within cannon shot, when at a signal the army were halted and simultaneously knelt down to pray. Then followed the order to attack, which was silently and cheerfully obeyed.

The battle was not to be, however, for Mazarin, amid a volley of musketry, suddenly appeared, rode at a gallop between the armies and stayed the incipient fight by bringing acceptable terms of peace.—Washington Star.

An Old Resident Dead.

The oldest resident of the district of Lucan, Ont., Thomas Collins, of Clandeboye, who had the honor of turning the button to inaugurate the new power into the town just after the new year, is dead, aged a century and a few weeks.

Mr. Collins, who celebrated his 100th birthday a short time ago, has lived through the various stages of lighting from candle to hydro-electric. He has been able to witness many other scientific improvements as well. When he settled on his homestead with his own hands he had to cut the trees and make the lumber with which to build his house and furniture and barns. Many of his farm implements were also the production of his own skill.

On his 100th birthday Mr. Collins entertained the many guests who had gathered at his home with some musical selections, he having acquired the art of playing the piano during the last few years. He can enjoy a joke with the merriest, and the other day he told his relatives if they hadn't time to take him over to turn the electric button he would walk over to perform the ceremony.

New York State had 15,669 persons finish probation terms last year.

Falsifications By the Germans

Professor A. Hamon of the University of Brussels has in a letter to the London Press exposed a glaring case of the falsification of official evidence by German authorities. Professor Hamon writes in part:—

"In October and November last (13th and 24th) the Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung published the documents seized by the Germans in the Belgian achives. The German Government then published a Dutch edition of these documents, accompanied by a photographic reproduction of the said documents. The pamphlet bears the name of R. W. E. Wijnmalen as publisher, in the town of Den Haag (The Hague). On the photographic document we read in the margin:—

"The entry of the English in Belgium would only take place after the violation of our neutrality by Germany."

Now this extremely important note is omitted in the Dutch translation. It was also omitted in the German translation. This is a falsification through omission, a very serious falsification, as it modified the meaning of the document.

But we have worse still. On the top of page 2 of General Ducarme's letter to the Minister, he says: "My interlocutor insisted on this fact that 'our conversation was quite confidential. . . .'" In the Dutch translation, instead of "conversation" there is "convention" (overeenkomst)! The mistake is great and cannot be but purposely made. The German Government thus changes into a convention, that is to say, an agreement, which is but a simple conversation. And the falsification is so obvious that the pamphlet is published under the title of "Anglo-Belgian Conventions."

First Impressions of the Firing Line

The captain in a Line-Regiment has sent relatives a description of his first experiences. He writes:

We halted at length in a village, and my company was detached to take up a part of the front line of trenches. We stumbled out of the little back village into a perfect blaze of light and a pandemonium of noise. The German star-light showed up the flat, swampy countryside (and ourselves advancing up the road across it) with horrid distinctness. With all the bullets whizzing past overhead one felt one would have liked to have slipped forward into the cover of the trenches as unobtrusively as possible, and it felt embarrassing to be marching up a road as brightly lit as Piccadilly (in the good old nights). We stumbled through a little village that had been taken by the Germans and retaken by us several times. This ruined village, shown to us suddenly in the violet glare of one of those starlights, photographed itself on one's mind as a picture of indescribable desolation. One felt quite glad when the blackness suddenly hid it again. We stumbled through as quickly as possible (the road had become a running stream of water with occasional deep pools where a shell had landed), and at the end of the village turned off the road into a turnip field and plunged knee-deep into a narrow, deep canal, technically known as a communication trench. We sloshed along for a few hundred yards, and then came to a broader, deeper trench, twisting away on either side at right angles to us. It was faintly lit at intervals with a brazier, and standing on a ledge here and there were strange individuals peering through loopholes, with rifles beside them. They had goatskin coats, cap-comforters on their heads, a week's growth of beard on their chins, usually a cigarette behind their ears, and the lower portions of their frame seemed clothed simply in a sheath of yellow clay. They seemed uncommonly pleased to see us, these fantastic beings, who in ordinary times are usually employed, in red tunics and busbies, marching up and down in front of Buckingham Palace and other Royal residences. I would have liked to put one of these hairy, prehistoric cold muddy creatures into the sentry box at Buckingham Palace—it would give people an excellent insight into the conditions in which the war is being carried on at present.

BUSINESS ON THE RAILWAYS

Military Traffic Has Helped to Boost Receipts

One of the soundest and most reliable criterions of a city's prosperity is the volume of railway passenger and traffic business it is conducting. In this regard Peterborough is singularly fortunate, and according to Mr. J. MacNabb, Grand Trunk Agent, the city is doing well, when the disadvantages of an unfavorable year are considered, with the prevailing depression in trade. Speaking for his own company, Mr. MacNabb told a reporter that the winter season this year had shown a slight falling-off compared with the business of last year. Fortunately, in the passenger business, several excursions had helped out considerably in keeping up the receipts, while the volume of military traffic was a big assistance.

With regard to the freight business he claimed that it was not so bad in Peterborough, and certainly superior to what some large manufacturing cities were experiencing where the slump hit them worse than here. While the freight shipments of some local industries had fallen off, this was somewhat counterbalanced by the heavy and regular shipping conducted by the Quaker Oats Company and the Canadian General, not to mention the revenue derived from the firms that had received government orders and which had given the railway considerable business as a result.

Mr. MacNabb pointed out that last year's business was scarcely a fair criterion by which to judge conditions from a comparative standpoint, owing to the earnings last year being lower than former years, the depression having commenced early in the year 1914.

MORE RECRUITS.

The steady stream into the ranks of the 39th Battalion continues. This morning three men enlisted thus making ten so far this week. There were also three recruits added to the forces of the ammunition column being recruited by Major Hall.

BETTER AN EYEGLASS THAN A GLASS EYE

"Putting it off till tomorrow" is neither wisdom nor economy where the safety of your eyes is concerned. Little eye troubles lead to big ones, usually, unless steps to correct them are taken. By means of scientific instruments, we can tell you whether glasses will do much or little for you. TIDE OF BATTLE TURNS IN FAVOR OF THE SLAVS

Right Wing of Eschhorn's Army Has Been Driven Back at Augustowo and Gen. von Hindenburg is Attacking Violently at Another Point to Conceal Failure in the Northeast.

LONDON, March 9.—In the north and south the Russians are now establishing an ascendancy. They have driven the right wing of Eschhorn's army, which recently attempted to cross the Niemen above Grodno, back towards the wide marshy clearing outside the Augustowo forest, never permitting the German rearguard to halt. The Russian advance here reaches a remarkable pace, considering the miserable condition of the ground. At the Ossowiec fortress the Russian artillery silenced two German heavy batteries Saturday, and they continue shelling the Lyck road to keep back German reinforcements.

The number of Germans who surrendered, especially among the fresh conscripts, far exceed anything experienced in the earlier stages of the war. Of the first consignment, numbering 700 of the total of 10,000 prisoners taken during the Przasnysz battles, recently brought from the first field base to the railhead, scarcely fifty could walk steadily.

Von Hindenburg is again striving to distract attention from this tragic end of his northeastern campaign by directing sharp infantry attacks on the six-mile front above the left bank of the Pilica, in the direction of the Rawa road. The sharp battle in this district of Central Poland has now lasted three days. It evidently aims at preventing the Russian outer line in the region southwest of Warsaw from sparing forces to go elsewhere. From our indications the Germans fear a new strong offensive on the Nieda and Dunajec rivers against the armies protecting Cracow.

The German staff is still striving to avert the final collapse of the Austrian campaign. It has sent a fresh batch of new German conscripts, mostly aged about 18, into northern Hungary. With the remainder of the Austrians they are moving in great numbers on the Galician slopes of the mountains and in the broken hills between the sources of the San and Dneister. Their right wing was severely cut up Saturday attempting to cross the Dneister eastward.

Although a snowstorm impeded operations in the Champagne country, the French troops gained about a third of a mile of trenches in the Perthes region and about three hundred feet of ground on the ridge north of Mesnil. The Germans recovered some of the trenches that they lost on Sunday between Le Mesnil and Beausejour, but their attempt to retake a wood west of Perthes, captured from them on Sunday, was defeated and a counter-offensive enabled the French soldiers to gain some ground to the north and the east of this point and to take some prisoners.

The French also gained a footing in a German trench in the Boise Brule, forest of Apremont, region of St. Mihiel and a great quantity of war materials fell into their hands.

A German attack on the Reich Ackerkopf in Alsace was repulsed.

A German attack northwest of Pont-a-Mousson broke down.

MAY TREAT SUBMARINE "PIRATES" AS CRIMINALS

Official Statement Issued in Britain is to the Effect That Pending an Inquiry the Crew of the U-8 Will Not be Accorded Distinctions of Rank Nor Allowed to Mix With Other Prisoners.

LONDON, March 9.—"The Board of the Admiralty does not feel justified in extending honorable treatment to the twenty-nine officers and men of the sunken German submarine U-8, on the ground that they were guilty of attacking and sinking unarmed merchantmen."

This significant statement was issued last night by the Official Press Bureau.

The statement fails to make clear exactly what treatment will be extended to the captured Germans. There has been a persistent demand throughout Britain that they be handled as pirates. Lord Charles Beresford recently asked the Prime Minister in the House of Commons whether the crews of German submarines which sank unarmed merchant ship without warning would be treated as pirates and tried for murder. Mr. Asquith replied that the Government had the matter under advisement, and was not then prepared to announce its policy.

The statement refers to the generous treatment accorded German officers and men saved by the British, numbering upward of one thousand, and then says with reference to the U-8:

"This vessel had been operating in the Straits of Dover and in the English Channel, and there is a strong probability that she had been guilty of attacking and sinking unarmed merchantmen and firing torpedoes at ships carrying non-combatants, neutrals and women. In particular, the steamer Oriole is missing, and there is grave reason to fear that she has been sunk with all hands—twenty.

"There is, of course, great difficulty in bringing home particular crimes to any individual German submarine, and it may be that the evidence necessary to establish conviction will not be obtained until after the conclusion of peace. Meantime, persons against whom such charges are pending must be subject to a special restriction, and cannot be accorded the distinction of their rank or be allowed to mingle with other prisoners of war."

INCENDIARISM AT BRANTFORD?

BRANTFORD, March 9.—The investigation of the fire at the Canada Glue Co. works here last week reveals the fact that it was of an incendiary nature. County Constable W. W. Kerr was called in after the fire, and as a result of his investigation he announced yesterday that he had found a sack, three-quarters burned, under the drying screens, where the fire had centered. The sack still smelled of coal oil when he located it.

TATTERED FLAG OF CRUISER KENT TO BE REPLACED

The silken Ensign and Jack presented to the cruiser Kent in 1904 by the ladies of the County of Kent, having been torn to ribbons in the action off the Falkland Islands, when the Kent sank the German cruiser Nurnberg with the loss of all but seven of her crew, a Ladies' Committee has decided, with the full approval of the Council of the Association of the Men of Kent and Kentish Men, to replace the tattered flag with new colours. It is also intended to collect the fragments of the original colours and deposit them in some position of honour in the county.

STOLE CHURCH MONEY.

Brantford, March 9. — While the family was at church a thief entered the home of Mr. Craddock, Echo Place, and stole $200 in jewellry and money, the latter being the collection taken up in Elm Avenue Church Sunday. The use of a duplicate key gave entry.

Judge Gorman of Philadelphia, appointed four women assistant judges for delinquent girls.

Cannot Censor U. S. Mails.

LONDON, March 9.—A proposal to establish a censorship over the American mails was opposed in the House of Commons yesterday by the Home Secretary, Reginald McKenna. The question was raised by Sir Henry Craik, who said he desired to prevent the distribution in New York of pamphlets emanating from German sources. "These pamphlets, he said, accused Great Britain and her allies of treachery in connection with their diplomatic action in Belgium. Mr. McKenna characterized these pamphlets as practically harmless, and added:

"It has not been considered necessary in the past to establish a censorship over postal matter to or from the United States. To do so would involve an enormous addition to the censorship staff."

Huge Auxiliary Fleet Used.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — Some idea of the size of the auxiliary fleet Great Britain is using to move and sustain her armies in the field may be learned from a report on shipping condition from American Consul Lathrop at Cardiff, Wales.

Fifteen hundred British vessels, he reports, aggregating more than 3,500,000 tons, have been taken over by the British Admiralty on time charters, the Government taking all responsibility and agreeing to return the vessels as received.

To Exchange Disabled Officers.

BERNE, Switzerland, March 9.—It is stated here that France and Germany hereafter will exchange captured army officers who have been injured so severely as to be incapacitated for further military service. Heretofore only privates have been exchange. The inclusion of officers in this arrangement is believed to be due to the initiative of Prince Maximilian von Baden, who interceded with Emperor William on behalf of the officers.

Sammy Costa, aged two, of Rochester, turned on a gas jet and killed himself, his mother and two little sisters.

STRONGHOLDS SILENCED BY THE ALLIES WARSHIPS

Several British and French Battleships Are Hit by Shells From the Land Batteries, But Little Damage is Done---Turks Are Making a Terrific Resistance---Queen Elizabeth is Hit Three Times.

LONDON, March 9.—The British and French fleets have battered their way a step nearer to Constantinople. More Turkish forts on the Asiatic side have been silenced, according to a statement by the British Admiralty, but the Turks are making a terrific resistance with the shells from their German-made guns.

From the number of ships engaged and the size and range of the guns, the battle of the Dardanelles is unlike anything in history, according to naval experts. At 21,000 yards the huge battleship Queen Elizabeth of the British squadron, assisted by smaller ships, is still hurling shells across the Gallipoli Peninsula into the Turkish strongholds on the Asiatic shore. The Admiralty statement carries the operations through Sunday and admits that the majority of the ships inside the straits, both French and British, were struck. None was sunk and there were no casualties.

The Turkish forts Rumili, Medjidieh, Tabia and Hamidieh-I-Tabia, fringing the Asiatic shore line, which previously had withstood the bombardment, were silenced, as was the Mount Dardanus battery further south.

The Turkish casualties are unknown.

Aeroplanes taking wing from the decks of the besieging craft are playing a signal part in the operations. One British machine became unmanageable and dove into the sea, and another was hit by the Turks 28 times.

The British Admiralty last night made public the following statement:

"The operations against the Dardanelles are progressing in fine weather. Vice-Admiral Sackville H. Carden reports that on March 6 the battleship Queen Elizabeth, supported by the battleships Agamemnon and Ocean, began an attack on Forts Hamidieh-I-Tabia and Hamidieh III., which are marked on the Admiralty map as forts U and V, by indirect fire across the Gallipoli Peninsula, firing at 21,000 yards.

"These forts are armed as follows: Fort U, two 14-inch guns and seven 9.4 guns; fort V, two 14-inch, one 9.4, one 8.2 and four 4.9-inch guns.

"The Queen Elizabeth was replied to by howitzers and field guns, and three shells from the field guns struck her, without, however, causing any damage.

"Meanwhile, inside the straits, the Vengeance, Albion, Majestic and Prince George and the French battleship Suffren fired on Souain Dere and Mount Dardanus batteries, marked F and E on the Admiralty map, and were fired on by a number of concealed guns.

"Fort Rumili Medjidieh Tabia, marked J on the Admiralty maps, which had been attacked on the previous day, opened fire and was engaged and hit by 12-inch shells.

"A majority of the ships in the straits were struck by shells, but there was no serious damage done, and no casualties resulted.

"On the 7th of March the weather continued calm and fine, four French battleships — the Gaulois, Charlemagne, Bouvet and Suffren—entered the straits to cover the direct bombardment of the defences of the narrows by the Agamemnon and Lord Nelson. The French ships engaged the Mount Dardanus battery and various concealed guns, silencing the former. The Agamemnon and the Lord Nelson then advanced and engaged the forts at the narrows at from 14,000 down to 12,000 yards by direct fire.

"Forts Rumili Medidieh Tabia, marked J, and Hamilieh-I-Tabia, marked U, both were silenced after a heavy bombardment. Explosions occurred in both forts. Fort L has not fired since the explosion on the fifth.

"The Gaulois, Agamemnon and Lord Nelson were each struck three times, but the damage done was not serious. The Lord Nelson had three men slightly wounded.

"While these operations were in progress the British light cruiser Dublin continued to watch the Bulair Isthmus. She was fired at by four-inch guns and struck three or four times.

"Owing to the importance of locating concealed guns the seaplanes had to fly very low at times.

"On the 4th instant a seaplane pilot, Flight Lieut. Garnet and Observer Lieut.-Commander Williamson became unstable and fell into the sea. Both officers were injured. Flight Lieut. Douglas, reconnoitering at close quarters in another seaplane, was wounded, but returned safely.

"On the 5th seaplane No. 172, Pilot Flight Lieut. Bromet, with Lieut. Brown, was hit 20 times, and seaplane No. 7, Pilot Flight Lieut. Hershaw, with Petty Officer Merchant, was struck eight times in locating concealed positions.

"The Ark Royal (the mother ship for seaplanes) is equipped with every appliance necessary for the repair and maintenance of numerous aircraft she carries."

Vice-Admiral Peirse, who is bombarding Smyrna, reports that several positions there were engaged by the ships at from 7,000 to 8,000 yards. The batteries replied vigorously, but after one hour's firing all were silenced. In the afternoon the ships steamed into a close range and engaged the Paleo Tabia battery and the other batteries on the hill. The fire was continued until all were put out of action.

Turkey Adhering to Traditional Tolerance For Religions, He Says.

WASHINGTON, March 9. — Count Bernstorff, German Ambassador here, issued a statement yesterday assuring Jews of the efforts on the part of the German Ambassador at Constantinople to prevent anti-Jewish agitation. Among other remarkable things he says:

"The Government in Constantinople, has, since the outbreak of war, strictly adhered to its traditional tolerant attitude toward all religions and there has never been an anti-Jewish or anti-Zionistic feeling in Constantinople. The political unrest, which for some time disturbed the Jewish population of Palestine, had been caused by the over-zealous attitude of local Turkish authorities.

"But, luckily, they have in no place been followed by excesses which could not be entirely repaired. The expulsion of several thousands of Jews from Palestine has also, without the permission from Constantinople, been ordered by local military authorities, who did not wish to allow Jews of foreign nationality to remain there."

ITALIAN LOSES

ed a pimple on his neck. That was what made him yell. Donato got up at seven o'clock that morning and never went to bed again that day. At five o'clock, however, he got up to get his father's lunch and went back to bed again. He saw the pocketbook in the old country. After Panrazio left the city he again saw it in the hands of his father. He never knew his father had any money, and didn't know he was saving up enough to go back to the old country.

Father Was Crying.

The next witness was Phillip Capone, a brother of the last witness. He said he saw the purse after the money was taken. He had heard his father say that he was keeping the money to make a trip to the old country. His father showed him the money after he got it back from Minicola. That night when his father came home he went up and missed the money from the box. He found his father on the bed, crying. The shock of losing the money caused his father to faint. They threw some water on his face and brought him to. His father then went to sleep, and witness came down and reported the loss to the Chief of Police.

Mr. Widdifield submitted that there was contradictory evidence and that it was insufficient to warrant his committment.

Mr. Hatton said that while the evidence was purely circumstantial, it formed a prefect link. The man had been living with this family. From one excuse to another he got the son out of bed and downstairs, and went upstairs. If he took the money at all, he took it then. The fact of his boarding a train and going away without claiming his $18 wages and without letting his whereabouts be known, was most remarkable. There was such a circumstantial chain of evidence in the case, which pointed to the prisoner being guilty.

Magistrate Dumble said the circumstances were suspicious, but he did not think they were such that a court could convict upon them. There was just enough doubt that prisoner was entitled to get the benefit of it. A jury with such evidence would give him the benefit of the doubt.

DROPPED BOMBS ON REPAIR BASES

Machines and Pilots Make Safe Return

LONDON, March 9.—The following announcement was made last night by the Official Press Bureau:

"Wing Commander Longmore reports that royal naval aviators on Sunday afternoon carried out an aerial attack on Ostend. Six aeroplanes started, but two returned. Four machines reached Ostend and dropped eleven bombs on the submarine repair bases of the German station and four more on the military repair base of the German station and four more on the military headquarters of Kursaal. It is reported that considerable damage was done. All the machines and pilots have returned safely."

The Admiralty states that the two machines which returned before the raid was fairly launched did so because the petrol in their tanks was found to be freezing.

No German submarines were seen in the basin at Ostend, adds the statement.

Bengrove Is Sunk.

ILFRACOMBE, Eng., March 9.—The British steamer Bengrove, carrying coal, was seen in distress sounding her siren five miles off this shore at 1.30 p.m. Sunday. Forty minutes later the ship's bow rose from the water and she sank by the stern. Thousands of people stood on the shore and watched her go down.

The steamer Paignton of Liverpool rescued the crew of thirty-three.

It is thought she was struck by torpedo.

Hungarian For Foreign Secretary.

LONDON, March 9. — A despatch from Amsterdam to the Exchange Telegraph Co. says that according to Vienna telegrams Count Stephan Tisza, the Hungarian Premier, will soon be appointed Austro-Hungarian Foreign Secretary. The despatches further add that the count will be given the title of Imperial Chancellor, and will be vested with powers similar to those held by the German Imperial Chancellor.

Government's Copper Is Safe.

LONDON, March 9.—No belligerent Government has a right to requisition a cargo belonging to a neutral Government, according to a decree given out by the prize court yesterday.

The question at issue arose over 1,000 tons of copper sent from the United States to Gothenburg, Sweden, and destined for the use of contractors to the Swedish Government.

MR. BOWSER'S TROUSERS

The Creases Run Off on a Tangent

By M. QUAD

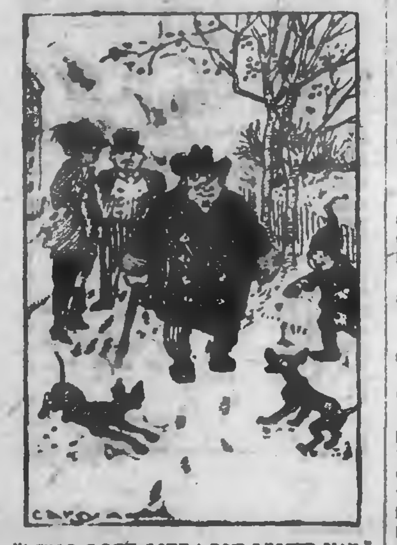
No fireside could have been more peaceful and happy than that of the Bowsers at 7 o'clock the other evening. Mrs. Bowser had a book in her hands, Mr. Bowser the evening paper and the family cat laid on the hearth rug and purred and chuckled and decided that she had a soft snap for the winter. Without, cold winds blew and snowflakes fell; within were warmth and cheer and contentment. By and by Mr. Bowser felt the influence, and he looked up from his paper and said:

"Well, now, this is home! What reasonable man could ask for more than this?"

"Yes, it is cozy," answered Mrs. Bowser.

"How a man can leave a fireside like this to bang out at a club is more than I can make out. If all men had homes like this there would be nothing but happiness in married life. Why can't all wives be like you?"

Mrs. Bowser took the alarm at once. Every wife knows that her husband is dangerous when too good. She started to say something about a neighbor's child being sick, but he interrupted her with:



"I WILL LOOK LIKE A BOW LEGGED MAN."

"Yes; I suppose so, but it is probably owing to the mother's carelessness. I was thinking today that I was not half thankful enough for the blessings that surround me. Do you know that if I hadn't married just the right sort of wife I might have turned out a bad, bad man?"

"I am glad and satisfied that you are happy," she replied, "but don't you think it dreadful the way some of the coal cart men use their poor horses? One was going past here today when"—

"I know nothing about coal cart horses," he chipped in, "but I do know that I have the nicest little wife in all the world. Where would I be tonight but for you and this scene of comfort and happiness? Put away your book and let's talk. I presume you think there are times when I don't fully appreciate you, but even when I get mad and storm around I never lose sight of your many good qualities. And, too, you know I am always sorry for giving way to my temper. It is very good of you to overlook my feelings."

Mrs. Bowser was in for it, and there was no escape. She couldn't faint away, and she could think of no excuse to get out of the house. She therefore smiled and replied:

"We get along as well as most folks. What is the news from Europe?"

"Yes, you are always willing to overlook my faults," he continued as he reached out his foot and toyed with the cat, "and I want you to know that I appreciate it to the fullest extent. Didn't you say something about a new dress the other day?"

"If I did I can wait for another month or two."

"There is no need of waiting a day. In the morning I will give you $50 for a new dress. As you may need other things I think I'll make it $75. Never be afraid to ask me for money. I've been thinking we ought to go out more. What is to prevent us from going to the theater twice a week this winter?"

"I should like to go at least once a week."

"It shall be twice or three times, and we'll get up card parties for the other evenings. Would you like to keep a second girl?"

"Oh, no. You see, there is so little to do, and the cook has lots of time to help upstairs."

"If you want one, just say so. I don't want you to think you are tied to the house. And how about new carpets and furniture?"

"We don't need any."

"Thanks to you, and I appreciate it. By George, but when I remember how many rows I have raised over nothing at all I wonder that you haven't been driven to get a divorce. I expect there are plenty of women who would have turned on me with the poker. Can you ever forgive me?"

Mrs. Bowser was determined to change the subject and avert the calamity, and a bright thought came to her.

"You took a pair of trousers to the tailor the other evening to be pressed," she said as she rose up.

"Yes; and has he sent them home?"

"They came up this afternoon and are in that bundle over there. I wonder if there are any buttons missing."

The package was untied, and Mr. Bowser held them up to view. He had taken them to the tailor to have the creases renewed, and the tailor seemed to have made an excellent job of it. Mr. Bowser was about to lay them aside with a nod of satisfaction when he gave a sudden start of surprise, and the smile his face had worn during the last half hour was replaced by a look of sternness.

"What is it?" she asked.

He took one leg of the trousers and stretched it out at arm's length and squinted along the crease like a man looking along the edge of a board.

"You took this package in?" he asked as he finished squinting along the leg.

"Yes."

"And you knew they were my trousers?"

"Of course. What is wrong with them?"

"What is wrong with them?" he repeated as his neck began to grow red. "If you were the sort of a wife you ought to be you'd know what was wrong with them. You'd have known it hours ago and brought that tailor to book instead of assisting him in his chicanery."

"But what is it?"

"Can't your own eyes tell you? Look along these creases. Do you follow a straight line or do they wabble and crook?"

"They seem to be straight," replied Mrs. Bowser after squinting.

"But they are not, and I believe you have known it for hours. See there! These creases are at least three inches out of true at the bottom. And what will be the effect when I put the trousers on? I will look like a bow legged man, of course, and, of course, that was the plot. By thunder, woman, but things have come to a pretty pass!"

"Mr. Bowser, how silly you are!"

"Ah, yes; oh, yes! Because I don't want to look like a man straddle of a barrel I am silly. How much did you have to pay the tailor to carry out this conspiracy with you? And when you had made me the laughing stock of the neighborhood what other scheme did you have to work? It would have been sweet music to your ears to hear the boys shouting, 'Old bow legged Bowser!' after me on the street."

"I wish you'd be reasonable," said Mrs. Bowser as she tossed the trousers on the lounge. "One minute you praise me and everything is all right, and the next"—

"Never!" he interrupted as he kicked at the cat. "I have never praised you and don't mean to. There will be no theater and no card parties. A wife who'll conspire against her husband ought to be sent to state prison. I take my trousers to a tailor to be creased. You sneak down after me and bribe him to squeeze the creases so that I will be an object of ridicule. Why don't you poison my coffee? Why don't you murder me in my sleep?"

She passed him and went upstairs, and the cat held its breath and realized that a crisis was at hand. Mr. Bowser glared about him for a moment as he made ready to break loose, and then, with a yell, he seized the offending trousers, and with a mighty wrench he tore the back seam up and held a leg in either hand. There was nothing alive in the room except the cat. He jumped for her with a leg swinging above his head, and Mrs. Bowser heard a meow, a crash and a fall. He had struck a chair and fallen over it and plowed along the carpet with his nose, while the cat had escaped. An appalling silence followed, and she heard a voice hoarsely whispering:

"I don't wonder that husbands are driven to drink. I only wonder that they don't become murderers as well as drunkards."

Unhappy Hindu Women.

The Hindu holy books forbid a woman to see dancing, hear music, wear jewels, blacken her eyebrows, eat dainty food, sit at a window or view herself in a mirror during the absence of her husband and allow him to divorce her if she has no sons, injures his property, scolds him, quarrels with another woman or presumes to eat before he has finished his meal.—Liverpool Mercury.

Her Advantage.

"If you keep on, Willie, you'll soon know as much as your teacher," said the minister patronizingly.

"Huh!" exclaimed Willie. "I'd know as much now as she does if I looked at the book all the time like she does."—Chicago News.

WELLAND CANAL IS PROGRESSING

Waterway Will Cost Fifty Millions—Ready in Five Years

The fact that Canada has undertaken the construction of a waterway possessing features unprecedented in the history of similar undertakings, not only on this continent, but in the world, is a fact which may not be generally appreciated, but in certain aspects Canada can make claim to this distinction for the work she has entered upon in the construction of the Welland Ship Canal, the connecting link between Lakes Erie and Ontario.

As all of the earth excavated between Thorold and Lake Ontario is to be disposed of in service ground fills to form the harbor in the lake, the Government has built a double track, standard gauge construction railway, seven miles in length, between these points for the purpose of transporting this material; and for the purpose of hauling stone excavated and crushed at the site of the flight locks in Thorold, to the other lock sites for the making of concrete to be used in the building of the locks. This railway has been equipped with a complete interlocking plant and train-despatching system, and it is expected that for the next few years it will be one of the busiest roads in the Dominion.

For contract purposes, the entire canal, 26 miles in length, has been divided into nine sections, section No. 1 being at the Lake Ontario end and the others following consecutively through to Lake Erie.

Section No. 3 is the most important and the most expensive section of the entire project, involving as it does the construction of twin locks in flight 4, 5 and 6, single lock No. 7, and a guard lock, the building of a tremendous earth dam to form a pondage of 84 acres for regulating the water level in the flight locks, and two difficult and expensive railway diversions. There are 2,700,000 cubic yards of rock to be excavated from the lock sites and the locks themselves will involve the placing of 1,200,000 cubic yards of concrete. This section is less than two miles in length, mostly within the town of Thorold.

The present line of the Grand Trunk Railway traverses the site of the flight locks, and this railway has had to be diverted a short distance to the west for a distance of four miles. As it is, here the railway climbs the Niagara escarpment, rising almost 150 feet within a distance of one and a half miles, this has proved a very difficult piece of relocation.

From Thorold to Lake Erie the new canal will follow largely the route of the present canal, and the work will consist principally of deepening and widening the existing channel to the new dimensions.

Section 5 is the only remaining section which has as yet been placed under contract, the contractors being the Canadian Dredging Co., of Midland, Ont. They have had five steam shovels employed all season, and expect to commence dredging operations in the early spring. The work consists of the removal of 5,500,000 cubic yards of earth in the channel and along the west bank, the material to be disposed of on low lands adjoining the canal. The estimated cost of this section is $1,950,000.

The estimated cost of the entire project is $50,000,000.

THE MARKETS

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Wheat jumped as much as 8¾c in value today owing to uregnt buying ascribed to the war crisis regarding Italy and Greece, and to the belief that domestic farm reserves would prove small. The Washington figures on farm reserves, as made public after the close of trading, indicated that the percentage of the United States crop still in first hands was the least which had been reported at any corresponding time in more than seven years. The market closed firm, 3¼c to 8¾c above Saturday. Other net advances were corn ⅝c to ¾c, oats 1⅛c to 1½c, and provisions 12½c to 30c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 8.—The wheat market was strong from the outset today, opening prices being ⅝c to ½c higher, and previous to noon further advances occurred to the extent of 3⅝c and 3¼c on May and July over Saturday's close. The gain on the day was 3½c to 5⅜c, July leading.

During the early part of the forenoon there was a fair volume of business in futures, the principal buying coming from exporting houses.

Cash demand for No. 3 northern wheat was good, and also for all grades of oats, but few offers were on the market. Exporters and millers were both buyers of cash grains.

Total inspections on Saturday were 300 cars, as against 247 last year, and in sight today 400 cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 8.—The export business in grain continues to be quiet, there being practically no demand from foreign buyers today. In sympathy with the rise in prices for oats in the Winnipeg option market, a stronger feeling prevailed on spot, advancing ½c to 1c per bushel, but there was no improvement in the demand for car lots. Ontario barley was 1c to 2c per bushel lower. Flour was unchanged. Millfeed firm. Butter is firm and unchanged. Eggs weak, 3c per dozen decline.

CATTLE MARKETS

UNION STOCK YARDS.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $6 to $7.50; rams, $5 to $5.50; lambs $8.50 to $9.40.

Hogs.

Selects weighed off cars, $8.15 to $8.25, selects fed and watered, $7.90.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 8.—At the Montreal stock yards, west end market, in sympathy with the Toronto prices, coupled with the continued small supplies coming forward of late, the tone of the market was stronger today and prices show an advance of 15c to 35c per cwt. There was also an increased demand for supplies from both packers and butchers owing to the fact that they allowed their stock of dressed beef to run down to a low level, consequently this also tended to add strength to the situation. Trade, however, was more active than it has been for the past few weeks. Sales of a few full loads of really choice steers were made at $7.65 to $7.75, and picked stock brought $7.75 to $8, but the bulk of trading was done in the lower grades with sales of full loads of good steers at $7.15 to $7.25 and medium at $6 to $6.50 per cwt.

Butchers' cattle, choice, $7.65 to $8; do., medium, $6.25 to $6.75; do., common, $5 to $5.75; canners, $3.75 to $4.50; butchers' cattle, choice cows, $6.40 to $6.75; do., medium, $5.40 to $6; do bulls, $5.75 to $6.75; milkers, choice, each, $70 to $75; do common and medium, each, $60 to $65; springers, $50 to $55; sheep, ewes, $5.75 to $6; bucks and culls, $5.25 to $5.50; lambs, $9; hogs, off cars, $8.50; calves, $5 to $15.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 8.—Cattle—Receipts, 17,000; market weak. Beeves, $5.85 to $7; cows and heifers, $3.40 to $7.50; calves, $6.50 to $10.

Hogs—Receipts, 26,000; market higher; light, $6.70 to $7; mixed, $6.70 to $7.05; heavy, $6.45 to $7; rough, $6.45 to $6.60; pigs, $5.75 to $6.75; bulk of sales, $6.85 to $6.95.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 17,000; market weak; native, $7 to $7.60; yearlings, $7.65 to $8.75; lambs, native, $7.50 to $9.85.

RING OF THE FISHERMAN.

Used by the Popes to Seal Documents of the Holy See.

The ring of the fisherman, used by the pope exclusively to seal documents of the holy see shows an engraved figure of St. Peter, the first bishop of Rome, standing in a boat and flinging with two hands a net into the sea.

In 1800, when the French occupied the city of Rome, Pius VII., then pope, was ordered by General Radet to surrender the fisherman's ring. The pontiff refused. He feared that by means of the sanction of the ring the French government would be enabled to issue dangerous documents.

When finally forced to surrender it the pope altered the engraving or stamp with the view of making it useless to his enemies. This seal thus defaced was forwarded to Paris by the French general in command at Rome. Pius VII. in the absence of the fisherman's ring, made use of an iron seal engraved with the figures of Sts. Peter and Paul and inscribed with the words, "Pro Annulo Piscatoris" (in lieu of the fisherman's ring).

The fisherman's ring was kept in Paris until Napoleon I. was overthrown, when it was returned to the sovereign pontiff. The ring is used only to seal briefs. The bulls, more important documents, are stamped with the leaden seal of the ancient parchments.—Indianapolis News.

News Value . . of . . Advertising

AN EDITORIAL may stimulate thought. It may arouse men to action—but usually its value lies principally in its ability to entertain—to inform on general or specific questions.

¶ An advertisement—nine out of ten times—contains more information than an editorial, and in addition answers either a social or an economic question.

¶ There is only one way for the readers of any paper to keep the advertising news up to date, and that is to patronize the firms who use the columns of the paper.

¶ Readers of The Review should, therefore, buy the goods advertised in these columns.

HOCKEY CURLING ATHLETICS

IMPORTANT GAMES TOMORROW NIGHT

Toronto, March 9.—While Orillia and Wiarton are playing for the O. H. A. intermediate championship and Wanderers and Ottawa are playing for the N.H.A. title on Wednesday night, St. Michael's and an all-star seven will play an exhibition game at the Arena. St. Michael's go to New York for an exhibition game on Saturday, and are practising regularly, while the players who will compose the all-star seven were out on Saturday night at the Arena. The all-stars will be selected from the following: Gilbert and Parkes of the Argonauts, Hunter of Peterborough, McLean and Farr of Toronto Rowing Club, Denison and Applegath of Riversides, and Watson of St. Andrew's College. Billy Breen is looking after the all-stars.

"FITZ" FOR THE BRAVES.

Toronto, March 9.—Manager Clymer has gone on a mission south for the purpose of locating a "happy training ground" for the Leafs. He will select a camp as close to Richmond, where the Toronto club will open the season on April 27th, as possible. Charlotte is the most likely spot. Mr. Clymer is fully satisfied with prospects, although he is sorry to lose the services of Eddie Fitzpatrick, who has decided to join the Boston Club, and will report to Manager Stallings at Macon, Ga. His salary differences with the latter club have been adjusted.

A LACROSSE CLUB WILL BE ORGANIZED TOMORROW NIGHT

Meeting Will be Held in the Y.M.C.A. at 8 o'Clock — Every Fan Asked to be Present — Officers to be Elected

The meeting to organize a Peterborough lacrosse club which will enter a team in the intermediate series of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association will be held tomorrow night in the Y. M. C. A. at 8 o'clock. There will be little amusement for citizens this summer unless lacrosse gets started properly. For that reason fans are urgently asked to be on hand at the meeting. One does not have to be a player to help the good work along. He need only be a worker. The proposition will be far from an easy one, and first-class officers can alone carry it to a successful issue.

Peterborough had a team last year and despite the fact that interest was very poor the team gave a good account of themselves. There are many new players in the city this season, hence the prospects are so much brighter. However, the first thing necessary is to have a big enthusiastic organization meeting. If you are desirous of having any pastime for the summer months — be present at the "Y." tomorrow evening at eight.

CURLING

Eight rinks from the Peterborough Curling Club are out of the city today. Skips R. M. Waddell, R. G. Sturgeon, J. H. Ferguson and A. Moore have their rinks in Toronto playing the Victorias, while Skips J. E. A. Fitzgerald, R. Neill, W. D. Campbell and W. J. Thompson have their quartettes in Bobcaygeon competing for the Fitzgerald-Bottum trophy.

"And," the ball player continued, "right now, although the training season has not started, my arm is in midseason form, and I'm ready to—"

And the remainder of the statement was lost in the noise of a shrill whistle.

It was Diogenes calling his valet to return with the baggage.

OTTAWA'S HURLERS.

(Free Press.)

The Ottawa Baseball Club has no less than seven high class pitchers in sight for the season 1915. Shocker, Peterson and Roberts have already sent in their contract, Kubat has accepted terms and Bobbie Auld has been offered to the Senators by President McCaffery, of Toronto. Fred Bramble and Hank Gero have not been heard from. All these twirlers were winning pitchers last season, as the following records will show:

	Won.	Lost.	P.C.
Kubat	17	5	.773
Shocker	20	8	.714
Roberts	9	7	.563
Auld	12	10	.545
Peterson	10	9	.526
Gero	13	12	.520
Bramble	2	1	.666

ROGERS A HOLDOUT.

Ottawa Free Press:—Lefty Rogers who carried the biggest contract of any player in the league last season is at St. Louis and wont accept a cut. Last year Rogers was signed up as a pitcher and outfielder and agreed to take his regular turn on the mound. He lost his arm, however, and his pitching was a joke. In the middle of the season he was injured sliding and was out for six weeks so that his failure to deliver on the rubber and his accident proved a pretty hard crack to the Ottawa Clubs exchequer. He was drawing down the money of two good players for this company. There is no chance of him getting in this season, for the club could not take a chance on him as a pitcher. Rog can hit as hard as ever and would be a good man in the outfield.

MELVILLE 8; VICS 3.

The Toronto Victorias lost to Melville last night by 8 to 3. The western team therefore wins the round by 16 to 11. Melville now meets the Monarchs of Winnipeg for the Allan Cup.

COMMENT

As You Like it

GEORGE NEEDHAM, the former third sacker of Guelph and Hamilton Canadian League teams, is after on um's job in the Federal League.

JACK MITCHELL, the ex-Ottawa infielder, will hardly hold a job with the Indianapolis team. Manager Hendricks of that club has succeeded in getting Red Corridon, shortstop of the Chicago Cubs, for a goodly portion of 1914.

THE SIXTH CLUB in the Canadian League will likely be managed by Frank Gygli, the speedy first sacker of the Erie team. Gygli is an old Southern League player and spent several seasons with Memphis and Chattanooga.

A MEETING of the lacrosse fans has been called for tomorrow night in the Y.M.C.A. The purpose is to organize a club for the O.A.L.A. It is to be hoped that a goodly number of enthusiasts will be on hand. You don't have to know the game to be a follower.

MARCH 17th is surely near. Here's a little of the Hamilton Herald's annual boasts:—

One writer says the Irish have been crowded out of baseball by other nationalities. Not out—but up. What nationality is out in front, leading the others? McGraw, McGillicuddy, Donovan, Carrigan, Moran, Huggins, Bresnahan — figure it out for yourself.

THE MOST TALKED of topic in Ontario sporting circles today is the case of the Toronto Victorias who have suspended themselves from the O.H.A. by playing Melville for the Allan Cup. The Heff-Meek organization is in a very uncomfortable corner and just what will be the ultimate result is hard to state. Certainly the team taken west by Manager eade and Harvey Sproule are in the wrong and now that Melville has succeeded in sending them back without the much coveted trophy, the fans of this province have not much sympathy for them. Here is how the Toronto Globe feels about it:—

> "The nerviest thing that has been heard of in connection with sport in many a day was the proposal of the Victorias that they would abandon the Allan Cup if their expenses were paid out of the O. H. A. funds, which would thus be applied to provide a ten-days' "gallivant" for a lot of players, with some of their officers and families, who had gone west entirely on their own responsibility, so far as the O.H.A. was concerned."

The Vics went west on their own hook to play exhibition games and for the Allan Cup if the O. H. A. so advised. The manager of the champions was advised not to go until the matter was cleared up but he wanted to give the "boys a trip" and would be governed by the ruling of the O.H.A. When they arrived in Winnipeg they did exactly what they were ordered not to do—play against a team ineligible under C. A. H. A. rules.

The O.H.A. can not be bluffed by the cry of "we'll form a new league." The Toronto Star of last evening stated:—

> When a club is disciplined for wrong-doing the old cry is resurrected "we'll form a new league," and the present case is no exception to the rule. The Victorias having automatically suspended themselves from the O. H. A. for playing against the Melville tourists, will likely start an agitation for a new organization which will not be so keen to observe the essential principles of good government. The OH..A. has been in existence for over twenty-six years, and has seen many such mushroom organizations come and go—none of them last more than a season, some of them not so long—and is still doing business at the old stand, exerting its best efforts in the interests of amateur hockey and the uplifting of the game.

MANAGER CRYSTALL PULLS THE STRING

Hamilton, March 9.—Manager Bill Cristall of the Hamilton ball team has entered into an agreement with Miller Huggins, manager of the St. Louis National League team, whereby the Hams will secure the services of a good young catcher at present with the St. Louis team. The youngster has been taken south to the training camp by Huggins, and is to be turned over to Hamilton in April. Cristall also has an opportunity to secure a good infielder from Huggins, and may avail himself of the opportunity. The St. Louis manager has asked for the privilege of first choice of any likely youngsters on the Hamilton team.

Lost the Bucket.

There is a good story in The Nation about one of the slighter accidents of the fleets. The other day the commander of a destroyer, rolling heavily in a gale, and with her engines disabled, tried to lessen the strain by ladling out oil. The seaman engaged in this work was washed overboard, and washed back again by a returning wave. He picked himself up, saluted his officer, and said: "Very sorry, sir; lost the bucket!"

Want Canadian Wood Ash.

There is a great demand in the New England and middle States for wood ash from Canada, both unbleached and bleached ashes. This demand is unprecedentedly great at the present time owing to the embargo just placed by Germany upon her exports of potash salts. This means that the United States will have to use every ton of wood ashes that Canada can spare.

MOUNTED RIFLES HARD AT WORK

Route Marches of Eight Miles Every Day

Ottawa, March 9.—The Peterborough Squadron of Mounted Rifles is already hard at work. Their soldier-like appearance has elicited warm praise from all quarters.

The Ottawa squadron is upstairs in route marches every day. They cover as many as 8 miles to a march, and with the splendid weather ahead the drilling is coming along particularly well. As soon as the Toronto squadron arrives there will be a turnout of the regiment complete, and the people of Ottawa will have an opportunity of seeing what the squadrons look like. It will be a dismounted parade, of course, as the horses for the regiment will not arrive for some time yet.

It is possible that the Artillery brigade will take the new horticultural hall for a barracks at the exhibition grounds. The hall has been used by the Glee Curling Club all winter, but the curling season is about over, or will be by the time the Artillery needs it, and it will make a splendid place for the gunners and drivers.

The Ottawa squadron upstairs in the part of the Howick Hall formerly used during the exhibitions for the poultry shows. The Toronto squadron will be upstairs also, while the Peterborough squadron and headquarters have the bunks downstairs.

It is expected that the companies raised for the 38th Royal Ottawa Regiment in Smith's Falls and Brockville will be brought to the city this week. There will be about 300 men in the body expected here, 250 having been recruited at Smith's Falls. The McGill double company is expected to arrive in Ottawa about April 1. About 150 men have already enlisted for this.

The proposal to raise a band to be connected with the 38th has met with public favor and it is expected that no great difficulty will be experienced in raising the necessary funds for instruments and music.

AN ADDRESS ON CANADA

That there is every proobability of Canada being the oldest country geographically, although one of the youngest in other ways, was the belief expressed by Judge Huycke last night during an address on Canada, delivered to the union meeting of young people's societies in Murray Street Baptist Church. Between two and three hundred of an audience heard the Judge give the address, which treated of this country in a manner somewhat off the beaten track adopted by speakers when discussing Canada. He dealt with the country largely from a geographical standpoint. He traced its history down through the tropical era, then to the glacial period, the latter, according to scientists, being responsible for the great lakes. In concluding, he pictured the future of the country and what a great career was at its command. Though probably the oldest, it was also the youngest, and full of promise. At the close he was accorded a hearty vote of thanks, on motion of Rev. J. A. MacKenzie and Rev. J. R. Webb.

A program of choruses, solos and readings was also supplied.

Mr. Joseph Wearing acted as chairman.

The evening was opened by the singing of the British Hymn of War, followed by the lesson reading by Rev. J. R. Webb. Rev. Mr. MacKenzie led in prayer. The male quartette of Park Street B. Y. P. U. sang, Mr. Smith contributed a solo. The chorus "O Canada" was sung. Miss Montgomery contributed a reading, and Miss Hinchcliffe and Mr. Smith a duet.

The sum of sixteen dollars was raised, which will help to wipe out the indebtedness of the societies for the piano installed in the Protestant Home.

HIGH CLASS BILLS AT ROYAL THEATRE

Under the management of Mr. Pappas, the Royal Theatre will reopen tomorrow afternoon, with a program that will win popular program. Beginning Monday there will be a complete change of vaudeville and 6000 feet of the best pictures obtainable. On Wednesday, a complete change in pictures will be seen and on Thursdays there will be new vaudeville. Friday sees another complete change in pictures.

BOARD OF TRADE ANNUAL IS POSTPONED

Meeting Will be Held Next Saturday Evening in Council Chamber

At a largely attended and enthusiastic meeting of the Council of the Board of Trade in the Secretary's office last night it was decided to postpone the annual meeting which was to be held tonight (Tuesday) until next Saturday night, March the 13th, at eight o'clock sharp.

It is the intention of the officers to make this meeting one of the best in the history of the Board and in order to do so it is essential that the meeting be well attended. After due consideration it was thought that Saturday night would be the most suitable night on which to hold the meeting as the greatest number are free to attend. The citizens, business and professional men should turn out in large numbers to back up the Board of Trade for the coming year.

New officers will be elected and quite a number of new lines of effort are to be introduced and it is confidently expected that 1914 will be a banner year for the local Board of Trade.

During the past year in spite of very adverse conditions and the great handicap under which the Board of Trade was working, they have accomplished something and what they have done under these conditions only goes to show what they could do under favorable conditions and if backed up by the strong support of the citizens and business men of the city.

Bear in mind that the Board of Trade is made up of a body of men possessed of exceedingly unselfish nature who have the interests of the city as a whole at heart. They are not receive remuneration of any kind but give their time, money and effort freely to further advance the city's interests.

The Board desires the citizens generally to feel that they are perfectly welcome to become members of the Board of Trade and to attend the meetings and bring up anything which in their mind would better in any way conditions in and around Peterborough.

The Board of Trade is entitled to your support and the officers believe that they will have it during the coming year. They would like every merchant who can possibly spare the time to attend. Come for a while anyway.

Be on hand at the meeting next Saturday night in the council chamber at 8 oc'lock sharp and lend a hand to perfecting an organization whose only aim is to work in the interests of Peterborough and its citizens.

OBITUARY

MRS. CATHERINE KENDREY.

Mrs. Catherine Kendrey, who had spent the greater part of her life in Peterborough, passed away last night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Burnet, 833 Water Street. Deceased was 88 years old.

The late Mrs. Kendrey was born in Paisley, Scotland, and came to this country with her parents, when she was but eight years old.

Surviving are five sons and three daughters. The sons are Messrs. James and Edward Kendrey, Peterborough; Emmett Kendrey, Renfrew; George Kendrey, Stanford, Conn., and Wm. Kendrey, Worthington, Pa. Mrs. Annie Wilson and Miss Kendrey of North Adams, Mass., and Mrs. Jas. Burnet, city, are the daughters.

In religion the late Mrs. Kendrey was a Presbyterian. Rev. R. Pogue will conduct the funeral service at the residence of Mr. Jas. Burnet, 833 Water Street, Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock. Interment will be made at Little Lake Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Kendrey justly deserves being termed one of the pioneers of this country. Born in the year 1826 she came to Canada in 1830 with her father, William McKeith, who settled in the township of Reach near St. Catharines.

Millions of Acres of Pre-emption.

The Hon W. J. Bowser, the Attorney-General of British Columbia, has just made public figures which give a striking picture of the agricultural development of that province, particularly in the districts opened up by the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. Before the railroads in British Columbia were built, he says, the Government withdrew from the market many large tracts of agricultural land. Following the reservation of these lands they were surveyed so that the pre-emptor could go in and select his land without danger of rival and interlapping claims which had caused confusion where there had been no surveys.

This had been done along the line of the Grand Trunk Pacific and in the last two years there had been filed at the land offices at Prince George, Port Fraser, Hazelton, and Prince Rupert no less than 3,643 pre-emption records in the land so reserved; which was four times the number of pre-emptions recorded in the whole of the province five years ago.

There were other thousands of acres of land waiting for the settler, surveyed and still under reserve. In four years the Government had surveyed for settlement no less than 3,789,372 acres, and the total amount of the land surveyed and ready for the pre-emptor, and the pre-emptor alone, amounted to 91,128,567 acres.

Miss Helen McLaren Concert Drew Large Audience

An undeniable success from the standpoint of merit and attendance was the unanimous verdict of the gratifying large audience who were present in St. Andrew's Church last evening at the Helen McLaren concert under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. Full of an indefinable charm from beginning to end, every number awoke spontaneous applause and those who took part acquitted themselves in a style that left little to be desired.

It would be presuming to attempt comparisons in the work of the various artists. Most of the talent was from Toronto so it devolved upon Miss McLaren, soloist of St. Andrews, and Mr. Herbert C. Treneer, organist, to uphold the local end which those present are bound to admit they did in the ablest possible manner. Miss Blanche Walters of Toronto, reader captured all hearts by storm and annexed a good share of the applause. Miss Eva Galloway, pianist, a mere slip of a girl was a marvel when it came to tickling the ivories, her rendition of "The Sextet from Lucia," with the left hand alone, surpassing anything that has held the attention of local music lovers since Mark Hambourg last paid the city a visit. There is a great future in store for this young artist upon the showing she made last evening and she will always be welcome to Peterborough.

Miss Olive Casey, soloist, of Toronto, was not a stranger, her last appearance being at the presentation of Judas Maccabaeus here. She sang in her customary rich and sympathetic style and showed great command and expression.

Encores were given nearly every number. Owing to the absence of programs, Rev. Mr. Rollins acted as chairman and announced the various numbers.

The first number was an organ selection my Mr. Herbert C. Treneer, the talented but sightless organist of St. Andrew's Church.

Miss Helen McLaren followed with a group of songs, opening with "Somewhere a Voice is Calling," a ballad that has recently sprung into the highest popularity. But coming from Miss McLaren, the sweet and lofty sentiment that permeates the two verses took on new meaning and impressiveness. Deep silence more expressive than applause rested upon the audience as she finished. Her two other numbers "Birth of Morn," and "The Spring," were given with befitting sprightliness and skill.

Miss Blanche Walters made her debut in two readings, the first being patriotic in character and winning unstinting applause while the second called The Obstructive Hat, being of lighter vein and extremely amusing. It portrayed a scene in a London theatre during a pantomime where the view of the stage was shut off by a lady adorned with a hat of generous circumference. Miss Walters mimicked the London dialect most accurately.

Miss Eva Galloway was next introduced in a different but descriptive number going through it with the master touch. She was forced to respond.

Miss Olive Casey contributed Carmencita, a number demanding considerable dramatic vocalism. Another organ selection by Mr. Treneer followed. Miss McLaren then sang in Italian. This selection was a revelation to the audience who were more than delighted with the fluency and familiarity she displayed in the field of foreign music. Miss Galloway came next rendering the Sextet from Lucia with the left hand. In this she won no small degree of the applause of the night. Miss Blanche Walters scored next in her delineation of how Black Bess, the parson's horse driven by his daughter Maud, won the race at the village fair. Miss Walters threw plenty of the necessary vim into this reading and fairly visualized the race to the audience. The concluding number was a duet rendition of "Barcarolle," from Tales of Hoffman, by Misses McLaren and Casey. It formed a fitting climax to the evening's program and one and all departed after singing the National Anthem delighted and thoroughly satisfied.

Miss Galloway played all the accompaniments in a manner that was faultless.

MAE EDWARDS PLAYERS OPEN AT THE GRAND

Mae Edwards' players opened their week's engagement at the Grand Opera House last night by presenting "At the Risk of His Life" to a fairly large audience. The company is entirely new to local theatre-goers, but can truly lay claim to patronage. The play last night was a regular stock company melodrama with the usual thrills and comedy, and judging by the commendable remarks as the audience filed out, it pleased. Mae Edwards, the leading lady, made a good impression, while Mr. W. Grayson in the principal male role was also strong.

The specialties and vaudeville numbers between the acts are good, in fact a little above the ordinary stock company. The "popular" songs are really popular, and the singing is above the average. A juggling act was perhaps the feature of the vaudeville bill, with the vocal offerings by Miss Della Alderson as close rivals for the honor. Tonight the company will play "The Woman in the Case."

HIS LAST DOLLAR AT EMPIRE THEATRE

The opening bill at the Empire Theatre this week is worth special mention. The feature is a four reel story of the race track, His Last Dollar, introducing Joe Higgins as Joe Baxton around whom the story is woven. There are also some good pictures of the Canadians at Salisbury Plain and of King George at Ypres. His Majesty is seen in the company of the Belgian king. A third film produces a real comedy.

BE PATRIOTIC AND HELP THE UNEMPLOYED

Attention is called to the fact that there is still a large number of unemployed in the city. The Industrial Association through its employment bureau at 352½ Water Street, has a large number of names of labourers and handy men on its books. These men are anxious for any kind of work to help keep the wolf from the door. On the other hand the bureau has positions available for the following:

3 domestics.
2 housekeepers for farm work.
1 elderly woman to act as companion for aged lady.
1 man and wife for farm work.
6 experienced farm hands.
6 experienced boys for farm work.

If you have any odd job to be done phone 1669 and Mr. Lankley will furnish a man to do it.

ITALIAN WARSHIPS PUT TO SEA

GENEVA, March 10.---(C.P.)---It has been learned from Vienna that several Italian warships have put to sea, probably bound for the Dardanelles. A Paris despatch says the Athens correspondent of the Matin says operations in the Dardanelles interrupted Tuesday morning by unfavorable weather, were vigorously resumed in the afternoon, the Allied warships silencing Turkish batteries on the heights of Renkui, which had annoyed them.

FLEET CREEPS TOWARD CONSTANTINOPLE

Retirement of Von Hindenberg From North Poland Said to be Imminent

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 10. — As England sees it, not since the war began has the situation on land and sea been more favorable to the Allies than today. Confident opinions of this nature are finding constant expression in London.

Slowly but surely the Allied fleet is creeping toward Constantinople, thus opening another road to Berlin.

The retirement of Von Hindenberg's army from North Poland is said to be imminent, by many British observers.

In the west, the Allies claim the ascendancy all along the line, although no decisive engagements are being fought, while in the Balkans and in Italy, according to British interpretation of political news from these countries, the majority is clamoring for intervention on the side of Great Britain, France and Russia.

This is said to be notably true in Greece and Roumania, in spite of the fact that the governments of those countries still cling to a policy of neutrality.

AGREEMENT BETWEEN GERMANY AND ITALY!

LONDON, March 10. — The Idea Nazionale of Rome discusses the report that Germany has agreed with Italy that if Austria refuses Italy's desired territorial concessions, no objections would be offered by Germany to an attack by Italy upon Austria, provided Italy did not enter into an alliance with the Triple Entente powers.

The paper considers such an agreement impossible and a betrayal of Italy.

JURY LEARN HOW JOHN SEENEY MET HIS DEATH

He Made a Statement to Doctor Who Attended Him at Hospital

BODY WAS EXHUMED

"We, the jury, do find that John Seeney came to his death by falling from C.P.R. passenger train, No. 602, on the night of Feb. 20th, one and one half miles east of Norwood."

In order that the inquest to enquire into the death of Seeney might be held it was necessary to exhume the body, the funeral having taken place last Sunday. Seeney died in the Nicholls Hospital Saturday morning, two weeks after being brought there with broken limbs, and frozen hands and feet, which resulted it was claimed from a fall from a C. P. R. train, east of Norwood. The inquest took place yesterday afternoon in Comstock's undertaking parlors. The testimony of several witnesses showed that Seeney was evidently stealing a ride in the blind baggage when he fell off. He also was able to tell John Buck of Norwood, who saw him shortly after, that he had slipped from the train. In the Nicholls Hospital here whither he was conveyed upon being brought to the city, he said he had been riding the blind baggage. The train had lurched throwing him off. He had been trying to save his passage.

Dr. Cameron, his physician, testified to the foregoing hospital information. Upon examination Dr. Cameron found the man's right arm broken, hands and feet frozen, besides other injuries. It was while partly rational that he had told him about getting the ride "blind" baggage. Dr. Cameron stated that the injuries upon Seeney's body were what would result from a fall from a train.

Evidence of Constable.

Constable Marshall of Havelock testified to seeing John Seeney climb aboard the blind baggage of train 602, about 3.30 p.m., Saturday, Feb. 20th. He got on between the engine and the baggage car. The constable said he knew Seeney was in the habit of drinking. His evidence was corroborated by that of Norman McKelvie who saw Seeney climb on the

Sterilizing Tanks on Boats Plying Kawartha Lakes

Another step forward towards further assuring a pure supply of water was made yesterday, when Dr. Clinton, district officer of health, in company with Sanitary Inspector Spence, sought and secured the co-operation of the Stoney Lake Navigation Company and the government through Trent Canal officials, whereby the boats plying the waters of the Kawartha Lakes will be equipped with sterilizing tanks to treat the refuse from the boats so that the waters will not be polluted.

These sterilizing tanks are to be found on the steamers plying the Muskoka waters.

Immediate action will be taken, so the Review is informed by Inspector Spence.

SUBMARINE U 20 IS SENT BELOW

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 10. — The German submarine U-20 has been sent to the bottom, according to a statement issued today by the Admiralty.

She was built in 1913 with a displacement of 840 tons and a speed of 17 knots on the surface and 12 knots submerged, and carried three tubes.

The U-20 was rammed today by the British destroyer Ariel and went to the bottom. Her crew surrendered and were saved. This makes the seventh German submarine officially announced sunk since the war began, the others being the U-15, U-18, U-8, and three unidentified. It is believed the U-20 sunk the British steamer Blackwood yesterday. Her crew will be held for trial.

GERMAN AUXILIARY CRUISER IN TROUBLE.

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., March 10. — The German auxiliary cruiser Prince Eitel Frederic, which arrived here today short of coal and provisions, is also said to be in need of repairs, and may intern.

PETERBORO' PRESBYTERY DISCUSSED NEW HYMNAL

Call to Milverton Pastor From Lakefield is Sustained

An important meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery was held here yesterday when the new Presbyterian hymnal was discussed and reports on the year's operations were made. In regard to the hymnal, a report was made by Rev. Mr. Brown of Campbellford, the convenor of the committee. It was decided that at the adjourned meeting a whole day be devoted to further discussion of the subject and that Rev. Mr. McMillan of Toronto, who is a member of the hymnal committee, be invited to attend the meeting.

A call extended to the Rev. Mr. Robinson, of Milverton, Stratford Presbytery, by the Presbyterians of Lakefield, was sustained, and the clerk was instructed to forward the call to the Stratford Presbytery.

Among the reports made was that of Mr. Richard Lees, M. A., dealing with social and moral conditions throughout the Presbytery.

Chatham, March 10. — At a meeting of the Chatham Presbytery yesterday the call of Rev. J. A. H. McLean, of Mull, to Avondale, near Stratford, was not prosecuted, because the congregation had not been cited owing to lack of time. The congregation will be cited within the next few weeks and the call will be dealt with either at a special meeting of the Presbytery or at a Synod meeting in London in about six weeks.

Woodstock, March 10. — The Presbytery of Paris met in Knox Church, Rev. J. F. Clugston, of Paris, moderator, presiding. A call from Balfour street church, Brantford, and Onondaga, to Rev. D. L. Campbell of Dover Centre, Chatham Presbytery, was sustained.

A call from Burford and Mount Pleasant to Rev. R. T. Moodie, at present without a charge and residing in Toronto, was also sustained, and arrangements for the induction on March 23 at Mount Pleasant were made.

HILL IS OCCUPIED

Trenches Pushed Forward Eighty Meters at Madam Fountaine

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Paris, March 10.—The afternoon official report says:—

"North of Arras, in the region of Notre Dame de Lorett, the night was quiet and the situation is unchanged.

The importance of our progress yesterday in Champagne is confirmed. A violent German counter attack made on Ridge 196 was vigorously repulsed and we gained a little ground along the road from Perthes to Tahure. On a hill northeast of Mesnil, our infantry after having carried German works mentioned in last communication reached the hill beyond.

In the Argonne at Fontaine-Madame, we demolished the blockhouse and pushed our trenches 80 meters forward. Between Four-de-Paris and Bolante, the enemy attacking at 4 p.m., took from us trenches we had captured in the morning. However a fresh attack gave us possession of them once more. The enemy then attacked again and according to latest information, fighting continues."

A NEW TRAIN

The Review is credibly informed that the C. P. R. will shortly add another Chicago train to the service from Montreal and through Peterborough.

This being the case, the objections which recently emanated from this city will have been answered to the satisfaction of all concerned.

ARE THEY THREATENING THE REVIEW?

IT HAS BEEN intimated to the Review that we are making a mistake in endeavouring to have a complete investigation into recent doings in this city, and that we may lose largely in advertising as a result if we continue our efforts. While no direct threat has been made, we have been too long in the publishing business not to know what is meant. If such is the penalty we have to pay in the public interest, we are satisfied. We will, however, have the satisfaction of knowing that we did not shirk the duty of a public journal when it is manifestly in the public interest to call attention to the doings of a set that have been, and no doubt are still, corrupting all who come in contact with them. We still believe the authorities are not doing their whole duty when they are endeavouring to silence the affair. The fact remains, in reply to the authorities, that they did not wait for anyone to lay a charge when the first arrest was made. Then why try to pass off the matter now with the answer, "Lay a charge, and we will act?" The Review does not intend to be silenced in this matter, and we say, in reply to those who would discipline us, that so long as the public good can be served by calling attention to the neglect of officials, the Review will continue to do so.

THE STAR'S BAD GRACE.

THE TORONTO STAR attacks the Government because it resented the untrue statements made by Dr. Shortt, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, statements for which Dr. Shortt has since apologized. The Star is evidently smarting under the damage that has been done to the reputation of the Liberals, who made such a fuss over Dr. Shortt's statement, and now find that their whole attack was without foundation. The Star's position doesn't improve any with the disgruntled declaration that the truce is at an end because Hon. Robert Rogers defended the Government from unfounded accusations. Hon. Robert Rogers was severe on Dr. Shortt, but, when one considers the effect of the statement and its significance, especially in view of its unfounded character, Hon. Robert Rogers was quite justified in answering those statements in the vigorous manner in which he did.

WHY DON'T THEY MOVE FASTER?

WE REMEMBER how the German Jack Johnsons smashed the forts at Liege, Antwerp and other places. It was only a matter of days when they were knocked to pieces. Comparing this with what a large fleet of the most modern battleships have done in the Dardanelles, it appears that the Germans lead in efficiency. While the fleets have been hampered by bad weather, have had to provide against submarines and mines, yet many of the forts in the Dardanelles were of ancient construction. Of course, there are a great many forts in the Dardanelles — they are strung along both sides of the strait, and, while mounting heavy guns, it is reasonable to suppose that the guns of the big battleships far outclass them in power and range. Considering the evidence we have, it appears that the allied fleet is not moving fast enough against the Turkish forts.

ARE HOSPITALS EFFICIENT?

THE TORONTO GLOBE published an editorial on Tuesday criticizing Toronto hospitals. The Globe was not severe in its criticism, but the public feeling in regard to the administration of hospitals throughout the province is such that they should receive considerable attention. It is stated that wrong doses of medicine are frequently given, that patients in public wards receive scant attention, that deaths occur that should be investigated. It is said that unless a patient is able to pay well, the treatment given is very poor. There has been some such criticism of hospitals in Peterborough, and, while it would not likely apply to all hospitals, yet the criticism is fairly general. It appears that the Government should make an effort for the more efficient administration of hospitals in this province.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

SIR RICHARD McBRIDE, Premier of British Columbia, who will go to the people very shortly, has been premier of that province since 1903, and is one of the outstanding figures in the Conservative party in the Dominion. "Dick" McBride, as he is familiarly known on the Pacific Coast, was born in New Westminster in 1870, educated in that city and at Dalhousie University, Halifax. He first entered the local House in 1898, was leader of the Opposition for the years 1902-03, and became premier of the province on June 1, 1903. He was knighted a short time ago. Sir Richard is a skilful politician and is extremely popular in British Columbia, but it is not expected that he will make again the clean sweep he did when he last appealed to the people. That his party will be returned to power is hardly to be doubted.

THE LIBERALS undoubtedly are afraid of an election. The Globe's leader on Tuesday made it plain that the Grits do not want an election. The Globe should first assure its readers that the challenge of Liberals, like Messrs. Graham and Turriff, to the Conservatives to go to the country was not sincere, and that the bales of campaign literature being shipped to strategic points is not for party purposes. Then it could rant with some justification about the party truce.

SOME IDEA of the size of the auxiliary fleet Great Britain is using to move and sustain her armies in the field may be gained from the fact that fifteen hundred British vessels, aggregating more than 3,500,000 tons, have been taken over by the British Admiralty on time charters, the Government taking all responsibility and agreeing to return the vessels as received. Britain's big armies are evidently going to be lined up for the Spring offensive.

DR. ROBINSON has told how he evaded the Provincial Police. He "arranged" with them for his capture on the steps of the City Hall, Toronto, when they hadn't sense enough to look for him where he would likely be. Being no great shakes as a police force, the Attorney-General would do well to take into consideration the question whether the Provincial Police has any excuse to exist.

THE MONTREAL NEWS advises that Canada should consider the immigration problem, as it will likely be when peace comes. Undoubtedly such a problem is one of the most important affecting this country, but let us first help to wallop the Germans. That is the big job requiring all our attention now. The other can wait.

SOME bluff and humbug of a low demagogue is the way La Patrie characterizes the efforts of Montreal's mayor to relieve unemployment. That is some characterization.

MANY dead men have their names on jury lists, says an Ottawa newspaper. Well, they are as good as many live ones that sit on juries.

BY THE WAY, some fairly respectable citizens have brought us poems to publish in the last few days. Is that a sign of Spring, or what?

"THE CANADIAN idea," says the Buffalo News, "of advertising in the press for bigger crops is an excellent one."

IF ANYBODY wants information on squid, we refer them to Hon. Bill Pugsley. He knows a lot about squid.

QUEEN ELIZABETH always had a habit of dominating things. So has the big battleship of that name.

MARBLES and skipping-ropes — that's a sign of Spring, is it not?

NO, dear reader, squid has no connection with chewing tobacco.

DR. SHORTT was short—on some things.

Sticking Closely Together.
(Oshawa Vindicator.)

It is interpreted that Britain, in recalling certain purchasing officers from the Western States, thinks she can rely upon Russia instead of America for wheat consequent on the forcing of the Dardanelles. If this is so, it is more evidence that the allies of the Triple-Entente are sticking closely together.

The Engineer.
(Exchange.)

Pat and Mike bought an alarm clock. On the first night it ran all right; on the second night it did not run right; on the third it was worse, and on the fourth it stopped entirely. Mike said: "Why don't you take it apart?" Pat did so. Inside he found a dead roach. "No wonder it stopped," said Pat; "shure, the engineer's dead."

The Poor Public Man.
(Toronto Weekly Sun.)

President Hadley of Yale advises young men without wealth who have their way to make in the world not to go into politics, because under the present system there will inevitably come a time when they will have to choose between doing something right and staying out of office and doing something wrong and staying in. While it might be good for the families of poor men if this advice were generally followed, it could hardly be good for the State, if politics were entirely given over to the rich. One of the few pleasing promises of the hard times now setting in in Canada is that politics or public life may presently attract more men of ability and "altruistic ideals." They will, at all events, make politics more interesting than it is now.

The General and the Journalist.
(Montreal Journal of Commerce.)

Now it is General Alderson, Commander of the First Canadian Contingent while in camp in England, who finds himself in conflict with the press. The statements of Mr. H. C. Crowell, correspondent of the Halifax Chronicle, respecting the alleged ill-treatment of the Nova Scotian Highland Regiment, having been cabled to England by the Prime Minister, the acting High Commissioner, Sir George Perley, replied that the statements had been greatly exaggerated, that Lord Kitchener had declared them to be untrue, and that General Alderson said the correspondent had called upon him and that, when given the facts regarding the camp, he said "he thought it would be advisable for him to cable his paper not to use an article which he had mailed." When Lord Kitchener repudiated the Cobb interview, published in an American paper, he at the same time admitted that he had talked with Mr. Cobb for a few moments. That a versatile American correspondent could produce an extended interview from a very brief conversation with the chief of the War Office can easily be understood by journalists. But in the case of General Alderson and the Canadian correspondent, a conflict arises which does not seem to be readily explained. Mr. Crowell, since the publication of his first letter about the Nova Scotia regiment, has returned to Halifax from Europe, and in a further article he says he endeavoured to interview General Alderson, but that officer declined to receive him. There is here a conflict of statment, an explantaion of which will be looked for with interest.

NEW CRISIS AT HAND.

Americans In Mexico City Have Been Warned to Leave.

WASHINGTON, March 10.—American citizens have again been warned to leave Mexico City in view of the critical situation that has arisen there. Secretary Bryan announced last night that transportation facilities would be sought for as many as desired to leave. The battleship Georgia and the armored cruiser Washington were ordered by Secretary Daniels to proceed at once to Vera Cruz, after conferences with President Wilson.

Consular messages from Vera Cruz stated that it was reported there that the evacuation of Mexico City began Monday night.

Enrique C. Llorente, Washington representative of Gen. Villa, received a message saying the Zapatista forces occupied Mexico City yesterday.

Word came from American Consul Silliman that at a personal interview with Gen. Carranza he had delivered to the latter the formal note from the United States Government, demanding an improvement in conditions for foreigners in the territory under his control.

To Settle With Japan.

PEKIN, China, March 10. — M. Hicki, the Japanese Minister at Pekin, in charge of the Japanese negotiations with China concerning the Tokio demands, has handed to Lughenghsiang, Chinese Minister of Foreign Affairs, a communication which China interprets as implying that unless the demands are accepted by March 12, force would be employed by Japan.

This notice is not considered an ultimatum by the Chinese Government, nevertheless Luchenghsiang, after a series of conferences with President Yuan Shikai, has decided to expedite the discussions with the Japanese legation and to agree quickly to those of the demands which China considers it possible to accept.

Russian Flag Took Lead.

LONDON, March 10.—A despatch to The Morning Post from Petrograd says: "In order to emphasize the solidarity of the allied powers, a striking departure from naval custom marked the entrance of the allied fleet into the Dardanelles. The Russian cruiser Askold was gracefully invited to take the Russian flag into the straits ahead of the other flags. The ordinary procedure would have been to give precedence to the flag having the strongest force in the operations."

$100,000,000 for Public Works.

MONTREAL, March 10.—In an open letter he yesterday morning addressed to Premier Borden, the Prime Ministers of the various provinces, and the mayors of the larger cities of the Dominion, Controller McDonald suggests that the federal, provincial and municipal authorities vote a credit of $100,000,000, to be applied to public works all over the Dominion for the relief of the unemployed. The controller estimates that there are at present 100,000 unemployed in the country, and the $100,000,000 would, in his opinion, provide work for this number for one year. Of the $100,000,000 the sum of $70,000,000 would be expended in wages and the balance in materials for work.

War Tax In Nova Scotia.

HALIFAX, N.S., March 10. — The first direct provincial taxation in the history of Nova Scotia since Confederation is now proposed by Premier Murray, who introduced a bill in the House of Assembly called the Provincial War Tax Act. Under its provisions it is proposed to levy a tax of one mill on the dollar on all assessable property in the municipalities, towns and cities of Nova Scotia. The tax, it is estimated, will produce $117,000 additional revenue. The provincial deficit at the end of the fiscal year was $113,000.

The Struggle.

The road to eminence and power from an obscure condition ought not to be made too easy nor a thing too much of course. If rare merit be the rarest of all things it ought to pass through some sort of probation. The temple of honor ought to be seated on an eminence. If it be open through virtue let it be remembered, too, that virtue is never tried but by some difficulty and some struggle.—Burke.

On the fatter and the thinner
As he makes an evening call.

Very truly it is awful
That the creature should be lawful.
I have often got my craw full

And with lead should fill him nigh full,
Ending thus his life of crime.

A PHILANTHROPIST

How Joe Carpenter Secured a Good Salary

By F. A. MITCHEL.

Joe Carpenter was a clerk in the office of the third vice president of the —— railroad system. Joe was at his desk one morning sorting papers when he received a call to his chief's private room. When he appeared the vice president said to him:

"I wish you to take this package to Miss Dorothea Penfield, as addressed. Here are twenty $1,000 bonds, the last of the lot we agreed to send her. Be very careful with them, and deliver them to no one except Miss Penfield herself, taking her receipt."

Joe took the package and left the room. He had heard that Miss Penfield was the only daughter of the man who had organized the railroad system in which he was employed and that she had inherited his vast interest in it, making her one of the richest women in America. Joe had also heard that the lady was a philanthropist. Philanthropist is a very big word, and he associated with it a very important woman. His mental picture of her was a middle aged person, partly gray and with a very benevolent face. But, handling so large a fortune as she possessed, she must have an air of business about her.

He placed the package in his inside coat pocket, put a safety pin over it, buttoned the coat over his breast and sallied forth on his errand. He expected to find Miss Penfield's residence a palace, but it was an ordinary stone front city residence. He was admitted by a maid (not in the black and white uniform of a servant girl) and ushered into a room from which he could look into another room in the rear, where sat a young girl hammering on a typewriter.

A lady answering Joe's imaginary description of Miss Penfield came into the room where he was and looked at him inquiringly, as much as to ask, "What can I do for you?"

"Are you Miss Penfield?" asked Joe.

"I am."

"Here are some bonds that I have been instructed to deliver to you."

He produced the package. She took it into the back room, where she opened it and after a few words with the typist dictated a receipt. This done, both women left the room. A few minutes later Miss Penfield came into the room where Joe was waiting, handed him the receipt, and he returned with it to the railroad office.

All this is an apparently unimportant part of this story. You must know that Joe Carpenter was very attractive in his appearance, and the typewriter in the back room was a very pretty girl.

While Joseph was sitting in the next room to her she looked up from her work and caught him looking at her admiringly. On several other occasions during his stay at the house she looked up and every time saw that same admiring glance. Indeed, what Joe was thinking was expressed through his eyes, and what he was thinking was this: "You're pretty enough to kiss."

Joe went away thinking of that fair skin, those coral lips, those gazelle eyes (these were his own designations of them), and he kept on thinking of them all that day and the next and the next, till one morning the third vice president sent for him again and said to him:

"Carpenter, I have a telephone message from Miss Penfield asking me to send her the numbers of the bonds you delivered to her the other day, and she would like them sent by you. You are sure the delivery was all right, aren't you?"

"I delivered the package as you gave it to me. The receipt tallied with your record, didn't it?"

"Oh, yes. The receipt was all right. You'd better take the numbers to her"—he handed Joe a bit of paper with the numbers on it—"and hear what she has to say."

Joe put the paper in his pocket and repaired to the Penfield residence. This time he was received by the pretty typewriter. She came into the room where he was, with a slightly heightened color.

"Miss Penfield is indisposed this morning. She has asked me to say that in making a list of the bonds you brought her the other day before putting them in the safety deposit vaults a mistake was made, and she thought that one of the bonds was missing. But it's all right. The error has been discovered. She desires me to apologize to you for putting you to the trouble of coming."

"I'm glad you've found it," said Joe, much relieved. "If you hadn't it would have laid me liable to the charge of having extracted it from the package and appropriating it."

"I didn't think of that," said the girl, evidently somewhat disturbed.

Joe had risen at her entrance and was moving toward the door.

"I hope," continued the typist, "that you haven't suffered from suspicion, even temporarily."

"Oh, that doesn't matter so long as I'm exonerated."

"I wish you would sit down a few minutes. I would like to talk with you about it."

She motioned Joe to an easy chair and took another herself. Despite all Joe could say to relieve her mind she persisted in saying that the note to the vice president should not have been sent. But in time she changed the subject, and the two chatted glibly on other subjects. Presently Joe looked at his watch and started.

"Great heavens!" he exclaimed. "It's two hours since I left the office. I must find some excuse for staying so long away from my work or I'll get fired."

"If you do I think I know another place you can get. When you left the other day Miss Penfield said: 'I wish I could get some young man like that to take these details off my hands. I am nearly swamped with them.' How would you like such a position?"

"I wouldn't like it at all at the same salary. I have a better chance for promotion with the railroad company."

When Joe departed the typewriter asked for his address, and a few days later he received a note from Miss Penfield stating that she was intending to open an office for the transaction of the business of her estate and was looking for a manager. Would he accept the position and if so at what salary? Joe after thinking the matter over decided to accept the position, being influenced solely by the fact that he hoped to see the pretty typewriter occasionally. Indeed, a love affair had been started between him and her which bade fair to be of the galloping kind. So he wrote that he was at Miss Penfield's service and would leave the salary to her.

A reply came asking if $2,500 a year would be sufficient to begin on. Since Joe was receiving but $100 a month, he replied that the amount named would be satisfactory, and he received an order to find a suitable office and procure the necessary furniture.

Joe at once resigned his position in the railroad office, hunted up an office, furnished it, then went to Miss Penfield's house and transferred the books and papers pertaining to the estate. Miss Penfield spent several days with him in the office initiating him, or, rather, trying to initiate him into the business at hand. But it was in such a state of confusion that it soon became evident to Joe that he must straighten them out by his own efforts. Indeed, he found the lady more of a detriment than a help. However, at the end of a couple of weeks he had everything in order.

The manager of the Penfield estate received occasional invitations to dine at the house. Sometimes Miss Penfield was at the table; sometimes he was entertained by the typewriter. He learned from her that she was a connection of Miss Penfield, her name being also Penfield. Joe asked her if she would be likely to lose her position since an office had been opened for the transaction of the business of the estate, and she told him that the private correspondence could not be relegated to the office and it required so much of her time that she was thinking of getting an assistant.

Even if Miss Penfield appeared at the dinner table when Joe dined at the house she disappeared as soon as the meal was over, leaving Joe and the typewriter together. The affair turned out to be a quick and desperate case of love. Joe proposed to the typewriter, was accepted, and they began to plan for their marriage.

"I hope," said the young lady, "that you are not counting upon my getting any help from Miss Penfield. She will not give me a cent."

"We don't need her assistance," replied Joe. "On my salary we can get on very well."

His fiancee threw her arms around his neck and said that with such a manly husband she had no fear of poverty whatever.

Joe suggested that they be married at once and take a little house. Eighteen hundred a year would be plenty for them to live on and they could put away seven hundred for a nest egg. His fiancee offered to look for the house, to which Joe consented since he was very busy at his office. One day she told him that she had found a cozy little nook, just the home for a young couple starting in life. Joe proposed that they go together to look at it, but being occupied with preparations for the wedding the bride to be put the visit off from day to day. What surprised Joe was that she insisted on a church wedding and the sending out of innumerable cards. To this he protested on the ground that they could not afford the expenditure. They were in Miss Penfield's house at the time.

"Joe," said his fiancee, "there's a secret between us that I can't keep any longer. She whom you have known as Dorothea Penfield is my Aunt Susan Penfield. I am Dorothea Penfield. The first time you called here I was amusing myself with a new typewriter on which I was learning to write. I saw that there was a case of love between us and that you supposed my aunt was the heiress. I have always expected to be married for my money, and here was a chance to be courted for myself. I availed myself of it and have permitted you to continue to be deceived."

"And you are Dorothea Penfield, the philanthropist worth millions?" exclaimed Joe with eyes as big as saucers.

"I am."

A look of disappointment crossed Joe's face.

"What is it?" asked Dorothy anxiously.

"There's nothing to be done; life will have no struggles, no contrasts between work and play."

"Joe," she said, embracing him, "if we can't work for ourselves we can work for others. To give intelligently involves much care and plenty of effort."

And so it proved.

Reckless.

A colored man and his finest girl walked into a drug store. The man bought a one cent picture postcard and a one cent postage stamp. As he started to place the stamp on the postcard the colored woman walked toward the front door.

"Wait a minute, Susie," said the colored man. "I'm not near through." The colored man turned to the clerk and bought a package of chewing gum. As the couple walked out of the drug store the colored man was heard to remark, "There's no limit to me, Susie, when I'm out with you."—Indianapolis News.

TURN OF THE WORM.

Her Claim to Fame Put All Her Rivals Out of the Running.

The superintendent of a charitable institution for the aged poor in a certain district says that there is no topic more pleasing to some old women than the discussion of their "better days," when they were the fortunate possessors of "everything heart could wish for," as they are apt to express it.

One old lady in the institution mentioned never tired of describing the finery she had when she was a bride. Another boasted of having once owned a "gold band chiny tea set" and six solid silver teaspoons, while a third dwelt at length on the elegance of a flowered silk gown and satin parasol with fringe fifteen inches long.

One poor old lady stood this sort of talk as long as she could. Then she calmly interrupted with:

"Well, I never had no chiny tea things, nor no silk gowns, nor embroidered petticoats, nor openwork stockings, nor gold earrings, nor nothin' o' that sort, but I have had four husbands, an' I'd like to know whether any of you can beat that!"—Exchange.

FOR SLENDER WOMEN.

Though Somewhat Passe, the Tunic Has Many Charms.

GAUZE AND SATIN ROBE.

Fashion is expected to swing away from the tunic, but many tunics and tiered gowns will doubtless be worn for a time. Certain designers still favor them, and certain types of women still find them becoming. There is no doubt that they are a boon to the very slim. The gown pictured here is an evening model in satin with silver embroidered overdress of gauze. A drapery of the embroidered gauze over the shoulders maintains the sleeveless effect. Charming and artistic, this gown is of almost Greek simplicity in line.

SPRING HATS.

Manufacturers Are Making Up a Great Line of Attractive New Straws.

In regard to spring fashions the Millinery Trade Review says:

Of straw materials the fine milans, hemps, lisere, leghorn and tagal come in for their usual share of prominence in the development of high priced hats. A new tubular braid that is described as lemon or barnyard straw is prominently featured. This last named material makes up a very smart blocked hat, and there is every possibility of its being extensively used.

New spring hats are shown developed of plaited raffia, which comes in squares and is especially clever in the making up of hand made models.

Gelatin straw braid also promises to be popular. This is of very glossy appearance, with an exceedingly rough surface.

The combination of straw braids with fabrics of various textures is a happy addition to the list of novelties shown, among which faille taffeta and satin are used, as well as chiffon and georgette crape. In the development of midsummer hats this last named fabric makes a strong bid for favor.

Horsehair lace braid was much used last spring, and comprehensive lines show a few of these models, which are naturally of the hand made type.

Tennis and Golf Skirts.

For spring tennis and golf there have been provided pleated and gored skirts of serge, of gabardine and of linen, very short as to length and wide as to hem. They find their complement in the tailored shirtwaists of silk or linen, made with flaring collar, completed by a Windsor tie of some brightly figured silk.

Geographical Names.

What is known as the "hollow land?" Holland.

What is known as the "prospect mountain?" Montevideo.

What is known as the "swift river?" Tallapoosa, Ala.

What is known as the "cat's throat?" Cattegat.

Charade.

Soft and still o'er the woods and fields
My first unto Aurora yields.
'Neath the oak's wide spreading boughs,
Seeking second, come the cows.
Grows my whole in hedges high;
He who eats the fruit will die.
Answer: Night, shade—nightshade.

"Speeding the Parting Guest."

Mr. Longstopper—As soon as your mother comes in, so I can pay my respects to her, I shall have to be leaving.

Miss Longsuffer—Willie, go and tell mamma to hurry up.—Exchange.

Vindictive.

"Do you succeed in loving your enemies?"

"Not exactly," answered Senator Sorghum. "But I have a good deal of sympathy for them."

"I didn't know they needed sympathy."

"They don't. But they're going to before I get through with them."

SOLDIERS WERE HIT BY CUPID

Casualties Among Canadians in Britain Were Fairly Heavy

When a Canadian lieutenant married a charming young French girl in Plymouth within a week after the arrival of the Canadian contingent at that port, war was forgotten by the troops for a moment and tongues wagged about the romance. And when a story appeared in a London paper announcing the wedding of a British-born Canadian soldier to a Belgian refugee, who could speak very broken English, the eternal question of "When will we go to the front?" was discarded for a short space and tongues wagged some more. And again when The Mirror published a photograph of a Canadian alongside of that pretty girl, who had been married after not seeing each other for years, there was more food for talk about romance.

Truly there have been a number of romances since the Canadians arrived in England, but principally among English girls and men who have come back after living in Canada for a time. Judging by the announcements which appear occasionally in London papers, there surely have been a couple of dozen or even more, weddings of soldiers connected with the Canadian expeditionary force.

On visiting the dead letter department in the base postoffice, in charge of Sergeant Ross of London, the other day, it was found that the sergeant was greatly worried. "Now, wouldn't this sort of thing get your goat," said the sergeant to a newly-arrived letter addressed to "one of the Canadian soldiers." "I don't know what I am going to do with such a letter. We get lots just like this one."

The letter was from a widow who is in search of a husband and evidently tired of trying to land one through a matrimonial agency she figured that there may be some brave men among the Canadians. The epistle read as follows:

"London, Dec. 15.

"Dear Friend From——

"Would any soldier of the Canadian contingent care to marry a widow with three small children? The writer is quite young, not ugly, but tired of her struggle against big odds, and has for two years supported herself and little ones with her sewing machine, and would like to meet with a homely man who has no relations and about thirty years of age. Looks immaterial if of a kindly nature and lonely. Meeting to be arranged by letter. No photograph handy or I would send one. Answer in strict confidence.

"Sincerely yours,

"Hannah ——, Stoke Newington."

"He would have to be a regular hero," said the sergeant. "Three small children and her name is Hannah. Mein Gott."

"I have written to her," spoke up one of the sorters. "And I got a lovely reply. I think there are about half a dozen around here trying to break her heart. It is a crime, that's what it is."

The Artist's Quandary.

Proudley—If Dobleigh has finished his painting why doesn't he send it to the exhibition and let people see it?

Emmerly—Because he's in a quandary about giving it a name. Some of his friends want him to enter it as "The Falls of Niagara," and others advise him to turn the canvas upside down and call it "A Yellowstone Park Geyser."—Puck.

Better Idea.

"Why are you late for school, Harold?

"We had the most delicious pancakes for breakfast, and it takes a long time to make them. Mother sent you a note."

"Hum," sniffed the teacher. "Why didn't she send me a few of the pancakes?"—Kansas City Journal.

A Careful Housewife.

"Did you peel the onion under water to avoid having your eyes smart?"

"Yes, and I have an idea."

"What is it?"

"Why not boil the water and serve it as onion soup?"—Kansas City Journal.

MRS. WISENEIGHBOUR says:

"I should have told you the other day, when I was speaking of 'Eddy's' Washboards, that it is just as necessary to have an Indurated Fibrewear Tub to hold your clothes, if you want to make a success of wash-day."

MRS. NEWLYWED says:

"I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and wooden ware?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece. It cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour.

WHY THE NEED OF GREATER PRODUCTION

Great Britain has invested more money in this country than in any other country in the world, outside of the United States. The sum total is no less than $2,800,000,000, being equal to $400 for every man, woman and child.

This money has gone largely to provide railway and other facilities for carrying on our business. It is loaned money, and bears one hundred and twenty million dollars interest annually. That interest must be met. It can be met only by exporting surplus products. There is a ready market for all the farm products we can produce over and above our own requirements. A twenty per cent. increase in farm production will cover our interest payments and maintain the country's credit.

This is one answer to the question, Why is it necessary that Canada at this particular time should increase the output of the farm?

It is neither asked nor expected that the farmer should bear the whole burden. The railways and other organizations engaged in the transportation of products must bear their share. The financial institutions of the country must be asked to assist in financing the farmer's business as well as the manufacturer's. The farmers of almost every country in Europe enjoy the advantages of rural credits. Similar facilities are urgently needed here.

The need of supplying the farmer with information that will enable him to distribute and market his products to the best advantage, is becoming more and more urgent. The Canadian Minister of Agriculture recently put the matter in this form:

"It is not, therefore, only greater production, but better production and cheapened production, more accurate knowledge of markets and better facilities for reaching them. All these things are tied up together, and it is to these things that not only farmers but governments, bankers and transportation men have to address themselves."

A clearer understanding of some of the handicaps retarding production will be one of the good results that must grow out of the present campaign.

But let not the farmer stay his hand because these and other defects in the economic system have not yet been remedied. Your country needs you, and needs you now.

The loyalty and patriotism of the farmer has never been called into question. He has the opportunity before him to give expression to his patriotism by helping to keep up the food supply of Britain and her Allies. There is a higher motive than that of the pocket merely, and it should be a stronger one.

At the same time the business aspect must be recognized. With a food shortage staring it in the face, the world is ready to absorb at good prices all we can produce.

The main object of the campaign is to make clear the situation.

There is no more reasonable body to deal with than the farmers. Lay the facts before them clearly and fully and they may be relied on to reach a correct decision.

There is no necessity for calling upon the farmer to work harder or for longer hours. Neither is it advisable to dictate to him as to what he should produce nor how he should produce it. The individual farmer must decide for himself how best to meet the demand.

We see the question asked, and asked too by agricultural journals, How can the farmer increase the output without putting more acres under cultivation and employing more labor?

That production may to some extent be increased without a corresponding increase in labor is clearly indicated. The best strains of seed will give larger yields than inferior kinds. A strain suited to the soil and climate and sown at the right time will give better returns than seed that is not. Pure seed, plump seed, seed of strong vitality, will increase the yield. These and other important principles are not as widely applied as they might be.

There is an appalling and almost universal waste in the handling of liquid and solid manure in this country. Rectify this and restore to the soil the elements of fertility now lost through lack of care, and production may be increased without any appreciable increase in labor.

If the facts of the case indicate it, as we believe they do, then the farmer is warranted in employing more labor, provided suitable labor can be secured; he is warranted in preparing his land better, sowing his seed better, and in this manner doing what he can to meet the Empire's needs. The man who fails in his duty in the country's crisis will regret it all his days.

Replying to a question in the House, Major-General the Hon. Sam. Hughes stated that the Government had paid out the following sums for land and sea transport of the first Canadian expeditionary force: To the Canadian Pacific Railway, $915,000, to the Canadian Northern Railway $308,000, and to the Grand Trunk Railway, $141,000.

STOCKS OF WHEAT NOW IN CANADA

Amount is Given as Eighty Million Bushels

SUPPLY IS AMPLE

For all Requirements Between Now and Next Harvest

Ottawa, March 10.—A press bulletin issued today by the Census and Statistics Office gives the results of a special inquiry for the purpose of ascertaining the stocks of wheat in Canada on February 8, 1915. The inquiry, carried out by direction of the Hon. Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce, and conducted by the Census and Statistics Office in conjunction with the Department of Trade and Commerce and the Board of grain Commissioners, was effected by means of schedules addressed to elevator, flour mill and railway companies and to crop-reporting correspondents for the estimation of quantities in farmers' hands. Compilation of the returns received shows that the amount of wheat, and of wheat the equivalent of flour, in Canada on February 8 last was 79,130,595 bushels, or, if allowance be made for a small proportion of non-replies, an aggregate in round figures 80 million bushels. The total of 79,130,595 bushels is distributed as follows: Terminal elevators 2,853,679 bushels, railway elevators 1,213,952 bushels, other elevators 26,776,246 bushels, flour mills 6,160,840 bushels, in transit by rail 12,571,876 bushels and in farmers' hands 29,554,000 bushels. The result of the inquiry shows that the quantity of wheat in Canada should be amply sufficient to meet all requirements between now and the next harvest. For seeding this spring and for food during the next six months, it is estimated that 44½ million bushels will be required, thus leaving, on February 8, 1915, in addition to the usual small quantity of imports, a balance of 35¾ million bushels for export and reserve. From February 8 to March 2, 36,370 bushels of wheat, and flour expressed as wheat, were imported and 6,741,920 bushels were exported. The inquiry took no account of quantities of wheat flour in the hands of wholesale and retail vendors in towns and villages throughout Canada, nor of quantities of wheat in local grist mills. These quantities, although relatively small in individual cases, amount to a considerable aggregate, tending to show that the estimate of 80 million bushels is not excessive.

The Future Belongs to Russia.

Whatever may happen to the other nations whose swords are crossed in the great conflict that is now waging, no one expects that the destiny of the colossus of the north will be seriously interfered with. France may be overrun, or a similar fate may overtake Germany; Austria may disappear from the map, or the British empire may be broken up, but between Russia and any great harm still lie those impenetrable spaces where the armies of Napoleon lie buried—those armies that Europe has not forgotten. When the swords that are now clashing are put up and the game is over Germany and Austria or England and France may divide the present, but the future belongs to Russia.—Edwin Davies Schoonmaker in Century.

Conscious When Found.

John Buck, a stonemason, living near Norwood, who was one of those that helped to pick Seeney up, said the man was found lying ten feet east of the track one and a half miles east of Norwood. Seeney was conscious and said he thought he had been lying there a couple of days. He wanted to be put on a sleigh and driven away. He said he had gone to Peterborough on the four o'clock train and had returned on the eight o'clock train, and that he had slipped. In his pocket were found pieces of broken glass.

A freight train came along shortly after that Seeney was found and it was flagged, the man placed in the caboose and brought to the city. Comstock's brought him to the hospital. He did not make any statement here, save what he told Dr. Cameron.

The jury returned their verdict about 5.30. The jury consisted of Jos. Picard (foreman), T. Meredith, Geo. Dredge, John Robson, George Evans, J. M. White, James Cowly, James Fitzsimmons, Geo. Dory, Geo. Shearer, Robert Morrison and R. Holly.

Germany Apologizes To Van Dyke.

THE HAGUE, March 10. — (Via London.)—The German Foreign Office has sent through James W. Gerard, the American Ambassador to Germany, an expression of regret and an explanation to Henry Van Dyke, the American Minister to Holland and Luxemburg, regarding the interruption of Dr. Van Dyke's correspondence with Luxemburg.

The trouble is attributed in the explanation to a misunderstanding on the part of the military commandant at Treves, and it is stated that orders have been issued to prevent such an incident occurring again.

Lieutenant Enlists as Private.

LONDON, March 10. — Among those who enlisted as privates yesterday in the 33rd Battalion, Canadian Expeditionary Force, was Lieut. William Ruglin of the Royal Garrison Artillery of England. Ruglin came six thousand miles to enlist, he being in Japan on a business and pleasure trip when he decided to join the colors.

The officer didn't object to a place as a private.

RE-APPOINT INSPECTOR

W. B. Anderson Continues Position in North Monaghan

COUNCIL SESSION

Council Appreciates Efforts of Mr. J. H. Burnham M.P.

The North Monaghan Council met at the county council chamber Monday, March 8, all the members being present and the reeve, John McIntosh, presiding. The minutes of the last three meetings were read and adopted on motion of Messrs. Robson and Bell.

Mr. T. Hurley and Mr. F. Hurley came before the council asking that the north end of Western Ave., be graded this coming summer, also that Cottesmore Ave. be graded. Reeve McIntosh replied stating that council intends to carry out the promise made by the old council in regard to grading of above mentioned streets. Mr. Hurley asked council to rebate the statute labor tax on a number of lots on Western Ave., which he had sold, but which have come back to him on account of the depression of the time.

The following communications were received:—

Peterborough Radial Railway Co., re snow; Canada Bond Corporation, re debentures; Wm. Stevens, re application for sanitary inspector and relief officer; township of Albermarle, re automobile tax being returned to each municipality by the government; Ontario Good Roads Association, re good roads meeting in Toronto; A. H. Stratton, re sidewalks on McGill Street; Smith Township council, re committee on boundaries; W. B. Anderson, asking to be reappointed sanitary inspector; J. H. Burnham, M.P., re damage claims for roads. Moved by Messrs. Bell and Robson that these communications be received and that a vote of thanks be tendered the government and to Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., for his energetic services in securing for the township, the appropriation made by the department of railways and canals for damages to township roads amounting to $2000.

Moved by Messrs. Robson and Rye that in reply to the Albermarle council's request, the clerk forward a copy of their resolution to Mr. G. A. Gillespie, M.L.A., and state that the township of North Monaghan is in favor of the said resolution.

Ask for Grant.

Moved by Messrs. Rye and Robson that the reeve and deputy reeve be a committee to interview Mr. Gillespie, M.L.A., and Mr. R. J. Soden, the patronage man, in regard as to whether there is any possibility of securing a grant from the government for the Gravel Road under the Colonization Roads Act. Moved by Messrs. Forster and Bell that the reeve and Mr. Rye be a committee to see Mr. Stratton re Mr. Rye's sidewalk proposition.

Moved by Messrs. Rye and Forster that the reeve, Mr. Robson, and Mr. Bell be a committee to meet the Smith township committee re boundary road Saturday, March 29 at 2 p.m., in the county clerk's office.

Inspector Re-appointed.

Moved by Messrs. Rye and Robson that the sanitary inspector be re-appointed at the same salary.

The following charity bills were presented for payment:—

J. E. A. Fitzgerald, coal and wood	$34.90
J. W. Buyers, provisions	61.88
A. F. Saunders, provisions	30.80
H. B. Rye, re D. B. McCoy, Dr. Morgan to J. Waterson	2.00

Joseph Batten, repairing	1 15
Pay sheets, snow shoveling R. division No. 6	$22.08
Pay sheets, snow shoveling R. division No. 6	10.95

Moved by Messrs. Bell and Robson that above accounts be passed and paid.

Moved by Messrs. Robson and Rye that Dr. Greer, M.H.O., be paid his yearly salary of $50.

Notice to Non-Residents.

Mr. Thos. M. Hunter, the assessor, who is now on his rounds, hereby requests through the township council, that all non-resident property owners in the township of North Monaghan notify the clerk, Bruce Johnston, R.R. No. 5, Peterborough, giving their names and addresses, also the numbers of their lots and the plan numbers on which the property is situated, so that the same may be placed on the resident roll of the township.

The next regular meeting of council will be held at the court house, April 12th, at 2 p.m.

To Represent Local Bar Association

Local barristers have received notice that the annual meeting of the Canadian Bar Association which will be held in Montreal on March 19th and 20th. Representatives of the Bar from all parts of Canada will be present and the local association will be represented by Mr. F. D. Kerr of Peck, Kerr and McElderry. No other local barristers as far as known will attend. The meeting will take place in the Ritz Carleton Hotel and a profitable and enjoyable session is anticipated this year. One of the prime objects of the annual meetings is to discuss ways and means to uniform the provincial laws of the Dominion so that every province shall enjoy the same rights and privileges. In October last the council of the Association met in Toronto and enacted by-laws. It also appointed committees on the following subjects: Legislation, Legal Education, Taxation, Administration of Justice, Arrangements, and Publications.

At the meeting in Montreal this month reports of committees and general business of the association will be considered and addresses will be delivered by prominent judges and members of the Bar, and also by leading representatives of the Bar of United States. The annual dinner will be held on the evening of Saturday, March 20th.

Canadians at Front Want Papers.

LONDON, March 10. — From letters received here from Canadians at the front it is learned that it is impossible to send them too many Canadian newspapers. Canucks are all over the 300-mile battle line, which makes it impossible for one newspaper to serve so many men as was the case when the troops were all practically in one spot.

In the case of one section of the Canadian force papers arrived at the front only two days after the troops themselves.

BETTER AN EYEGLASS THAN A GLASS EYE

"Putting it off till tomorrow" is neither wisdom nor economy where the safety of your eyes is concerned. Little eye troubles lead to big ones, usually, unless steps to correct them are taken. By means of scientific instruments we can tell you whether glasses will do much or little for you. Even if you do not need glasses, our assurance is worth vastly more than the time required to be examined. Why not be sure that your eyesight is safe?

We manufacture and fit PERLO glasses exclusively.

WAS FARMERS BANK A BANK?

Farmers Seek to Evade Liability

Toronto, March 10.—Whether the Farmers' Bank ever was a bank, in spite of the fact that it did business with the public for some time, is a question to be argued shortly before Official Referee J. A. McAndrew, K.C. Those whose names appeared in Government blue books as shareholders take the ground that as the charter was irregularly issued, the bank was never properly organized, and as a result they cannot be held liable under the double liability which applies to bank shareholders.

The matter comes before Official Referee McAndrew on an application to settle the list of contributories.

The amount involved is in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

BUDGET DEBATE AT END

But for War Ontario Would Have Had Surplus

PREMIER'S REPLY

TORONTO, March 10.—The Ontario budget debate came to an end yesterday. Premier Hearst and N. W. Rowell, K.C., in the course of yesterday afternoon made the final speeches and cleared the way for the House to go into committee of supply. This removes the last big debate of the session, and apart from Government measures to come, routine business will have the right of way.

Mr. Rowell began by stating that direct taxation was introduced because of the wasteful expenditure of the Government. The financial trouble had not developed suddenly with war's outbreak but had slowly accumulated. Actual receipts had been 10 millions and expenditures had been 20 millions, or 15 millions from which no "return would ever come. The T. & N. O. subsidy, he claimed, was recorded merely "to keep the public in the dark."

Mr. Rowell urged the Government to make Ontario a direct contributing factor in the struggle in Europe by applying the proceeds of the special war tax in such manner, say in establishing a base hospital, as might be suggested by the Imperial authorities.

Premier Hearst, in reply, declared that not a vulnerable point had been found in the Government armor. He would repudiate the suggestion that they were blaming too much expenditure on the war. Crown lands revenue had dropped off in the past three months. But for the war a comfortable surplus would have existed. Even at that, strong measures would have brought many collections, but the time was inopportune.

In the evening session the Premier closed the debate in a short address, declaring the Government intention of giving unlimited aid to the Mother Country. When the war was ended he felt that the ties of Empire would be stronger and more dissoluable than ever before, and he trusted would cement every creed and race in a common desire of freedom and progress.

SUBMARINES DESTROY WITHOUT ANY WARNING

Thirty-Seven Lives Are Lost in the Torpedoing of the Steamer Tangistan, Sunk off Scarborough -- Crews of Blackwood and Princess Victoria Escape

LONDON, March 10.—During the early hours of Tuesday morning German submarines made their presence known at three widely separated points on the British coast, and it is stated officially, without giving warning to their crews, sank three British merchant ships.

In one case, that of the steamer Tangistan, which was torpedoed off Scarborough, in the North Sea, 37 men of her crew of 38 are missing. Only one man from the vessel was picked up, he by a passing ship. The attack which sent the Tangistan to the bottom was made half an hour after midnight.

At six o'clock in the morning another submarine sank the steamer Blackwood, off Hastings, in the English Channel, while a third submarine sank the steamer Princess Victoria, off Liverpool, at 9.15 o'clock.

West Hartlepool reports that the crew of 38 men of the British steamer Tangistan were drowned except one man, according to the statement made by the sole survivor of the vessel, who has been landed here by the steamer Woodville.

"The Tangistan," said this man, "was torpedoed off Scarborough. She was struck amidships and went down almost immediately. All the members of the crew were in the lifeboats, but they were unable to disconnect the lowering tackle before the ship sank and dragged down the boats with her. I caught hold of a piece of wreckage and clung to it for nearly three hours in the icy water until I was rescued."

As each of the boats was torpedoed in a period of less than nine hours it would seem probable that all three were sunk by different underwater boats.

The Clan Line steamer Clan Macrae was chased by a German submarine boat off the Mersey bar in the Irish Sea yesterday morning for 25 minutes.

The steamer escaped by zigzagging at full speed.

Company's Manager Will Visit the City

That a good stroke of business was done yesterday in connection with the question of securing cable for the fire alarm system for the paved section of the city is the feeling entertained today by Chairman Alderman Duffus of the Fire, Water and Light Committee. Accompanied by Fire Chief Howard, he took a jaunt to Toronto yesterday and spent some time with the manager of the Canadian Independent Telephone Company, who offered to supply satisfactory cable. The city inserted a clause in their contract for a five-year guarantee which the company felt was a rather rigid one. Before agreeing, Mr. McKay, manager of the company, stated that he would like to go over the ground here and see exactly what were the requirements. He is expected in the city before the end of the week.

"We received information that will be of almost unlimited value when we start the work," said Ald. Duffus, "and our time was well spent in every way."

He had not the slightest fear but that the contract would be complied with.

Col. D. C. McKenzie, unseated as mayor of Fort Frances in February, was re-elected by a majority of 68 over his opponent, the citizens' league candidate.

Expenditure is Limited to $90,000

Mr Gordon when interviewed today said that the Private Bill of the City of Peterborough went through without any difficulty, before the Private Bills Committee. The Attorney General was chairman and after the bill had been presented by the City Solicitor a few questions were asked by individual members of the Private Bills Committee but they seemed to be satisfied that the powers asked were not unreasonable, and the city was authorized to expend such sums up to the limit of $90,000.00, subject to the approval of the Hydro Electric Commission, in paying the award, costs and expenses of the Peterborough Light and Power Company's plant.

Mr. Gillespie introduced the delegation to the Private Bills Committee and Mr. E. A. Peck appeared for the Township of Smith and who, with Mr. Gillespie, did a great deal of very useful work in explaining to the members of the committee the reasons why the Private Bill should be passed upon favorably by the committee.

Mayor Buller, Chairman Matthews of the Utilities Commission, Alderman Duffus and City Clerk Armstrong were present to assist in supporting the city's claim before the committee.

RELIEF FOR FARMERS

Over Ten Millions for Crop Failure Districts

Ottawa, March 10.—Supplementary estimates totalling $10,401,958, to defray the cost of supplying seed grain to farmers, and for other relief measures in the crop failure districts of last year in the Prairie Provinces, were tabled in the Commons yesterday by the Minister of Finance. The seed grain purchased will cost $8,159,958, and for the relief of distress, etc., a vote of $2,240,000 is asked. The cost of the seed grain supplied is made in each case a first charge against the lands.

An additional vote of $2,000 is asked for the relief of distressed Canadians in countries other than the United States through war conditions.

KNOX CHURCH DEBATERS WON

They Argued That the World is Growing Better

With the skill of budding Ciceros, the debaters from Knox Church Young Peoples' Society argued last night that the world was growing better, supporting their arguments so ably and eloquently that the judges were compelled to award them the decision. Their opponents were from St. Paul's Young Peoples' Society. The occasion was a reception given by the young men and women of Knox, to the young people of St. Paul's. The victorious debaters were Kingsley Kenyon and John Herron, while the losers were Bruce Beavis and Ivan Lillico. The decision of the judges was based largely upon the superior style in which the Knox Church team advanced their contentions.

The subject of the debate was "Resolved that the world is not growing Better."

The affirmative argued that all Bible prophecies state that the world will not be better until Christ comes to establish his millenical kingdom, when wrong shall be overthrown and right established universally. Passages of Scripture to this effect were quoted. They contended that the subject should be debated from a moral and spiritual standpoint, as education helped men to invent instruments of destruction which were detrimental to humanity rather than beneficial. They quoted statistics to show that the world's population decreases yearly on the average by 12,000,000 while the Christian converts amounted to only 1,000,000 on the average. Figures were given to show the decline in church membership and the growth of socialism and anarchy. Men of international reputation were quoted to the effect that there is soon to be a clash between Capital and Labor which will be the most awful in history.

The negative contended that all lines of progress should be included in the subject and pointed to the increase in education that is almost universal in character, the improvements in science and social organizations generally, the breaking down of the caste system in India, and the dawning of the new day in China. The war in Europe really showed that men were ready to give their lives for the establishment of justice. The growth of missions and the temperance sentiment were also emphasized.

The judges were Messrs. McKeown, Morrison, and Jos. Wearing, M.A. H. B. Cowan presided. A musical program was supplied and refreshments served. The young people of St. Paul's will entertain Knox Church young people the last of this month.

WAS ALLOWED HIS FREEDOM

Leniency to Soldier Who Comandeered "Jigger"

Brockville, March 10. — George Sutherland, the young man committed for trial for taking a track velocipede from the sectionman's shanty near Jasper Sunday, was released on suspended sentence by His Honour, Judge Reynolds. Sutherland is a member of the Brockville contingent of the Overseas Forces and had obtained leave of absence to visit friends in Peterborough. Returning unaware of the Sunday cancellation of trains on this branch he was stalled at Smith's Falls on Sunday and not wishing to receive a bad mark for over-staying his leave he started to walk to Brockville. After thirteen miles of walking a sight of the track velocipede proved a temptation he was unable to resist and, considering it a case of semi-military necessity, comandeered the "jigger" and finished his journey in comfort and within the time limit of his leave allowance. Taking all this into consideration and with the knowledge that Sutherland had proved himself a good soldier thus far, at least, the Judge considered favorably the plea of counsel and sentence was suspended, and the young man permitted to return to the service of the Empire.

The jury which investigated the death at Guelph on Thursday last of Privates Walley and Gahagan, returned a verdict exonerating the street car motorman and conductor from blame.

TO MOVE AN AMENDMENT

Liberals Break Truce in Commons to Fight War Budget

OTTAWA, March 10.—The budget debate was resumed yesterday and will probably not be finished this week. It is understood that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will offer an amendment to-day calling for greater economy in the expenditures of the Government and denouncing any increased tariff imposts on British goods. Upon this amendment the yeas and nays will probably be recorded on Tuesday next.

Mr. Bradbury (Con., Selkirk), in resuming the debate yesterday afternoon, criticized the attitude of the Liberals upon the tariff question. Both political parties in Canada, he said, really favored a protective tariff, but while the Conservatives were honest about it the Liberals were hypocritical.

Mr. MacNutt (Lib., Saltcoats) spoke in opposition to the budget as imposing an unfair share of taxation upon the farmers and artisans. His greatest objection, however, was the barrier against British commerce.

"This Government's policy," he declared, "seems to be to borrow money from Britain and then tax British trade."

At the night sitting the debate was taken up by Richard Blain (Con., Peel), R. Lanctot (Lib., Laprairie), L. Thomson (Lib., Qu'Appelle), J. H. Fisher (Con., Brant), and H. B. Tremain (Con., Hants, N.S.).

Shortly after midnight, Mr. Fred F. Pardee, on behalf of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, moved the adjournment of the debate.

The Prime Minister was greeted with loud applause when he officially announced the arrival of four thousand men at Liverpool belonging to the second contingent. The troops, he said, were safe and well and had been provided with comfortable accommodations.

BOBCAYGEON WON THE SHIELD

Local Rinks Five Behind on the Round

The Bobcaygeon Curling Club will add the Fitzgerald-Bottum shield to their list for this year. A few weeks ago four rinks from 'Caygeon came to Peterborough and played the first matches of the competition. They were 11 up. Yesterday Messrs. J. E. A. Fitzgerald, R. Neill, W. J. Thompson and W. D. Campbell took rinks to Bobcaygeon for the final matches and although they succeeded in winning by five points, it was not sufficient to retain the silverware. Bobcaygeon wins the trophy by six points.

In the afternoon the Peterborough rinks played a friendly game with rinks of the home club and were five up.

The five rinks which went to Toronto to play the Toronto Victorias did not perform owing to the poor ice.

part, although the officers were expecting it. Word was received from Belleville today to the effect that the men encamped there are now receiving their meals in the barracks. This is taken to mean that all the companies will soon be asked to report.

The 39th has now 120 men in its ranks. Of these 38 or a per centage of 32 are married. The nationalities are as follows:—

73 English, 6 per cent.
5 Irish, 4 per cent.
3 Scotch, 2 per cent.
1 Welsh, 1 per cent.
36 Canadians, 30 per cent.
1 American, 1 per cent.
1 Russian, 1 per cent.

Of the total number 108 are adherents to Protestant Churches, 10 are Catholics and 2 are Jews.

A Presentation.

Corporal H. F. Ward, the paymaster of the battalion, was given a pleasant surprise when he went to bid his former fellow employes in the C.G.E. farewell this morning. The accounting department staff presented him with a safety razor and a host of good wishes for his safe return.

Given a Wrist Watch.

Yesterday afternoon the members of the Collegiate Cadets presented Pte. A. Lord, one of their number who has enlisted, with a wrist watch.

Concert by Soldiers.

The 39th Battalion are giving a concert and entertainment in the assembly hall of the Collegiate Institute Thursday night in aid of the Kitchener League. The public are extended a cordial invitation to be present.

I'M GOING ON LONG JOURNEY

Last Words of Broker Who Committed Suicide

Los Angeles, Cal., March 10.—Letters left by John R. Reid, former manager of a British oil company, who jumped 150 feet to his death from a roof of a hotel here, show that he chose that means to assure his wife a competence through a $10,000 life insurance policy. For the second time war had wrecked Reid financially, first the Mexican strife and then the European conflict having swept away his investments.

Before ending his life Reid telephoned his pastor, saying, "Good-bye, I'm going on a long journey."

The minister asked him to abandon his intention, but Reid declined to change his mind. Before taking the leap Reid selected a coffin and a burial plot.

Villa Defeated.

DOUGLAS, Ariz., March 10.—Gen. Elias Calles received a message from Gen. Alvaro Obregon yesterday saying: "Col. Eugenia Martinez of the first battalion of Sonora, numbering 1,000 men, informed me of the decisive defeat of 2,000 Villa troops, 110 miles north of Mexico City. They were routed after nine hours' fighting, and are fleeing in the direction of San Juan Del Rio, in the State of Queretaro."

James Richards, M.P., Dead.

OTTAWA, March 10. — James W. Richards, Liberal member for Prince County, Prince Edward Island, since 1908, died last night in a local hospital after a long illness. He was up in years, and about two years ago had the misfortune to break one of his legs, an accident from which he never fully recovered.

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Assertions that exports of wheat from the United States were in progress at a rate about twice as rapid as conditions would warrant sent the market today to a much higher level. Reactions did not prove of a lasting sort and there was a firm close at 1-2c to 5 3-4c net advance. Corn finished 1-8c to 3-8c down, oats a shade to 1-8c up and provisions off 10c to 27 1-2c.

It was a runaway bull market in wheat at the start and again in the final hour. The report on farm reserves, as construed by a well-known authority, was said to show that the United States could only spare 4,000,000 bushels weekly from now until the marketing of the new crop. As this would be less than half of the present rate, a scramble to buy took place, on the theory that prices were likely to go higher than they had yet reached, unless foreign demand were to come to a decided halt.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 9.—Another substantial advance took place in the wheat market today. Opening prices were 1 5-8c to 4 1-2c higher, and May advanced a further 1 7-8c, while July and October opening figures were the high points previous to noon. All the months eased off considerably at noon; May was $1.50 1-2, July $1.50 1-8 and October $1.15 1-2.

While the amount of business in futures was not so heavy as on Monday there was a good class of buying. Sentiment became less bullish about midday, a reaction being expected in the fact of the very rapid advance of the past few days, but this did not materialize.

Export business was active, so far as enquiries go, but no new transactions were recorded, the rapid advance being a deterrent. The demand for cash wheat was excellent, and quite a heavy business was carried thru in No. 2 northern wheat both for spot and for opening of navigation delivery. The spreads were again narrowing today, showing the keenness of the demand.

Inspections on Tuesday were 487 cars, of which 325 were wheat, and in sight today were 400 cars.

Oats opened half higher, making a further fractional gain, and flax was unchanged to 1c higher, but trading was light.

Wheat futures closed 5c higher for May and July, and 1 5-8c higher for October.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, March 9.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.53⅜; No. 1 northern, $1.52⅜; No. 2 do., $1.45⅜ to $1.49⅜; May, $1.49⅜.

CATTLE MARKETS

TORONTO, March 9.—Receipts of live stock at the Union Yards were 675 cattle, 952 hogs, 73 sheep and lambs and 45 calves.

Butchers' Cattle.

Choice loads heavy steers, $7.50 to $7.75, good to choice, $7.25 to $7.50; good, $7 to $7.25; medium, $6.60 to $6.85; common, $6.25 to $6.50, choice cows at $6.25 to $6.50, good cows, $5.75 to $6, medium cows $5.25 to $5.60, canners and cutters, $4 to $4.50; choice bulls at $6.50 to $6.75; medium bulls at $5.25 to $5.75.

Stockers and Feeders.

Steers, 750 to 800 lbs., sold at $6 to $6.25, medium steers, same weights, $5.75 to $6, stockers, $5 to $5.75.

Milkers and Springers.

Moderate receipts of milkers and springers met a fair demand at steady prices ranging from $50 to $80, and an odd one now and again at $85 and $90, the bulk of sales being made between $60 and $75.

Veal Calves.

Choice veal calves sold at $10 to $11; good at $8 to $9.50, medium at $7.50 to $8, common at $6 to $7, eastern rough calves at $4.50 to $5.50.

Sheep and Lambs.

Sheep, ewes, sold at $6 to $7.50, rams, $5 to $5.50; lambs sold at $8.75 to $10.50, and $11 was said to have been paid for a few extra choice light weights.

Hogs.

Selects, weighed off cars, sold at $8.25, and $8 fed and watered.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK.

CHICAGO, March 9.—Cattle—Receipts 600. Market slow. Beeves, $5.75 to $8.80; cows and heifers, $3.30 to $7.75; calves, $6.50 to $9.75.

Sheep—Receipts 1000. Market strong. Native, $7 to $8.10; yearlings, $7 [illegible]; lambs, native, $[illegible]

CANADA'S VAST PEAT BOGS

Are Source of Great Wealth if Properly Developed

Attention is being drawn to the possibility of expansion of Canadian commerce and industry as a result of the war. This may take the form of domestic production of articles for a supply of which we have been dependent upon foreign sources, or of increased exports to other countries of products hitherto supplied by Germany and Austria.

Among other things this emphasizes the importance which development of the latent resources of Canadian peat bogs might readily assume if full advantage of the new conditions arising from the war were taken.

Sulphate of ammonia, the chief by-product of European peat plants, is a valuable fertilizer worth about $60 per ton. The world's production last year is estimated at 1,365,000 tons, worth about $80,000,000. The chief importing countries are: United States and Canada, Japan, Java, France, Spain and Portugal, and Italy.

This shows the existence of extensive markets which might be supplied, in part at least, by Canada, and of an opportunity to capture some share of the trade of Germany and Austria in this product.

The extent and rapid growth of the domestic market for artificial fertilizers is shown by the fact that in the past six years Canada's output has increased from $403,171 to $737,656.

Many Canadian peat bogs are rich in nitrogen, and therefore suitable for this industry, and enquiries have already been made by British capitalists with a view to establishing chemical works in Canada, provided that a sufficient supply of peat can be guaranteed.

Apart from the potential value of our peat bogs as a subsidiary source of fuel supply and for production of sulphate of ammonia, there are numerous other products such as moss litter, peat dust, alcohol, acetic acid, acetone, tar, tar oils, creosote, etc., which might form the basis of paying industries giving employment to many people where now we have only waste lands.

In the peat bogs of Northern Holland alone it is stated that about $3,000,000 worth of peat fuel is made yearly, and over 200,000 tons of peat moss litter. About 10,000 families are employed in the peat fields, and many prosperous towns owe their existence and prosperity to the industry. In addition to shipments made by rail, it is estimated that peat furnishes annually about 48,000 cargoes to the Dutch canal boats.—"Journal of the Canadian Peat Society."

UNPROFITABLE PROFIT.

Dramatists of Hugo's Day Often Got More Fame Than Money.

From an incident that Victor Hugo jotted down in his notebook, something like seventy or more years ago, we may conclude that the dramatists of that day more often received fame than any more material consideration as a reward for their work. And not infrequently even fame was withheld.

"Monsieur Santy," Hugo wrote in November, 1844, "is a former secretary of Thiers. He has written a tragedy called 'Count Egmond;' it is very flat. The piece is played; not a cat in the theater and not a sou in the box office. After three performances the tragedy disappears from the repertory of the Odeon. Furious, the author runs to the director, Monsieur Lireux.

"'Sir,' he cries, 'you have stopped playing my tragedy?'

"'Yes,' the director replies.

"'Why?'

"'Because it brings in no money.'

"'I am told that the receipts were only 100 francs less than the receipts for Casimir Bonjour's "The Student of Segovia," and you are still playing that.'

"'Only 100 francs less?' says Lireux. 'That may be true enough. But you see, the highest receipts for "The Student of Segovia" were 80 francs.'"—Youth's Companion.

Operations at Dardanelles

Queen Elizabeth Has Entered the Straits

LONDON, March 10.—Bad weather conditions are again retarding the progress of the allied fleet up the Dardanelles, according to a statement issued by the French Ministry of Marine last night.

Significant, however, of the firmness of the allies' resolve to smash their way to Constantinople with the least delay possible is the French official statement that the British super-Dreadnought Queen Elizabeth, supported by four cruisers, has actually entered the strait and is attacking the powerful Kilid Bahr batteries by direct fire. This means that fewer shells, if possible, will be wasted by the battleship's monster guns than when firing them over the Gallipoli peninsula.

Unofficial despatches indicate further progress in the reduction of the Smyrna fortifications by the British East Indian fleet, under the command of Vice-Adimral Peirse.

The official communication telling of the operations of the allied fleet in the Dardanelles, issued by the French Ministry of Marine last night says:

"During the day of March 8 the British super-Dreadnought Queen Elizabeth, supported by four cruisers, entered the Dardanelles, and with her great 381-millimetre guns bombarded Fort Rumili Medjidieh Tabia, situated on Point Kilid Bahr.

"The bad weather has hindered operations."

Fort Maidos, which is several miles above the Narrows, in the Dardanelles Straits, has been partly destroyed by shell fire from the allied fleets directed over the peninsula from the Gulf of Saros.

HAVE NO GOLD

German Banks are Cleared but Somebody is Hoarding

BERNE, March 10.—Careful investigation among the German banks proves that they are cleared of gold, but a comparison between the amount of gold held by the Reichs Bank and amount which should be in the country shows that two billion marks in gold have been withdrawn from circulation. An appeal has been made to every patriotic German to put his last gold piece in circulation, and the appeal concludes with the assertion that the patriotic German cannot do better than exchange his gold for the second war loan stock. I am credibly informed except the Reichs Bank, no bank possesses any gold reserve throughout Germany. The income tax imposed by municipalities is being raised on an average by about 50 per cent.

Britain Makes Drastic Move to Insure War Munitions.

LONDON, March 10. — A drastic amendment to the Defence of the Realm Act was unexpectedly presented to the House of Commons yesterday afternoon by Chancellor of the Exchequer Lloyd George. His proposal was that the Government be empowered to commandeer all factories required for war purposes.

Up to the present time arms and factories already producing war material could be taken under Government control. The amending bill of the Chancellor extends the power to cover all other concerns which the Government may wish to utilize for this purpose.

BOTHA TAKES CAMP.

South African Premier Forces Germans To Leave Hurriedly.

LONDON, March 10.—Gen. Louis Botha's campaign against German Southwest Africa is progressing. One of Botha's armies, advancing in the south, is reported to have occupied a German camp north of Ukamas, which is 40 miles north of the border, and to have captured a large number of tents, provisions, clothing and transport animals.

These captures, according to the report, showed that the evacuation of the Germans had been a hasty one.

Bulgaria Has Also a Crisis.

PARIS, March 10.—A Ministerial crisis similar to that in Greece has occurred in Belgrade, according to information reaching Paris in special despatches. Premier Radoslavoff is reported to have been overthrown by the influence of King Ferdinand and the followers of Dr. Ghenadiff, former Foreign Minister, because he desired to take immediate action against Turkey by occupying Adrianople.

Japan To Obey Treaty.

LONDON, March 10.—Speaking in the House of Commons yesterday afternoon, in reply to a question, Foreign Secretary Grey said he had no doubt but that Japan would observe the treaty of 1905, under the terms of which Japan and Great Britain guaranteed the integrity and the independence of China, together with equal commercial opportunities to all nations.

Humor and Philosophy

By DUNCAN M. SMITH

THE LIFE PRACTICAL.

To skies sublime
 Though we may climb
On fancy's aviation
 And from the heights
 Observe the sights
In placid contemplation,
 We hear the call
 And downward fall
The ground below to clutter—
 The call supreme
 For pie and cream
Or common bread and butter.

 Enwrapped in art,
 We play a part
Alone, serene and chilly
 And contemplate
 The higher state
And act sublime or silly.
 But when it comes
 To humble crumbs
To feed our hungry faces
 We join the gang,
 And, quoting slang,
We get right down to cases.

 With fragrant pipe
 Where dreams are ripe
We sit around pretending.
 But facts are things
 Equipped with stings
And were not made for bending.
 We'd like to rest
 Among the blest,
Our time to culture giving,
 But now and here
 It may seem queer
We have to get a living.

What Was That?

Full of faith, hope and ambition, a young woman applied for a position behind the footlights, where she thought the leading part would be about right.

"Ever divorced?" asked the brusque manager.

"No, sir," she replied modestly.

"Had any diamonds stolen?"

"No, and for a good reason."

"What, then, are you qualifications?"

"I can act."

The janitor had to climb a ladder and pick chunks of laughter from the rafters before they could use the stage next day.

The Difference.

"There isn't much difference between a bachelor and a married man."

"Oh, isn't there?"

"No."

"You bet your life there is."

"What is it?"

"A bachelor tries to please nobody, and a married man has to please his wife."

Deliciously Simple.

"Pa, why does corn pop?"

"Well, you see, the starch polygons are of such a nature as to facilitate expansion and render it explosive in character; there is a fracture of a particle along its two radii, the endosperm swelling very considerably, the peripheral portions cohering with the hull, but the fractured quarters turning back to meet below the embryo—why, my son, where are you going?"

"I'm going to tell little sister."—Boston Transcript.

The Ticklish Rock.

A curious example of balanced rocks is that known as the "ticklish rock" in the Allegheny mountains near Picture Rocks, Pa. This rock rests on a slender rock shaft six feet tall, which is jagged and worn and seems scarcely able to support the load. The balanced rock is not attached to this, but rests on a bearing that does not exceed eighteen inches in any direction. It is six feet thick, ten feet long and three feet wide. It is so delicately balanced that it is easily rocked with the hand.—Popular Electricity.

News Value of Advertising

AN EDITORIAL may stimulate thought. It may arouse men to action—but usually its value lies principally in its ability to entertain—to inform on general or specific questions.

¶ An advertisement—nine out of ten times—contains more information than an editorial, and in addition answers either a social or an economic question.

¶ There is only one way for the readers of any paper to keep the advertising news up to date, and that is to patronize the firms who use the columns of the paper.

¶ Readers of The Review should, therefore, buy the goods advertised in these columns.

HOCKEY CURLING ATHLETICS

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO AND BERLIN JUNIORS PLAY A TIE IN THE FIRST OF FINALS

Score in Dutchtown Last Night Was 7-7 — Players Were Handicapped by Soft Ice — Varsity Should Win the Round

BERLIN, March 10. — When University of Toronto last night tied the Berlin Union Jacks they practically took the O. H. A. junior championship and the John Ross Robertson Cup to the big stone structure in Queen's Park, Toronto. The score was 7 to 7, and it represents the play. The ice was soft and sticky. The management of the rink flooded it late in the afternoon, expecting it would freeze before the game commenced.

Berlin were first to score and were never behind although the score was tied a number of times. The Blue and White did not play their game. In the first place, the going did not suit them at all and they were handicapped rather more than the locals.

The game was remarkably clean. There were no accidents of any kind, and when the teams play the return game at Toronto on Thursday night both will be in condition and will present the same lineups as took the ice last night. On no less than two occasions were the goal umpires changed, and both times it was a Berlin man that was removed. There were several questionable goals in the first period given to Berlin by the umpires, and Referee Gilfillan had no other course than to allow them.

The stars of the game were Gouinlock for the visitors and Schnarr and Karges for the locals. Gouinlock showed the crowd, which was sprinkled with a goodly number of University of Toronto supporters, some of the best stickhandling and skating which has been seen on the local rink for a long time. On one occasion he carried the puck from end to end, through the entire Berlin team, and then drew the goal-keeper from his net. It was the best play of the night.

Stratton Had an Off Night.

Ramsay on the defence played fast, clever hockey, although like his team mates he was hampered by the sticky ice. Malone, after a bad session in the first period, steadied down and saved several dangerous situations. Stratton was off his game and he let Schnarr roam wild a number of times. His shooting was never effective and he could not get the puck off the ice. Saunders at left wing played well in spots, ut held his own with his check. Captain Smythe at centre was all at sea on the slow going. His check towered above him and kept him covered all the time.

Berlin worked a splendid interference, which was not detected by the referee. It gave the Union Jacks a decided advantage and was the means of their notching several goals. The Berlin forwards outclassed the visitors, and it was only the splendid defence work of Ramsay and Sheldon that kept the locals from taking a lead to Toronto on Thursday.

On the showing of the teams last night, University of Toronto should win on Thursday, not only because they will be on home ice, but because the team is bound to play better than it did and there will be hard, fast ice.

The team:

Berlin — Goal, Merner; defence, Erb and Karges; rover, White; centre, Shirk; wings, Schnarr and Krug.

University of Toronto — Goal, Malone; defence, Ramsay and Sheldon; rover, Gouinlock; centre, Smythe; wings, Saunders and Stratton.

Referee—Dr. Gilfillan, Uxbridge.

STAGE CHAMPIONSHIP FIGHT ON APRIL 3rd.

Havana, March 10. — The fight for the world's heavyweigh pugilistic championship will take place at Havana on Saturday, April 3, between Jack Johnson and Jess Willard.

The last obstacle in the way of having the fight take place here has been removed, when Jack Curley, who endeavored to have the men meet at Juarez, Mexico, March 6, received a cable from Willard saying that he would start immediately for Havana, arriving here from New Orleans on March 15. The terms for the fight are identical with those which would have prevailed had the encounter taken place at Juarez.

WESTERN ALL-STARS.

The team to represent the West in the all-star junior O. H. A. game at the Toronto Arena on Saturday night is as follows:

Goal—Chilton Childs, Woodstock.
Defence—A. H. Parker, Hamilton Rowing Club.
Defence—Armous Arbour, Victoria Harbor Club.
Rover—Reg. Noble, Collingwood.
Centre—Dalton P. Meeking, Barrie.
Right Wing—M. J. Phillips, Western University, London.
Left Wing—To be selected from Berlin Union Jacks.

DON'T WANT "BIG BILL."

NEW YORK, March 10. — Robt. B. Ward, president of the Brooklyn Federal League club, has announced that he had telegraphed to Lee Magee, manager of the team at the training camp in Brown's Wells, Miss., that he would not sanction the signing of William James, pitcher for the Boston Nationals.

AMERICA GETS OLYMPIC GAMES

PARIS, March 10. — The Olympic Games in 1916 will be held in America instead of Berlin. This important decision was reached at a special meeting of the International Olympic Committee just held in Lyons.

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE.

The game between Charlotte St. and George St. will be played tonight, 7 to 8.

INTERMEDIATE FINAL TONIGHT.

Orillia carries a four-goal lead to Wiarton tonight for the final game in the intermediate O. H. A. It looks large enough to carry them through.

BE SURE and get around to that lacrosse meeting tonight. It's at the "Y." at eight o'clock.

JACK RYAN, better known as "Rufus," the famous rugby player, has enlisted with the second contingent as a member of the Divisional Engineers.

THURSDAY NIGHT will see Freddie Welsh and Willie Ritchie battling ten rounds in New York City. Having twice failed in twenty rounds Ritchie's prospect for winning in ten rounds do not appear over bright.

AMATEUR BASEBALL leagues are being arranged in Toronto. The local fans cannot get that four team city league going any too soon. Another month and the boys will be on the diamond.

LACROSSE MEETING TONIGHT IN Y.M.C.A. SHOULD BE WELL ATTENDED

Once again are fans of the city reminded of the lacrosse meeting to be held in the Y. M. C. A. tonight at 8 o'clock for the purpose of organizing a club, which will have a team in the O. A. L. A. this summer. It is necessary that the organization be given a good foundation, thus a big, enthusiastic meeting is hoped for. Lacrosse can thrive in Peterborough with proper care, and as there will be few other attractions here this season, it should get the necessary care and attention. The meeting will be called at eight o'clock sharp.

COMMENT

As You Like it

THE NEWS, published in Moose Jaw, made the following comment on the stand the O.H.A. was taking previous to the Melville-Victorias games:—

"To get at the real difficulty one must brush away the technicalities and go beneath the surface. The O. H. A., which the banner amateur hockey body of the world—a bona fide amateur organization, not a make-believe—simply refuses to put its representatives against a septette of tourists represented by Melville. It does so, not because it fears the result, but because it knows that such a contest cannot honestly be considered one between two genuinely amateur teams for a trophy representative of the world's amateur hockey honors.

"If the Allan Cup is to continue to be a genuinely world's amateur hockey trophy, then the sooner the battle against professionalism is fought the better. It has to come. Bona fide amateurs should not be asked to compete against teams drawn from all over the country a month before the season opens. No doubt the 'tourists' will always be with us, but every obstacle should be put in the way of their peregrinations. So let the O.H.A. and the C.H.A. go to it. If nothing else happens the latter will be forced to take a definite stand on the question of professionalism in its membership. This will be something."

FRANK SHAUGHNESSY beware. Evidently the teams in Western Ontario have grown tired of fighting all summer for second place in the Canadian League so now a movement is on foot to fire the fighting pilot of the Senators and all his hired help out of the organization. Imagine the outburst "Shag" will come through with when he reads the following from a western exchange:—

"The feeling is growing stronger and stronger in Western Ontario that it would be advisable to exclude Ottawa from the Canadian League this season and adhere to the original six-club circuit composed of London, Hamilton, Brantford, Guelph, Berlin and St. Thomas. With Toronto and Peterborough out of the league, Ottawa is in a particularly isolated position. It is claimed that the Ottawa jump is so expensive that the other teams invariably lose money on the trip.

Ottawa is a good ball town, but the arrangement whereby 75 per cent. of the first $100 is retained by the visitors does not apply after the sum has passed into the box office. It is felt in Western Ontario that, under the precarious conditions which are apt to exist this season, with a circuit embracing five compactly situated cities in the west and Ottawa alone in the east the teams will all be losers.

It is doubtful, however, whether Berlin will support a team with a $1,400 salary limit. That city has already shown conclusively that a franchise cannot be operated there to advantage."

Three Basketball Games To-night

In the Y.M.C.A. Basketball League, Bill Heaslip's "Hustlers" play the first game with Ray Beat's "Boosters" at 8 o'clock. The former have lost only one game so far and the latter none.

Cressmans and Excelsiors will furnish the excitement for the second game and as the latter have yet to lose, some battle may be expected. Chalmers Nicholls has left town and will not line up with the Excelsiors' team but Captain Alex. Darling promises he had something up his sleeve.

The last game is between the De Laval and Unknowns and ought to prove interesting. The Unknowns will not have the services of Walter Flowers but it is rumored that they have a dark horse to uncover.

A large crowd is expected.

The following is the second round of basket ball, starting March 13:—

Saturday, March 13, Collegiate vs. Maple Leaf, 7.30; Excelsiors vs. Business Men, 8.15.

Wednesday, March 17 — Boosters vs. Collegiate, 8.00; De Laval vs. Unknowns, 8.45; Cressmans vs. Business Men, 9.30.

Saturday, March 20—Maple Leafs vs. Hustlers, 7.30; Beavers vs. Collegiate, 8.15; Excelsiors vs. Unknowns, 9.00.

Wednesday, March 24—Boosters vs. Hustlers, 8.00; Cressmans vs. De Laval, 8.45; Unknowns vs. Business Men, 9.30.

Saturday, March 27—Beavers vs. Maple Leafs, 7.30; Excelsiors vs. Business Men, 8.15; Hustlers vs. Collegiate, 9.00.

Wednesday, March 31—Boosters vs. Beavers, 8.00; Cressmans vs. Unknowns, 8.45; De Laval vs. Business Men, 9.30.

Saturday, April 3 — Beavers vs. Hustlers, 7.30; Maple Leafs vs. Collegiates, 8.15.

Wednesday, April 7 — Cressmans vs. Business Men, 8.00; De Laval vs. Excelsiors, 8.45.

Wednesday, April 14—Boosters vs. Maple Leafs, 8.00; Cressmans vs. Excelsiors, 8.45.

THE EDITOR'S TROUBLES.

Editors have their peculiar troubles, it is true, but the scribe who wrote this paragraph was not drawing very hard on his imagination for this little list of stunts. An editor should be able to write a poem, discuss the tariff, umpire a ball game, preach the gospel, beat a lawyer, report a wedding, write obituaries, saw wood, describe a fire, make one dollar do the work of ten, spout at a soiree, address the agricultural society, abuse the liquor traffic, test whisky, subscribe to charity, go without meals, sneer at snubbery, wear diamonds, invent catchy advertisements, overlook scandal, praise the babies, administer to the afflicted, fight to a finish, mold opinions, sweep the office, move the world, scorn the flesh and the devil, be everything, feel everything, see and know everything on this worldly footstool, and do it all on a dollar a year subscription basis—hard lines, it is true—but verily, it is not surprising that baldness and neurological battles early decimate the ranks of journalism.—Hamilton Herald.

Lenten Service.

The address at St. John's Lenten service this evening at eight o'clock will be given by the Rev. T. J. O'Connor-Fenton, M. A., of Cobourne, who is a well-known speaker. A good attendance is expected as it will be worth while to be present.

Do you know that no grocer can be sure of getting the same quality of tea in bulk twice running? It is impossible for him to have the extensive machinery that makes it possible to blend the choicest teas in varying proportions to form an absolutely uniform tea like Salada. So true is this, that many grocers will neglect quality and only think of the greater profit that bulk tea affords them.

THE DEVELOPMENT OF MUSIC

The address of Mr. J. Edward Fisher, choirmaster of Charlotte St. Methodist Church to the C.L.A. Society was instructive and interesting. There was a large and appreciative audience and the address was illustrated by vocal selections given by Miss Ada Richardson and Miss G. Stevens.

The subject was "The Development of Music." Mr. Fisher described the beginnings of the art and early musical instruments. He said that the early organs were very crude affairs, very noisy in that the organist had to hammer the keys down with his fists and several men were required to work the bellows. He played a selection that showed how simple was the music that existed at a relatively late date. The early notation did not give the time, each singer sung as he thought it ought to be sung and discords were frequent. Then, a further development came when two or three sang, the second and third starting a little after the first singer. The first Gregorian chant "Evening Hymn" (Tallis) which was sung by Miss Richardson, Miss Stevens and Mr. Fisher, illustrated this kind of singing and music. The early piano or spinet had few keys, the music was very simple and was played with the first three fingers, the thumb and little fingers not being used. Mr. Fisher played an old English air in this fashion. He explained how great improvements were made in the organ by a monk named Smith and that parts of this very organ were still in Westminster Abbey.

But the two men who really created modern music and gave the art its first great impetus were Handel and Bach.

The meeting opened with a hymn of Handel's to illustrate his music. The operas, oratorios and other music of these masters were explained together with the further advances that were made by the great composers, Wagner, Shubert and Chopin.

Modern music, Mr. Fisher divided into three divisions, harmony, melody, and motive. For harmony Andante movement from Sonata by Beethoven was played. For melody, Nocturne by Field, and Nocturne in E flat by Chopin, were played to show differences; also Mendelssohn's "Gondola" song, while Miss Richardson sang an air from Verdi's Il Trovatore. To illustrate motive, Mr. Fisher played Prelude in C sharp minor by Rachmaninoff and Miss Richardson sang "Magdalene at Michael's Gate." Mr. Fisher played the accompaniment and played three notes giving the motive of the song and which were designed to express the words "Let her in." After this solo Mr. Fisher played "To a Wild Rose," by Edward MacDowell, and asked his audience to say whether it expressed melody, harmony, motive or a combination. He received the correct answer. In this way people would know what to look for in good music.

Mr. Hone, the new president of the literary department, was installed in office and briefly addressed the society. A letter of appreciation was forwarded the former president, Mr. Gates. A vote of thanks to Mr. Fisher, Miss Richardson and Miss Stevens was moved by Mr. Downey and Mr. Kidd and heartily applauded.

HOW WOMEN CAN DO THEIR PART IN TIME OF WAR

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings Addresses Council of Women

A very large and representative gathering of the women of Peterborough, which taxed the Public Library Assembly Hall to its utmost, greeted Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, D. C. L., secretary of the National Council of Women, yesterday afternoon. The occasion was an address by Mrs. Cummings on "Women's Work in War Time," and so thorough was her message that every one quitted the room with the firm belief that the Canadian woman has many duties to perform while the Mother Country is engaged in battle against German tyranny. The earnestness of her remarks appealed to all, and undoubtedly the result of her visit will inspire greater effort.

The chair was occupied by Mrs. F. C. Neal, president of the Local Council of Women. In a few opening remarks she explained the nature of the address with which they were to be treated, and then introduced Mrs. Cummings, who was greeted with much applause. Mrs. Cummings first made reference to the fact that she assisted the local council at its organization meeting and she was pleased to see what she termed a child of hers expand so rapidly and execute such excellent work. She paid great tribute to the local papers, remarking their generosity in giving space to items of interest to the council and intimated that it spoke very highly for the efficiency of the chairlady of the publicity committee.

When the call of "Your King and country needs you" came to this country last August it came to the women as well as the men, and Canada is proud of the fact that from the Atlantic to the Pacific and far into the northern regions of this country, women responded to the call. The Canadian women all felt they must render service, and even from the distant Fort McPherson, one of the most remote posts of the Hudson Bay Company, a woman sent a parcel containing wristlets, knitted from yarn of various colors. An accompanying note explained that in her vicinity yarn was not available, but she utilized pieces of yarn she could gather and made the pair of wristlets. She admitted they were by no means handsome, but thought they might be serviceable. The parcel came all the way from Fort McPherson and was relayed on to its destination at the firing line.

Must Be Common Sense.

In women's work there must be enthusiasm, but not enthusiasm alone. There must be common sense. The woman who neglects her own household duties to work for the soldiers at the front is in error. She should do her work in a systematic manner. The average woman who is working for the soldiers at the front has shown splendid ability and the goods received by the Toronto Patriotic League, with which Mrs. Cummings is closely connected, is all of a high standard. Very few of the articles are poorly made. The women in charge of the Toronto league found many other things to do besides work for the Red Cross or the soldiers. They went about the city and sought out the families in need. Not the dependents of soldiers, but those who were placed in want through the depression. These families were put in touch with the relief association.

Employment Bureau.

The women's employment bureau, which the Toronto league has formed, was thoroughly explained by the speaker. Up to Monday evening 2,340 women were registered there; in that number were representatives from all classes — stenographers, dressmakers, housekeepers, maids, etc. The league also had a list of those persons needing a girl and thus the employe and employer were brought together. It was rather strange to find a scarcity of housekeepers. Many women were found not capable of performing the duties they should have the most knowledge of. Ever since the time of Eve, housework has been the work of woman, yet she is often found unable to do it. There is a problem for the local council of women to take up. There is a chance to work — to get at the bottom of the trouble and remedy it. The girl who does not care to act as a housekeeper or maid does not always take that stand, because she thinks it beneath her dignity, but rather because she does not know how.

Cheer and Encouragement.

Another point advanced by the speaker was the good that women can do by keeping up the courage of others by cheerful words and a bright face. There are thousands and thousands of women who have their dear ones at the front, and their neighbors should do other than remind them of the horrors of war. The horrors are there all right, but it is better to keep the lighter side, the story of heroism and devotion, most prominent. It is up to the Canadian women to be brave and courageous and not call for peace till it comes honorably. Every woman agrees that it would be best to have peace and international arbitration, but such topics should not be discussed now. That will all come in the right time.

Assist the Recruiting.

It is also quite probable that women can assist men to enlist. It is not necessary to go around, as in England, with white feathers. If a mother is hesitating to permit her boy to go to the front, or if a wife is keeping her husband back, women should drop in and see her and tell her of the great and glorious thing it is to have a relative or friend at the front.

An excellent suggestion given by Mrs. Cummings was to have a war conference at which would be members of all the various women's organizations which are working for the same cause — just an informal meeting to talk matters over and prevent overlapping. It has been tried out in Winnipeg and is a grand success. Co-operation is good in all things, and will also help in this case. It is possible for ladies to knit while on trains, etc., and thus save time. In fact, the speaker noted her surprise that none of the ladies had brought their knitting with them to the meeting.

The Belgians.

In reference to the adoption of Belgian children by Canadians, Mrs. Cummings explained that the Belgian authorities are not anxious to have the children sent over the seas because there is a possibility of the families, broken up by the German invasion, being again united. In connection with the Belgians, a great problem now being discussed is how supplies will be sent over to them. As the Germans have annexed Belgium as a province, the only way to send goods appears to be to send them straight to Rotterdam. There the American people can take charge. One more ship will be sent, and then the persons in charge will await developments. At present the people of Canada are not at all anxious to feed the Germans.

The speaker also referred to the factories now being operated in Toronto by the league. Every woman working there is supporting others. Although some are not proficient with the needle, they learn, thus it helps them educationally as well as financially. Many young Jewesses who are supporting others have been put to work making dolls. These dolls are sold, and thus the factory is self-sustaining. It might be possible to organize something of a similar nature in Peterborough if girls are unemployed, or if not, positions might be secured here for the unemployed of other cities. It is all for patriotic purposes, and co-operation should prevail.

In conclusion, Mrs. Cummings stated that out of all this terrible war comes a bond of sympathy. The rich and the poor are being brought closer together, and it has been shown that the rich do wish to care for the poor. "There is much good coming from it, if it is looked upon on the right side," were her final words.

Mrs. Neal made a few remarks, assuring Mrs. Cummings that the ladies of Peterborough would take up her good suggestions, for which they were very thankful.

Ald. Weir and Edgar, who were present on behalf of the City Council, as Mayor Buller was in Toronto, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker.

OFFICERS FOR ST. JOHN'S W.A.

Mrs. Cummings Also Gave Interesting Address

The St. John's branch of the Women's Auxiliary held their annual meeting Tuesday afternoon. There was a good representation of members. Among those present was one of the pioneers of the branch, viz., Mrs. White, residing at 237 Charlotte St. She was one of the very active members in the "early days" of the society.

Mrs. Willoughby Cummings, the vice-president of the W. A. in the Diocese of Toronto, was the chief speaker and gave a very inspiring and interesting address. She brought out very distinctly the aims and objects of the society and compared them with the present great war. The call to service was just as much for the King of Kings as for our earthly king and did not increase our responsibility as we pray daily "Thy Kingdom come." She spoke of her recent visit to Japan showing the enormous distances covered by one missionary, her brother, Rev. Mr. Shortt, to minister to members of his flock among the immense population. The following officers were elected:

Hon. President—Mrs. Archer.
President—Mrs. J. C. Davidson
First vice-president — Mrs. P. Campbell
Second vice-president—Miss Mencke.
Secretary—Mrs. R. J. Devey.
Treasurer—Mrs. Aylmer.
Secretary Treasurers as follows:
Literature, Mrs. Palmer; Leaflet, Miss Watt; Dorcas, Mrs. Common; United Thank-offering, Mrs. Mulholland; Extra-Cent-a-Day, Mrs. Dean
Organist—Mrs. Fessenden.
Junior—Mrs. (Dr.) Cameron.
Babies' Branch — Miss Quartermaine.

CONCERT BY ST. JAMES' CHOIR

The choir of St. James' Methodist Church and assisting talent, gave an enjoyable concert at the church last night, before a large audience. The program was made up of choruses, solos and duets, recitations, an instrumental duet and a short address by the chairman, Mr. Wm. McLaren. One of the most popular numbers was a dialogue "Pickles," or "The Minister's Bride," by the choir, interspersed with a recitation by Mrs. MacLaren and a recitation by Mrs. Redgrave. Miss Palmer, the organist, supplied all the accompaniments.

The choir is doing good work under the leadership of Mr. W. Wright and several of the choristers are valued members of the Peterborough Choral Society. The program:—

Sailors' Chorus—the Choir.
Chairman's address—Mr. Wm. McLaren.
Solo—Mr. H. Hill.
Recitation—Mrs. Clare.
Solo—Miss Kemp.
Chorus—Sweet Vale of Rest—the Choir.
Duet—Misses Hanson.
Pianoforte duet—Mrs. Clarry and Miss Palmer.
Dialogue—"Pickles"—the choir.
Address by the choirleader.
Recitation—Miss Brooks.
Solo—Miss C. Hanson.
Recitation—Miss E. Hill
Duet and chorus—Good Night—the choir.

Remarks expressive of appreciation of the concert and the efforts of the choir and others who assisted were made by Rev. J. N. Clarry.

PLENTY OF MEN IN AUSTRALIA FOR DEFENCE

The Australian Commonwealth statistician has furnished interesting figures to show the number of men available in Australia according to the Defence Act.

Allowing 20 per cent. as the proportion that might be omitted as medically or otherwise unfit, and dividing the men into five classes, the result is shown in the following table. Class 1 included all unmarried men of 18 years and upwards, but under 35; class 2 from 35 to 45 years, unmarried; class 3, 18 to 35 married; and class 4, 34 to 45, married, and class 5, 45 to 60.

Class 1	525,850
Class 2	87,250
Class 3	232,150
Class 4	232,250
Class 5	336,700
Total	1,414,200

WEAR A SHAMROCK FOR THE ORPHANS

Shamrock Day Will be Held Next Saturday

Circumstances have awakened to a marked degree not only patriotism, but sympathy, so that a very necessary appeal for help for the orphan and aged will doubtless meet with a greater response than ever. Many good causes are now occupying public attention and making demands on the purse, but if the appeal for the orphans was necessary before the war, it is infinitely more so now, when so much money is being required for war purposes and usual donations for charity are diminished or cut off as a result.

The Ladies' Aid of St. Peter's have again organized for March 13th with greater enthusiasm than ever, and have an abundant supply of Shamrocks which will be sold in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage. The ladies are well organized for their day's campaign, having all the necessary arrangements made whereby a systematic street canvass will be carried on, also a visit to public buildings, etc. Each lady will wear a badge by which she will be easily recognized. Every contribution will be gratefully received and the worthiness of the cause should prompt generosity, especially on the part of those who can afford it. Remember, Christ showed special solicitude for orphans. Make this an opportunity to give alms to assist a charitable work and doubtless "Wear a Shamrock for the Orphans" will be as popular as ever.

Rupture Expert Here

Seeley, Who Fitted Czar of Russia Called to Peterborough

F. H. Seeley, of Chicago and Philadelphia, the noted truss expert, will be at the Oriental Hotel and will remain in Peterborough Friday only, March 19th. Mr. Seeley says: "The Spermatic Shield as now used and approved by the United States Government will not only retain any case of rupture perfectly, affording immediate and complete relief, but closes the opening in 10 days on the average case. This instrument received the only award in England and in Spain, producing results without surgery, harmful injections, medical treatments or prescriptions." Mr. Seeley has documents from the United States Government, Washington, D. C., for inspection. All charity cases without charge, or if any interested call, he will be glad to show same without charge or fit them if desired. Any one ruptured should remember the date and take advantage of this opportunity.

- THEATRICAL -

Last night the Mae Edwards' Players presented the charming comedy drama "The Woman in the Case," to a somewhat larger audience than Monday night. The varied thrilling situations were admirably handled by this clever Canadian Company, and Miss Edwards, the star, showed to splendid advantage. The Woman in the Case is somewhat different from the ordinary run of plays, having a beautiful story of home life, well told, and a very pretty dress bill. The vaudeville was all new, and the snap and life which this company contains goes to make a very enjoyable evening. Tonight the company presents the greatest farce comedy ever written, Charlie's Aunt. There will be a change in vaudeville and a new cabaret novelty.

PANIC FOLLOWED IN TURKISH CAPITAL

When First Shots From Allied Fleet Were Fired in the Dardanelles

TURKISH BATTERIES SLOW UP

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 11. — Travellers arriving in Geneva from Constantinople say the first guns fired by the Allied fleet in the Dardanelles stopped all business in the Turkish capital and were the signal for a panic. Many wealthy families are leaving for abroad.

The Matin says the bombardment of the Dardanelles fortifications was renewed on Wednesday, principally by French ships. Heavy fog prevented aviators from learing the results, but replies from some of the Turkish batteries slackened perceptibly.

THE PARIS STATEMENT

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 11. — The official report this afternoon says: "The British attack yesterday resulted in the capture of nearly a mile and a half of trenches before Neuve Chapelle (Flanders) and of the village itself. It progressed in the direction of Aubers as far as Pietremill and in a southeasterly direction as far as the northern border of Bois-du-Dubiez, that is to say a distance of about ten kilometres beyond Neuve Chapelle.

"German artillery fired only a few shots.

"As regards the rest of the front, there is nothing to add to yesterday evening's communication."

Police Board Will Act if Complaint is Made

Asked by the Review today if the Police Commissioners will take up the much-talked-of Helen Brown case at their next meeting, Judge Huycke, who is chairman of the commissioners, stated that if there is any ground for an investigation it will certainly be held. He was not possessed with enough facts of the case to state whether an investigation is warranted or not. If citizens complain to the commission, the complaint will be given careful attention. His Honor also stated that in the event of citizens claiming that the police were negligent in their duty in regard to this case, the commission would look thoroughly into the matter.

Judge Huycke expressed his deep regret at such a lamentable affair occurring in the city.

PRES. CARRANZA DENIES RESPONSIBILITY FOR SITUATION IN MEXICO

He Hopes Foreigners Will Lose no Time in Departing From Mexico City

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

VERA CRUZ, March 11. — In reply to the protest from Secretary Bryan regarding conditions in Mexico City, President Carranza has addressed a reply to President Wilson denying responsibility of the Constitutionalists for the situation which is considered alarming for foreigners, but expresses the hope that Americans and others will lose no time in departing from Mexico until tranquility shall be restored.

He says that since the Constitutionalists occupied the city there has not been a single case of assassination, not a single attack on women, or a case of a wealthy man being held for ransom, acts which he alleges were common under the former regime.

LEAD ON BY FALSEHOODS

German Soldiers Think Enemy is Making Last Despairing Effort

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, March 11.—The official military observers report given out today says:— "No signs of weakening are yet visible in the morale of the German troops as a whole. There is no reason yet why an intensely brave, determined and well organized army like the Germans should feel discouraged. News with which they are furnished makes it appear to them that their enemy is exhausted and engaged in a last despairing effort to delay the inevitable decision.

No doubt there is a marked difference between the expectations of the German civilians at the beginning of war and now, but it is impossible yet to say that either they or their army have lost confidence in ultimate success.

This confidence can be overthrown only by ever-increasing pressure of vast numbers of men and guns throughout the coming months. Up to the present, the Kaiser can at any time make a triumphal appearance at a Belgian, Russian or French town among his troops who are fighting in the enemy's country ruined and devastated by their presence.

BODY OF WM. WHITTAKER IS RECOVERED

Was Taken From River Near C.P.R. Bridge This Morning

Floating in midstream opposite Wolfe Street wharf, the body of William Whittaker was recovered today in a badly decomposed state. Whittaker jumped in the river and was drowned on January 5th, and his clothes lying on the bank below Hunter Street bridge pointed to suicide. As the river was coated with ice at the time it was impossible to conduct a search for the body. It is thought that the recent mild weather which broke up the ice considerably, started the body downstream. Two railroad employes crossing the C. P. R. bridge early this morning spied the body and informed relatives. One of these, Mr. Roland Butcher, accompanied by another man, went out in a punt and managed to secure the body and bring it ashore. Comstocks went down upon being informed and took charge of it. Coroner Dr. Greer was called and after examining the body deemed an inquest unnecessary.

Whittaker was chiefly identified by his wearing apparel. He had on a check waistcoat which he was known to have been wearing when last seen.

The funeral took place this afternoon at four o'clock to Little Lake Cemetery.

NAVAL REPRISALS AGAINST FOE

SEARCHING INQUIRY TO BE MADE BY UNITED STATES

Action by Washington, Regarding Sinking of American Ship Will be Based on Result of the Finding Says Wilson

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

WASHINGTON, March 11. — The following statement was issued at the White House today: "The President, when asked regarding the sinking of the American ship William P. Frye, by the German auxiliary cruiser Prince Eitel Friedrich, said: "Most searching inquiry will be made, and whatever action is taken will be based upon the result of that inquiry."

The cruiser began her scouting at Tsingtau, China, last November, under Commander Thierichens, who yesterday admitted the sinking of eight merchant ships—three British, three French, one Russian and one American ship, the William P. Fyre, a sailing vessel, bound from Seattle to Queenstown with 5,200 tons of wheat, most concerned American port officials here.

Thec ruiser has on board more than 500 persons, 342 of the crews and passengers of destroyed vessels, in addition to her own crew of about 200.

In the absence of a detailed story of the sinking of the American ship, William P. Frye, off the coast of South America, official judgment was withheld, but there was no attempt to deny the seriousness of the incident, and it was conceded that on its face it bore the appearance of an unfriendly act upon the part of a German ship of war, which must result in diplomatic negotiations with the German Government.

TO LEAVE IN THE MORNING

Battery Men Will Depart at Eight O'clock for Kingston

MILITARY DOINGS

Peterborough will bid farewell to another quota of men tomorrow morning when some twenty-five recruits for the two batteries and ammunition column, will depart for Kingston. Major Hall, who has been recruiting officer, received word from Col. Ogilvie of Kingston this morning to the effect that all men prepared to leave should proceed to Kingston immediately. The men will fall-in at seven-thirty tomorrow morning and accompanied by the 57th Regimental Band and the 39th Battalion will march to the G.T.R. depot from where they will leave at eight o'clock. The men will be in charge of Sergt. Hetherington.

The volunteers are:—

Commands Road Between La Bassee and Lille and Gives Base for Operations to Straighten Allied Line in Front of Lille

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 11. — The capture by the British of Neuve Chapelle, with one thousand prisoners and several machine guns, constitutes the most considerable advance reported from North France for several months past. This advance, if made in force, is strategically of great importance, as the position commands the road between La Bassee and Lille. Furthermore, it makes the German hold on La Bassee insecure and gives a base for operations for the straightening of the allied lines in front of Lille.

This advance was unexpected, as lately the principal activity reported from the British front has been in the direction of the other end of the line, near Ypres.

The British are now within two miles of the furthermost point gained by Smith-Dorrien last October when, with one army corps, in an effort to gain Fournes, on the road between La Bassee and Lille, he forced his way as far as Aubers, two miles to the northeast of Neuve Chapelle, but after desperate fighting against tremendous odds was forced to retire.

INDIAN CORPS IN BRITISH ADVANCE

Airmen Also Destroy Railroad Junctions at Two Points

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 11. — British forces in France yesterday advanced three-quarters of a mile, capturing all intervening positions of the enemy, according to official announcement given out today. "The fourth and Indian corps advanced yesterday on a front of four thousand yards for roughly three-quarters of a mile, and captured all intervening hostile positions and trenches. Corps on the right and left of these two corps also were engaged. More than seven hundred prisoners were taken.

"British aircraft yesterday were active and succeeded in destroying railroad junctions at Courtrai and Menin."

PARIS, March 11. — An official summary of recent events in the Champagne district says that very strong pressure exercised upon the enemy's lines compelled the Germans to bring to this point very numerous forces taken from reserves in other sections, and to make a heavy expenditure of ammunition. At the same time he was prevented from withdrawing either men or munitions for use in the eastern campaign.

The report intimates that the French losses were not excessive when results are considered.

WOULD USE OIL OF HIGH GRADE

Save the Roads Instead of Washing Them Away

The board of works meets tonight at eight o'clock. The main item of interest is the proposition of overcoming the dust during the coming summer. Already several petitions have been received for street watering, but Ald. Green favors the idea of placing a high grade of oil on the streets and thus assist in building the roads instead of washing them away with the water.

The chairman is also anxious to have the members discuss the proposed paving. The petition for paving Hunter street from Aylmer west to Walton street will be fully considered.

Happy, Indeed.

PETERBOROUGH, THURSDAY, MARCH 11, 1915

IS IT RIGHT?

ANY CITIZEN of Peterborough can ask himself, "Is it right that the Helen Brown case should be hushed up?" In view of what the police know and have done, there is only one answer — that the case should be further probed. There are a number of innocent residents of this city that rumor has connected with the case, and unless the guilty ones are brought to justice the stigma must always remain.

Besides, if the authorities let the offenders in this case escape, as they have possibly done on previous occasions, in the hope that leniency would be rewarded by right living, there will be no improvement in this city. The fact that such leniency as quiet heart-to-heart talks in the Chief's office has in several instances had no good result, and has culminated in a tragedy, is ample proof that a more rigorous treatment is very necessary. Yet in spite of all the many reasons why further action should be taken, the authorities are proposing to do nothing. Is it right that crime should not be investigated in Peterborough? If so, it is time to dispense with the services of several officials.

A CLEAR STATEMENT.

IN ANOTHER COLUMN there appears an explanation of the situation of the public utilities of this city, particularly the waterworks system. It is clear that the expenditure over and above the limit allowed by special legislation was occasioned solely by the expanding needs of this city. A growing city like Peterborough has to spend large sums in civic improvements, or otherwise growth will stop, and from the chairman's remarks it would appear that this has been well done.

Located as this city is, with great possibilities for electrical and manufacturing development, and situated at the gateway of a great scenic or resort district, large expenditure by the Utilities Commission was not only unavoidable, but necessary. So long as the city receives value for its money, the citizens should be glad that progress has been made and efficiency in expenditure maintained. The figures given by Mr. Matthews before the Private Bills Committee indicate that such has been the case. The citizens should go over the article carefully, as it explains why there was expenditure over the amount allowed, and shows what has been done with the money. The Utilities Commission has been working, as is shown, in the best interests of the people.

SHADOWS OF COMING EVENTS.

(By J. P. Laycock, M. A.)

THE WAR GAME in Europe still seems to be in the stalemate stage. A superficial cynic would bring all the laws of mathematical calculation to his aid in the effort to show that the Germans might possibly be conquered by judgment day. Still, there are signs, one might almost say the shadows of coming events, which indicate that the period of deadlock is approaching an end. All along, like a mighty wrestler, General Joffre, under the cover of his celebrated "nibbling" tactics, has been feeling for the weak points in the Teuton lines. All along, Grand Duke Nicholas has foiled Field Marshal Von Hindenburg's massed attacks, rendered possible by Germany's splendid system of military railways, by strategic retirement here, strategic advancement there. All along, Admiral Jellicoe has directed the naval might of Britain to the task of throttling German commerce, war supplies and food supplies. All along, the human foundations of the Teutonic Allies, the foundations which cannot be replaced, the men of the two empires have been diminished in numbers by the wearing-down tactics of the Allies at the very time that the reserves and volunteers of Russia, France and Britain are being marshalled and prepared for the general offensive to come in the spring. So this stage of the war may be the stage of deadlock, but it is hardly that of stalemate.

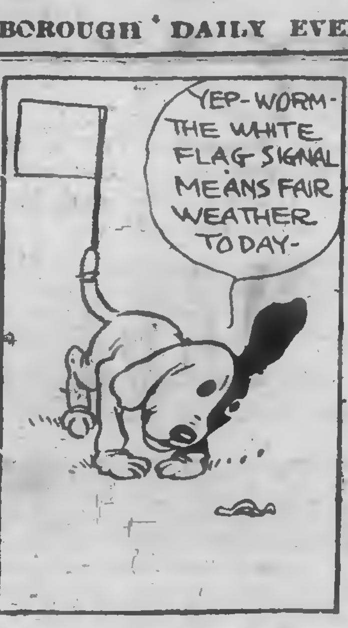
The concentrated German drives in East Prussia and Bukowina have been inspired by political rather than by strategic reasons, by the desire to keep neutral nations out of the conflict rather than by the wish to reach Warsaw. The Teutonic-Turkish alliance, for generations masters of the destinies of dependent non-Teutonic nationalities — Danish, Slav, Roumanian, Italian and Balkan peoples — know only too well that signs of collapse on their part are only too apt to bring neutral nations into the war to liberate the oppressed nationalities. There must be no permanent set-back in East Prussia, no permanent Russian advance in Bukowina, or Italy may march on Trieste and Trent, Roumania into Transylvania, and the Balkan States against Constantinople. The Austro-German advance in Bukowina was politically designed to teach Roumania and the Balkan nations that they had better stay out of the war, by bringing under their very vision the tremendous strength of the Teutonic aggression.

While it may be that this Austro-German advance so close to the Roumanian border has delayed the entrance of this kingdom into the conflict, the probability is that it merely emphasizes to the statesmen of Bucharest the necessity of them to help Russia in order to achieve nationalistic ambitions. Indeed, it seems that the stage has not yet been properly set for the entrance of Italy, Roumania and the Balkan States, and will not be until the general offensive planned for the Spring begins. For neutral nations to enter the war one by one before the maximum strength of Russia and the Allies has been exerted, shows lack of wisdom, and courts disaster, by enabling the Germanic nations to defeat their new enemies in detail, or at best to prolong the contest. This war will be ended in shortest order by all the interested nations, when adequately prepared, assuming a general advance at the same time, and thus giving Germany no moment for breathing or recuperation. The probability is that Italy and the Balkan nations, especially if Italy assumes an offensive along the Dalmatian coast in conjunction with the Serbian army, hold the key to the early close of this Armageddon, through their ability to march through the most unprotected areas of the Dual Monarchy to the least fortified flank of Germany, the Austro-German frontier, from whence the heart of Germany lies open, and the long lines of frontier fortifications on the Russian and French borders may be turned and rendered useless.

The bombardment of the Dardanelles by the Allied fleets is an event of tremendous importance. It means much more than the mere releasing of the Russian wheat crop; it may prove to be the turning point of the war. It has already shattered the Turkish plans for a campaign in the land of the Pyramids, has indeed been the best defence of Egypt. It will enable munitions of war to be shipped to Roumania, and probably hasten that nation's entrance into the war. It will tend to force the hand of Italy, as the redistribution of power in the Eastern Mediterranean is a matter of vital import to the peninsular nation. It will cut off Turkey in Europe from Turkey in Asia, permit the famous Chatalga lines to be attacked from the rear, and tend to tempt Bulgaria to retake Adrianople. It has already brought about the resignation of the Greek cabinet, as operations affecting the Greek population in Constantinople and Asia Minor cannot be observed tamely and disinterestedly by the Hellenic kingdom. The Grecian army could co-operate nicely with the Allies in the land operations along the Dardanelles. Is fate, then, to play one of its pranks, and is Constantinople, which was built by one Constantine, the bulwark of early Christianity, lost to Christendom by another Constantine, to be recovered from the Crescent by a third Constantine? Whether so or not, at least this may easily turn out to be the case — the naval operations in the Hellespont may be the match to explode again the Balkan powder barrel, set the Italian-Roumanian combine aflame to release its kinsman from under the Hapsburg heel, and light the path of a Latin-Slav advance along the Danube into the heart of Germany.

The ultimate fate of Constantinople is of more than passing interest. There still remain those who advocate that the cherished plan of Disraeli and the diplomats of the past to protect the route to India be maintained at all cost, and the Bear prevented from sitting down on the shores of the Marmora. Others, seeing the difficulty of keeping Russia, who has borne the brunt of this this War of the Nations, since the battle of the Marne, at any rate, from this goal of her ambitions, would partially compensate her, but keep the Dardanelles neutral territory. Sir Edward Grey, with a keener insight into international morality and the changed times, in reply to a query in the House of Commons as to the Government's attitude towards Russian acquisition of Constantinople, declared that the cabinet was in full sympathy with the legitimate, economic and political ambitions of the Russian people.

Constantinople is the natural capital, geographically, of the Muscovite empire. It is the summer port for which she has ever been yearning and which is so essential to her economic well-being. It stands on those strategic waters along which, in times of peace or war, the export trade especially the grain surplus, of Southern Russia, must travel on its way to the world markets. Britain has no need to fear Russian occupation of Constantinople, as she still controls the straits of Gibraltar and the Suez Canal, which stand athwart the Mediterranean rout of Russian commerce, but also the North Sea, which lies between the Baltic and the Atlantic. Any real danger to the route to India, from the point of view of sea power, can only come from that nation which can present a superior fleet to that of the British; but the strategic position of the British Isles, the heart of the British Empire, renders peril by sea from Russia remote. The Russian fleet must always be broken up into three sections: the Baltic, the Black Sea, and the East Pacific; while the British fleet, concentrated in home waters or at Gibraltar, holding in its possession the keys of the sea, can attack the enemy in detail. It is true that the acquisition of the Hellespont would make Russia a Mediterranean power, but the Mediterranean would be merely a larger Black Sea, and the junction of the branches of the Russian fleet would be almost as far off as ever. But it is asserted, whether Constantinople were in her hands or not, Russia would still be insatiable in her ambitions, and war would result over some other causes. Thus, as a parallel, it might be urged, it was not the problem of race, of Alsace-Lorraine, that caused the outbreak of the War of the Nations and the entrance of Great Britain into the fray, but the German disregard for international obligations and other more im-mediate issues. A distinction must be drawn between remote and immediate causes of warfare. The alignment of nations into rival groups is not the outcome of the immediate interests which form the pretext for hostilities, but the more distant or foundational cleavages of principles. The race problem in Alsace-Lorraine was not outwardly the cause of conflict, but it was at the very root of things which brought about the Russo-French alliance, the official reason for the German declaration of war against the republic. The moral, if we are to avoid conflict with the Russian colossus in the future, is to prevent her from having any justifiable grievance against the British Empire, by yielding to her Constantinople or any other legitimate ambition, whether the result be that, that creature of deception, the balance of power, be disturbed or not. Then, if war does come, the British Empire will fight with justice entirely on its side. And is there not, after all, something in being on the right side? something in the good old belief that justice will eventually triumph, whatever the odds?



WEATHER FORECASTS.

HIGH PRICES FOR HORSES

Canada Will Not Recover From Scarcity For Many Years.

The great demand from Great Britain, France, Belgium and Italy for Canadian cavalry and artillery horses will, according to the Department of Agriculture here, practically absorb all the available supplies of light horses in Canada during the coming year. High prices for horses of nearly all kinds with the possible exception of heavy draft horses, are predicted in Canada for years to come.

Already some thirty thousand horses have been purchased in Canada for war purposes. The British War Office has purchased in Canada more than seven thousand out of the fifty thousand horses secured on this side of the Atlantic since the outbreak of the war. The Canadian Government purchased about seven thousand horses for the first contingent and another ten thousand are now being bought for the second and third contingents. The French and Italian Governments are also looking for horses from Canada. A Toronto firm was recently offered a contract for five thousand horses to be purchased for the Italian Government. The demand from all quarters for horses for war purposes is increasing.

It is estimated that the total number of horses now engaged in the war is one million. The estimated average life of the cavalry horse on active service is seven days; of the artillery horse it is thirty days. For army purposes in the next twelve months, therefore, more than twelve million horses will be required.

An estimate prepared by the Department of Agriculture of the available supply in Canada shows that there are about forty-six thousand horses suitable for cavalry or artillery purposes. Of these two thousand are in the Maritime Provinces, eight thousand in Quebec, twelve thousand in Ontario, four thousand in Manitoba, seven thousand in Saskatchewan, twelve thousand in Alberta, and one thousand in British Columbia.

A conservative estimate places the total number of horses owned by the allies at forty-eight millions, and by the enemy at 8,700,000. Of these, of course, only a small proportion would be available for war purposes. The supply in Germany and Austria is already pretty well exhausted, and those countries have not the resources of the United States and other neutral countries to draw upon.

It is probable that before the year closes the farmers of Canada will have sold for war purposes six or seven million dollars' worth of horses. When the war closes a good driving or riding horse may be as great a luxury as a good automobile.

First Hudson Bay Report.

The first annual report of the Hudson Bay Railway shows that the line is only 24 miles of a variation from an air line covering the entire length of 415 miles.

About 240 miles have been completed, 350 miles are partially graded and on 204 miles the track is laid. Telegraphs have been constructed for 175 miles. Grading will be completed next summer and the line will be ready to handle the 1916 crop.

Province Planning Road Patrol.

If a certain plan now understood to be engaging the attention of the Ontario Government works out into practice, motorists traveling provincial highways next year will find along every five or ten mile strip a solitary road patrol engaged in keeping the roadbed in first-class shape. He will have with him a horse and cart and a complete one-man repair equipment, and will be held personally responsible for the maintenance of the stretch alloted to him. His home will be in the vicinity and his daily task will be to traverse the section, to make all minor repairs, and if flaws of great extent are discovered to communicate with the county road authorities to see that it be dealt with at once. No break will be allowed to gain headway.

If this plan is adopted it will likely be worked on the county road basis. Each county would then appoint its own patrols under the direction of the engineer, and allot the road length for them to guard. Thus, in Ontario there would be nearly 200 men constantly employed after the manner of section workers on a railroad.

QUITE AN ADVANTAGE.

YES, congress has an easy snap
If ever there was one.
To carry on its pleasant work
Is nothing short of fun.
It only has to pay the bills.
It doesn't have to sweat
Or wonder where to make ends meet
The money it will get.

A thousand or a million cold
To it is all the same.
It knows its jolly Uncle Sam
Has money to its name.
And so it passes right and left
Bills wholesale, by the score.
It pauses just to get its breath,
And then it passes more.

How very pleasant it would be
If you could only pay.
Could settle as they came to hand,
Your family bills that way—
No matter how immense they were,
If you could sit at ease
And calmly say, "I'll let that pass,"
Offhanded as you please!

But, no; you have to rustle out
And get the wherewithal.
You're not a congress, so you must Look after matters small.
You may sit down and vote, but such
A simple minded plan
Won't make the butcher give you peace
Or pay the grocer man.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NORTH-WEST LAND REGULATIONS.

THE sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba, Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at the Dominion Lands Agency or Sub-Agency for the District. Entry by proxy may be made at any Dominion Lands Agency (but not Sub-Agency), on certain conditions.

Duties—Six months residence upon and cultivation of the land in each of three years. A homesteader may live within nine miles of his homestead on a farm of at least 80 acres, on certain conditions. A habitable house is required except where residence is performed in the vicinity.

In certain districts a homesteader in good standing may pre-empt a quarter-section alongside his homestead. Price $3.00 per acre.

Duties—Six months residence in each of three years after earning homestead patent; also 50 acres extra cultivation. Pre-emption patent may be obtained as soon as homestead patent, on certain conditions.

A settler who has exhausted his homestead right may take a purchased homestead in certain districts. Price $3.00 per acre. Duties—Must reside six months in each of three years, cultivate 50 acres and erect a house worth $300.

The area of cultivation is subject to reduction in case of rough, scrubby or stony land. Live stock may be substituted for cultivation under certain conditions.

Covell's Little Joke

It Didn't Turn Out the Way He Expected

By WILLIAM MORRIS, Jr.

Balmoral was a mining town, and all Balmoral, with the exception of Dan Betterley and his sister, thought Colonel Covell's joke a good one. The Betterleys were excepted because the joke was on Dan.

The joke had sprung from a careless remark made by Rob Henders when Julie Betterley had refused to marry Howard Wetton on the ground that she did not want to leave Ben alone to keep house in bachelor discomfort.

"Some one would do Wetton a personal favor by marrying off Ben," suggested Henders, and the rest of the crowd shouted with delight at the idea of the silent Benjamin marrying.

"But he wouldn't know how to ask a girl," suggested Colonel Covell. "Some one would have to pop the question for him. By John Rogers," he added, "I think I'll do it for him! I've a maiden aunt back east who's been crazy to get married for more years than I've lived. Her name's Adora Dedrick, and she must be about sixty now.

"She's got a little money, and she may think that he's marrying her for that, but she'll take him. We'll carry along the game until we've proposed for him, and then we'll let Ben get the answer or else we'll bring the old lady on and let him fight it out with her."

"That would be great," declared Henders approvingly. "Let her walk right up to him and put her arms around his neck and say 'Darling!' I'll bet that will scare him into talking."

"I'll be one to help pay the old lady's traveling expenses on this here excursion," broke in Denver Bill. "What will it cost?"

"Say $400," suggested Covell as he took off his hat and threw in $20. In a few minutes more than the needed sum had been realized, and, calling for pens and paper, Covell wrote the first letter, while the rest of the crowd looked on.

Betterley was not disliked in Balmoral, but his taciturn ways and his refusal to make one of the crowd that nightly thronged the hotel bar marked him a man apart from the rest. Hence the crowd was willing to pay for the pleasure of seeing his amazement when his undesirable bride elect should appear.

Unmindful of all postal regulations, the postmaster agreed to let Covell have the letters addressed to Dan Betterley should any come from the little New England town where Miss Adora Dedrick lived. Presently it came, a heavy letter in which Miss Dedrick expressed a willingness to correspond with a man so well recommended by Cousin Covell.

"I guess she's forgotten you, colonel," suggested Henders when this line was reached, but Covell merely grinned appreciatively and continued to read.

There was little to laugh at in the letter. Indeed, more than one in the crowd wished there was some one out back east who would write letters like that to him, but Covell's vivid description of Miss Dedrick's overripe charms and the thought of what Dan would say when she arrived kept the joke alive during the correspondence that followed. Finally when Miss Dedrick wrote that she was sending her picture and the accompanying photograph proved to be that of a comely girl scarcely out of her teens Covell rolled on the floor in his delight.

"Cousin Adora was that old before they knew how to take pictures," he insisted. "She must have begged this of a photographer. I think that it's time to spring the joke now. We'll send her the money to come on with and ask her to start at once. Dan will see this picture, and when Cousin Adora comes I reckon he'll be some surprised."

Covell laboriously indited a lengthy letter, in which he declared Dan's inability to wait longer for his bride and begging her to come west at once.

A few days later a telegram telephoned from the railroad town to camp announced her start, and when they had learned the sense of the message the plotters allowed it to be delivered, while at the same time Miss Adora's last letter and her picture, inclosed in the original letter, were placed back in the postoffice and delivered to Dan that evening.

Dan received them, but said not a word the next day, and the crowd was disappointed.

"Wait until he sees what he draws," reminded Covell. "He'll go some shy of sleep when Cousin Adora gets after him with all those letters. She'll never believe that he didn't write them."

The thought cheered the disappointed ones, and even when Dan went quietly to his claim on the morrow and did not even ask the postmaster about the letter they chuckled as they thought of the awakening that was in store for him.

Every man in the camp was on hand when the stage came over from Buxton three days later.

Far down the trail the driver waved his hat three times as a signal that the bride had arrived, and they were all lined up about the front of the hotel where they could watch Ben and his sister without being so near that he might suspect something.

There was a tense moment when the veiled figure descended from the interior of the stage, but a murmur of disappointment followed when it was seen that a heavy automobile veil was impenetrable.

Dan came forward, and the arrival turned to him. He led her up to his sister, and the three climbed into the Betterley buckboard and were off to Dan's shack before the camp fairly realized that it was being robbed of its fun.

"It's going to be curious when she takes off that there veil," said Henders, with a sigh, "but it's darned mean that we can't declare in on the deal. I sort of feel that I've been cheated."

"Same here," chimed another voice, and, though Covell urged that there still would be plenty of fun, he was decidedly unpopular for the moment.

In an effort to change the humor of the crowd he invited them over to the Brindle Pup, and they were still having drinks at his expense when Dan Betterley strode in and drew Covell to one side.

"Look here," he said quietly, but with a ring of determination in his voice. "Dora has been asking for 'Cousin Covell,' and I suppose that means you. If it does you are at the bottom of this trick. I want to know what it all means."

"It was a sort of joke," explained Covell, who did not appear to be greatly enjoying the "joke." "Some of the boys thought that you ought to be married, so's Julie could marry Howard Wetton, and I remembered that I had a Cousin Adora back east who's been wanting to be married for the last fifty years, so I thought I'd make the whole lot of you happy and"—

"And you did the writing," concluded Dan. "From what Dora says I gather that there were a number of letters I never saw. I want them."

From the saloon safe Covell extracted the package of letters and silently turned them over to Betterley.

"I suppose you know what the punishment is for illegal use of the mails?" he asked, raising his voice. "The first hint from any one that reaches my wife's ears to the effect that she was the victim of a rotten practical joke will bring a postal inspector here who will see that you get what's coming to you!"

"Your wife!" gasped Covell. "You don't mean to say that you're going to marry that mummy?"

"Doesn't the fact that you are still alive argue that?" asked Betterley. "The joke appears to do on you, Covell. I fell in love with her photograph just as Dora did with mine, and I was well content to make the match you so amiably planned."

"She looks like that photograph?" asked Covell gaspingly.

"It doesn't half do her justice," declared Betterley fondly. "The Adora Dedrick that you have been corresponding with became Mrs. Henry Sprague some ten years ago. This Adora is her niece, her brother's child, named after her. She was the only Miss Adora Dedrick, and she received the letters. She wants to see her cousin, and if you dare hint anything when you come up I'll"—

"You won't have to," said Covell humbly. "I've acted like a hound puppy, Dan. You needn't be afraid. I'm only too glad the joke's been switched."

"Same here," said Betterley, more contentedly. "You fellows come up tonight. There's going to be a double wedding, for now Julia can marry Wetton. You're a pretty good joker, colonel!"

"I ain't no joker," declared Covell, with more emphasis than grammar. "I'm one of them pretty pink Cupids that they have on valentines—and I'm rather good at the job too."

PRACTICAL HEALTH HINT.

Massage For Bruises.

Massage is useful in treating bruises, particularly the severe contusions due to external violence. The rubbing should be done with a stroking movement, using the fingers or the palm, and always directed from the center of the contusion. In this way great relief will often be obtained in a few minutes. The massaging should be done twice a day and should not be continued for more than fifteen minutes at a sitting. In massaging sprains the rubbing should be directed toward the joint, not away from it. In such conditions the time of the application may be lengthened to half an hour, and a greater amount of pressure exerted than in cases of simple contusion. The parts directly over the joint, however, should be handled gently, as otherwise more harm than good may be done.

Woman's World

Ex-President Cleveland's Daughter Studying Nursing.

MISS ESTHER CLEVELAND.

Miss Esther Cleveland is a member of the class in nursing which is conducted at the central branch of the Young Women's Christian association, New York. Many other young women of society are included in the class. Among them are Mrs. De Lancey Nicoll and Miss Elizabeth Hibben, daughter of the president of Princeton university. Many of the women of the class expect to put their knowledge to practical use by nursing wounded soldiers of the allied armies in France and England.

This class has always been a popular one, and this year it has been especially so with women of society.

Many of the members have friends whose chateaux in France or country houses in the south of England have been turned into convalescent hospitals, and it is to these homes, as a rule, that the graduate trained attendants will make their way next spring.

Miss Esther is the eldest of the late President Cleveland's children. She was a White House baby. Born in 1893, she is now twenty-one years old. She has always been exceedingly popular in Princeton, where the family make their home. The former Mrs. Cleveland, who married a second time, is now Mrs. Thomas J. Preston, Jr.

Nursery Play Tray.

A truly invaluable nursery possession is a tray of sand which will fit upon a child's small table or even rest solidly upon the floor. The tray should have upright borders not less than four inches in height—and a little higher is better—and should contain a heap of clean sand. This, when slightly moistened, can be "built" into all manner of fascinating objects, from the elementary "castle" of babyhood to a complete railway line, with station, bridges and tunnel, through which toy trains can be run, or the daintiest of miniature gardens planted with twigs and leaves and bordered with massive "rocks" formed of stones, over which more flowers will trail, or a fortified town in which the soldiers, with cannon and the rest—naturally so popular this year—can attack and defend to the endless amusement of the young owner. This tray need take up no appreciable room when not in use, for the little owner can soon be taught to scoop the sand up and put it in a closed receptacle. Then the empty tray may stand quite out of the way until the next time it is used.

Nice Hair Ribbons.

A little girl's hair ribbon musses very quickly if tied each time it is used. Instead of tying make the ribbon into a bow and tie the latter to the hair with a short piece of baby ribbon, the same color as the bow, slipped through the knot. By this means the bow is fastened to the hair securely and is always kept fresh.

Keeping Baby In Bed.

To prevent a baby from rolling off a bed spread a large cotton quilt or piece of denim between the springs and the mattress, letting it hang over the sides to a depth of twenty inches or more. Sew strong tapes firmly to each corner of the quilt or cloth, turn upward and then tie securely to the bedposts.

Drying Children's Hair.

Drying the children's hair will not take half as long if the towels are heated. With a radiator it is a simple matter to keep several towels warm, and by using them in rotation it is surprising how fast the hair may be dried. Do not have them too hot, but quite warm.

WOMAN'S BEST MEDICINE

Mrs. Kelly Advises all Women to Take "Fruit-a-Tives"

HAGERSVILLE, ONT., AUG. 26th. 1913.

"I can highly recommend "Fruit-a-tives" because they did me an awful lot of good and I cannot speak too highly about them. About four years ago, I commenced taking "Fruit-a-tives" for a general break-down and they did me a world of good. We bought a good many dollar's worth, but it was money well spent because they did all that you claim for them. Their action is so pleasant, compared with other laxatives, that I found only pleasure, as well as health, in taking them. They seemed to me to be particularly suited to women, on account of their mild and gentle action, and I trust that some other women may start taking "Fruit-a-tives" after reading my letter, and if they do, I am satisfied the results will be the same as in my own case".

MRS. W. N. KELLY

"Fruit-a-tives" are sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c, or sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

Lesson XI.—First Quarter, For March 14, 1915.

THE INTERNATIONAL SERIES.

Text of the Lesson, I Sam. xi—Memory Verses, 12, 13—Golden Text, Prov. xvi, 32—Commentary Prepared by Rev. D. M. Stearns.

After the Lord had brought to Samuel the man whom He had chosen as king for Israel and Samuel had anointed him he returned to his home, having met on his way all whom Samuel said he would meet, for all came to pass just as Samuel said. The Spirit of the Lord came upon him, and he became a changed man (chapter x, 6 10). All this was a private matter between the Lord and Samuel and Saul, for when Saul reached home he only told that Samuel had assured him that the asses had been found, but he said nothing of the kingdom. Then Saul called the people to Mizpeh, reminded them of the Lord's deliverance from Egypt and all enemies and of their rejection of God in demanding a king and then proceeded to have them elect a king with God's permission. It was, no doubt, done by lot, as the land was divided, for "the lot is cast into the lap, but the whole disposing thereof is of the Lord" (Num. xxvi, 55, 56; Prov. xvi, 33). First the tribe was found and then the family and then the man (chapter x, 20, 21; compare Josh. vii, 16-18), and thus they were guided to the man whom He had already chosen and anointed. Although elected, he could not for a time be found, so they inquired of the Lord, and He told them where to find him. Whether it be a person or a thing that cannot be found, He that is perfect in knowledge knows where to find the lost (Job xxxvi, 4).

When the people looked upon the man whom God had chosen they could not refrain from shouting, "God save the king!" or, as in the margin, "Let the king live!" (x, 23-25.) The band of men whose hearts God had touched were a comfort to him, so that he was able to seem as a deaf man to his enemies (x, 26, 27). Our lesson chapter shows how Saul by the Spirit of the Lord began to deliver Israel and to obtain the confidence of the people. I suppose there is scarcely a day in the life of any child of God when there is not an occasion to say, "Now, the serpent" (Gen. iii, 1), for he is ever going about to make trouble. Nahash, whose name signifies "serpent," was moved by the devil, whose he was and whom he served, to seek to bring reproach upon Israel (verses 1-3). Saul heard of the distress of Jabesh Gilead and in a very striking way summoned the people to gather unto him and Samuel, and 330,000 gathered, and word was sent to the distressed that they would have help by the morrow. That night or in the early morning (verse 11) Saul came suddenly upon the Ammonites and so completely routed them that two of them were not left together (verses 4-11).

The morning deliverances of the Bible are full of interest and are all suggestive of the morning that is coming when the Lord shall finally and forever deliver Israel (Ps. xlvi, 5, margin). Compare Ps. xlix, 14, and see Ex. xiv, 24, 27. Think also of Dan. vi, 19-23, and of the deliverance that came to the disciples in the morning watch (Mark vi, 48). But, while believers may well rejoice in the glorious morning that is coming and in Him who is to us the Morning Star (II Sam. xxiii, 5; Rev. xxii, 16), it is also written that there will be no morning for such as do not believe God (Isa. viii, 20; margin and revised version). When the people saw the great deliverance wrought by Saul they asked to have Saul's enemies put to death, but Saul would not listen to it, saying, "There shall not a man be put to death this day, for today the Lord hath wrought salvation in Israel" (verses 12, 13). It was the same power that wrought for Israel at the Red sea (Ex. xiv, 13, 30) and on so many occasions in all their history, and their greatest deliverance is yet to come (Zech. xiv, 3, 9). Samuel then gathered the people to Gilgal, and there they made Saul king before the Lord, offered sacrifices, and all Israel rejoiced greatly (verses 14, 15). Thus far all seemed to be going well, but when man has his way there is soon failure, for "Verily, every man at his best state (apart from God) is altogether vanity" (Ps. xxxix, 5).

Chapter xii tells how Samuel rehearsed the history of the nation from their coming out of Egypt, the Lord's dealings with them under Moses and Aaron and how many a time He delivered them in the days of the judges. He also asked them to testify as to whether during all the time that he had judged them he had ever taken anything from them or defrauded any one or taken a bribe to blind his eyes, but they called God to witness that they could find no fault in him in any of these matters (xii, 1-5). To show them that he was right before the Lord as well as in their eyes and that they had done wrong in asking for a king when the Lord Himself was their King he asked the Lord to send thunder and rain that day, and He did so. The people seemed to see their sin and asked Samuel to pray for them (xii, 1-19). Samuel assured them that, though they had done this great wrong, yet if they would truly turn to the Lord and fear Him and serve Him in truth with all their heart He would for His great name's sake forgive them and not forsake them and he (Samuel) would not cease to pray for them.

MUSIC LANGUAGE

As you know, the single notes are the letters of the music language. Groups of notes are the words of the music language. In a spoken language the letters are always sounded one after the other. In the music language they are sometimes sounded one after the other and sometimes simultaneously.

This fact explains two important divisions of music—namely, melody and harmony. In a general way, melody consists of single tones heard one after the other; combinations of tones heard simultaneously are called harmony. A word of the music language may consist of several tones in succession, like a word of the spoken language, which consists of several letters in succession.

On the other hand, a word of the music language may consist of several tones heard simultaneously, which is impossible in language. Some of the most important words of the music language are those which are used in both these ways, and it is one of the great charms of music that its words can be heard in these two ways.—Dr. Rudolf von Liebich in Woman's World.

How They Laugh.

Travelers have noticed how the laughter of the different nations varies. The Italian laugh is languid, but musical; the Germans laugh in a deliberate fashion, the French are spasmodic and uncertain, the upper class English guarded and not always genuine, the lower class English explosive, the Scottish of all classes hearty and the Irish rollicking. The Chinese laugh is not so expressive as the European. It is usually a titter rather than a genuine outburst of merriment.—Westminister Gazette.

HOW WOMEN AVOID OPERATIONS
By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Cleveland, Ohio—"My left side pained me so for several years that I expected to have to undergo an operation, but the first bottle I took of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound relieved me of the pains in my side and I continued its use until I became regular and free from pains. I had asked several doctors if there was anything I could take to help me and they said there was nothing that they knew of.—I am thankful for such a good medicine and will always give it the highest praise."—Mrs. C. H. GRIFFITH, 7305 Madison Ave., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hanover, Pa.—"I suffered from female trouble and the pains were so bad at times that I could not sit down. The doctor advised a severe operation but my husband got me Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I experienced great relief in a short time. Now I feel like a new person and can do a hard day's work and not mind it. What joy and happiness it is to be well once more. I am always ready and willing to speak a good word for the Compound."—Mrs. ADA WILT, 196 Stock St., Hanover, Pa.

If there are any complications you do not understand write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

ARGUMENTS THAT WON SANCTION TO CLAUSE OF THE PRIVATE BILL

Authority Given the City to Expend $80,000 on Waterworks System --- Why the Money is Required

The arguments presented to the Private Bills Committee of the legislature, on behalf of the city which asked authority for the council to issue debentures for $80,000 to be expended on the waterworks system were presented by T. F. Matthews, chairman of the Utilities Commission. So well did Mr. Matthews present the city's case that the committee made no hesitation in granting the request, and, as this matter is of more than ordinary interest to the ratepayers, the various reasons for making the expenditure are given for their consideration.

Expenditure exceeded debenture issue.

1909-13 On real estate, dam and machinery	$42,430.70
1902-13 On mains, hydrants and services	38,153.28
Total	$80,583.98

It was found advisable to purchase additional land above the dam to provide against claims for damages to rights above, and land below the dam to provide a better tail race.

The bottom of the river was sounded and showed rock. When it was unwatered, the rock was found to be shale, and had to be taken out for several feet, adding to the expense of unwatering, excavation and construction.

A wing dam had also to be later constructed to prevent the washing away of the bank below the dam on the east side.

The increasing demand on the works by extensions showed that it would be advisable to increase the pumping capacity more than was contemplated. The Fire Underwriters' Association also made a demand for this, and another pumping unit was added of 3,000,000 gallons capacity, at a cost of $10,101.00, this not being included in first estimate.

Several incidental increases over the estimate are included in the whole, including extra cost of diverting a stream, piers for glance booms, expense on bank above the dam, etc.

After work had begun it was decided to prepare for an electrical development in addition to the waterworks. This cost several thousand dollars.

Extensions and Improvements.

Within a year or two after the city took over the waterworks in 1902 the city began a period of phenomenal growth. At the beginning legislative authority was procured to issue debentures to the amount of $5,000.00 in any one year for extensions. This was almost at once found to be inadequate, the extensions in the first two years amounting to $1,-976.46 over the amount for which debentures could be issued.

Authority was then obtained to issue debentures for $10,000.00 in any one year. This was also inadequate, for in the first year it was exceeded by $706.13, and in following years by amounts running from over $2,000.00 to over $4,000.00.

This excess was caused by demands for extensions owing to the growth of the city, the increase in population from 1902 to 1914 being about 103 per cent., and also by special circumstances, as in 1909, when a saw mill within the city was burned. This mill was some distance from the water mains, and the owners offered to rebuild it if they were given fire protection. The City Council asked that the fire protection be provided, and arrangements were made with the owners and the Council whereby sufficient revenue would be received to carry the annual capital charges of the extension, and the extension was made, but this helped to make the capital expenditure for the year exceed the borrowing limit by over $10,000.00. Other special cases were, extensions to three new factories in 1912 and 1913, which helped to overrun the borrowing limit by $5,-745.23, although in each case the proper amount of revenue was provided. The Council and local Board of Health also asked for special consideration in some cases, owing to sanitary conditions, as in 1913, when both the Council and the Board asked that mains be laid on McDonnel Street (west of Park Street) and on James Street (east of Mark Street).

Altogether, in the years 1902 to 1913 inclusive, the following sums were expended in extensions:—

Laying mains and setting hydrants	$139,659.21
Laying services	37,895.07
	$177,554.28
Proceeds of debentures issued for this work	139,401.00
Excess of cost over debentures	$38,153.28
Excess of cost over proceeds of debentures for new dam, etc.	42,430.70
	$80,583.98

This excess has been carried partly by an overdraft in the bank and partly by using surplus revenue over operating expenses. The desire of the Commissioners and Council is that authority be procured to issue sufficient debentures to settle these accounts. If this is done provision will in the usual course be made to retire the debentures, and the business of the department be placed on a better basis.

These circumstances will not again arise, as under the Municipal Act as it now stands debentures can be issued with the approval of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board for the full cost of extensions, so long as the Board is shown that the extensions will bring in sufficient revenue to meet the annual payments in respect of the debt and the interest thereon.

Some Increases.

The following information is interesting:—

	1902
Population	11,067
Revenue	$23,864.58
Mains	18.48 miles
Services	1,150
Hydrant rental	$35.00

	1914	Increase.
Population	22,500	103 p.c.
Revenue	$53,276.88	122 p.c.
Mains	41.80 miles	126 p.c.
Services	4,132	259 p.c.
Hyd'nt rental	$27.50	decrease 22 p.c.

This tells us that during the time when the population of the city increased 103 per cent. the demand for water services increased 259 per cent., this increase in demand caused, no doubt, to some extent at least, by the fact that during this time the rates to consumers were three times reduced, and now the Peterborough water rates are among the lowest in the Province.

TO LEAVE IN THE MORNING

Kitchener League at a banquet in the band room of the armouries. At the banquet the soldiers will be presented with comforts.

(Belleville Intelligencer.)

The undermentioned men joined the 39th Battalion, C.E.F., and were taken on the strength on the 9th March, and posted to "D" Company. The officer commanding this company is Major F. D. Boggs, Cobourg; the second in command is Captain H. Sauva, Cobourg. The platoon commanders are: Lt. B. B. S. Campbell, Picton; Lt. A. G. Thompson, Cobourg; Lt. R. G. H. Travers, Napanee; Lt. E. E. Brandon, Belleville. Attached—Lt. C. O'Connor Fenton, Cobourg.

Captain L. B. Carron, A.M.C., joined the 39th Bn. C.E.F., as Medical Officer in charge on the 8th of March. Capt. Carron should be of the greatest value to this Battalion, as he has had a great deal of previous war service, having been through the whole of the Boer War and being in possession of two medals for that campaign.

(Ottawa Citizen.)

The 8th regiment, Canadian Mounted Rifles, at Howicke hall, was inspected this morning by Major C. H. Riches, staff officer, in connection with the mobilization of the mounted infantry. The splendid weather makes drilling a pleasure and the space in front of the grand stand presented a great spectacle when the engineers and mounted rifles were manoeuvring.

The indications are that the engineers will be at Lansdowne park for some time yet. A considerable amount of their equipment has not yet been provided, including various vehicles. They are under construction but it is expected that they will not be all completed for some time to come. It is expected that the regiment will not leave until the equipment is complete.

Right at Home.

The 8th C. M. R. has 579 men in barracks. The Toronto squadron was out at drill with the others. The splendid organization of the regiment is shown by the fact that within two hours after the Toronto squadron's arrival in Ottawa it had been reviewed by the minister of militia, marched to the drill hall, had supper and its bunks ready. The squadron is as much at home as if it had been here for weeks.

The Non-Coms.

The non-commissioned officers of squadron A (the Ottawa squadron) and headquarters have already been announced.

The non-commissioned officers of squadron C (the Toronto squadron) are as follows: Sergt.-Major C. L. Dinnis, Q.M.S. C. F. Dawson; Farrier Sergt. R. E. Brown, Sergeants H. W. Fenton, W. S. Stone, R. Sloggett, T. Wills, N. R. Brown, C. E. Bastow, J. Stonehewer, E. Lawrence, Signal Sergt. H. C. Hughes, Lance-Sergt. H. A. Gordon, Corporals H. V. Utting, L. Keates, G. Hill, A. Bowen, J. Park, A. Smith, C. M. Swan, R. Elliot, A. J. Lavelle, F. Bremner, F. W. Monland.

The non-commissioned officers of the Peterborough squadron are as follows: Squadron Sergt.-Major R. T. Beggs, Squadron Q.M. Sergt. A. L. Kent, Sergeants A. E. Patterson, H. E. Portsmith, George Farrence, William Mitchell, Henry Hodges, Thomas Fairbrase, W. B. Spencely, R. F. T. Shurety, Farrier Sergt. John Barley, Shoeing Smith Corporal Ben Hicks, Corporals E. Morley, C. Labrash, V. A. Henry, J. R. Hosker, R. J. Lovell, George Harris, P. C. Donner, Norman Young.

GERMANS TRY AGAIN TO BREAK RUSSIAN LINE

Over One Thousand Prisoners Are Captured in Signal Triumph Over the Enemy Between the Lys River and La Bassee Canal.

PARIS, March 11.—Taking several German positions by storm between the Lys river and La Bassee canal, the British army won a brilliant success yesterday against the Germans, the French War Office reported last night. Over 1,000 of the enemy were made prisoners and Neuve Chapelle was captured.

The engagement was started by a bombardment of the enemy's positions by the French heavy artillery, which acted in support, and which pulverized the German field works, and even blew up houses, filled with Germans, bodily in the air. Then the British regiments in the trenches received the order to charge. Making a quick start, the thin khaki lines dashed forward. They advanced along the road from Estaires to La Bassee, captured the village of Neuve Chapelle, which has been held by the Germans since the battle of the Lys in November, and charged forward to the northeast of this village towards Aubers. Another wing charged southeastward in the direction of the Riez woods. Hundreds of Germans were attacked and bayonetted as they attempted to resist, and the War Office reports that the losses of the enemy were very heavy.

The occupation of this position on the flank of La Bassee endangers the German forces holding that strong position.

The objective of the allies is the city of Lille, which controls an important centre of railways, and the occupation of which would cut off the German communications to La Bassee and other nearby points on the River Oise.

New Effort Begins.

LONDON, March 11.—Balked at other points, the Germans are making another attempt to break through the Russian line of fortresses in Northern Poland. They are advancing from Khorjele, on the East Prussian frontier, along the Orzyc river and by the roads leading southward to Przasnysz. This is one of the routes the Germans took in their great rush from East Prussia in February, which finally ended in their defeat at Przasnysz.

For their new attempt they have brought up troops which have been operating in the region of Grodna, and some of the new army which has been training since the outbreak of the war in the interior of Germany.

General Russian successes on the 700 miles of battle-line was reported to Petrograd yesterday.

About two hundred German infantry were taken prisoners near Seyny and Krasnopol, in the Suwalki region. Several hundrerd Germans were also captured in the Pilica river region in successful Russian counter-offensives, in which some machine guns were also taken. Although the enemy made a lively resistance in this section the Russians continued their advancement.

The Austrians continued the making of obstinate attacks from Gorlice to the Usok Pass in the Carpathians, and suffered heavy losses in their defeat.

Austria has evidently abandoned her campaign against Serbia. The positions defending Cracow have been yielded to the Germans. All her remaining fighting strength has been sent to help the 22 corps which are still wrestling desperately in the Carpathian passes. Even with the help of six German corps distributed among them, the entire enterprise which is seeking some spectacular success for the sake of military honor, appears to be steadily foundering.

HASTINGS HAPPENINGS

(Special Correspondence.)

Hastings, March 10.—On Wednesday last, Mr. Clark of Leamington, addressed a mass meeting for women in the Methodist Church at 3 p.m., taking for his subject: "Today's Opportunity." In the evening his address for all was "Home and its Enemies." Both addresses were very instructive and were listened to with rapt attention by the large number in attendance. On Thursday and Friday the speaker addressed large gatherings at Bethany and Bethel. He left on Saturday morning for his home at Leamington.

The funeral of the late Dr. Brown took place on Friday morning from the G.T.R. station here to Roseneath where interment was made. Friends of the deceased in Hastings expressed great sorrow on learning of his demise, and extend sympathy to the bereaved family.

The local hockey team drove to Westwood on Thursday evening for a game there. The result was 8-6 in favor of Hastings.

Times looked lively around the G. T. R. station on Friday last owing to the large consignment of hogs that was being loaded for the city market by Mr. R. Walsh.

Rev. Mr. Glover of Westwood occupied the pulpit in the Methodist Church on Sunday at both services and preached excellent sermons to very appreciative audiences.

The Misses Paquette, of Campbellford, have returned to town and are making extensive preparations for their spring millinery opening which will be held in the near future.

The choir of the Presbyterian Church were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred English on Friday evening, when a very enjoyable time was spent by all present.

Mr. Max Richardson, of Cobourg, spent Sunday at his home here.

A representative of one of the leading grocery firms of Peterborough, made a tour of this district last week, and took several orders.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mrs. Mary Powers, in her loss by death, of her bright little son, John Francis, aged 5 years and 2 months.

Mr. Sid Fisher, of Campbellford, was in town on Wednesday.

Mrs. M. J. Christie of Peterborough, is the guest of her niece, Mrs. J. Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burgess, of Dummer, spent Saturday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Victor German, town.

Mr. Roy Richardson spent Tuesday in Peterborough.

Miss Jessie Martin, of Peterborough, is visiting her sister, Mrs. C. Prest.

Mrs. Wm. Hill is visiting friends in Norwood.

Mrs. J. Beavis and family are moving their household effects to Norwood, where they intend to reside.

Mrs. Patrick Crowley is spending a holiday with friends in Chicago.

Mr. Langley, of the volunteer force at Cobourg, spent the week end with his family here.

Prof. Laird of Toronto, occupied the pulpit in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday.

New spring goods are daily arriving for the local merchants and everyone is looking froward to the arrival of the spring.

NEWS NOTES FROM OMEMEE

(Special Correspondence.)

Omemee, March 11.—Things continue to be prosperous in this flourishing little burg. Business is picking up again rapidly as the spring approaches.

On March 17th the Epworth League of the Methodist Church will hold a social of unusual character. It is called "A Trip to the Allies." The lecture room of the church will be decorated and booths arranged to represent the different allied nations. It will be a very unique affair. Don't fail to attend.

The funeral of Mrs. Geo. A. Burnside of Havelock took place in Omemee on Tuesday, March 9th, at 2.30. The funeral left the residence and proceeded to the Emily Cemetery where the body was interred. The deceased was formerly Miss Mabel A. McCaffrey of Omemee.

Mr. Hillier Williamson is around again after a couple of weeks of illness.

Mr. Dave McGee is the proudest and happiest man in town having lately been blessed with a young son.

Miss Lewis has returned to her position as milliner in Mr. Chas. Ivory's departmental store on King Street.

Mr. Scott of Lindsay has been employed as a clerk in the store of Mr. Chas. Ivory.

Mrs. Harry Lamb, assisted by Miss Jessie Lamb, served afternoon tea to the young ladies of the village on Monday evening.

If arrangements can be made Omemee will play Millbrook in the Brock Street rink, Peterborough, on Monday next.

The Red Cross Society are to hold a splendid patriotic concert on some date in the near future. Look for further particulars.

DACIA OWNER PROTESTS.

PARIS, March 11. — E. N. Breitung, of New York, owner of the steamer Dacia, has entered a protest against the seizure of his vessel by the French maritime authorities. He has engaged Paul Govare to defend his interests.

ASKED COUNCIL TO HOLD FORTH AT BRIDGENORTH

Ratepayers Want Smith Township Councillors Near at Hand

NO CHANGE MADE

The members of the municipal Council of the Township of Smith met in the County Council chamber on Monday, March 1st. All the members were present with Reeve McKee in the chair. The minutes of the last meeting were read and confirmed. The collector, Mr. John Chittick, returned his roll showing that he had collected $20,216.73, and that there still remained a balance of $150.20, mostly due by non-residents.

Moved by Councillors Moore and Northey that the sum of $150.20 be allowed the collector as abatements and that the treasurer be instructed to return $129.60 of this amount to the County Treasurer, chargeable to lands. Carried.

Mr. McElderry of the firm of Peck, Kerr and McElderry, addressed the council and requested, in the interest of a client, that Simcoe Street in the village of Bridgenorth be opened between Colborne and Maitland Streets. No decision was given and the matter laid over for consideration.

Messrs. Higgins and Elliotson addressed the Council, and presented a petition signed by a number of ratepayers, requesting that the 9th Concession be opened to the Quarter Line and that work be proceeded with at once. Councillor Nichols assured the deputation that work had already commenced, and that the brush and timber would be cut this season.

A deputation composed of Messrs. McWilliams, Jopling and Mann, addressed the council and stated that at a largely represented meeting of ratepayers of Bridgenorth and vicinity a motion was unanimously passed requesting that the council hold their regular meetings at the village in the Foresters' Hall. After much discussion it was decided that it was to the interest of the greater number of rate payers of the township that no change be made at the present time.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor Nichols, that Mr. Thos. Black be appointed sanitary inspector, and relief and truant officer. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Northey, seconded by Deputy Reeve Jobe that the auditors' report be received, and that the treasurer be instructed to have 200 copies printed for distribution. Carried.

Mr. A. J. Munford interviewed the council re purchase of a grader. No action was taken as it was decided to see what it would cost to put the grader, owned by the township, in a good state of repair.

Moved by Councillor Moore, seconded by Councillor Northey, that the treasurer of the Smith Patriotic Fund issue the following cheques:—

Canadian Patriotic Fund	$73.00
Belgium Relief Fund	240.10
Township Treasurer	21.00

to be used for local charitable purposes. Carried.

Moved by Councillor Nichols, seconded by Deputy Reeve Jobe, that the Treasurer pay the following accounts:—

RADIAL ELECTRIC LINES RECEIVE CONSIDERATION

Opinion of the Federal Government on the Subject Will be Secured

Step by step is the Hydro Rural Radial Lines Association paving the way for Peterborough and other cities and towns in the province to be connected with electric lines. Yesterday the executive of the association waited upon Premier Borden and Hon. Frank Cochrane, minister of railways and canals. J. W. Lyons of Guelph, Mayor Church of Toronto, Mayor Buller and Hon. Adam Beck acted as spokesmen. It was explained that the association did not want the grant of $64,000 at present but would like to secure the opinion of the Government. Premier Borden stated that the visit of the executive more fully explained the matter and it will be taken up by his cabinet.

Mayor Buller did not see Mr. J. H. Burnham, M.P., as the Federal member was in Montreal in the interests of Peterborough manufacturers endeavoring to secure military orders.

Quite a Catastrophe.

For three pretty young women ground up in a Grand Trunk railroad wreck, Mrs. Alcia Crowther of Montrose settled with the company for only $25 each. The women were max of wax, for models.

SIR WILFRID CASTS WAR TRUCE TO THE WINDS

FALSE ECONOMY MEANS BANKRUPTCY

Finance Minister, Replying to the Opposition Leader's Sudden Solicitude For British Trade, Suggests That He Had a Bad Conscience After Course on Naval Aid.

OTTAWA, March 11.—Sir Wilfrid Laurier yesterday afternoon denounced the tariff increase and special taxes imposed by the budget now under review.

The Liberal chief declared that it meant the impairment of the British preference. The increase in duties, he argued, would bring little to the public treasury, and was designed to benefit the privileged and protected class. Canada, he said, was attacking British trade by the new tariff in much the same way as Germany was seeking to destroy it by her circle of submarines. We really only traded with two nations—Great Britain and the United States—but in 1911 we had been forbidden to sell to the United States, and were now forbidden to buy from Britain.

"Britain is at war; Canada is at war," said Sir Wilfrid, in conclusion. "And when Britain is at war Canada goes to war to attempt to curtail the trade between Britain and Canada. That is not a Canadian idea. It is a German conception. We have been prepared since the outbreak of the war to go far with our friends on the other side of the House in these strenuous times. We were prepared to give up a good many of our own ideas in order to meet them and to have unanimity of opinion and action. But we are not prepared to go that far. That far we shall not go. Here we part company."

He then offered the following amendment:

"This House is ready to provide for the exigencies of the present situation and to vote all necessary ways and means to that end, but regrets that in the measure under consideration duties are [illegible] which must be oppressive upon the people whilst yielding little or no revenue; and that the said measure is practically objectionable in the fact that instead of favoring, it is placing extra barrier against Great Britain's trade with Canada at a moment when the Mother Country is under a war strain unparalleled in history."

Finance Minister White denied that the British preference had been impaired, but insisted that the British importer enjoyed a more favored position than ever before in the Canadian market. The financial embarrassment in which the Government found itself to-day was due, he said, primarily to the mad extravagance and the reckless railway legislation of the Laurier Government. Additional money had to be raised by taxation, or no more Canadian troops could be sent to the front. If the Liberals really favored prosecuting the war, they would not oppose the budget.

After reviewing the naval defence question, Mr. White suggested that Sir Wilfrid's zeal for the British preference was probably prompted by pangs of conscience. Two years ago the Liberals had opposed aiding the Empire upon the ground that the Government had no mandate. Would they say now that the Government had no mandate to bring down the budget before the House. If so the Government was ready at any moment to get a mandate from the people.

Dr. Michael Clarke (Lib., Red Deer) followed and Donald Sutherland (Con., S. Oxford) adjourned the debate. A division on the amendment to the budget proposals will take place next Tuesday.

REICHSTAG IN SESSION

New Secretary of Treasury Makes Bow in Difficult Role

BERLIN, March 11.—(Via London.)—The Reichstag met yesterday with a large attendance of members, many of whom were dressed in field gray uniforms.

Dr. Karl Helfferich, Secretary of the Imperial Treasury, submitted the budget and delivered his maiden speech concerning it.

DR. KARL HELFFERICH.

In addition to the budget the Reichstag at this session will only take up a bill providing for ways and means for increasing the supply of nitrogenous fertilizers. A recess will be taken after to-day until March 18 in order to give the committee time for their work. It is expected that the session will be concluded before the end of the month.

Battling With Indians.

BLUFF, Utah, March 11.—Hostilities between the renegade Piute Indians and United States deputy marshals was resumed early yesterday. It is reported here that ten deputies sent out by Marshal Nebeker were attacked at Douglas Mesa, about ten miles southeast of Bluff. Their fate is unknown.

DEPUTATION AT OTTAWA.

Hydro Radial Subsidy Impossible Just Now, Says Premier.

OTTAWA, March 11.—Premier Borden and Hon. Frank Cochrane yesterday received the Ontario Hydro Radial Union deputation. Sir Adam Beck, Mayor Church, of Toronto, and J. W. Lyon, presented the request of the deputation for a federal subsidy and appealed for fair play for the municipalities.

Sir Adam said they did not wish to validate the hydro electric radial bylaws passed by the people and they did not wish to spend a large amount of money in preparing specifications, if the subsidies were not obtained it was likely to cause a great deal of dissatisfaction.

The Premier stated that so far as any legislation for the purpose set forth at the present session was concerned, conditions would not permit the Government to bring it in, no matter how warmly toward the project they might feel. The Government was asked to make a declaration of its future policy. So far as that was concerned he would submit to his colleagues what had been urged.

Split In Socialist Ranks.

LONDON, March 11.—The Berlin Vorwaerts, as quoted by the Copenhagen correspondent of the Exchange Telegraph Co., says that dissension among the Socialists in Germany has led to a split in their party. On one side are the Socialists of the old school and in other the national reformists.

The Vorwaerts laments this schism, and says that German Liberals and Radicals regard it as a national calamity.

New Road Policy.

The principle that a stitch in time saves nine will henceforth dominate Ontario's roads policy. It is recognized that first-class roads quickly deteriorate through the neglect of minor flaws. In Europe the plan of a patrol has been tried and found to work well, and through the labor of solitary individuals with their picks and barrows the life of the highway has been doubled or tripled.

For some time the Ontario Government has been considering the problem of maintenance, and it is thought that when instrumental legislation pertaining to the $5,000,000 scheme is brought down in the Legislature, provision will be made for the unsatisfactory up-keep of roads. Several in attendance at the Canadian and International Roads Convention in late March, and it is likely that the benefit of their advice will be secured before the Government adopts any prescribed methods. The problem in all its aspects will be discussed on that occasion by experts.

BETTER AN EYEGLASS THAN A GLASS EYE

"Putting it off till tomorrow" is neither wisdom nor economy where the safety of your eyes is concerned. Little eye troubles lead to big ones, usually, unless steps to correct them are taken. By means of scientific instruments we can tell you whether glasses will do much or little for you. Even if you do not need glasses, our assurance is worth vastly more than the time required to be examined. Why not be sure that your eyesight is safe?

We manufacture and fit PEBLO glasses exclusively.

Patriotism Will Guard Greek Interests Says New Premier

LONDON, March 11.—A Reuter despatch from Athens says the new Greek Cabinet took the oath of office yesterday, and also gives a Ministerial declaration, which after referring to Greece's need for an era of peace for the development of her resources and home services, concludes as follows:

"In these circumstances, the observance of neutrality was imperative for her from the beginning of the European crisis. It was and always is her absolute duty to fulfil her treaty obligations as an ally and to seek satisfaction for her interests, without, however, compromising the integrity of her territory. The Government, conscious of the duty of thus serving the interests of the country, is convinced that the patriotism of the people will ensure the entire security of those interests."

Barracks Blown Up.

PARIS, March 11.—A terrible explosion of dynamite and other munitions has occurred at Kolozsvar, in Transylvania. The Austro-Hungarian barracks nearby were destroyed. The bodies of 200 soldiers have been extricated from the ruins.

RECIPROCITY IN MOTOR LICENSES

Interchange With United States is Discussed in House

TORONTO, March 11.—The interests of Ontario motorists obtained some attention in the Legislature yesterday and the matters of taxation and reciprocity in licenses with the United States received some general discussion. Without definitely opposing the latter suggestion, Hon. W. J. Hanna expressed his opinion that there were some disagreeable features in connection with the use of provincial roads by strangers. Opposition speakers lined up in favor of returning to the municipalities a large percentage of the license taxes. This money would be used in improving local highways.

The Minister explained that while auto taxes were not "ear-marked," they went largely into good road work. There was a possibility that in future they would be used for maintenance, a system that would work better than that of dividing the returns among municipalities.

The debate on the second reading of J. C. Elliott's bill to grant the municipal franchise to married women continued during the afternoon.

PLOT MISCARRIED.

Attempt of German Pole at Cobalt to Blow Up Magazine Failed.

COBALT, March 11.—A fortunate mistake made by a German Pole conspirator saved Cobalt from a terrible dynamite explosion which might have caused many deaths, and destroyed much property. In the darkness he cut off a piece of fuse to which was attached the cap for exploding, and thus himself prevented the explosion.

The revelation of this followed out of an investigation of a complaint made by the Nipissing Mining Co. that their powder magazine had been broken into in the latter part of February and an attempt made to blow it up.

Provincial Police Inspector Powell arrested Thomas Szyszkoe, and after some time he stated that, urged by John Szyszkoe and Alec. Henshel, he broke into the magazine and tried to set off 120 case of dynamite which were in it.

The three men are German Poles. Thomas Szyszkoe has been in Canada 13 years, while the others are only 19 years of age, and have been here less than a year

Will Let In Sugar.

LONDON, March 11.—The prohibition against the importation of sugar into the United Kingdom from America and other neutral countries probably will be removed within two or three months, Reginald McKenna, the Home Secretary, intimated as much yesterday in the House of Commons.

The importation of sugar into the United Kingdom was prohibited by an official decree last October. The decree was explained as necessary on the ground that Germany and Austria were paying for goods needed for the conduct of the war with sugar, which was being re-exported to England.

Copper Seized By Switzerland.

GENEVA, March 11.—(Via Paris.)—Large quantities of copper from Italy, destined for Germany, were seized by the Swiss authorities at Chiasso yesterday. The method employed for some time, according to Swiss officials, has been to send contraband from Genoa in sealed cars labeled Amsterdam. These cars have passed through Switzerland, and on crossing the German frontier have been taken in charge by the Germans, who removed the freight and returned the cars to Italy. The newspapers have published articles exposing this traffic.

NEWS NOTES FROM KEENE

(Special Correspondence.)

Keene, March 11.—On Tuesday of last week two rinks of Keene curlers went to Campbellford to play at the bonspiel. They returned on Wednesday, bringing with them the beautiful silver cup that Peterborough won from Campbellford last year. They left the Seymour Power Cup, which they won last year. Mr. J. J. Morris' was the successful rink in winning the cup this year. This same cup was won in 1910, when Michael Kenneally skiped the winning rink. The rinks playing from here were:

R. Nelson, Nicholas Dorris, Michael Kenneally, John Moore (skip).

J. Drummond, Fred Easson, William Wedlock, Robert J. McCamus (skip).

Mr. R. J. Brown was in Peterborough on business last Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Goodfellow are to be congratulated on the birth of a daughter on Tuesday, March 2nd.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Kempt were in Peterborough on Thursday of last week.

Three sleigh loads of our young people from Keene and vicinity attended the dance at Mr. Bruce Speirs' across the lake on Tuesday night last.

Mrs. B. Howson and Mrs. James Bryce of Peterborough spent last Friday at the home of Mrs. Howson's father, Mr. Archie Bryce, it being the occasion of Mr. Bryce's seventy-ninth birthday.

Mr. William Kempt was in Peterborough on Tuesday last.

Mr. F. Watkins moved to the farm of Mr. A. Weir the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, who spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Campbell, returned to their home at Oxbo on Monday.

A very pleasant surprise party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred McIntyre on Monday. About 90 guests were present and tripped the "light fantastic" until the early morn. A splendid time is reported.

Mrs. Ed. Braden has been spending the past two weeks with friends at Campbellford.

A very exciting game of hockey was played on Friday night last by the Peterborough business college team and Keene. The game became rather rough towards the last. Mr. Knapman of Peterborough had his lip and tongue badly cut, which required several stitches. The following is the line-up:

P. B. C.—Goal, O'Brien; defence, Long and Dickson, rover, Knapman; centre, Huycke; wings, Smith and Williamson.

Keene—Goal, O'Neil; defence, R. Hope and H. Weir; rover, J. McCarthy; centre, W. Edwards; wings, W. and J. Hope.

The score was 12 to 9 in favor of Keene.

Mr. John Kempt was busy moving to the farm he recently purchased from the late John Taylor estate, the past week.

Miss Alice Lumsden was called to Peterborough on Friday night last on account of the illness of her sister, Miss Agnes.

Mr. Thomas Nelson returned home on Monday from Peterborough, Lakefield and other points, where he had been visiting friends.

Miss Lillian Macfarlane returned to Toronto on Monday after a pleasant week's visit at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Macfarlane.

Miss P. McCann was in Peterborough on Saturday last.

Mr. T. P. Howson made a business trip to Peterborough on Thursday of last week.

Misses Gill and Belle McCarthy of Rochester are visiting friends in this vicinity.

Mrs. Thos. Howson returned on Saturday from Peterborough, where she spent a few days with her daughter, Mrs. A. McIntyre.

Mr. Robert Taylor is visiting at the home of his daughter, Mrs. D. Edwards.

The skaters' dance will be held on Wednesday evening, March 17th. The manager of the rink, Mr. George McIntyre, is making every preparation for a good time. He has secured Tucker's orchestra of Peterborough to furnish the music. Tickets will be 75c a couple, ladies to furnish refreshments.

Dr. W. T. Harrison was in Peterborough on Tuesday.

Mr. James Dickson and family who have been spending the winter in Toronto, returned home on Tuesday.

Miss Laura Macfarlane of Peterborough spent the week-end with village friends.

Mr. Robert Nevins moved to Asphodel the past week. We regret to lose Mr. and Mrs. Nevins from our community, and wish them every success in their new home.

Mr. James McNeil attended the funeral of his sister, Mrs. James Buchanan, at Campbellford, last Wednesday.

The ladies' missionary society of the Presbyterian church held their regular monthly meeting on Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Z. Tucker.

A meeting of Miss Webb's Sunday school teachers' training class was held at the home of Miss Marion Macfarlane on Thursday evening of last week.

Following is the Keene school report for the month of February, in order of merit:

Class V.—Leona Stewart and Mary McNevan (absent).

Class IV.—Mary Burley, Wilfred Fletcher, Marion Macfarlane, Bert McNeil, Frank Brown, Lillian Moore, Margaret Renwick and Nellie Stewart (absent).

Junior III.—Jim McCarthey, Ross Comrie, Joseph Foley, Tom Wedlock, Hazel Brown, Garfield Burley; Geo. Bishop and May Brown (absent).

Number on the roll, 18.

Average attendance, 13.

Class II.—Annie Burley, Jim Bishop.

Primer—Minnie Edwards, Cecil Burley, Colvin Comrie, Edmond Foley.

Class A.—Clarence Gillespie, Charlie Bishop, Alfred Godfrey.

Number on roll, 18.

Average attendance, 11.

Nine absent owing to illness.

STILL POUNDING AWAY.

Experts Think Two Weeks Should See Reduction of Narrows' Forts.

LONDON, March 11.—So far as the operations in the Dardanelles are concerned, there is no new official report, and the most significant news still is that the super-Dreadnought Queen Elizabeth has entered the strait and commenced to bombard the forts in the narrows by direct fire. It is considered certain that Vice-Admiral Carden would not allow his biggest ship to pass the entrance unless it was fairly safe.

Further evidence that the forts in the narrows have suffered severely is contained in despatches from Athens, which say that two battleships ventured right into the narrows during the night to protect the vessels engaged in mine-sweeping there.

Some experts believe that all the forts in the narrows should be demolished within two weeks, after which it would be smoother sailing for the ships, as most of the guns are concentrated in that part of the straits.

Cannot Finish Until May.

OTTAWA, March 11.—There is absolutely no chance of the House session ending at Easter, as some had expected. An arrangement was come to between the party whips yesterday whereby the vote on the amendment to the budget, proposed by Sir Wilfrid Laurier, will be taken on Tuesday next. It is regarded as hardly possible now that Parliament will prorogue before May.

No Monopoly of "Catholic."

OTTAWA, March 11.—That the Catholic Truth Society of Canada has no right to monopolize the word "Catholic" without affixing "Roman" to it was the contention of A. E. Fripp, M.P., yesterday, when a bill incorporating the Catholic Truth Society, with headquarters at Toronto, was in committee. "I am as good a Catholic as my friend from South Toronto (Claude Macdonell) but I am not a Roman Catholic."

Mr. Macdonell said the company wanted to erect a building and establish a printing plant. These powers had been given other organizations. It was decided to hold over the bill and redraft it.

Kaiser's Son-in-Law Ill.

LONDON, March 11.—The Evening News publishes a despatch from Copenhagen which says that Ernest August, Duke of Brunswick, and son-in-law of Emperor William, is suffering from a nervous breakdown, which probably is incurable. The duke who went to the front soon after the outbreak of the war, became ill while fighting in France.

CARIBALDIANS ARE RECALLED

Significant Statement is Issued by France

PARIS, March 11.—The following official statement was issued last night: "As the Italian Government has recalled certain categories of its reservists, the French Government has given liberty to the fourth regiment of the Foreign Legion, to which the Garibaldians belong."

A Geneva despatch says The Tribuna has learned from Vienna that several Italian warships have put to sea, probably bound for the Dardanelles.

A Spezia despatch says: "Vice-Admiral the Duke of the Abruzzi embarked to-day on his flagship, the new Italian dreadnought, Conte di Cavour, to command a squadron composed entirely of dreadnoughts. The squadron comprises the Dante Alighieri, Caio Duilio, Giulio Cesare and Leonardo Da Vinci. This is the most powerful combination of units that Italy has ever had in one squadron."

POOR EXCUSE

German Claims Regarding Attempt on Ship Disproved

LONDON, March 11.—Replying to a question in the House of Commons yesterday as to whether there was any validity in Germany's excuse that the submarine which tried to torpedo the British hospital ship Asturias was unable to discern the distinctive marks on that vessel because of darkness, Dr. Thomas J. MacNamara, Parliamentary Secretary to the Admiralty, said:

"The master of the Asturias reports that it was at 5 10 p.m. on a clear day and light, leaving no possibility of the identity of the ship being mistaken."

The French Ministry of Marine announced on Feb. 2 that a German submarine on the day before had made an unsuccessful attempt to torpedo the British hospital-ship Asturias, "thus violating the formal clause of The Hague convention of 1907, regarding the attacking of hospital vessels." The attack on the Asturias was made near the French seaport of Havre.

Hartley Found Guilty.

ST. CATHARINES, March 11.—A verdict of manslaughter was returned by the jury last night against Pte. Frank Hartley, who was on trial for the murder of Pte. Theodore Burgoyne on Oct. 17, after considering the evidence for one hour and forty minutes. Sentence will be pronounced to-day by Mr. Justice Sutherland.

AN ISLAND STOREHOUSE

By M. QUAD.

Two thousand miles due north of the island of Mauritius and almost between that and the Seychelles group is the lone island of Agalegas. It is an island about six miles in circumference, with its highest point about 100 feet above the sea. There were no inhabitants up to 1882, though traders and shell gatherers often called there for wood and water.

It was in the year 1881 that the captain of a trading schooner entered the port of St. Louis in the Mauritius to tell a wonderful story about this island of Agalegas. He had called there for wood and water and to make repairs, and while his crew was at work he explored the island. Amid the rocks he discovered a great cave, and from that cave he had taken and brought away two elephants' tusks, a box of silver bars and a jewel handled sword. He was a cunning chap, this trader, and he had got the stuff aboard without his crew being the wiser and had said nothing about the cave. He did not report his find to any consul or other official at St. Louis, but after hanging about for awhile he decided to make a confidant of the firm of Dayne & Co. This was a French trading and exporting firm, and as I was in its employ I came to hear the story first hand.

The plunder Barcas had brought away was worth $10,000, but he assured us that this was a mere flea bite compared to what had been left behind. He had counted 230 tusks, which did not include all. He had counted 150 boxes of silver bars, worth over $1,000 per box, but there were others behind them. There were bales, boxes and barrels he had not attempted to open, and he believed the contents of the cave would pan out $1,000,000 and ballast a trading brig. It was a very dignified, and respectable firm, that of Dayne & Co., but it got down off its high horse pretty fast to make a bargain with Barcas to bring that treasure away and dodge customs officials and government authorities. What they offered to do after a consultation was to fit out a ship, bring the stuff off, convert it into cash and give him a quarter. It wasn't a liberal offer on their part, but Barcas closed at once, and the enterprise was turned over to me to engineer.

The firm had a trading brig called the [illegible], and as soon as she arrived in port she was cleared of cargo and her crew discharged. I then began to pick up Madagascar sailors and soon had ten of them, with an English A. B. who had cut and run from a merchantman. Barcas was to act as captain, and I was to go along as supercargo. It was easy enough to deceive the Madagascarites, while the sailor was satisfied with an offer of double wages and $500 extra. We left Mauritius with the ostensible object of visiting the islands to the east to establish trading stations [illegible] but when we had made good our offing we headed for the north and the island of Agalegas. We were on our way to fill our craft with plunder from a storehouse filled hundreds of years before and worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, but the voyage was prosaic. None of us were excited over it until the last day, and then it was through fear that the cave might have been discovered by some other caller.

We ran into a bay and dropped anchor at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and before midday Barcas had visited the treasure house and reported all safe.

Our first move was to establish a camp on the highest spot of the island and divide our forces. I took charge of the land party and Barcas of the brig. My party removed the plunder from the cave and carried it halfway down to the beach, and his men carried it aboard and stowed it away. On a certain evening when we knocked off work I figured the value of the gems already taken out at $1,500,000, and there was yet a week's work to remove the rest. The day had been hot and stifling and the work harder than usual. The cook was half an hour late in rubbing his eyes open, and he had hardly reached his feet when his shout of surprise alarmed the rest of us. At some hour during the night and so quietly that not a man of us had been disturbed the waters had retreated in every direction from the shores of the island until there was only the bed of the sea to look at. Here and there a deep hole created a little lake, but one could have walked for six or eight miles without wetting his feet. As the waters retired our craft had gone too.

I had lived in the east too long to not know what was coming. We were as high as we could get and could only wait for the peril. It came as the sun rose. We heard a booming, roaring and crashing and next minute caught sight of a tidal wave sweeping in. That wave was seventy feet high, and as it rolled across the island from the north to south its foamy crest was only thirty feet below where we stood. There were three waves, each moving at a speed of 100 miles an hour, and then the sea settled down to its usual level and soon grew quiet. A thousand acres of forest had been swept away and the whole face of the island changed in a moment. Our spring and our camp had been left untouched, but there was no longer a cavern, no longer a bale of goods, no longer a brig laden with a king's ransom. An earthquake at sea, a mighty convulsion of nature 500 miles away, had robbed us of brig, crew and treasure and left us on an almost desolate rock in mid ocean to wait for the passing craft that rescued us.

GUNNERS WERE FORCED TO GO WITHOUT FOOD

Canadian Artillery Supply Wagon Lost its Bearings

LONDON, March 11. — According to the latest reliable news the Canadian artillery went into the firing line for the first time after being in at the last billet twelve days. The first day they moved into action they were under a disadvantage, having lost a transport wagon containing their rations. However, this turned up safely after twelve hours delay. The driver had lost his way and wandered all over the country. He was pulled up by the last line sentries when he was about to drive straight into the trenches. It was dark at the time, but German star lights were bursting all round; German shells also began buzzing round the unhappy transport drivers, who were quick to act. They whipped up their horses and reached the rear undamaged. Very soon after they managed to reach the Canadian artillery and gave them their long-delayed meal of bully beef and biscuit. The Canadian artillery on the way to the firing line passed through a lot of villages out of which the Germans had been driven. It was noticed that the buildings most hardly hit were the churches, many of which had been blown up and burned to the ground. Some churches were partially destroyed earlier by the British, as it was found that the enemy had mounted machine guns in the towers, but in every case the Germans had completed their destruction by setting fire to the place before leaving it.

Canada, it should be remembered, gets the first authentic news of any casualties among the contingent, and nothing in the least reliable is made known here concerning such for some time after the official intimation has been received at Ottawa.

LONDON'S SAFE DEPOSITS.

No Privacy Allowed in Their Vaults While the War Rages.

In the city of London there are numerous safe deposits, and until the war broke out it was regarded that to have a safe in a safe deposit was absolute safety.

You entered the building and an iron grill was opened by the day watchman, and you were conducted by lifts to subterranean depths. Another iron gate, leading to the safes, was unlocked.

A master key was inserted and a covering plate removed from the keyhole of your safe. Then you inserted your own key, obtained your tin box and took it to a little room—really a small cupboard—where you locked yourself in with your valuables.

Today things are different. All the ceremonies of the past are still gone through, with this addition—the door has been taken away from that little cupboard, and you are all the time in public view of the janitors of the safe deposit. You can take what you like out of your safe, but they are very particular now as to what you put in it, and the disconcerting fact for anybody with ulterior motives and desirous of depositing a bomb is that your box is inspected before it goes back into the main safe, and each of the attendants is armed with a big six chambered revolver, which he wears in a very ostentatious position in a holster attached to his waist.

His instructions are that in an emergency he is to shoot. The safe deposit is now very safe indeed.

Workmen Uncover Indian Graves.

Two kegs of skulls, many of them the last remains, it is claimed, of copper-faced Indians who roamed the Hamilton district ages ago, have been gathered by the workmen engaged in constructing the west end sewerage disposal works in that city, and as soon as the plant is completed they will be buried in front of the building. Tales of the laborers out there digging up human bones of all kinds have been reaching the City Hall for months past, and the other day one of the foremen reported to the heads of the department that altogether twenty or twenty-five skulls had been discovered. Street Commissioner Weeden also declared that some of them he had seen had unmistakable signs of Indian warfare, several possessing large indentations which apparently had been caused by blows from tomahawks. Arrowheads were also found.

Forty-Four Strikes In 1914.

There were only 44 strikes and lockouts in Canada during 1914, as compared with 113 for the year before. The number of workers affected was 8,678, as compared with 39,536 during 1913. The number of working days lost was 430,429, which was 856,249 less than the year previous.

Of the 40 disputes which commenced last year 6 were in Quebec, 20 in Ontario, 8 in the west, and 6 in the Maritime Provinces. At the close of the year only 4 disputes were in existence and affected only 155 employes.

War Victim Turns Nurse.

Her husband and two brothers having been killed in the war, four other brothers having gone to the firing line, and her only other brother training with the London Territorials, before going to the trenches, Mrs. Stewart G. Holliday has left Montreal for her old home in England. With her is little Peter, her three-year-old, fatherless boy. She said, as she took the train, that she had a nurse's certificate and would leave little "Pete" with her parents and join one of the English hospitals as a nurse if she could.

NEW PEACH AREA MAY BE OPENED

Fred W. Christie is Making an Interesting Experiment in Lambton

A new prospective peach belt is to be found in Lambton County. Within close proximity to Lake Huron is an extended area of so-called wild lands, which have heretofore been held to be of little use for grain cultivation, and yet they are now being found to be of decided value for fruit-raising.

At first glance the general aspect of the country is forbidding. A succession of sand hills and ridges, covered by a second-growth of oak and pine, and a mass of shrubbery, with a light sandy soil showing white in the open spaces, would seem to be useless for practical purposes. But, as has been said, this is not the case. An interesting experiment is being made by Mr. Fred. W. Christie, Toronto, who incidentally is carrying into actual operation the advice so frequently heard of getting back to the land.

Born and raised on a farm, Mr. Christie went into business as a youth, and now is finding the life in the open air and in the country of the greatest benefit and interest, as well as yielding prospective profit as a reward. Indeed, some predict that the district will yet become a second Niagara, for it must be remembered that it is in the same southern latitude as St. Catharines.

Three years ago Mr. Christie bought a section of the lands above described, after consulting a specialist of the Ontario Agricultural Department, who held that the sandy loam of the locality was well suited for the growing of the tender fruits, especially of peaches and vegetables. A vigorous policy of clearing the land was undertaken in the fall, permitting of the first planting of peach and apple trees three years ago last spring. A total of 2,000 peach and 600 apple trees have thus far been planted on a cleared area of twenty acres. The majority of the peach trees show splendid growth and a healthy condition, and are due to yield their first fruit next season. Among the varieties represented are the Elberta, Fitzgerald, Yellow St. John, Crosby, New Prolific and Crawford. Local help is thus far easily had. It costs about $25 to clear and stump an acre.

In addition to the young orchard, Mr. Christie has proven the suitability of the soil for vegetables. Splendid specimens of potatoes, tomatoes, melons, sweet corn, etc., are among the products, while the smaller fruits and berries thrive to a degree. As an evidence of luxurious growth, sunflower stalks have reached a height double that of a man.

If Mr. Christie's interesting experiment in peach culture, on the so-called wild lands of Lambton, proves successful, as it has every promise of doing, he will have rendered a patriotic service, for thousands of acres of similar land await similar cultivation. Lambton county offers abundant opportunities to others to get "back to the land" in a most practical and profitable way, providing energy, faith and pluck that will not be downed by an occasional set-back are part of a man's capital and equipment. Otherwise, the amount of capital actually required is not a serious handicap.

Mr. Christie is thus showing his strong faith in his proposition, and deserves the degree of success already his. Credit is also due him for the unique bungalow erected on a hill top overlooking the orchards. The design, as well as most of the workmanship, was his, even to the making of the handicraft furniture, the result being a model and cosy home.—Toronto Globe.

Muskrat Farming.

The muskrat farming industry which has proven so successful abroad might well be developed in Canada, says Conservation. The country possesses great areas of marsh land, at present of little direct value, which might be made to produce considerable revenues. Muskrat fur is steadily growing in favor. The aggregate offering on the London market in March, 1914, exclusive of the Hudson Bay Co.'s sales, was 4,646,500 skins. While this figure probably shows an accumulation from the previous year, still the price quoted for April was 50 cents a skin. The demand for muskrat meat would be confined almost solely to the Indians unless it were found possible to utilize it as a flesh diet for other fur-bearers that are being farmed. Such an undertaking should prove of special value to the Indian and other trappers who carry on their work in the more remote portions of the country. At the same time, many areas of marsh land in the settled sections which now are of little or no use might easily be made to yield considerable financial returns.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, Man., March 10.—Wheat futures opened 1 to 2½ cents lower, May leading the decline, and further losses took place later. Oats opened ⅜c lower for May, and flax ½c easier.

Opinions expressed in certain quarters were that the advance recently was too rapid, and the market was due for the reaction. No new business was transacted for export.

The cash situation was slow and there were few transactions, owing to the few offerings on the market for any grain, altho the demand was good for wheat.

Inspections yesterday numbered 384 cars, as against 624 last year, and in sight today were 220 cars.

Previous to noon May had touched 148⅝; July 148⅝ and October 114⅝. Later, nearing the close, prices recovered from the low points on all months.

Wheat futures closed 1⅝ to 2½c lower, cash 2c to 2¼c lower, oats ⅝c to ¾c lower, and flax ½c lower to ½c higher.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., March 10.—Wheat, No. 1 hard, $1.48⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.44⅝ to $1.48⅛; No. 2 northern, $1.40⅝ to $1.45⅝; May, $1.42⅝; July, $1.37⅝.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 67½c to 68½c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 54c to 54½c.

Flour and Bran—Unchanged.

A fairly liberal supply of hogs sold at steady values. Selects weighed off cars sold at $8.25 and fed and watered at $7.75.

MONTREAL LIVE STOCK.

MONTREAL, March 10.—At the C.P.R. live stock market there was no further change in prices for cattle today, but the feeling is very firm, owing to the continued small supplies coming forward. There were no choice steers on the market, but there were a few loads of good steers, which sold from $7.25 to $7.50, and medium $6.25 to $7; common, from $4.75 to $5.50, while butchers' cows sold at $4.75 to $6.75, and bulls, at $4.50 to $5.25 per cwt.

The feature of the market for small meats was the active demand for calves and as the offerings are commencing to increase some, a good trade was done at prices from $5 to $12 each. There was no further change in the hog market, selected lots selling at $8.50 and heavy grades at $8.25 per cwt., weighed off the cars.

Sheep and lambs firm, lambs selling at $9 and ewes at $5.75 to $6 per cwt.

ORILLIA CHAMPS BY TWO GOALS

Wiarton Won at Home by 3 to 1 in Exciting Game on Soft Ice

Wiarton, March 11.—In one of the most exciting hockey matches of the season for soft ice Wiarton defeated Orillia by a score of 3 to 1. The battle was a gritty one, but Orillia seemed to play lucky. This gives Orillia the intermediate championship, with a score on the round of 6 to 4.

The line-up:—

Orillia—Goal, Corbould; defence, MacNabb and Harvey; rover, Jupp; centre, Ross; right wing, Draper; left wing, McDonald.

Referee—Dr. Gifillan, Uxbridge.

Orillia, March 10.—This town is justly proud of its intermediate team, which has just won the championship of the O.H.A. Here are some interesting facts about the players:—

Teddy Corbould (goal) — One of the quickest and coolest goalers on the job. An Orillia boy, and learned the game on the O. C. I. team, and guarded the nets for the 1910-11 juniors runners-up. He was out of the game for awhile till the intermediate team was selected last year.

Norman Harvie, also an Orillia boy, has learned and played the game here all his life; has been out of the game until last year, when he played defence for the intermediate team. He is a very effective player, taking the shortest route to the goal. Weight, 165.

Ken McNabb, also an Orillia boy; played for four years on the junior team, twice runners-up and twice champions. This is his first year on the intermediate team, and has made good. He is one of the wickedest shots in the O.H.A.. Weight, 160.

George Ross, a Mount Forest boy, is one of the cleverest centre men going, and his work in front of the nets is a treat. He played right wing for the 1912-13 Peterborough seven. Weight, 150.

Lovering Jupp (rover and capt.); another Orillia boy. Played three years on the junior team, and this is his second year on the intermediate team. He is a clever stickhandler, and a fast skater, and his back-

WHEN PETES WON.

The O.H.A. intermediate finals were won by the Peterborough club in the season of 1905-06, the runners-up being Goderich club, of which the late Lieut. Carr-Harris, who was killed in South Africa, was a member. The Peterborough team was: Goal, E. Wasson; point, R. M. Glover; cover, W. Crowley; rover, Fred Whitcroft; centre, Harry Morgan; wings, W. Cavannah and Chris. G. Graham.

The Petes won here by 10 to 3 while Goderich took their home game by 5 to 4.

Just Had to Talk.

Madge—Why dont' you think before you speak, dear? Marjorie—If I did that I shouldn't have time to say half what I wanted to say. — London Telegraph.

Morley Carter, (utility), played on last year's intermediate team. He is a good skater and stickhandler.

Andy Tudhope (spare)—the man in front of the nets—is a good skater and goal-getter.

The officers of the club are:—

Hon. President, C. L. McNabb; President, W. H. Tudhope; Sec.-Treas., A. T. Carter. Executive—W. C. George, S. Kerr and W. O. Tudhope. Manager, Herb Caswell; Trainer, R. Morgan.

checking breaks up many dangerous rushes. Weight, 145.

Gordon McDonald (left wing)—A native of Chatsworth. He played the game while at home, and was chosen on last year's intermediate team. He is very tricky, and has a good wing shot always for the far corner of the net. Weight, 149.

Victor Draper (right wing) from Collingwood. He held a place on the Collingwood juniors until 1913-14, when he played with Orillia junior champions. Draper is also a speed skater, holding the championship for Collingwood. He is always plugging, and very seldom lets his man get away from him. Weight, 148.

ROBERTS FAMILY A STRONG ONE IN HOCKEY LINE

Four Brothers all of Whom Attained High Rank on the Ice

Hockey strains run right through families. The Smiths, of Ottawa, with seven brothers, the majority of whom are expert enough to perform in the big league, was perhaps the greatest. It is not generally known around the N.H.A. circuit that Gordie Roberts, of Wanderers, comes of a family of hockeyists. Gordie is the youngest of four brothers who attained senior rank in the ice game. Jack Roberts was one of the best forwards ever turned out of Ottawa, and so was Eddie. They both played with Pittsburg in the International League, which kept them out of the E. C. H. L., now the N.H.A., as the league in Canada at that time was amateur. Lorrie Roberts, the third brother, played with several amateur teams in the Ottawa City league, and captained the McGill University seven for a couple of seasons. The Roberts boys, like the Smiths, were also good rugby footballers. Jack played side half for the Ottawa Rough Riders in 1904 and 1905. Eddie was also a good halfback, while Gordie played centre half and quarter for the Ottawa H.'s in the Quebec Union, and was being groomed for the Ottawa Big Four team when he turned professional to play hockey with Ottawa.

OMEMEE LOST ON LINDSAY ICE

Millbrook Seven Victors in Return Game

Omemee, March 11. — The Omemee Hockey Club after going undefeated through the early part of the season, went down before the Bethany team on Saturday after a hard game, on very small ice. The play was everything from very fast to a degree of slowness which was painful. The first period ended with Bethany one goal up. The last period saw no score till about ten minutes were up and then Bethany rammed in six in a row and cinched the game. Rowan for Bethany at right wing was very fast and scored the large part of the goals, but he had a bad habit of loafing offside a great part of the time. Bigelow at centre is a heavy man and used his weight with good effect. For Omemee, Watson, Clemett and Woodruff did well. Cecil Mills played a good defense game. Down scored Omemee's only goal on a lone rush in the last few minutes. The final score ended 7 to 1 in Bethany's favor.

On Monday evening the home team met Millbrook on Lindsay ice to play a return match. Millbrook were out to overcome the lead of three goals, which Omemee had gained in a previous match. The game was fast but was marred by much rough work on the part of the Millbrook team who badly misused Clemett, the diminutive left wing of the home team. The game was played in two twenty minute periods owing to the teams having to catch a train. The first period was fairly clean and exceptionally close, some great checking being done. Neither team was able to score but Mills in goal for Omemee was forced to turn aside some wicked shots. His performance all through the evening was high-class and he would be hard to beat. Jack Murray played a strong clever game and when he went up the ice something had to go. His shooting was wicked but a little too high. Nattrass on the defence for Millbrook was the strong point of their team. The veteran performed in dashing style and gave a pretty exhibition of defence work. Millbrook have two speedy men in Edmonds and C. Nattrass. The latter replaced Orr on the right wing at half time. Clemett, F. Cunningham and Watson worked well on the forward line for Omemee but woefully lacked combination. Down and H. Cunningham on the defence worked hard and broke up a lot of Millbrook's combination. D. A. Werner of Stratford refereed but was practically a failure though he tried hard. The score was 4-1 for Millbrook. The teams:—

Omemee (1) — Goal, F. Mills; defence, H. Cunningham, Down; rover, Murray; forwards, Clemett, F. Cunningham, Watson.

Millbrook (4) — goal, Richards; defence, H. Nattrass, Handley; rover, Sootheran; forwards, Orr, C. Nattrass, Bingham, Edmonds.

ROD AND GUN.

"Injun Bones and Huskies," by J. R. Fraser in March Rod and Gun, is no lap-dog story but an account of a desperate encounter which two adventurers in the far north had with a band of ferocious huskies from which they narrowly escaped with their lives. "That Cub of Patrick's" is a somewhat amusing tale—though Pat himself found the experience very provoking — of a captured bear cub that proved too much for his captor. "A Visit to the Nakimu Caves of Glacier Park," B. C." "Windobin's Cabin," "The Passing of the Buffalo" and other stories and articles, along with the regular departments, go to make up a fine March number.

SCORES IN BASKETBALL AT THE Y.M.C.A.

The basket ball enthusiasts were given their money's worth last night in two rattling good games of ball. In the first game between De Laval and Unknowns, both teams were crippled, one man on each team being out on account of injuries, and another from each side being out of town. This made substitutes necessary and kept both teams from best ball. For the first half the Unknowns had things pretty much their own way, scoring 15 points to their opponents' four. In the second half however, De Laval quintet got steam up and went right after the game, but the lead was too great to overcome. Stan Taylor was pretty much the whole thing when it came to scoring. He got 14 out of the 16 points made by his team, Peter Spratt, scoring the other. This Mr. Spratt by the way is developing into some basket ball player. This is his first season at the game, but he certainly has the ear marks. His first appearance was when he tried out with the Cressman team, but got his release, but he is sure making good now. Emmerson was another new man out last night for his first time this year, but by the form he displayed it was not his first appearance in the game. This quintet with their regular line-up on the floor will still make the best of them hustle.

The Unknowns lived up to their name for last night with their patched line-up they stuck right together, all three forward men taking their show in the scoring, while the backs played a steady defensive game. Score, Unknowns 25, De Laval 16.

The line-up:—

Unknowns — Robertson, M. Mulhern, Smyth, Brown, H. Mulhern.

De Laval — Dunsford, Taylor, Downing, Spratt, Emmerson.

Referee, Dobbin. Timer, Lewis. Scorer, Stuart.

The Cressman-Excelsiors game was a scorcher from start to finish. The teams are pretty evenly matched, so much so that it was anybody's game most of the time. In the first half the Excelsiors took the lead, the half ending 20-13 in favor of the Excelsior boys. But in the second half the "yellow sox" got the big end of the score but not quite enough to pull down their opponents lead. The teams were so evenly matched it would be hard to pick out any stars. Every man on Cressman's team had a share in the scoring, while every man but one on the Excelsiors succeeded in getting the pill through. The game was hard and fast all the way through, the kind that keeps the spectators on edge. Score, Excelsiors 30, Cressmans 27.

The line-up: —

Cressmans—Bartlett, F. Cressman, Raynor, Carlyle, Palmer.

Excelsiors—Long, Knapman, Stuart, Darling, Austin.

Referee, Carson. Scorer, Dobbin. Timer, Lewis.

LOST BALLS HEAVY EXPENSE.

If all the baseballs which are hit into the stand and over the stand at the Polo grounds during a season could be recovered enough would be saved to pay the salary of any New York player except Christy Mathewson.

The Giants paid somewhat over $4,000 last year and the expense of the Yankees was almost as much making a total of $8,000 in round numbers. The balls are sold to the clubs at $15 a dozen.

The Boston Braves spent even more. The expense in their case was traced to the short right field fence. Charles Somers of Cleveland reports a wastage of $3,765, and Schuyler Britton had to write a check for $2,296 for the 195 dozen balls that were used by the St. Louis Cardinals last year.

Canadian Order of Chosen Friends

The local council of the Canadian Order of Chosen Friends is having a social evening tonight and will be honored with a fraternal visit from Grand Representative J. L. Davidson of Toronto, a member of the executive committee who has taken an active part in the order for the last 25 years, he has been a member of the Grand Council for 16 years and the last four years a member of the executive committee. He is a past president of the Toronto Hospital Cot Board, a branch of the order that has done a great deal to assist the members in need of hospital treatment. He also organized the Toronto Ladies' Degree team which has made a name for itself for the good work it is doing.

The Order has a membership of over 40,000 life insurance members and 13,000 sick benefit members. The society is proud to boast of having over 200 men enlisted for active military or naval services in the present European war. The local council, No. 423, is a very live one having over 200 members and has done its share in sending members to assist the Empire.

WAS TO HAVE BEEN MARRIED, DEATH INTERVENED

Eagerly waiting till he would be well enough to lead to the altar a young lady from South Monaghan, Mr. Thomas McClennan, who was brought here from Bonsfort last Saturday morning, was prevented by death, which occurred this morning in Nicholls Hospital, after a short illness.

He was to have married a young lady who was widowed after scarcely ten weeks of married life, her husband having met a tragic death in an accident with a circular saw.

The deceased came from the West recently. He was a brother of Dr. McClennan, formerly of Peterborough, but now in California. Another brother, George, lives in this city, and another brother, William, in South Monaghan.

Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

CALEDONIANS' DANCE WAS A BIG SUCCESS

"The dance of the season"—that was the general comment of all present at last night's event. There was a fairly large turnout, when the strains of good music set the dance agoing. Supper was served at 11 o'clock, when a most delightful repast was partaken of. One of the most conspicuous points of the dance was the delightful music which was rendered by Mr. Nichols at the piano and Mr. Hackett on the violin. One could hear an occasional "Hooch" as the various Highland airs were struck up. Great praise is also due Mr. Hutchison, who acted as M. C. in a most admirable fashion as he carried the whole proceedings through without a hitch.

Between the various dances a few vocal numbers were also heard. Miss Duthie sang to advantage "Come Back to Erin," as also did Mr. King in that old time Scotch favorite "Gae Bring tae me a pint O' Wine." Then followed a duet by Miss Hinchcliffe and Mr. Smith, "Come, Sing to Me." Both voices blended beautifully and the number was highly appreciated. Next was a solo by Miss Hinchcliffe entitled "My Ain Folk." The manner in which this song was rendered seemed to appeal to all present, especially the Scotch people, as the vocalist had to respond with "Mother Machree." Mr. Hendry delighted the company in character dress as a jolly tar, with Harry Lauder's famous "We Parted on the Shore." He had to respond to an encore and sang "Tipperary." Miss Duthie was again heard with the "Bonnie Brier Bush" in a most pleasant voice. The vocal program concluded with "Scots Wha Hae" sung by Mr. King, in the stern manner this song requires. Mr. Nichols played the accompaniments for the vocalists in his own inimitable style. Great praise is also due the committee who had the arrangements in hand, as the event was a decided success. When the town clock struck the hour of two, the company joined hands and sang "Auld Lang Syne" and took their way home at that "wee sma' hour."

Birthday Party for Prize Baby

Mrs Geo Henderson, 510 Gilmour St., gave a party yesterday afternoon, in honor of the first birthday of her daughter Dorothy Gwendolyn.

Ten little ones with their mothers made up the happy party, their ages being from one to seven years. Each child drew a prize from a mystery basket, which pleased them very much.

The dining table, arranged with the birthday cake and one lighted candle, surrounded with the Easter emblems, so attractive to the little ones, was a picture. When all were seated and the mothers standing behind each child a flashlight was taken. When leaving, each child was given a letter as a souvenir of the occasion. Miss Dorothy received many pretty and valuable gifts, that will remind her in years to come of the happy event and The Review joins in wishing the prize baby of Peterborough many happy returns.

Four generations present at the party were, Mrs. Mark, great grandmother, Mrs. Henderson, grandmother, Mr. Henderson, the proud father, and last but not least by any means, Miss Dorothy.

BRITISH NAVY AND IT'S WORK

Ex-gunner of Twenty Years Sea Experience Will Tell the Story

Cecil G. Williams, a reservist and ex-gunner of the British navy, with twenty years' experience of sea life, will lecture in the Collegiate Institute Hall Friday evening, March 12. His subject will be "The British Navy and Its Work."

Comments on Mr. Williams' lecture are as follows:

"Mr. Williams is an earnest, eloquent speaker and deeply impressed his Picton audience." — J. E. Minns B. A., Principal of Collegiate Institute, Picton.

"I congratulate you on securing Cecil G. Williams to deliver his address on the British Navy, as I know this gentleman to be a pleasing and instructive speaker." — J. Elliott, Manager, Standard Bank, Belleville

"Having listened to Mr. Williams, I was deeply impressed with his ability as an orator. His effort was a forcible, fluent and concise address." H. F. Ketcheson, President, Board of Trade, Belleville.

"I can heartily recommend Mr. Williams as a speaker worthy of any audience." — Dr. Kidd, Trenton.

"Mr. Williams' address is the product of the keen observation of a trained mind. The vivid descriptions of scenes and events, delivered with a restrained eloquence, excites and holds the attention and interest of all." — Rev. J. G. Lewis, Peterborough.

All are invited, more especially the 57th Regiment, the Home Guard and the volunteers. Patriotic selections will be given by the following: Mrs. J. H. Renwick, Miss Dorothy Allan and Mr. G. D. Carlisle.

A silver collection in aid of the Patriotic Fund will be taken.

DISORDERLY IN THEATRE

Occupant of Bald-headed Row Assessed $10 and Costs

Theatre goers last night at the Grand were given an exhibition of rough house that was not upon the program and which threatened to mar the enjoyment of the play. A tall, well built man wandered into the theatre and was shown to a seat in the pit two rows from the front. He fell asleep and made himself obnoxious to those seated near him, among whom were ladies, and it is claimed that the contamination of atmosphere around where he sat was most marked. Complaints were made to Mr. J. J. Turner, the proprietor, who went down and asked the man to leave the theatre. He refused whereupon the proprietor beckoned to Detectives Newhall and Meagher who were at the rear of the theatre. Both the officers asked the man to leave the theatre quietly with them after telling him who they were. He got nasty at this, started a flow of filthy and abusive language which was shocking to the ears of those around him and one lady fainted. The man kicked Detective Newhall in the groin and landed a crack on the nose of Detective Meagher. The officers endeavored to pull him out of the seat at this but he struggled vigorously. They again resorted to urging him to come quietly with them and finally succeeded.

In the lobby of the theatre however he put up a stiff fight with the officers who had to handle him with considerable force all the way to the police station. During his passage to this place he added to the excitement by loudly calling for help. He informed the officers that he was a public prosecutor and a police magistrate.

Penitent in Court.

This morning he seemed rather penitent and subdued, a night in the cells having taken away some of his ginger.

While trying to get the man from the theatre a row looked imminent for a time when two or three men across the aisle interfered and told the officers not to abuse the man. They were incited to this action by John Newhall who was ordered by the detectives to appear this morning in police court. A commercial traveller who was among the men who interfered was not summoned to court, his only offence being in making remarks to the constables under the stress of the excitement which prevailed.

Fined $10 and Costs.

This morning the cause of the trouble turned out to be a stranger. He pleaded guilty and was soaked $10 and $3.75 costs. Newall was fined $5.00 which he said he would pay under protest. Both men paid.

As the two detectives were leading their man from the theatre a storm of hisses filled the air coming from all parts of the house.

A riot of fun from start to finish marked the Mae Edwards presentation last night of the great comedy play "Charleys Aunt." In the role of Charley's Aunt Mr. Wally Grayson was the most amusing man on the stage and his impersonation of Donna Lucia D'Alvadorez was clever indeed.

There are no dull spots in the Mae Edwards performances and no tiresome situations. The climaxes are always strong and effective. A novel vaudeville number was interpolated last night representing a cabaret performance, the four participants taking up positions in the boxes and in the audience from which they sang in unison. This little departure was unique enough to prove very popular. All the cast are unusually versatile and the Mae Edwards' shows are drawing larger audiences nightly. This evening they will present a military play entitled "The Pride of the Regiment."

MARY PICKFORD IMMORTALIZES "MISTRESS NELL" ON THE SCREEN!

Mary Pickford, the highest salaried motion picture star in the world, departs from her usual style of screen interpretation in the latest production of the Famous Players Film Co., a five-part film subject of "Mistress Nell," the internationally famous drama by Geo. C. Hazelton, which is the main attraction at the Empire Theatre Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, March 12th, 13th and 14th, with daily matinees.

Nell Gwyn, the character portrayed by "Little Mary," is one of the greatest and sweetest of history's heroines. To her, fame is added by the astonishing success of the drama of which she is the central character, and in the photoplay version of which Miss Pickford even further extends the dramatic appeal of the captivating story.

The character of Nell offers Miss Pickford many interesting opportunities to prove her wonderful versatility as a screen actress, inasmuch as the portrayal involves not only the delineation of Nell, as England's favorite actress, but also that of the disguised messenger who is supposed to carry the word of King Charles' disaster to another crown. In this deception Mary Pickford supplies one of her inimitable characterizations, and her assumption of the boy's clothes, the first time in many years that she has played the part of a boy, is refreshingly novel and virile.

Among the many admirable sets that comprise the production, one stands out more prominently than the others, excellent as they all are. This is the spacious and gorgeous ballroom of the king's palace, and the construction and general beauty of the set is worthy of complimentary notice, even though it must be remembered that the Famous Players have always maintained the highest standard of the film-producing world for their settings and mechanical adjuncts.

The unusual subject will remain at the Empire until Saturday, and the crowded houses that have attended this theatre since the feature opened eloquently attest its popularity.

OBITUARY

MRS. JOHN WESTLAKE.

Emily Begley, wife of Mr. John Westlake, and daughter of the late John Begley, passed away at 5.30 yesterday afternoon after an illness of four weeks, at the home of Mrs. E. A. Johnston, Lee street, Smith township. She was aged 64, and came to Canada with her parents and settled in Lakefield forty-five years ago. She was married thirty-seven years ago to John Westlake of Catchacoma. Three daughters and one son survive her, namely, Mrs E. A. Johnston, of Smith; Miss B. F. Westlake, of New York, and Miss Edith Westlake, of Pittsfield, and Edmund, at home.

She was a member of the Anglican Church, and Rev. Canon Davidson will officiate at the funeral, which will be held on Saturday at 2 p.m leaving at 2.30 for Little Lake Cemetery.

KEEN INTEREST AT MEETING OF POULTRY ASS'N

Keen interest was shown last night at the monthly meeting of the Poultry Association which was held in the Trades and Labor Hall. It was decided to have a paper presented at each monthly meeting, in which some phase of the poultry breeding industry would be discussed. The idea is to awaken a greater interest and bring out arguments on the subject and create better methods of raising poultry generally. It was also agreed to have exhibits of birds at every monthly meeting, at which prize ribbons will be awarded; in fact, it will be a small exhibition each time.

Judges were appointed for next year's exhibitions. Mr. J. H. Minshaw of Brantford and H. D. Wilson of Brockville were selected.

The association is booming now as never before, and live meetings may be counted upon this year. Mr. Joe Kelly, the new president, presided last night. Mr. J. T. C. Lang will present a paper at the next meeting.

LACROSSE GAME SHOULD BOOM

A number of lacrosse enthusiasts convened in the Y. M. C. A. parlors last evening and talked the season's prospects over. Everything gives promise of the "made in Canada" game booming. No organization was gone on with, as those present deemed it advisable to permit that work to stand over until it is learned how many other centres in this city will have teams. The organization meeting will in all probability be called about a week previous to the annual meeting of the O. A. L. A. in Toronto on Good Friday.

GERMANY'S STAR WANING IN THE EAST

BELGIANS GAIN---BERLIN CLAIMS 11,000 PRISONERS---ATTACKS FAIL

VILLAGE WON BY BRITISH

Le Pinette Captured by Third Corps With Slight Losses to Victors

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 12. — The following report concerning the operations of the British forces on the western battle front was given out today by the official information bureau:

"During the night of 11-12 and in the early morning several counter attacks were easily repulsed by the Fourth Corps and Indian Corps, with heavy losses to the enemy. Sixty prisoners were captured in the night attack, and also the village of Le Pinette was captured by the Third Corps, with slight losses.

"Mist and fog now prevail and hinder operations."

LONDON, March 12. — Some English newspapers regard the sweeping advance by the British and Indian troops around Neuve Chapelle, in the direction of the German position at La Bassee, as a commencement of active operations by the left wing of the Allies, and likely to be followed by another important offeensive thrust, preliminary to a general advance in the spring.

It is believed the Germans will promptly seek to retaliate, which will compel them to maintain their forces in that theatre intact, or even reinforce them to meet fresh forces which Britain is putting into the field.

No recent news has been received from the Dardanelles.

WHAT BERLIN HAS TO SAY ABOUT IT.

BERLIN, March 12. — (Official announcement). — "In the western arena, two battleships of the enemy, accompanied by two torpedo boats, fired on Westende, to the north of Nieuport, yesterday. Seventy shots were fired without any damage. Our batteries forced the ships to retreat.

"The British, who have occupied Neuve Chapelle, advanced several times last night to the westward, but were repulsed. Also to the north of Neuve Chapelle minor British attacks were repulsed. Fighting in this district still continues.

"Quiet reigned in the Champagne district yesterday.

"In the Vosges, heavy snowstorms prevailed and only minor operations took place.

"In the east, to the north of the forest of Augustowo, we vanquished a force of Russians which avoided complete defeat by retreating hastily in the direction of Grodno. We took more than 4,000 prisoners, including two commanders of regiments, and we captured three cannon and ten machine guns. Furthermore, from Augustowo district Russians began to retreat in the direction of Grodno.

"At a point northwest of Ostrolenka during an attack we captured three Russian officers and 220 men.

"To the north and northwest of Przasnysz, German attacks have made progress. In this district we took over 3,200 prisoners yesterday.

"Near Przasnysz, German troops, after giving way for a short time, are again four kilometres (2½ miles) north of that town.

"Since relinquishing Przasnysz, the Germans have taken prisoners a total of 11,000 Russians on the battlefield between the Vistula and the Orzyc Rivers."

TWO DIVISIONS OF BELGIANS ADVANCE.

PARIS, March 12. — This afternoon's statement says: "In Belgium, two divisions of the Belgian army advanced between four hundred and five hundred metres, notably in the direction of Schoorbakke, to the southeast of Nieuport.

"On the remainder of the front nothing has taken place to add to yesterday's official statement."

PRINCE PAID NURSES A VISIT

Complimented Staff and Said He Would Write to His Father

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Montreal, March 12.—Miss Glint, formerly a nurse in the Royal Victoria hospital here writes from the Canadian Hospital at La Touquet, France, that the Prince of Wales paid them a surprise visit. After about twenty minutes spent inspecting the wards, he complimented the nurses and doctors and said he "would write to his father" about how well the Canadians were established.

KILLED UNDER THE STARS AND STRIPES

Zapalists Murder American in Mexico City

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

Washington, March 12.—John B. McManus, formerly of Chicago, was killed yesterday when Zapatists entered Mexico City. The American flag was flying over his house. Zapatists allege the killing was in revenge for McManus having killed three of their number when they were in the city some time ago.

San Antonio, Texas, had the first snow in twenty years last Sunday.

LT. WM. J. DOXSEE

Of Campbellford who was wounded in the fighting in France last week. He was with G. Company, 2nd Battalion, 1st Canadian Contingent.

Lieut. Doxsee has been prominent in Campbellford, as a business man and for several years was Mayor. He is a South African veteran, which decoration he wears, and he attended the coronation of King George V. He was also present at the Victoria Diamond Jubilee and the Quebec Tercentenary. When war was declared in August last, Mr. Doxsee at once volunteered and left Campbellford with Lieut. Hodge and twenty men. He has been in command of the Campbellford Company of the 40th Regiment and is the senior Lieutenant of the Regiment, dating from April, 1904.

SERVICES ARE APPRECIATED

Organist and Choirmaster at Mark Street Church is Surprised

Four years' faithful service as organist and choirmaster of Mark St. Methodist Church was unexpectedly rewarded last night when Mr Nicholls was presented with a purse of gold along with an address which set forth how much the choir thought of him and to what extent they appreciated his efforts to make Mark Street choir one of the most successful in the city. Mrs. Weir read the address and Mrs. Sucee made the presentation. The address was as follows:—

Peterborough, March 11th, 1915.
Mr. Nicholls.

Dear Sir, — We, the members of the choir, have been desirous for some time to let you know how much we appreciate the valuable services you have so cheerfuly rendered.

We do not for one moment intend to attempt to express in words or by gift the feelings of gratitude we feel.

But it is desired that in some way you should be given to understand the place you occupy among the members of the choir and also the congregation of Mark Street Church. You have never hesitated in giving your time and talents to the advancement of the choir And this has all been done in a spirit which makes us feel that you were actuated only by the most unselfish and generous motives.

We therefore desire you to accept this purse of gold as an indication or token of our appreciation of your work.

May you long be spared to lead in the Songs of Praise with Mark Street choir and congregation.

Needless to state Mr. Nicholls was taken by surprise and expressed his appreciation of the thoughtfulness of the choir and how much he was touched by their kindness.

Seventeen workless men were arrested in New York for lying across a store grating to keep warm.

LOOKS FOR PEACE IN SIX MONTHS

Japanese General is Optimistic Regarding Issue of Eastern Campaign

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 12. — The Daily Telegraph correspondent at Petrograd wires that General Oba, who has been representing the Japanese army on the staff of the Russian commander-in-chief since the beginning of the war, but is now returning to Japan, is very optimistic regarding the issue of the campaign.

He thinks the operations of Von Hindenburg in December on the Warta River marked the culmination of German operations, and since that time Germany's star has been on the wane.

It can already be felt that the Germans are wasting away, even their shells recently having been of cast iron instead of steel, clearly indicating exhaustion of resources.

He is clearly convinced that when Russian troops assume the offensive, the enemy will be swept away.

Peace, in his opinion, cannot be delayed more than six months.

ARTICLES ADDED TO CONTRABAND LIST

LONDON, March 12. — The British Government has added the following articles to the absolute contraband list: Wool, woollen and worsted yarns, wool tops and noils, tin, chloride of tin, tin ore, castor oil, parrafine wax, copper, iodine, lubricants, hides, and all kinds of leather suitable for military equipment, ammonia and its salts, urea aniline and its compounds.

TRY TO STOP RUSSIAN WAR SUPPLIES.

LONDON, March 12. — Russian soldiers are pursuing a party of nine Germans headed by Capt. Pappenheim, who, after the fall of Tsing Tau by the Japanese, escaped from that fortress, fraudulently secured Chinese passports and struck overland for the line of the Siberian railway with the intention of blowing up tunnels and bridges, thus cutting off Russian war supplies now being received from Japan.

A GIFT FROM BUFFALO.

Mr. George Graham, proprietor of the Empress Hotel, was the recipient of a very handsome present this morning sent by Mr. Joseph Brunner of Buffalo. The gift consisted of two American pheasants, a male and female, mounted very artistically in a case similar to a picture frame. The cock, which possesses very handsome plumage, was shot by Mr. Brunner while hunting last fall. The taxidermy was executed by Mr. Herman Grieb of Buffalo, and is truly a work of art. The case will be added to the already fine collection of mural decorations at the Empress.

Russians to Bombard Forts of Bosphorus

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

London, March 12. — The semi-weekly communication from Sir John French's headquarters describes the operations accompanying the taking of Neuve Chapelle when four thousand yards of trenches fell into British hands and the army took up a position twelve hundred yards beyond the enemy's advanced trenches. Prisoners state the British artillery was extremely effective. All German counter attacks were repulsed with loss. The initiative and spirit of our troops is admirable.

London, March 12.—A report says another German submarine has been sunk in the North Sea by the trawler Alex. Chastise. She got tangled in the ropes and foundered in twenty minutes with all on board.

London, March 12.—The Russian Black Sea fleet is expected to start a bombardment of the Bosphorus forts today in co-operation with the French and English in the Dardanelles.

Peking, March 12. — A despatch says Japan has modified her attitude towards China.

London, March 12. — Canadian Headquarters have been moved to Shorncliffe.

New Office to be Opened Here

The Review understands that Peterborough will be an electric inspection centre and that the Federal Government will appoint an office for this district to be located here. The law requires that the inspector shall be a university graduate and have experience as a practical man besides. The salary begins at eleven hundred dollars.

Application for Divorce

The divorce committee of the Dominion Senate have reported favorably on the application of Lottie M. Thorndike (nee McWilliams) for divorce from her husband, George M. Thorndike. Mrs. Thorndike is the eldest daughter of Mr. James McWilliams, formerly of Lindsay, but now of Peterborough, while Mr. Thorndike's former home was in Oakwood. They were married in Lindsay some twenty years ago, but have lived apart nearly ever since.

STR. LAPLAND NOT CHASED BY SUBMARINE

CANON DAVIDSON TO CONDUCT MISSION

Rev. Canon Davidson is leaving in the morning for Port Perry to conduct parochial mission services from Sunday, March 14, to Sunday, March 21. These services are for the purpose of arousing fresh life and interest in the parish of Port Perry and are being held at the request of the Toronto General Missioners' Society. Canon Davidson conducted similar services in Toronto in 1911.

Rev. C. P. Muirhead of Port Perry will officiate at St. John's on Sunday next, while Archdeacon Warren of Toronto will preach on the following Sunday.

MADE READY FOR WEDDING

Unusually Sad Circumstances Attend Death of Thos. McClelland

In connection with the death of Mr. Thomas McClelland which took place yesterday in Nicholls Hospital certain facts have come to light which make the case one of unusual sadness. Mr. McClelland expected to lead to the altar last Saturday, a young widow named Mrs. Morrison, who lives near Bensfort. The wedding ring had been purchased, the hour set, and nothing seemed to stand in the path of plans being fulfilled. But before the day swung round, the bridegroom fell ill and reluctantly was compelled to come to Peterborough and be conveyed to Nicholls Hospital. There he seemed much depressed though the nurses and his physician did their best to cheer him up.

As far as known this was the second attempt on the part of the late Mr. McClelland to embark upon the matrimonial sea, but each time something has intervened, and the ceremony failed to take place.

Had Amassed a Fortune.

For the past few years he had lived in the west and had amassed a fortune to considerable proportions He went into the rich Peace River district years before that immense territory was opened up to anything like the extent it now is. He secured possession of hundreds of acres of this choice land and became rich. Twice he journeyed eastward and sought to persuade the object of his affection to say yes. On this last trip he was successful and the future took an easy and [illegible] way. The prospective bride had completed her trousseau and all was ready.

Upon the occasion of his first trip home from the west he and his intended agreed to postpone the marriage owing to the illness of her father who was at death's door. He returned west and came back this Christmas and since then has been visiting his brother here and a brother in South Monaghan. This time the young lady consented to the wedding and the date was fixed. Early last week they came to Peterborough and were frequently seen together shopping and getting prepared for the wedding.

Took Ill at Bensfort.

About Thursday, two days before the eventful day was due, he went down to Bensfort, the home of the girl. While there he took very [illegible] and two physicians who attended him diagnosed his condition as serious. Comstock's ambulance was summoned to Bensfort by telephone and drove down on Saturday, March 6th, and brought him to Nicholls Hospital. He was placed in a private ward. His spirits drooped noticeably and this augmented by his illness seemed to depress him still more

The funeral will be held Saturday afternoon, from the residence of his brother, George H. McClelland, Morrow Street. The service at the house will be at two o'clock and the funeral at two-thirty to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. J. A. MacKenzie of Knox Church will conduct the services.

REPORT ON PAVING OF RESIDENTIAL STREETS

At the meeting of the Board of Works last evening the City Engineer was asked to prepare a report on paving for Hunter St. from Aylmer St. to Walton Avenue and also for Belmont Avenue from Homewood Ave. to Weller St. This report will be presented at the next meeting when the matter of paving a section of the city during the coming summer will be thoroughly gone into.

Meet at the Bridge.

The members of the Board will meet next Saturday afternoon and visit Smith St. bridge where it is claimed the water from the spring thaw is flooding residences.

Street Encroachments.

The City Engineer was asked to prepare a report on street encroachments which will be turned over to the legal committee when received.

Old Accounts.

Chairman Ald. Green set about clearing the fyle. He came across accounts from the Water Commissioners amounting to $86.00 which dated back to early in 1912. The Board of Works also has a counter claim against the Water Commissioners for some seventy dollars. The chairman and Mayor will take the matter up with the Utilities Commission and report to the next meeting.

Upkeep of Boundary Roads.

The Smith Township Council will be asked to be present at the next meeting of the Board to make arrangements for the upkeep of the boundary road between the city and that township.

Westcott St. Sewer.

Ald. Saunders brought up the question of providing sewer connections for Westcott Street but no action was taken.

PETERBOROUGH, FRIDAY, MARCH 12, 1915

THE PUBLIC WANT THE CASE TO GO ON.

NUMBERS OF citizens have called on the Review, and others have written letters, commending this newspaper for its stand in favour of "a clean-up in this city," and more especially in regard to a thorough investigation of the recent cases, whereby a young girl was led astray and now lies in her grave, a man is dead, and the ones directly or indirectly the cause of this are allowed to roam at large, and, if so disposed, to continue their nefarious work.

It seems almost incredible that the paid police force and officials of this city are allowed to sit back in their ample arm-chairs and laugh at the complaints of respectable citizens who desire a thorough investigation and a cleaning-up of this city. If they persist in their present attitude of inactivity they will find that they have stirred up an amount of indignation in this city that may not only incite the people to taking the law into their own hands, but may be the means of bringing to light other cases which the police to all intents and purposes know nothing about.

If the local police officials persist in ignoring the demands of the respectable and law-abiding people of this city, it may be possible to bring in outside help that will show up some of the causes at least for this inaction, and possibly place those responsible for some of the recent cases where they belong. While the Ontario Attorney-General's Department has not been noted in the past few years for its acuteness in discovering crime and bringing perpetrators to justice, however we are hoping, under its new head, the Hon. I. B. Lucas, that a better state of affairs will exist, and that it may be possible to bring law-breakers to justice in the event of the local police being unable or unwilling to do so.

THE ACME OF ABSURDITY.

AS WAS ANTICIPATED, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has thrown the party truce to the winds and introduced an amendment to the Budget. This amendment lines the Opposition forces against the Borden Government purely as an opposition. It contains no alternative proposal for raising the funds necessary to enable Canada to weather the conditions brought about by a state of war. Sir Wilfrid's ostensible espousal of British connection is in strange contrast to his recorded and persistent opposition to the former proposals of Sir Robert Borden that Canada should take some share in the defence of the Empire. Then Sir Wilfrid was almost anti-British; now he assumes a pro-British role, but has nothing constructive to offer. If Sir Wilfrid had brought forward an alternative proposal he would have some reason for justifying his position. As it is, it stands as a purely partizan proposal, and was, as the Hon. W. T. White characterized it, "the acme of absurdity and of partizan misrepresentation."

The Globe tries to make out that the new taxes will not produce a revenue, and will place a heavier burden on the people, particularly the consumer, because higher duties mean higher prices and consequently restricted business. Restricted business means less duty collected.. This reasoning would be largely true were the Hon. Mr. White's proposals to be a permanent policy. This they are not. They are merely temporary, to tide over the present period of the war. Actually, there will be no restriction due to the increased duties for a considerable time. The wants of the people will remain unchanged in spite of slight increases in prices in some lines, through force of habit. People do not easily change their mode of living, and especially as business has greatly improved and is steadily getting better, the people will still be able to satisfy their wants. Any increases in prices will not be so great as to make them prohibitive, and it should be remembered that everybody, to the humblest citizen, will not object to a cent or two on some articles when it is for the defence of Canada and the Empire. Just as soon as conditions improve sufficiently, and it is hoped it will not be for long, the war taxes will be removed.

Mr. White had this problem to meet — more money had to be raised. Indirect taxation will provide this revenue, provided the taxation is not too great. The financial condition of Canada and the general industrial outlook is such that the people will be easily able to pay the new taxes. In face of these conditions, the Liberals are objecting without offering any alternative proposal. That is why their position is indeed the acme of absurdity.

THE LOCAL HOCKEY CLUB SUSPENSION.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT that the Peterborough Intermediate Hockey Club has been suspended and that one of its players, Joe Moinse, will be charged with an attempt to defraud, brings to an issue what has been feared for some time. This city has been particularly loyal to its hockey teams and has supported the sport in a manner that deserves better treatment.

Rumor has it that the club or team purposely lost the Picton game which put Peterborough out of the running for O. H. A. honours, in the hope that nothing more would be heard of alleged irregularities in the local club. It is also hinted that players bet against their own team in that game. Apparently this ruse did not work, and hence the suspension and warrant. It certainly was not fair to the citizens of this city who support the hockey team to give them any such treatment as the action of the O. H. A. executive indicates.

The responsibility for allowing a professional to play on the local amateur team rests on the local club. Amateur sport is supposed to be played for the sport, and not gain, and, while everybody likes to see the home team win, they want the sport played fairly and honestly. If the local club has been guilty of any wrongdoing in the management of the local intermediate team, the quicker it is exposed the better it will be for all concerned. If the game cannot be played fairly by a local team, the majority of citizens would prefer not to support the club at all.

NO MORE BAD WORDS OVER THE TELEPHONE.

THE AMENDMENT to the Telephone Act, which will shortly be submitted to the Legislature, is a measure that will likely meet with public favour, as it aims to prevent the use of swearing or indecent language over the telephone, either between customers or between a customer and an operator. The fine is twenty-five dollars. Very often the girls at central are subject to remarks that are uncalled-for and undeserved. However, the telephone managers would do well to see that their operators are always obliging, as sometimes one careless girl at central causes trouble to the whole staff. If telephone users and operators will make an effort to be reasonable and obliging, one or two applications of the new measure proposed ought to suffice in causing much improvement.

WAR FINANCE.

MR. LLOYD GEORGE perhaps did not throw as much light upon the result of his negotiations with the Finance Ministers of France and Russia as was desirable, says the London Statist. But said enough to make it fairly clear to the well-informed what has really been agreed upon. He told the House of Commons on Monday that the first practical suggestion the three Ministers had to consider was that of a joint loan. They rejected the suggestion on the ground that the credit of the three great States is not equal; and that, therefore, it would be a costly, and even a wasteful, proceeding. At the moment, at all events, the credit of the United Kingdom is the best in the world. Only a few weeks ago she was able to borrow 350 millions sterling, the largest sum ever raised in a lump by any government, at a rate which, including everything, such as repayment at par and the like, did not exceed 4 per cent. Whereas Russia at the beginning of this week raised 10 millions sterling of one-year treasury bills at 5¼ per cent. It is perfectly clear, therefore, that Great Britain can borrow much more cheaply than Russia. Similarly, it would be easy to show that as things stand at the moment she can likewise borrow more cheaply than France. There seems, therefore, a strong argument in favour of the decision arrived at by the three Ministers. While, however, a joint loan for the three great Allies was put aside, it was agreed that advances should be made to the small States. The three Ministers decided that each of the great allied countries should contribute a portion of every loan made to the small States who were either in with us now or propose to come in later on; that the responsibility should be divided between the three countries; and that at an opportune moment a joint loan should be floated to cover the advances either already made or to be made to those countries outside the three great allied European countries.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

REPORTS say the Canadian artillery is a match for the Germans. Just give the Canadians a chance, and they will do all that is expected of them and a little more.

IN SPITE OF all that the Globe says, it is our opinion that Mr. N. W. Rowell has plenty of friends in his own party that would bid for a term in the new Government House were the Liberals in power.

TWO SOLDIERS were killed the other day, and it transpired that the suburban car which ran over them had no headlight, and hence the accident. It is just such carelessness that has no excuse and which leads to serious consequences.

A WOODSTOCK MAN has been charged with the theft of forty-one suits of clothes. He pleaded guilty. We have a notion of going to Woodstock and appropriating forty suits of clothes, or perhaps we might cut it down to thirty. If a man isn't caught until he steals forty-one suits, it seems they let him have his way up to the fortieth suit.

TAKE UP THE GOVERNMENT HOUSE AGAIN

Liberals Revive Ancient Objections to Chorley Park

TORONTO, March 12. — The new Ontario Government House was the centre of a warm debate in the Legislature yesterday, when Liberal Whip Bowman urged that an item of $200,000 in the estimates be stricken out on grounds of economy.

The Opposition speakers declared that the Government had blundered, and that instead of repenting in a business-like way they had plunged in deeper and deeper. Parallels were drawn with other provinces and municipalities to show that Ontario was too heavily saddled. Mr. Rowell, in answer to a query from the Government benches declared "that he would scrap the whole thing."

Several Government members replied and finally Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid, Minister of Public Works, stated that it would be unfair to abandon contracts already entered. Strict economy in keeping with the past would be observed.

The amendment to strike out the new vote was defeated on a standing vote.

Hon. W. J. Hanna's scheme to supply fish almost at cost prices to inmates of institutions in Ontario has not been dropped. When the matter was referred to yesterday in the Legislature the Provincial Secretary was not in the House, but Hon. Finlay Macdiarmid spoke of it as tentative.

A. B. Thompson of Simcoe brought in a bill designed to assure compensation to workmen falling into loss through employment with companies which fail. The bill would make the guarantee company pay the workman direct when the employing company goes into liquidation.

So Says Man Who Tried to Blow up Powder House

COBALT, March 12.—No satisfactory ground as to the motive of Thos. Szyazkoe in attempting to blow up the Nipissing powder house can be secured by the provincial police up to the present. He persists that the other two men in custody jointly kept urging him for two days to commit the deed; but he was sober then, and when he did make the attempt he had been drinking.

"They just told me to go and do it for fun," said the prisoner.

About 150 cases of explosive powder was in the Nipissing power house, amounting to over eight thousand sticks of dynamite at the time the fuse was lit and burned itself out.

The penalty is a case of this kind is said to be life imprisonment.

France Will Lend To Allies.

PARIS, March 12. — The budget committee has asked that consideration be taken at next week's session of the Chamber of Deputies of its reports proposing that the sum of 1,350,000,000 francs (approximately $270,000,000) be advanced to the allies or to Belgium; increasing to four and a half milliards of francs ($900,000,000), the limit of issuance of treasury bonds, and also proposing that advances repayable at the chambers of commerce be made for the purchase of grain and supplies for the civil population.

PERT PARAGRAPHS.

EVERY father knows he never was such a driveling idiot in his youth as his son is, and the son hugs himself in the mild delusion that he never will be such a back number as his dad is.

If the average man could run his own affairs as well as he knows he could run the other fellow's there would be a big decrease in the failures reported by Dunn and Bradstreet.

Too much faith is to be deplored even as too little, especially when dealing with a green goods man.

Silenced His Notes.

"Is your husband musical?"

"He used to be, but isn't any more."

"Getting old?"

"No; it isn't that. He used to pump the organ in the church, but now they have a motor to do the work."

Good Intentions.

"It is funny to hear women argue."

"Funny?"

"Yes."

"I never heard them."

"What—never heard women argue?"

"No; only try."

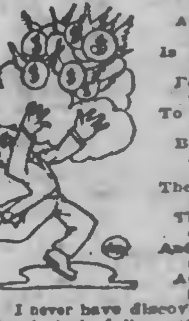
Romance

In search of buried treasure
In some forgotten land
I'd like to go a-digging
Along the shining sand.
The chest I would uncover
In just about a day
And load it on a vessel
And carry it away.

This grubbing after money
The way I have to do
And chasing festive dollars
And picking up but few
Is hardly to my liking.
I'd rather have a show
To dig up treasures buried
By pirates long ago.



They talk of easy money,
The kind that comes around
And asks you to accept it
As though it had been found.
I never have discovered
A single dollar yet
That didn't reach my pocket
By labor and by sweat.

Then, ho, for Treasure island!
I see it in a dream.
Get busy, O ye stokers,
And crowd on lots of steam!
It's easier than working
In office or in store.
I only wish to goodness
I'd thought of it before!

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

Shipyard Secrets

Every British shipyard that builds for the navy must take great precautions that none of the secrets intrusted to its care shall leak out. Detectives watch all visitors and keep the workmen under observation also. Plain clothes officers guard every entrance, and nobody is allowed to bring in even a small parcel unless it is first examined, for fear that it may conceal a camera. At one of the big construction yards one man in every two dozen is thoroughly searched from head to foot each night on leaving. All the draftsmen engaged on the drawings of a new warship are sworn to secrecy, and the plans are invariably kept under lock and key when not in use.

These precautions have brought many suspicious circumstances to light. One night when a new cruiser was about to undergo her trials two men crept aboard as she lay at anchor. They were captured and handed over to the police. Shortly afterward, on the day of her trial, the chief engineer thought it would be advisable to have another look at the interior of the turbines before steaming to make certain that no rubbish had got inside to injure the delicate turbine blades. But worse than rubbish was found. When the turbines were opened two heavy steel chisels were discovered inside. If the machinery had been started the damage would have taken months to repair.—Pearson's Weekly.

AN OLD NORMAN CUSTOM REVIVED

An interesting and unusual revival of an ancient Norman custom occurred at Guernsey not long ago when Daniel Sebire, jurat, justicier elect of Alderney, whose election the royal court annulled because he had been sentenced to a term of imprisonment some years ago, raised a clameur de haro, or a "cry for justice," against a fresh election by kneeling bareheaded at the entrance of the courthouse and exclaiming: "Haro! Haro! Haro, a l' aide, mon prince, on me fait tort!" (Help me, my prince! They do me wrong!)

The clameur de haro, an ancient Norman custom, still survives in the Channel islands. The appellant must, on his knees and before witnesses, raise the cry that acts as an injunction until the alleged tort or trespass has been passed on by the court. If the trespasser continues he is liable to arrest and punishment. Although the clameur is still legal in the Channel islands, recourse to it is very rare, and there has been no instance of it in Alderney for two centuries. It is, however, a very effective procedure.

The derivation usually ascribed to the form of the plea is curious. "Haro" is said to be an abbreviation of "Ha, Rollo!" a direct appeal to Rollo, the first Duke of Normandy, and the cry is thus traced back to the days when there were no courts and justice was personally meted out by princes. It is, however, more probable that "haro" is simply an exclamation to attract attention.

A similar custom, applicable only in criminal cases, was the Saxon clamor violentiae, which existed at the time of the Norman invasion.—Youth's Companion.

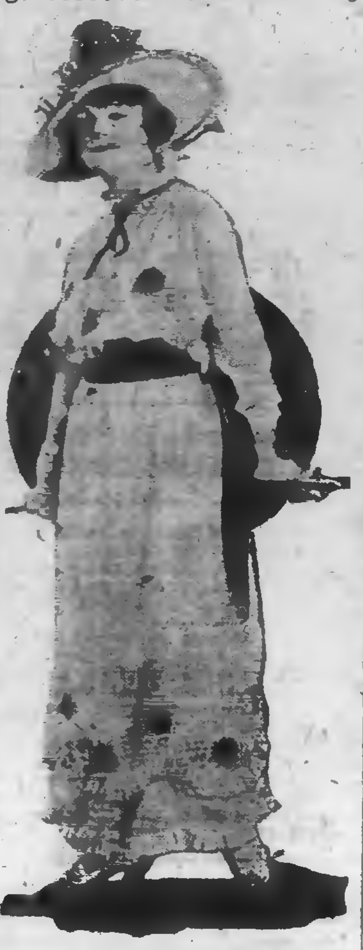
YOUTHFUL SPRING GOWN.

Smart Model in Black and White For Afternoon Wear.



WHITE VOILE GOWN.

Among the white fabrics which will be popular for the spring afternoon frock one may mention voile with a good deal of confidence, since the majority of fashion designers look upon this fabric with favor. One has a charming example of its use in the gown illustrated, which is an afternoon creation suitable for the smart tea, luncheon, bridge or the informal dance. The gown is of white voile, cleverly embroidered with black and with the wide girdle and sash of black velvet ribbon. One notices with interest the narrow plaiting which trims the little jacket and appears in three undulating lines on the skirt. The hat is a wide brimmed spring model, well adapted for Easter wear.

Shoes For Spring.

Shoe styles show a distinct trend toward the military type of button and lace boots in women's high footwear, with the button boot characterized by military braids and eagle brass buttons, says the Dry Good Economist. In low shoes for women the short tongue colonial and the small tongue pump will predominate, closely followed by novelty strap effects in the medium grades. The gaiter effect will be carried into low shoes, and black and white combinations will be received with much favor. In men's shoes the tendency is toward the larger use of the cloth top button boots.

Convenience In Scales.

The new spring scales for household and nursery use have an adjustable tube which makes it possible to weigh the contents of a box or basket hung on the hook without having to deduct the weight of the empty receptacle. The empty basket is hung on the hook first by itself and the inner tube scale adjusted to the "O" mark. Then whatever is to be weighed is placed in the basket and the weight is registered.

Apple Batter Pudding.

Take six cooking apples and peel and core them without slicing. Now fill up the cavities with sugar and cloves. Have ready a good light batter, and when you have placed the apples in a buttered dish pour this over them. One and a half hours' baking in a moderate oven is necessary.

WHAT THE COOK BOOK SAYS.

If you would have your fried eggs look pink and beautiful fry them one at a time in a good deal of fat and give them your undivided attention. As they are cooking take a spoon and continually pour the hot fat over them until they are done. An egg that is a little stale is almost sure to break its yolk when it is put into the pan.

You can warm over meat much more quickly if you wrap it in greased paper. The steam will prevent the meat from becoming hard and dry.

A very quick way to cool a hot liquid is to pass it through a clean cloth saturated with cold water. And if the liquid is soup no trace of grease will remain.

Pickles will never become moldy if you put a tiny bag of mustard in the top of the receptacle in which they are kept.

Don't forget to close the refrigerator door each time you use the box. The ice will last much longer.

To keep pancakes from being greasy and flabby do not have the batter too thick, and be sure that the fat is piping hot.

A WOMAN HATER

How She Won Him.

By IDA SPEED

Women folks can usually git the wildest kind of fellers to eatin' out of their hands by just feedin' 'em flattery.

The sorriest horse in the world can tell the difference between just good smellin' feed and the kind that will stick to his ribs, but it's just once in awhile you'll find a man that knows what's good for his soul.

Bill Christy was this kind. He was also the handsomest man I ever saw.

He come to work at the Walkin' Stick ranch and went by the name Chris.

He had so much energy he worked the rest of us to death tryin' to keep up with him. There wasn't any undertakin' he wasn't equal to except one that had women connected with it. He just wouldn't stand for the skirts, and his favorite pony, Limbo, was just like him in this respect.

Ed Beverstock, owner of the Walkin' Stick, had been married just a year. His wife had been to school back east and liked to put it on strong. She brought a cook with her, and us boys was so tired of batchin' that we welcomed her right now.

When summer came Mrs. Ed takes up a notion to have a big house party. So she invites a crowd out from town and also Mr. Lawson, the rich, unmarried owner of the D Blanks, a neighborin' ranch. Ed tells us boys he has hired a band of three pieces at $25 a day to play for the dancin'.

"You fellers have at it," he says. "Your pay goes on just the same, but you are paid to show the company a good time."

The evenin' before the bunch arrived the wind stopped blowin', and so naturally the windmills stopped pumpin'. No matter how many fiestas are in progress, cattle still want to drink water.

"This is too bad," Ed says, "but you fellers can take turns runnin' the engine so none of you will miss much of the fun."

"No need of that," says Chris. "I'll run the engine night and day. This is where I slough."

The whole house party centered around Delia Dumont, a schoolmate of Mrs. Ed's, who had never been in the west before. She seemed powerful pleased with our way of doin' things.

By the first evenin' they all got on to Chris not likin' the girls, and every female in the bunch begins to make a smoke at him. They nearly badgered him to death, but timidity ain't a failin' with Chris, and he held his own.

The second mornin' several couples of us have just come in from a ride and are loungin' on the front gallery, with our saddles on the fence, where we've left 'em.

Chris rides up in a gallop on Limbo and throws the bridle over his pony's head and makes for the dog house, which is our name for the bunk house in this country. He never looks at us, but runs in for a pair of pliers to fix somethin' about the engine.

Dee Dumont runs out to Limbo, intendin' to put her saddle on him for fun and show us a stunt, though nobody knew her intention.

Dee don't know about western saddles, so she starts to pull this one off, and, it bein' strapped to Limbo, he begins to kick, and Dee trips over a root and falls. In a second or two Limbo has made some bad dents in $75 of Bill Christy's increment invested in that hand carved saddle. We all run to Dee, but Chris beats us.

He helps her up without even askin' if she's hurt and then calls Limbo some awful hard names, tellin' him to come there.

"I'm so sorry about your saddle, Mr. Christy," says Dee. "I was just seized with a wild desire to ride your pretty pony. I do hope you'll forgive me. It was all my fault."

"Limbo won't stand for women," he says and rides off.

The last night of the house party the wind began to blow so the engine wasn't needed.

Ed Beverstock looked up his engineerman.

"Step to it tonight, Chris," he says "It's your last chance, and the ladies are all anxious to dance with you."

There wasn't any gettin' around it, so Chris washed up and put on his serge clothes and a soft white shirt and a dark blue strip of tie down the front.

"Wonder if he dances as well as he looks," says Miss Hubbard, the schoolteacher from Headwater.

"Divinely," says Mrs. Ed. "I don't know what might have happened if I'd seen him before I saw my husband."

"Nothin', believe me!" says Dee Dumont, and they all laugh.

Dee had been the life of the crowd all week, teachin' us turkey trots and aviation glides and learnin' our fancy stunts like "Put Your Little Foot" and "Comin' Thro' the Rye," that was so old they was new to her.

I had just had a twostep with her and kept sayin' to myself that tomorrow was the last, and I was half glad.

Dee makes for the back door of the big, broad hall, where Chris is smokin' and chattin' the musicians. I'm trailin' along after her, and Lawson saunters up just as we do.

Chris has been dancin' every time, but has never got around to Dee.

"Mr. Christy," says Dee, "if they'll play for us I'll teach you the turkey trot next time." And she smiles at him and the musicians too.

"Thanks," says Chris, throwin' away his cigarette, "but I've got this number. Try me again."

She turns away to hide the way her lips is quiverin'.

Lawson steps up.

"Miss Dumont," he says, "may I have the honor?"

I was glad he accepted honor. I liked him better than I did Chris right then.

But don't you know before the dance broke up Chris asked her to waltz with him, and she did.

I tell the whole outfit goodby at breakfast the next mornin' and make a sneak. You know how it is the day after. I was sleepy, and we was goin' to round up and brand the next week. Some of the boys had to drive the visitors and musicians to the railroad others helped to clean up at the house.

Chris had been down tinkerin' with the engine since before day. I intended to help him, but when I got down to the tank he was inside the shack and didn't see me. He had an old cot out at one side of the engine house screened by a clump of mesquite. I dropped down on it.

I could see a blur of green made by the Bermuda grass on the bank of the tank and the droopin' willows that bend to the water's edge. There was no sound but the creak of the wind mills and an occasional unpretty word that Chris let go at the engine he was tryin' to fix. The ranch house was a quarter of a mile away, so I was surprised to see through my half closed eyes a white spot against the green.

This kinder woke me up, and at the same time Chris said an awful word and hurled his monkey wrench through the door of the engine house.

There was a big splash and a little scream. Chris come runnin' out on the bank.

"Did it strike you?" he says, with more excitement in his voice than I had ever heard before.

"No," says Miss Delia Dumont, holdin' her handkerchief to her face, "it only splashed mud and slime on my clean white linen. And I suppose the curl has all come out of my hair and my face is wet and dirty. No, it didn't strike me," she repeats. "Aren't you sorry that it didn't?"

"Why, no," says Chris, and there was laughter in his voice now. "Why should I want to hurt you?"

"Because," she says, "that seems to have been your sole aim in life durin' the last week—that, and makin' me ridiculous. I want you to know that I have not forgotten your failure to accept my apology when I tried to remove your saddle and got it all scarred up. I shall never forget your rudeness when I asked you to dance with me."

"I couldn't stand my partner up, could I?" asks Chris, innocent. "I asked you to try me again," he says. "And, besides, Lawson was there. He's one of your gallant scouts."

"Yes, he is," she says, "but I sacrificed his friendship in dancin' with you afterward. He said if I had had one ounce of independence I would not have done it."

"Well, I don't know that you would," says Chris, thoughtful.

At that she boiled over.

"You brute!" she says quick and furious. "You are the most inspitin' man I've ever known. All the rest have seemed to want to please me. I'll tell you why I danced with you, though I scorned to tell Lawson. It was because Eve asked me to overlook your—peculiarities."

The way she said that last word made old Chris wince a little.

"She told me you practically owned this ranch and had been backin' Ed all this time; that without your money it could not run. She is afraid to cross you, but I'm not. Because you are good lookin' and conceited you believe all women are attracted to you."

"And now you've told me what I am and what I think," says Chris, cool and calm, "maybe you'll tell me how you happened to come down to the engine house this mornin'."

"I was leavin' today," she says, "and I could not go until I had seen you. I wanted to tell you that if this was my ranch you shouldn't stay on it a day; no, not an hour. I hate you. I loathe and detest you! You dog!"

But before she got the last word out he had her in his arms. He kept pushin' back the little curl that falls against her face and kissin' the spot beneath it.

"Why, you little cat!" he says delighted. "You have got a temper. Thank goodness you are not one of the spineless kind. This is all you lacked to make you perfect in my sight. I'd begun to despair of your havin' any spirit. I'd almost made up my mind I'd have to lose you, but now—now! Why, it's my ranch," he says, "and you shall stay on it—always!"

She was strugglin' hard to git away from him.

"You beauty!" he says, low and caressin'. "You darlin'! My, how I can love you!"

He kept holdin' her that way and kissin' her face and hair because she would not give him her lips.

"Stop!" she says at last. "Stop holdin' my arms this minute."

There was somethin' in her tone that made him let her go and step back a little. I expect he thought she was goin' to slap his face—I did.

I'm goin' to tell you what she done.

She puts her arms around his neck and holds up her lips to be kissed.

I hear him draw a sharp breath.

"You old dog!" she says when he gives her a chance to speak.

Funny what a difference that word "old" made!

The Farce.

Farce is a modern term founded on the Latin verb facire, to stuff. This was originally an allusion to the practice of the ancient buffoons padding out their stage dress to abnormal dimensions. Later the padding was dispensed with, but the wide garments were retained.

AN EDITORIAL may stimulate thought. It may arouse men to action—but usually its value lies principally in its ability to entertain—to inform on general or specific questions.

¶ An advertisement—nine out of ten times—contains more information than an editorial, and in addition answers either a social or an economic question.

¶ There is only one way for the readers of any paper to keep the advertising news up to date, and that is to patronize the firms who use the columns of the paper.

ANOTHER TRIAL WITH OIL TO KEEP DOWN THE DUST

City Engineer Recommends Its Use — Says it is not an Experiment as Other Progressive Cities Have Adopted This Plan

It appears as though the days of street watering are over. The dust will in all probability be overcome this year by oil, but the citizens who clearly recall the experience this city had a few years ago with road oil need not become alarmed as the oil contains nothing injurious to auto tires. The matter came up at the Board of Works meeting last night and after a couple of hours was given to talking about it, a paint and oil company was asked to forward samples and the city engineer authorized to write the city engineers in Orillia, Brantford and London and secure their view on the matter. The replies to the engineer's request and the matter itself will be gone into more thoroughly at the next meeting of the Board.

At last night's meeting the following report was submitted:—

To the chairman and members of the Board of Works.

Gentlemen:—I would call your attention to the advantages of the use of road oil as a dust layer in place of water. Briefly they are as follows:

About two applications per season are all that are required.

A number of expensive sprinklers are not required. An ordinary sprinkler can be converted into a machine for applying oil for about $160. Only one or two machines would be necessary.

Oil can be applied to hilly streets which are almost impossible to water.

With oil there are not certain periods of the day when the streets are dried out and dusty as there are with water.

The oil forms a coating over the surface of the road making it nearly water tight, and greatly helping to prolong its life. In my opinion this is a great advantage. As we all know the action of water is exactly the reverse of this.

The cost of oil will probably be higher the first year than water, but afterward it will be a little less, owing to less oil being needed.

Our appropriation for street sprinkling is $6000. $1000 of this will be needed to sprinkle the central section and for alterations to the sprinklers, etc.

I estimate that for $5000 about 14 miles of street can be oiled for one season. Last year we sprinkled about 17 miles, exclusive of the central district. In order to keep within our appropriation it will be necessary to cut off about three miles of street that was sprinkled last year. Next year this could be added on and perhaps more, due to the lower cost of oiling the second and subsequent years.

I would strongly recommend the use of oil on our streets. It is not an experiment as it is being adopted by all progressive cities.

Yours truly,
R. H. Parsons,
City Engineer.

A representative of a Toronto oil company gave a lengthy talk on street oil. The oil he recommended for Peterborough would be forty per cent. asphalt oil and worth 6½ cents per gallon. If the mixture is sixty per cent. asphaltic oil it is worth 7 cents per gallon.

The oil found in Canada can supply but one-fifth of the demand, hence four-fifths must be imported. The oil imported is of a better quality than found in Canada. The latter contained a great quantity of sulphur and the sulphur together with acids used to overcome the sulphur is what ruins rubber tires. The oil Mr. Parsons recommended would not in any way affect the tires of autos or any other vehicle. It is also practically odorless.

As yet no oil has been found which can be used on asphaltic pavements. Fifth Avenue, New York City, may appear as though it is oiled but in reality it is but the oil which drops from autos. The celebrated thoroughfare where Dame Fashion reigns supreme is entirely free from dust.

"We had one experience," remarked Ald. Green, "and if we had another we want it to be successful."

California Orange Day

An annual event in California during this month is held on March 20th, and is known as California Orange Day, the slogan on this particular day is "Eat California Oranges," and it is not only celebrated in the Golden State, but many of the Eastern Railways feature it by placing special orange dishes on the menus of their dining cars, with a reference to California.

On March 20th this year, the Grand Trunk will have special dishes featured of this description on all their dining cars.

IS PRESIDENT OF RIFLE ASSOCIATION

OTTAWA, March 12. — Lt.-Col. A. P. Sherwood was elected president at the annual meeting of the Dominion Rifle Association yesterday in succession to the late Col. Burland of Montreal. No action was taken regarding the holding of the D.R.A. meet this year and it will be decided by the executive, but there will probably be no meet.

Col. A. E. D. Labelle of Montreal was elected chairman of council and Lt.-Col. W. P. Anderson of Ottawa chairman of executive. Col. W. C. MacDonald of Toronto was elected vice-president for Ontario.

Major R. J. Birdwhistle of Ottawa was re-elected secretary and Major E. D. Sutherland of Ottawa as treasurer.

In an address on target shooting and its benefits, Major-General Hughes said the thirteen Canadian regiments at the front were better shooting regiments than any other thirteen in the world.

Regarding the Ross rifle he cited as proof that it is all right the fact that the government was negotiating for a million, the British Government taking 500 and the Canadian 200 a day.

Has Telephone Asks for Charity

The Lindsay Warder says:—A certain woman, who, according to reports, has been living upon the benevolence of the citizens for years, will be forced to desist from such a course when the proper warrants of commitment are gotten out; then, in all probability, a charge of indigency will be placed against her.

The case is a difficult one for the police to deal with, who wish to stop the habit this woman has got into of soliciting relief from the citizens and council.

In her home she has a telephone, through which she communicates with those susceptible to her tale of woe, most of whom have become wearied listening to it. The sons claim they cannot support their mother, but this will be fully investigated.

GUARANTEE OF FIVE YEARS TO BE GIVEN

Wm. J. Heardman, chief engineer for the Canadian Independent Telephone Co., the firm supplying cable for the fire alarm system to be installed in the city, was here today for the purpose of making an inspection of the conduits and to ascertain whether the company would be safe in complying with the proposition regarding bonding the line and protecting the cable against the action of electrolysis. Mr. Heardman went over the ground carefully, accompanied by Fire Chief Howard. He expressed himself as satisfied that a type of cable could be supplied that would afford complete satisfaction to the city, and Ald. Duffus, to whom he gave a report afterwards, said that he expected the contract would be signed up on Monday.

The city inserted a clause in the agreement asking that the company guarantee the cable for a period of five years, but on first inspection the company deemed this a rather rigid clause. Before agreeing, they desired to look over the fire alarm system for which the cable was required. Under the conditions as he found them here he anticipated no trouble from electrolysis, by which is meant the action of certain electric currents which emanate from the street railway rails and affect any metallic substance in their vicinity, such as water mains, etc.

Saturday Specials and the Last Day of Our Five-Day Dress Goods Sale

The Dress Goods Department during the last four days has seen the biggest selling of its history. Those who have usually left dress goods buying till later in the season have eagerly purchased from our new fabrics, and not only have secured the latest in weaves and colors, but made a big saving, as all our new lines were purchased at old prices and passed into stock before the new duty went into effect. This taken into consideration along with the fact that it is impossible to secure repeat orders on any lines on account of the great scarcity of wool and dyeing materials, makes early choosing necessary before present stocks are exhausted. Visit the department Saturday.

THE QUEEN MARY HOSPITAL FOUR YEARS OLD TODAY

Two Hundred Patients Have Been Received for Treatment

BOARD OF HEALTH VISIT INSTITUTION

Four years ago today, the Queen Mary Hospital, better known as the Isolation Hospital, was formally opened by admitting the first patient. Since that date over 200 patients have been treated there and citizens are surely unanimous in the opinion that many a life has been saved through proper precaution having been taken to fight disease. The hospital has also been instrumental in helping the authorities to successfully overcome threatening epidemics, as was evidenced a few months ago when diphtheria was quite prevalent. At the opening Miss Bertha M. Mowry was appointed matron, which duties she has capably carried out during the four years. Since the date of assuming charge of the institution Miss Mowry has been most careful in her work.

Visit From Board.

On the adjournment of the Board of Health yesterday afternoon the Board, consisting of Chairman Dr Amys, Dr. McPherson, M.H.O., His Worship Mayor Buller, ex-Ald. Geo. Duncan and James Murty, accompanied by a Review reporter, made a tour of inspection of the hospital. Some weeks ago the Board of Health decided that the building was in much need of a thorough painting and also considerable new flooring. Contracts were let for the work, and yesterday the members took occasion to look it over.

In almost every particular thorough satisfaction was expressed. The basement, part of which is fitted up as living rooms for the janitor and his wife, was greatly improved in appearances by the walls being painted white. The ground floor had never been suitably painted, hence the change was quite evident and much needed. The Board has long been aware of the fact that the concrete floor in the hall did not assist much in keeping the other floors of the building clean. To overcome this the Board has decided to have the concrete floor painted. The chairman has not secured a suitable kind as yet.

The upper floors of the building were transformed from a dark, dusty and uninviting-looking set of rooms to what Mayor Buller called "a real home." Duncan Bros. have executed the work of repainting in a manner that bespeaks very highly for their firm. Aided by the matron the painters were able to repaint the rooms artistically, all the rooms and halls being of the proper shade. The members of the Board were eulogistic when speaking of the change in the general appearance of the institution, the good taste of the matron being particularly mentioned.

As regards to the hardwood flooring which has been laid by J. Revor the material itself was satisfactory, but the members thought it was not laid quite closely enough. The chairman pointed out, however, that the floor will expand on a little rise in temperature, thus it will be satisfactory once the summer sets in.

When the members of the Board arrived at the hospital, Miss Mowry was found using a little of the contractors' varnish to brighten the appearance of some of the chairs. Mayor Buller expressed the hope that she "would steal enough to make up for the extra cost." At present there are four patients in the hospital, one with scarlet fever and three with diphtheria.

MAY EXCEED ESTIMATES

Operations on Outfall Sewer Are Costly

That the system of changing men every two weeks on the outfall sewer is costing the city a great deal more than if a steady gang of good laborers was kept on, was made known to the meeting of the board of works by City Engineer Parsons last night. The city engine restated that the result might be that the estimates will be exceeded. He made the estimated cost as $72,000 a year ago, but did not think he should be held responsible for the estimates being exceeded when he could not choose the best labor.

Mayor Buller said the work was commenced to help the unemployed, and if it ceases to do that the work should be shut down.

Ald. Green thought Mr. Parsons acted wisely in reporting the matter to the board. The work is in the chairman's opinion costing more under existing conditions, and whether the Council thought that was too much or not he desired to learn.

The general feeling of the board was that the work should be continued as it is now being performed.

Death from cerebro-spinal fever—Pte. Wm. Arnold, 22nd Batt.

Fire in Court House.

MONTREAL, March 12.—A blaze which caused the calling out of all the fire-fighting force of the city broke out yesterday afternoon in the court house. For half an hour the flames spread in an alarming fashion, but were finally checked. The fire started in that portion of the building occupied by the judges, most of whom were in their rooms at the time. Choked by the smoke many of them collected their more important papers and rushed with them to the street.

Patrick Gleason, a messenger, was found unconscious in one of the corridors and, after partially reviving, died later in the Notre Dame Hospital as a result of shock.

Young Woman Burned To Death.

ST. THOMAS, March 12.—Hettie Bigelow, aged 22, of Port Burwell was burned to death yesterday morning when the house of her parents was destroyed by fire. The young woman was alone in the house at the time.

RESIDENTS OF LONDON STREET MAKE COMPLAINT

At the Board of Health meeting yesterday afternoon complaints were again received from the neighbors around 137 London St. The complainants claimed the house to be in an unsanitary condition. Mayor Buller remarked that he thought it about time the Board would investigate the house in question and suggested that if any more complaints be received, that the Board visit the premises. Dr. McPherson suggested that the complaints should not be general but should contain the direct cause of complaint.

Mayor Buller voiced similar sentiments remarking how there is a possibility of the neighbors complaining simply because the house in question is a trifle old. His Worship asked Sanitary Inspector Spence if the idea of the Board visiting the premises met his approval.

"You might meet unsanitary conditions," remarked Mr. Spence, "and pass over them."

"Yes, and you might carry things to the extreme," flung back His Worship.

CHOSEN FRIENDS HAD GOOD TIME

The local council, Canadian Order of Chosen Friends, had a splendid turnout of members and friends to the social evening in the Sons of England Hall last night. Mr. Robert Harrison was chairman.

The gathering was graced by the presence of Mr. J. L. Davidson, Grand Representative and member of the executive, whose address pleased everyone.

BETTER AN EYEGLASS THAN A GLASS EYE

"Putting it off till tomorrow" is neither wisdom nor economy where the safety of your eyes is concerned. Little eye troubles lead to big ones, usually, unless steps to correct them are taken. By means of scientific instruments we can tell you whether glasses will do much or little for you. Even if you do not need glasses, our assurance is worth vastly more than the time required to be examined. Why not be sure that your eyesight is safe?

PLACARD WAS DESTROYED.

In a letter to his sister in England a young French officer on service in the neighborhood of St. Mihiel, recently promoted for gallantry on the field of battle, tells this story:—

"The Germans could think of nothing better to do a few days ago than to put on the walls of their barracks at —— a large placard of white calico, on which was written:—

"Merci a la brave France—haine a l'Angleterre." Our trenches are from 60 to 90 metres from those of the "Boches" and with glasses it was easy to read the placard. In the evening I was on patrol with three good fellows of my half section, and we crawled towards the German lines till we were within twenty-five metres or so; and we hid ourselves in a big hole made by a shell.

I said to my men: "I have given you socks, gloves, cigarettes and other things. You know where they came from — they were sent from England. I want to see no more of that placard. Let us do away with it. We have our arms; let us put some shots through and destroy it.

The thing was done. I gave the order to fire, and in three minutes only some shreds of the stuff remained. The worst of it was that our fire provoked a terrible fusilade along the whole length of the line. We dropped into the shell hole and waited till the firing had finished—about half an hour and then we regained our own trenches. My lieutenant greeted me with "so it was you who started that fusilade?" And when I said "Yes" he asked what for. I explained that I was half English, having married an English woman, and added that I wanted to see no more of a placard which referred to that nation in such terms. He "chipped" me for a bit but when we were relieved the story was told to the captain, who passed it on to the colonel. The end of it all was a promise of my stripes as under lieutenant.

AN INCIDENT OF THE WAR.

In a Neuchatel (Suisse) paper quoted in the Journal des Debats, the following appears over the signature of Dr. Vouga:—

"This is an instance which, if necessary, I can swear to. 'Being at Besancon I saw in one of the wards of the hospital of St. Jacque a little French soldier of twenty-two who attracted my attention owing to the curious bandaging of his head.'" (The doctor goes on to give a detailed account, too long and too horrible to quote here, of the injuries received in the head and face by the victim after he had been rendered unable to move by a wound in the thigh. These were effected by the butt-ends of the guns of a regiment hailing from Baden. In the same action thirty-four comrades of the infantryman were picked up, each with a bullet in the head over and above the wounds which laid them low). "As I left, adds the doctor, I said to the little martyred soldier: 'You must hate the brigands.' 'No, sir,' said he, 'we mustn't be hard on them, they belong to a different race from us.'"

NOTICE REGARDING SEWER.

At the Board of Works meeting last night it was resolved that notice be given of the intention of the council to construct sewers as local improvements, upon the recommendation of the local Board of Health, on Bethune St. from Smith St. to Aberdeen, on Aberdeen from Bethune St to the Chemong Road and on the Chemong Road to the intersection of Sterawt and Reid St. and on Ware St. from Lock St to Haggart St.

THE WONDERS OF JAVA ONCE A MIGHTY EMPIRE

A Glimpse of the Most Beautiful Island in the World—Only the Architectural Ruins of Its Ancient Civilization Now Remain—Its Royal Prisoners and the National Sport of Tiger Fighting

The island of Java has been called by more than one traveler the most beautiful island in the world. It is in shape much like Cuba. It is long and narrow, about 700 miles one way and less than 100 the other. Some of the mountains are 10,000 or 12,000 feet high but there are no snow clad peaks. They are all clothed to the summit with the richest tropical vegetation, for they are almost directly under the equator. There are at least thirty or forty volcanoes in the island, many of them still active.

The island is controlled by the Dutch. About the time the pilgrim fathers sailed from Holland to land on Plymouth rock another expedition from the same country carried the Dutch flag to the other side of the world, and Dutch governors have ruled in Java for about 300 years. But the remarkable architectural remains in the interior bear testimony to the extinct civilization of a mighty empire once enthroned upon this island and of an ancient religion that was supplanted by Buddhism.

Although the Dutch are complete masters, there are still native rulers left in the island, emperor and sultan, who are allowed to retain their lofty titles and live surrounded with an imperial etiquette, although they are in reality little better than state prisoners.

The emperor lives in his "kraton," a large inclosure in which is the palace. Before the palace stretches the so called "Alon-Alon," a broad, open space, often flanked on one side by a mosque, and this is the arena for the tiger fights, which are the favorite diversion of monarch and subject alike.

For these combats hunters trap tigers in the mountains—magnificent beasts, not born in a cage and half subdued by long confinement, but real kings of the forest, caught full grown and with their strength increased by rage at their captivity.

Sometimes the fight is with a bull or a buffalo, but more often with trained fighters of the human race, and a striking peculiarity of the combat is that not infrequently the onlookers themselves are forced to take part in the performance.

Within the "Alon-Alon" a great square or ring is marked off, and along its sides the mass of the spectators take their places, the men armed with spears of different lengths. Those with the shorter spears kneel in the front rank, while those with the longer weapons stand behind them, so that together they present a close hedge of bristling spear points.

If the tiger tries to break through the ring of spectators he must, if the spears are firmly held, impale himself on either the longer or the shorter ones, while the men on either side can easily run him through with their lances. That means that each individual in the wide circle must be dexterous in the use of the spear and also know something about the habits and disposition of the tiger.

The leading role is naturally taken by professional tiger fighters. The big wooden cage in which the fierce beast has been confined is dragged into the middle of the great arena, and as it is opened an unarmed and unshielded fighter advances toward it and with a certain measure of ceremony and even of politeness challenges the tiger to come forth.

Suddenly realizing its freedom, the beast usually starts in wild flight toward the ring of spectators, only to halt before the impenetrable array of gleaming spears. From side to side of the ring it bounds, always met by the same impassable barrier, until finally the real tiger fighters, each armed only with a lance, enter the ring. Usually there are two or three, but only fighters of the first rank dare to encounter the enraged animal unsupported and alone.

They watch the moment in which the tiger crouches for its spring and kneel low, with a tense grasp of the spear, which they point toward the tiger in such a manner that he cannot help impaling himself on it. Besides the courage that the moment calls for, the vaunted skill and daring of the Spanish toreador are the veriest child's play, for the charge of the great beast may be so fierce that it knocks the lance aside, and then there is nothing but the spears of the other men to save the tiger fighter from being killed and mangled by the angry creature.—Youth's Companion.

When Pencils Were Treasures.

It is not easy nowadays to find a lead pencil that is not too old at forty—as it were. In the early days of lead pencils the produce of the Borrowdale mine was deemed so valuable that strong guards of soldiers were engaged for its protection, and a special act of parliament was passed penalizing illicit traffic in plumbago, which then realized from 3 shillings to 5 shillings an ounce. Although the miners were stripped and carefully searched when leaving off work, they managed to smuggle a good deal of produce out of the mine.—London Spectator.

Latest Quotations in Grain, Dairy Products, Live Stock, Etc.

CHICAGO, March 11.—Wheat swayed in price today largely according to the varying character of cable reports, especially the course of quotations at Liverpool. The close here was weak at 1-8c decline to 3-4c advance, compared with last night. Other leading staples all showed net gains—corn a shade to 1-4c, oats 5-8c to 3-4c and provisions 2 1-2c to 12 1-2c.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE

TORONTO, March 11.—Quotations on the Board of Trade are as follows:

Manitoba wheat—No. 1 northern, $1.61½, lake ports; No. 2, $1.60½; No. 3, $1.57½; ½c per bushel more on track, Goderich.

Manitoba oats—No. 2 C.W., 70c; No. 3 C.W., 67½c, track, bay ports; No. 1 feed, 67 sample oats, 66½c.

Ontario oats—Outside, 58c to 62c.

Ontario wheat—No. 2, per car lot, $1.40 to $1.45, outside.

American corn—No. 3 yellow, all-rail shipments, Toronto freights, 80½c.

Peas—No. 2, $2 to $2.05, car lots, outside, nominal.

Rye—No. 2, $1.23 to $1.25.

Barley—Good malting barley, outside, 85c to 88c.

Rolled oats—Car lots, per bag of 90 lbs., $3.55; in smaller lots, $3.75, Windsor to Montreal.

Millfeed—Car lots, per ton: Bran, $27; shorts, $29; middlings, $34; good feed flour, $39 to $43.

Buckwheat—82c to 83c, car lots, outside.

Manitoba flour—First patents, $7.70 in jute bags; second patents, $7.20 in jute bags; strong bakers', $7; in cotton bags, 10c more.

Cornmeal—Yellow, 98-lb. sacks, in car lots, $2.30; small lots, $2.50.

WINNIPEG GRAIN MARKET.

WINNIPEG, March 11.—Both May and July wheat were ½c lower at the opening, and declined slightly further early in the trading. There was a sharp advance later owing to a good cash demand and some export business, it was claimed, being worked on the break. Previous to noon May wheat had a range from $1.47 to $1.50⅝, July from $1.48⅛ to $1.50⅜ and October from $1.14⅛ to $1.15⅛.

Inspections Wednesday were 199 cars, as against 298 last year, and in sight today 260 cars.

Wheat futures closed ⅛c to 1c higher, flax 1c higher on all contract grades, oats ⅛c higher and flax 4½c to 5½c higher.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 11.—Owing to the continued excited condition of the wheat markets on this side and the wide fluctuations in prices, there is no improvement in the demand from foreign buyers for Manitoba spring wheat and the market is dull. The local and country trade in coarse grains is also slow, but the tone of the market is firm and prices show no change. Flour continues quiet for both export and domestic account. Demand for millfeed is fair, of which supplies are ample to fill all requirements.

There is no change in butter, for which the demand is fair.

On account of the large arrivals of eggs the market is much weaker and prices have scored a further decline of 4c per dozen, with a fairly active trade doing.

MINNEAPOLIS GRAIN MARKET.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 11.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.49⅝; No. 1 northern, $1.45⅝ to $1.48⅝; No. 2 do., $1.41⅝ to $1.46⅝; May, $1.43⅝; July, $1.33⅝.

Corn—No. 3 yellow, 67⅝c to 68¼c.

Oats—No. 3 white, 54⅝c to 55⅜c.

Flour—Fancy patents, $7.50; first clears, $6.10; second clears, $4.80.

Bran—Unchanged.

DULUTH GRAIN MARKET.

DULUTH, March 11.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, $1.51¼; No. 1 northern, $1.50⅜; No. 2 northern, $1.43⅝; May, $1.47¼; July, $1.47½.

BLUFF, Utah, March 12.—Twenty deputies sent by U. S. Marshal Nebeker to a ranch near here, fought and won a skirmish with a band of Piute Indians, the deputies reported to Nebeker. The deputies fought to save a party of three men, two women and several children who had taken refuge in a ranch house while fleeing to Bluff.

RETREATING IN THE NORTH

Germans are Fighting Stubborn Rearguard Action

LONDON, March 12.—The battles in northern France are small affairs in comparison with the battles which are in progress in North Poland, between the Niemen and Vistula rivers. The Germans apparently are falling back in the north, but are fighting a rear guard action, which has reached the importance of a pitched battle and are taking a few prisoners with them.

The Germans are again in Augustowo forest, on the East Prussian border, which has been the burial place of so many German and Russian soldiers. The Germans have brought up new guns, but of a lighter calibre, to bombard Ossowiec.

The battle on the roads from Chorzell to Przasnysz, along which the Germans hope to reach and pierce the Russian fortress line, continues.

The weather having turned colder, the ground in North Poland has hardened, which will greatly facilitate the movement of troops. This is said to be the first time in history that the weather has favored an army attempting to invade Russia.

The regrouping of forces, not merely by the redisposition of units, but by the shuffling of component parts, is being practiced in Poland by the Germans to an extent hitherto unknown in warfare, unless after serious defeats. One column, for example, consists of odd battalions from eight different regiments. By means of this regrouping and the rapid train transit, the Germans have again put strong forces upon the Chorzell-Przasnysz line which was advancing along the Orjitz river. That is the same route east of Przasnysz as was taken by previous attacks upon that important junction. From all information received, it now appears that the Germans, hoping to secure Ossowiec, are preparing operations north of the Lower Vistula, based upon the fortress of Thorn. Unless and until the Ossowiec fortress is destroyed, however, these operations must hang rather in the air.

The change of seasons is stagnating all operations in the Carpathians as regards the covering of considerable ground. Although the shocks of collisions continue in the passes with each new division that the Austrians put in front of their columns. The Cossacks have captured the general who was the commandant at Stanislau during the Austrian occupation. He signed 200 hundred death sentences during the four days of his term of office.

Though military operations in France and Belgium are impeded by the breaking up of the winter season, accompanied by foggy weather, fighting still goes on. For the first time in about two months the British coast flotilla of monitors and destroyers has become active again, and yesterday it bombarded Westende, in Belgium, which the French War Office reports was done successfully. Westende is a small summer resort about seven miles south of Ostend, and is in the direct line of advance on that coast town. Here the Germans have been active in erecting fortifications and batteries, but they have been considerably impeded in their operations by the activity of the aerial squadrons of the allies.

The Germans attempted yesterday by two strong attacks to drive the British-Indian and the first army corps out of Neuve Chapelle, which they captured Wednesday, but the British were prepared for them and drove them back with heavy losses.

French troops in the sector of Ypres defeated two German attacks yesterday.

In the face of a stubborn resistance the French troops made an appreciable advance in the woods west of Perthes, where they gained a footing several days ago. The new French lines were subjected to a violent bombardment and violent counter attacks.

In the battles about Four de Paris and Bolante, in the Argonne, the French captured a mine-thrower and a machine gun.

France Sequestrating Alien Wealth.

PARIS, March 12.—Aristide Briand, Minister of Justice, in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday, told of the sequestration of the property of Austrians and Germans by the Government, a fear having been expressed by several deputies that the law was not broad enough. M. Briand defended the idea of sequestration and the measures that had been taken by the Government in the premises.

He added that a total of 8,000 Austrian and German houses had been sequestered up to date.

WARNS BRITAIN

Germany Threatens to Retaliate With Prisoners

BERLIN, March 12.—(Via London.)—In naval circles it is declared that a searching investigation will be instituted into the report that the British Admiralty intends to withhold the customary honorable imprisonment conditions from German submarine crews made captives, and that if Great Britain places such Germans under special restrictions, retaliatory measures may be adopted.

The navy officials say the investigation will not be made through diplomatic channels, but decline to specify how their information will be gleaned. They claim that should Great Britain take the action she contemplates this will not affect the submarine war plans in the slightest particular, nor have any influence on the spirit of the crews.

MAJOR HIGINBOTHAM DEAD.

Had Gastritis and Was Taken Too Late From the Trenches.

TORONTO, March 12.—A cable message from Dr. Donald Armour, chief of the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliffe, England, yesterday morning, announced the death of Major George Higinbotham, a well-known soldier, sportsman and business man of this city.

Major Higinbotham died at the Queen's Canadian Military Hospital at Shorncliffe, England, in charge of Dr. Donald Armour. It is located about a mile or so from Folkestone, where the second contingent of the first Canadian expeditionary force is now encamped.

The major, in command of a detachment of the Q.O.R., went over to France with the first of the Canadian troops and insisted in getting into the trenches.

"I understand that he was in the trenches for some days, but that he eventually had to be removed on account of the aggravation of gastritis, from which he was suffering," said C. A. B. Brown, of Toronto, a lifelong friend.

Anarchists Rejuvenated.

NEW YORK, March 13.—The release from Blackwell's Island of Frank Tannenbaum, the young I. W. W. agitator who a year ago led an army of malcontents into several churches was the signal for a remarkable rejuvenation of the anarchist movement in this city. It included a demonstration upon his arrival in Manhattan and the production of a daring "skit" Wednesday night, in which city officials and the police were burlesqued.

The following history of a STRAIGHT LIFE POLICY with profits reserved for 20 years is interesting:

Pol. No. 27619. Amount: $1000. Premium $20.95. Age, 30

Total premiums paid from 1st February, 1890, to February, 1910 (20 years) $419.00

The premiums were then permanently reduced by the accumulated profits to $10.20 per year; this he paid for the past five years .. 51.00

The Lance in Warfare.

The German authorities obviously believe in the lance. The uhlan regiments are carrying it, and their battle equipment is certainly formidable, for in addition to the lance they have a carbine and a saber, which is slung on the saddle. The trend of military opinion is to regard cavalry merely as mounted infantry.

UNIVERSITY OF TORONTO JUNIOR O.H.A. CHAMPIONS

Defeated Berlin Union Jacks Last Night by 9-4 — Was Better Game Than the Senior O.H.A. Finals

Toronto, March 12.—By a wonderful burst of speed in the last period, combined with some of the most effective and brilliantly executed team play seen at the Arena in a long time, University of Toronto juniors last night won the O.H.A. championship by five goals on the round from Berlin Union Jacks. Last night's score was 9 to 4 in favor of the Blue and White, while the game at Berlin on Tuesday was a seven-all tie.

Close to five thousand people (4,776, official) saw the game, which was perhaps one of the few extra good contests this season at the Arena. Certainly, it was better than either of the two games between Victorias and St. Michael's for the O. H. A. senior title. There was everything which goes up to make good hockey. The players on both teams checked hard, both forward lines played splendid combination, especially the winners, and the defence work of both teams was high-grade.

The entire U. of T. team were not up to their game in the first two periods. The combination and team play which characterised their group game was missing. However, they showed the spectators some passing and cleverness which has not been excelled in the senior ranks. The U. of T. defence was good throughout and also rushed well, while Malone did not let any easy ones get by. Saunders, Smythe and Stratton played only in spasms until the final period.

In the second period there was a repetition of the St. Michael's-Victoria second game, as far as body-checking was concerned. Both teams stood up and exchanged bump for bump, and the result was two tired teams when they left the ice at the end of the second twenty minutes. The teams:—

Univ. of Toronto—Goal, Malone; defence, Ramsay and Sheldon; rover, Gouinlock; centre, Smythe (captain); left wing, Saunders; right wing, Stratton.

Union Jacks—Goal, Berner; defence, Erb and Karges; rover, White (captain); centre, Shirk; left wing, Schnarr; right wing, Krug.

Referee—O. Bernhardt of Brantford.

CUP FOR COMPETITION IN RIFLE SHOOTING

The management of the Empress Hotel has donated the "Empress Hotel Cup," to be presented to the member of the Home Guard who is the best shot. The donating of the cup followed an argument on the matter in the hotel rotunda the other evening. The contest for the cup began at the Allies' shooting gallary last evening and will be continued for three weeks. The rules are to gan at the Allies' shooting gallery while the trophy is on exhibition in the Empress Hotel.

Gen. Carranza ought to se those Havana fight promoters for telling Jack Johnson what they did about him.

Sock and Buskin.

The expression "sock and buskin" (comedy and tragedy) had its origin in the soccus, the Latin name of the low shoe worn by the ancient comic actors; and the buskin, a contraction of the French word brodequin, remotely derived from the Greek bursa, a hide, or high soled shoe, worn by the ancient tragedians to increase their height. The soccus reached only to the ankle, the buskin to the knee.

CROWD HOOTED TWO CHAMPIONS

Terrible Exhibition by Willie Ritchie and Freddie Welsh

New York, March 12. — Freddie Welsh and Willie Ritchie fought the tamest ten-round fight ever seen in New York last night. It was a terrible exhibition for two champions, and at the end it was almost impossible to pick a winner. It was really a no-decision contest. Ritchie did all the forcing, and if it came right down to a fine point he deserved a shade.

Welsh blocked most of his offerings, but landed the cleanest blows of the bout, few as they were. Ritchie showed that he lacked work, and had he had a few fights under his belt since he lost his title last July in London he would have given Welsh an artistic trimming. The crowd hooted and boo-ed the men continually.

CURLING

(Bobcaygeon Independent.)

The annual visit by the Peterborough curlers took place on Tuesday, and four rinks of the city sports arrived by special car, on the noon train. A friendly game was played in the afternoon, resulting in a victory for Peterborough by 8 points. The following were the skips and scores:—

Peterborough.		Bobcaygeon.
H. F. Foote	13	R. J. Green	5
W. Campbell	6	D. Hetherington	16
R. Neill	16	M. Mark	3
Geo. Boucher	12	R. Nichols	15
	47		39

In the evening the return game for the Fitzgerald-Bottum Shield was played with the following skips and

Peterborough.		Bobcaygeon.
R. Neil	5	D. Hetherington	17
W. Campbell	22	R. Nichols	5
W. Thompson	15	B. Walker	15
J. Fitzgerald	12	W. Davis	14
	54		51

This gave Peterborough a majority of 3, but as Bobcaygeon in the games at Peterborough, had a majority of 11 Bobcaygeon were hailed as the winners with a majority of eight.

The visitors were entertained to refreshments at the Rockland, and a few brief speeches were made, and the Peterborough men having brought the Shield with them handed it over to the care of Bobcaygeon. One of the many humorous features of the evening was the presentation by Mr. Murphy of Peterborough, of four Iron Crosses to Richard Nichol's rink for the gallant efforts they had made to assist Peterborough in retaining the Shield.

WILL SCOTT WINS WELTERWEIGHT CHAMPIONSHIP OF GUELPH COLLEGE

Word has reached the city that Will Scott, a pupil of the wrestling class at the local Y.M.C.A., who is attending the Guelph Agricultural College, succeeded last Saturday in winning the welterweight championship of the college and of getting into the finals in the heavyweight class. Scott did not enter in the middleweight which he might have won, owing to the fact that one of his chums was entered in that class and he did not want to have to compete against him.

There were only two entries in the welterweight class. Scott won this bout easily. In the heavyweight class there were six entries including Clare, who recently won the championship of Toronto University in bouts in Toronto. In this class Clare first defeated a considerably heavier man named Evans. Scott then wrestled against a fellow named Young, a former college champion. Scott defeated Young. Another bout in the heavy weight was one by Dempsey. In the semi-finals Clare defeated Dempsey and in the finals Clare got the decision from Scott. As Scott weighed only 144 pounds his success in making such a good showing in the heavyweight class is most creditable. Scott learned practically all he knows about wrestling in the class of the local Y.M.C.A.

Charge Joe Moinse With Attempt to Defraud

TORONTO, March 12.—At a meeting of the Ontario Hockey Association executive yesterday it was decided to have information laid at Peterborough and a warrant issued for the player known as Joe Moinse, who also played under the name of Tetrault with the Ontario professional team. He will be charged with attempt to defraud, and efforts will also be made to reach others concerned in his appearance in Peterborough, on a criminal charge of conspiracy.

The Peterorough intermediate club having offered no satisfactory explanation of the affair, its players and officers were suspended.

Oshawa, Good-Night.

As a result of complants of rowdyism and riotous behavior by Oshawa sympathizers during several seasons, it was decided that no more O. H. A. hockey should be played in that town until the association receives satisfactory assurance of the proper treatment of visiting teams.

Victorias Suspended.

The suspension of the Victorias for refusal to abide by the instructions of the association in the matter of the game at Melville, was formally confirmed, and they will be given an opportunity at the next meeting of the executive to show cause why the suspension should not be followed by expulsion. None of the officers of the club were able to attend yesterday's meeting, the others being in the west and President Gooch confined to his house from a recent automobile accident.

Inspection of Rinks.

At the suggestion of Mr. Macnab it was decided to approach the Provincial Government on the question of inspection of hockey rinks, particularly in places where the lack of local bylaws permits the erection of buildings that are dangerous. Mr. Macnab pointed out that four rinks had collapsed this winter under their burden of snow, and that many were built with inadequate exits, doors opening inwards, and other dangerous features. The necessity of changes will be pointed out in a circular to all O. H. A. clubs, so that rink owners may be ready by next season.

COMMENT

As You Like it

PETERBOROUGH has been suspended by the O. H. A. The foremost amateur organization of the age has seen fit to bar Peterborough from its ranks because the officers of the Peterborough club played what was alleged to be an out-and-out professional in the person of Joe Tetrault. Not only have the officers of the club been suspended, but also the intermediate players — James, Dwyer, Hunter, Pethick, Spratt, Halpin, Rose, Park, Kelly and Kennealley, are all barred from amateur sports. A warrant is to be issued for the arrest of Joe Tetrault, alias Joe Moinse, on the charge of attempt to defraud, and an effort will be made to reach officers of the club who have been connected with the affair, on the charge of conspiracy.

This step by the O. H. A. is a big one, but has been expected. All chances of "getting-away with it" were blown sky high when Tetrault turned out with the Ontarios. He had been up before the O. H. A. executive the week previous, and claimed to be Joe Moinse. He had taken affidavits to that effect and hardly knew where Montreal was. Then he steps out on Toronto ice under the name of Tetrault. Considering these facts we figure he might possibly squeeze out of the corner if he advances the same plea as Harry K. Thaw did. He certainly showed signs of possessing very little grey matter. As for the club, well, all its officers were experienced. They, or at least some of them, had been connected with the game for years, and no possible excuse on the grounds of "not knowing" will hold water. They took the chance and didn't get away with it—they pulled a bone, and now players, citizens and the city must suffer. There is but one bright side to the whole affair, and that is that the junior players are not suspended. The club's representative, Mr. R. M. Glover, was successful in having the O. H. A. keep the juniors within its fold. This is some consolation.

THE ALBERTAN, which rolls off a press in Calgary every morning, has a Sewell Ford on its staff. It is doubtful if the immortal Torchy ever came through with a more original spiel than the said writer on the western publication has in regard to the O. H. A. and Toronto Victorias squabble. He terms the protest as being "baby like," and says that "the mistake was made in the first place that some one disputed the idea that the Dominion of Canada was bounded on the west by the Humber river, and, as a result of the dispute, the Allan Cup took a journey out into the wilds of Western Canada. But mistakes will happen, and just to show how sorry we are out here about the tragedy, it has been unanimously decided to tell the O. H. A. to go to ——, why, go back to Ontario, of course. Honestly, it is awfully difficult to get serious about this thing. But it is apparent that the O. H. A. regards it as a serious matter, and, as the O. H. A. is made up considerably of Toronto, it must be so. Oh, yes, Toronto is the place where Tommy Church got elected. This action of the O. H. A. is just as funny as that, and we bet the secretary of the O. H. A. voted for Tommy Church."

PRESIDENT McCAFFERY of the Leafs has secured a first-baseman named Donaldson Graham from the Cincinnati Nationals. Graham was tipped off to the Leafs by Bob Fisher who was sold by Toronto to the Chicago Nationals last season. Toronto drafted the youngster from Roanoke of the Virginia League, but the Reds also put in a draft and secured him. Graham was in 117 games last season and batted .295. His fielding average was .893. The player will report to Toronto when the team gathers at Washington on April 3rd.

OSHAWA is to be deprived of O. H. A. hockey because of the disorderly conduct of the spectators. Such a ruling by the O. H. A. was expected by us for some time, and although drastic, it seems to be a correct one. Oshawa has long been considered a "bad town," and the step taken by the O. H. A. is the only one, in our opinion, to overcome the crude tactics of would-be "Ruf Neks."

THE STAR-NEWS produces the following: "While James McCaffery, who owns the Toronto International League baseball franchise and also operates the Bay Tree Hotel, Toronto, was passing a big fish market in lower New York, he saw a sign reading. 'If it swims, we sell it.' Mac went in and said, 'I want to buy Annette Kellerman.' "

JACK JOHNSON and Jess Willard will commence their bout at eleven o'clock in the morning on April 4th, according to Jack Curley.

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Mr. James K. Hopwood returned last night from a business trip to New York.

Mrs. L. Driver has been called to Toronto by the serious illness of her son, Mr. George Driver.

Mrs. (Dr.) Bruce Hewson of Toronto is in town, visiting Mrs. J. H. Renwick, 567 Aylmer Street.

Mr. Harry Cressman of the Cressman Co., Ltd., returned last night from a most successful buying trip at New York.

Mr. Cyril H. Devey, of Peterborough, will reside at the organ in St. Paul's Church next Sunday. Mr Devey is a talented young musician and comes here very highly recommended.—Port Hope Guide.

Friends of Mr. T. A. S. Hay, of the city engineering department, will be pleased to know that he was sufficiently convalescent to make a visit to the city engineer's office this morning. Mr. Hay is rapidly recovering from the effects of his recent serious operation.

The executive committee of the local Council of Women met Mrs. Willoughby Cummings in the drawing-rooms of the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday evening. This was an informal meeting for the discussion of various phases of work in which the Women's Council is interested, and much valuable detail was obtained from Mrs. Cummings, who is an authority on women's work in general. The large attendance of members of the executive committee and the intelligent interest shown in the questions asked was most gratifying to Mrs. Cummings, and to Mrs. Neal, president of the local Council of Women. The work of the council in the near future will undoubtedly reflect the stimulus of Mrs. Cumming's two meetings in Peterborough. A musical program contributed by members of the Morning Musical Club added to the pleasure of the evening. Mrs. Cummings and Mrs. Neal are now attending the meetings of the executive committee of the National Council in Ottawa.

GORDON—FISHER.

A very quiet but pretty wedding took place at "Fairview," the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Fisher, in the township of South Monaghan, on Wednesday, March 10th, at high noon, when their daughter, Elizabeth A., was united in marriage to Mr George H. Gordon of Sturgeon Falls, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. W. T. Wickett of Fraserville, in the presence of a company of the most immediate relatives.

Miss Mary Dawson, a cousin of the bride, presided at the organ, and not only played a popular wedding march but rendered choice selections during the signing of the register.

The presents were not only costly but very useful and certainly gave evidence of the popularity of the bride and the esteem in which she is held by her school mates and host of friends.

After all had partaken of a sumptuous wedding breakfast, the happy couple left amid showers of best wishes for Toronto, Woodstock and other points west, where they will spend a short honeymoon, after which they will reside in Sturgeon Falls, Ont.

Their many friends wish them a pleasant and smooth voyage over the sea of life, and every joy and prosperity in their new home.

The funeral took place in Toronto this afternoon of Mrs. John Green, formerly of this city. She passed away after a short illness from pneumonia at the home of Mr. Hillard Carnegie, in Toronto. Three sons and two daughters survive, namely: Charles, of Winnipeg, Geo., of Port Arthur, Lee, of Toledo, and Ethel, and Mrs. Carnegie, of Toronto.

TO DEMAND REPARATION

U.S. Cabinet Will Deal With Prinz Eithel Case To-day.

WASHINGTON, March 12.—President Wilson assumed active direction yesterday of the investigation into the sinking of the American ship William P. Frye by the Prinz Eitel Friedrich. The investigation has been conducted all day by the Treasury Department and a report is expected here to-day for the use of the President when he takes up the discussion of the case with his Cabinet. The President directed that the investigation be held so that he can have all the facts at his disposition before sending a demand for reparation to Germany

It was said in some quarters last night that Germany would probably anticipate this demand by forwarding an apology, together with a promise to make restitution to this Government. All of the evidence gathered by the Treasury Department will be whipped into shape for presentation to the President and his Cabinet.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British Ambassador, called at the State Department yesterday to inform Secretary Bryan that if the Prinz Eitel Friedrich was allowed to sail from Newport News he hoped that no persons belonging to neutral nations would be allowed to remain on board, because Great Britain did not want to be compelled to spill neutral blood. The intimation in this was that British warships would be waiting for the German ship outside the harbor and sink her at once.

The belief was prevalent here today that the Prinz Eitel Friedrich would be interned and would not leave Newport News for fear of meeting the British warships. This belief was strong, despite the assertion of the German warship commander that he intended to put to sea as soon as repairs are made. It is understood that his request that repairs be made to the ship will be granted by the Government.

OFF TO CAMP AT KINGSTON

Little Noise When Battery Men Departed

22 IN PARTY

Twenty-two gunners, in charge of Sergt. George Hetherington, made up the quota which left this morning at 8 o'clock via G.T.R. for Kingston, where the two batteries and ammunition column are being mobilized. The men, wearing civilian clothes, fell-in at the Armouries, at seven-thirty and a few minutes later commenced their march to the depot. They were in charge of Major Hall and were accompanied by the men of the 39th Battalion, commanded by Capt. Spencer. Major Hall had not notified Mayor Buller of the departure of the men, nor had the band been notified. The absence of the music made the send-off feel a trifle lukewarm but the men of the 39th Battalion livened things somewhat by rendering occasional selections. Major E. Layfield and Capt. Adjt. Kerr and Capt. J. Pilling were present on behalf of the Home Guard while Ald. J. J. Duffus represented the council.

The concert given last night by the men of the 39th Battalion in aid of the Canadian Kitchener League, in the Collegiate Institute assembly hall was a decided success. The cause, and the possible chance that it would be the last social evening the men would take part in before leaving for the front, prompted many of the soldiers' friends to be present. Needless to state all were highly pleased with the evening's program which was as follows:—

Opening selection — Saxaphone quartette—Salvation Army Band.
Song—Mr. Douglas Carlisle.
Recitation—Miss C. Black.
Humourous quartette—Hartshorn Brothers.
Drill by physical team under Sergt. Major Wilford.
Song—Private G. Lightheart.
Song—Miss M. Clancy.
Mandolin selections — Messrs. Cranfield Brothers.
Song—Mr. Lee.
"The Roll Call" — Comic sketch under Sgt. Dodds.
Comic song—Mr. C. Coleman.

Chief Howard made a splendid chairman while His Worship Mayor Buller and Mr. C. M. Meserve were also present and spoke a few words.

After the program was completed the ladies of the league served refreshments.

The 39th Battalion is now 125 at full strength. Four were received yesterday.

Sergt. F. T Hart of the 39th left this morning with the Battery men. He will proceed to Quebec to compete his armouries course Recruiting for the batteries and ammunition column is still being carried on. Another unit of men will likely leave for Kingston on Monday.

The officers of the 25th battery at Ottawa and the 26th at Kingston have been approved.

The officers of the 25th battery, Ottawa, are: Officer Commanding, Lt.-Col. Arnoldi; Captain, J. F. McParland; Lieutenants, W. Anderson, D. F Robertson.

For the 26th battery, Kingston: Officer Commanding, Major G. R. Hall, Peterborough; Captain, K. B. Carruthers; Lieutenants, C. O. Allen, E C. Elwood.

Ammunition Column: Officer Commanding, Capt. Wm. Harty, jr, Kingston: Lieutenants, A. E. Honeywell, A. W. Meikle, J. L. Goodwin.

It is published in the orders of the 14th guard that all men who have enlisted for overseas service, and who asked for their discharge, or, the same is claimed by a wife, that recruits shall pay to the government the sum of $15 if discharge is asked within three months. After three months, the recruit shall pay $2 for every month under one year. This is done to prevent men enlisting merely for the period of training and securing pay, rations, and in many cases separation allowance without any honest intention of being a part of the expeditionary force. This applies to the 21st Battalion and all overseas recruits.

MR. FRED WALKER NOW IN CHARGE

Well Known Grocery Man Now in Charge at The Gordon-Davies Store

The Gordon-Davies Co. have been fortunate enough to secure the services of Mr. Fred Walker who will have charge of the grocery department of this well known shopping centre. Mr. Walker needs no introduction to the buying public of this city as his long experience and ability in the grocery business has won for him a high reputation and the confidence of those who have had the pleasure of being served by him. The location of the Gordon-Davies store is a central one and while this has brought the organization some transient business, the steady and permanent patronage has been built up, not because of convenient location, but because the public has entire dependence upon it. There are handled here staple and fancy groceries and the lines that are shown meet the approval of particular people. Also it is known that in all lines of foodstuffs the Gordon-Davies store is quite capable of differentiating and even though there is only a slight difference in various lines of goods offered, this store will choose the lines of the very highest quality.

The numerous sauces and pickled goods that are in demand by discerning people also vegetables and fruits that are packed by well known canners are displayed on the shelves here and it is apparent from the fresh appearance of the stock that there is a constant turnover of goods and nothing stale is on the shelves or offered to customers.

MARY PICKFORD IN "MISTRESS NELL"

"Mistress Nell," of whom it was said, "England would not be as great without her," was never better portrayed than in the skilful characterization by Mary Pickford, at the Empire Theatre. All the varying whims and impulses of the famed character, all her loyalty and courage, are winsomely presented in the little star's impersonation. The costumes and settings are authentically correct, and other mechanical embellishments of the production in harmonious uniformity with the period of the story. The scenes in which little Mary appears in the costume of a cavalier are marked by a fine sense of humorous portrayal that heightens rather than diminishes the dramatic interest. An excellent cast, including Owen Moore, who played the part of Prince Charming in Cinderella, assists the star in making Mistress Nell a photoplay of unusual interest and merit.

- THEATRICAL -

Mae Edwards Players have won a place in the hearts of the theatregoing public of Peterborough by their good clean plays and honest efforts. Miss Edwards has won a host of friends and this clever actress will be welcome here at any time in a return engagement.

Every Evening (Sundays and Holidays Excepted) at 4 o'Clock.

London, March 13, (C.P.)---Sir John French has sent the following despatch to the war office :---" A little further progress in the war was made to-day by the Seventh division in the direction of Aubers. Fighting has been very severe as the enemy was strongly reinforced this morning opposite my right, by at least two divisions. We captured 612 prisoners, however, and I hear there are more to come in. Our aviators have destroyed railroad stations at Don and Douai.

French Troops Support Right and Left of British Army

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

PARIS, March 13. — This afternoon's official statement says: "Near Ypres, the Belgian army has consolidated and increased the results obtained over Thursday.

"British troops continue to progress. They crossed the brook of Layes, which runs parallel to the road from Neuve Chapelle to Fleurbax., At the end of the day they reached the road known as "Highway to Hell," which runs from the northwest to the southeast towards Aubers.

"Southwest of Eitere they carried several groups of houses which were being strongly prepared for defensive purposes.

"The total number of prisoners captured during the day was one thousand. Germans lost several machine guns.

"To the left and to the right of the British army, French troops supported them with many heavy artillery and machine guns and infantry fire.

"In the Champagne our progress continues At the end of the day on the northern slopes of the ridge to the northeast of Mesnil we captured one hundred and fifty prisoners, including six officers.

"In the Vosges, on Reicackerkopf, the enemy, after a violent bombardment, attempted an assault, which was however brought to a halt by our fire."

GET THROUGH DARDANELLES BEFORE EASTER.

PARIS, March 13. — The Journal has an Athens despatch saying that Admiral Carden has expressed the opinion that the Allies will hammer a way through the Dardanelles before Easter.

A despatch to the Matin says that the bombardment was resumed on Friday morning, and seventy small mine sweepers are reported continuing their efforts to clear the mine field.

"The Allied fleets," says a Matin's despatch, " still have eight or ten forts and a number of coast batteries to reduce," but it is the general opinion that they will enter the Sea of Marmora within a fortnight if land forces co-operating with them can also continue their advance."

NEW YORK, March 13.—Passengers on the steamer Arabic which arrived from Liverpool today with 537 passengers and the largest consignment of mail ever consigned to Amreica, report that the ship was accompanied from Liverpool far out to sea by a guard of destroyers on the lookout for submarines, and that more than fifty steamers are tied up at Liverpool by the dockers' strike.

DRESDEN SINKS BRITISH BARK.

VALPARAISO, March 13. — The crew of the British bark Conway Castle, sunk by German cruiser Dresden off the port of Corral, while on her way from Australia to Liverpool with a cargo of barley, was landed here yesterday by the Peruvian ship Tarlon. This is the first exploit of the Dresden since the battle off the Falkland Islands.

LONDON, March 13. — Count Sergius Julovich Witte, Russia's first prime minister, died last night, says a Petrograd despatch to Reuter's Telegram Company.

JAPANESE SAIL FOR CHINA?

PEKIN, March 13. — The Chinese government has official information to the effect that the second Japanese squadron conveying two divisions of approximately thirty thousand soldiers has sailed for China.

SOLDIERS OF THE KING

The Kingston Standard says: There has been much speculation as to the departure of the 21st Battalion for overseas, but owing to the strict censorship maintained, it is impossible to say when Kingston will lose this fine unit of the second expeditionary force. But there are certain signs which indicate the nearness of the departure of this portion of the second contingent for the front and among these is an order which was promulgated by the Divisional office yesterday which reads as follows:—

As all warrant officers, N.C.O.'s and men of the expeditionary force should be in possession of two blankets and one ground sheet at time of arrival at port of debarkation overseas divisional (and district) commanders will please give such instructions as will ensure that the requisite number of these articles is taken by units before entraining at their stations. The ground sheets should now be in possession of units as part of their mobilization equipment. The blankets will be taken from those in use in the temporary barracks. Commanding officers concerned will take the necessary action for this order to be complied with.

While the above order has previously been published as militia order 110, its place in the Divisional orders of yesterday is suggestive of preparation for departure. When orders are received by the 21st Battalion to leave, there will be neither fuss nor demonstration, but they "Will fold their tents like the Arabs, and silently steal away."

Rex. Turner, of the Royal Fusiliers.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY REFUSES TO CARRY OUT CONTRACT MADE WITH THE LAURIER GOVERNMENT

Ottawa, March 13. — The Grand Trunk Railway Company of Canada has refused to carry out its contract made with the Laurier Government to lease the N.T.R. and pay a rent for the same on a basis of a fixed percentage of the cost. The G.T.R. refuses on the ground that the cost of the N.T.R. has been wasteful and excessive and of such a character as to void the contract altogether. The contract as was shown by the infamous "implement" clause is loosely drawn and it is the opinion of many lawyers that it will be impossible to compel the G.T.R. to carry out the old contract and that the result may be a burden to the country such as will shake public confidence in Canadian securities.

GET SUBMARINES LIKE FISH CAUGHT IN NET

British Admiralty Has Traps at Points Around British Isles

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

LONDON, March 13. — The Admiralty has set submarine traps at the harbor entrances and other points around the British Isles, and according to reports three German submarines were caught in them in the first ten days of the blockade. The traps are on an immense scale, being imitations of gill-nets with appertures ten feet square framed in wrought iron. They are suspended thirty feet under water from immense buoys. Submarines steering blindly by chart and compass enter these appertures and are in the position of fish caught in a net.

Brisk Buying in Sale of Shamrocks

An army of women and girls are out today selling shamrocks in aid of St. Vincent's Orphanage. The work is in charge of St. Peter's Ladies' Aid Society, assisted by the ladies of the Church of the Sacred Heart and Church of the Immaculate Conception. Every corner of the city has been reached and undoubtedly a goodly sum realized. Several ladies interviewed on the matter could not speak authoritatively but thought the result would be higher than last year. The total amount realized will be made known Monday.

HONORS FOR VETERAN.

Saskatoon, Sask., March 13.—Edward William Melville, a member of the 42nd Black Watch, who fought under Sir Colin Campbell in the Crimean war, was buried with military honors yesterday. He was born in Scotland eighty-one years ago. One son, Maxwell, a South African veteran, is at present a member of the 46th Battalion for active service.

FOE ADMITS FAILURE TO RETAKE NEUVE CHAPELLE

Encountered Superior British Force and Stopped

REPULSE THE FRENCH

Russians Said to Have Retreated From Austowo District

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

BERLIN, March 13. — (By wireless to Sayville.) — The German official report of today reads: "To the south of Ypres, isolated British attacks were easily repulsed. Our movements for the recapture of Neuve Chapelle began successfully, but thereafter encountered a superior British force and for this reason was not continued.

"The British in this locality have been showing great aerial activity.

"In the Champagne district there has been renewed fighting. All French efforts have been repulsed, the enemy losing heavily. Two hundred Frenchmen were taken prisoners.

"Fog and snow have hampered operations in the Vosges.

"The Russians have retreated from the Augustowo district and the country to the northeast, until now they are beyond the River Bobr and under the guns of Grodno.

"At a point northeast of Przasnysz, near the Oryzc river, a Russian attack has been repulsed."

FAREWELL TO CHAS. THORNTON

Leaves Bell Telephone to Join Royal Canadian Engineers

Mr. Charles Thornton, assistant wire chief of the Bell Telephone Co. plant, is leaving Sunday night for Halifax to join the Royal Canadian Engineers. His fellow-employes and members of the staff and officials sprung a surprise on him last night shortly after ten o'clock when he was invited to the district store room just at the rear of the building and given the seat of honor at an elaborate supper where beefsteak and beans predominated. Mr. Thornton was toasted, and presented with a case of military brushes, accompanied by a neat speech made by Mr. A. A. Smith, which conveyed to him how much the staff recognized the value of his services and regretted his departure. Mr. Thornton was totally taken unawares but he replied suitably. Speeches were made by Chief Howard, who was specially invited, Mr. A. A. Smith, Mr. F. W. Doan, Mr. Schroeder and Mr. C. Kelman.

Mr. Thornton has been connected with the local plant in the capacity of assistant wire chief for three years. He came here to accept the position from Toronto and was highly esteemed by his fellow-employes. He was a member of the bugle band of the 57th egiment besides being popular in social and church circles., being an active worker in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. His departure makes the fourth from the Bell Telephone staff, the others being Mr. Walter Flowers, with the Third Contingent, Steven Elliott, now with the engineers at Thornburn, B. C., and Harold French, now at the front.

A CLAIM OF $500

A writ has been issued by Gordon & Widdifield on behalf of James Ackey against the township of Otonabee for $500, the sum being claimed by the plantiff because of damages to an auto last fall on one of the roads of the township. The cause of the wreck was an open drain across the road and near which it is alleged no warning light was placed.

GOOD WORK BY GRADUATE NURSES

The Red Cross Society of this city has been providing the members of the Graduate Nurses' Association with material and the nurses have been busily engaged each Wednesday afternoon for the past few months making surgical necessities such as sterilized pads and dressings for the Red Cross work at the front. On next Wednesday afternoon and evening the graduate nurses of the city will be in charge of the tea room at the Oriental Hotel. Tea will be served and the proceeds given to the Red Cross. The nurses will be in uniform.

Rev. R. J. Campbell of City Temple fame in London, will lecture in the United States soon.

IS HELP TO FAIRS

No Freight Tax for Return of Live Stock

Mr. F. J. A. Hall, secretary of the local Industrial Exhibition, has received a letter from G. C. Ransom, chairman of the Canadian Freight Association, advising him that the recent ruling, effective January 1st, 1915, by which the railways of Canada would discontinue the free return movement of shipments from national, provincial, county or municipal general fairs and exhibitions, has been rescinded. At the request of the managements of the fairs in the larger municipalities, as well as the Minister of Agriculture, the carriers have given the matter further consideration, and have agreed to reinstate the old arrangement to provide for the free return of livestock, other than race horses. Race horses will be charged full tariff rates in both directions.

RUSSIANS TOO MUCH FOR TURKS

Attempt to Stop Advance of Czar's Troops is Defeated

CAPTURE OF GUNS AND PRISONERS

(Canadian Press Despatch.)

TIFLIS, March 13. — An attempt on the part of the Turkish army operating in Turkish Armenia to drive back the Russian force which has advanced westwards along the shore of the Black Sea from Batum, has met with defeat.

The Turks assumed the offensive in the River Tchoruk district on March 9th but were thrown back.

Russians captured an entire battery of the Turks' guns. Reverses also have been sustained by Turkish forces in Northwestern Persia. They were compelled to retreat a considerable distance in the district of Khol and Dilman. At Dilmna, which is sixty miles north of Urumiah, the Russians captured several heavy guns and a quantity of ammunition. The Turks lost heavily in killed and wounded and the Russians took a large number of prisoners.

PETERBOROUGH, SATURDAY, MARCH 13, 1915

AN EXPRESSION OF OPINION.

THE REVIEW has taken the position that the authorities should make an effort to clear up the Helen Brown case, that they should endeavour to fasten responsibility on the guilty ones, and thus clear innocent parties from any imputation in connection with this case. A few citizens, having the courage of their convictions, have placed themselves on record as supporters of the stand the Review has taken. A good many more have privately given us their approval, yet so far the authorities have stood pat. We think every citizen who is desirous of maintaining respect for law, public morality and the good name of Peterborough, should signify his conviction. In order to bring home to the authorities the weight of the public demand for a "clean-up" in Peterborough, the Review will publish the letters of those citizens who are law-abiding and not afraid to say what they think. It is the duty of citizens to place themselves on record and let the authorities know that the majority of citizens in Peterborough do not wish scandal, immorality and crime to flourish under the protection of those who should feret it out—that there still exists in this city respect for innocence and virtue. Let the letters come.

CANADIAN AID FOR BELGIUM.

A PAMPHLET has been issued giving details of funds and supplies received and of expenditures of the Belgian relief work. $461,412.18 in money have been subscribed to this work, while many tons of clothing and provisions were received in addition that could not be expressed in a money value. The money received has been expended for provisions, principally wheat, flour and pork and for clothing to the amount of $381,345.16, leaving a cash balance of $80,295.34 on January 31st, 1915. Five ship loads of goods have been despatched and $30,645 worth by regular liners. Up to February 15th, 1915, the total Canadian contributions to Belgian relief are commuted at $1,745,563. When it is remembered that Canada has also provided handsomely for her own Patriotic Fund, besides large bodies of men, it is seen that this country is rising to the occasion demanded by a great war in a manner worthy of it.

JUSTIFIES HON. W. T. WHITE'S BUDGET

THE FOLLOWING PARAGRAPH appeared in the Montreal Journal of Commerce:

> "For the first time in many years Canada's imports and exports for January nearly balanced. The exports amounted to $29,900,000, while the imports totalled $30,600,000. The equalizing of our imports and exports is largely due to the fact that the war has created an abnormal demand for our foodstuffs, while the war and the business depression have lessened our purchasing power, and consequently our imports. It is to be hoped that our exports will continue to increase until this country pays for its borrowings and imports with foodstuffs, manufactured goods, and other products."

It is thus seen that Canada's trade is in a healthy condition, and while we are asked to pay heavy toll for war purposes, yet the war is compensating us for much of our expenditure and for many of our sacrifices. The demand for foodstuffs is certain to be great and to increase for some time to come. That being the case, war taxes raised by indirect methods are quite practical and business-like.

THE OUT-OF-WORKS.

AS SPRING APPROACHES, the question of work for the unemployed becomes more and more acute. Those who remember the terrible happenings in Lancashire during the American Civil War, when close upon 200,000 men were known to be out of work in that county alone, will tremble with apprehension. At that time the philanthropical spirit of Britain arose nobly to the rescue, no less a sum than $9,500,000 being publicly subscribed. This fund was so well administered that although the distress lasted for a period of nearly five years, $650,000 remained in the hands of the trustees, and was expended in the erection of a convalescent home in Lancashire. Things are different in Canada to what they were in England at that time. The country was not at war, and although prices were high and the suffering was widespread, people had not been called upon for aid to the almost innumerable works of charity that they are now. While some of the money subscribed was used for direct relief, the bulk of it was invested in public works that commanded the greatest amount of individual labour.

It is a fair estimate to presume that at this moment in Canada there are 100,000 unemployed. Mayor Martin of Montreal has placed the number of out-of-works in that city at 45,000. In Toronto there are known to be half as many. In the big western cities, especially Winnipeg and Vancouver, there are probably another twenty or twenty-five thousand. So that we are not long in arriving at the total suggested. It is not a question of statistics, however, so much as the need for instant results and sustained action. Work must be found. It is not a matter of "I cannot dig, and to beg I am ashamed." Practically all are willing to work. The trouble is that they mainly belong to the constructive trades. There are, of course, many clerks, operatives in factories, and salesmen and women among them, but the hardest to be suited are those who have been employed on buildings and railway works, which are now almost at a standstill.

In the face of this state of affairs, the land is crying for labour. One thing that can be done is to separate the wheat from the chaff, and endeavour first of all to employ the wheat, giving preference, as far as reasonable, to the men who have others to support. For this purpose, and in fact, for treatment of the whole situation, committees should be formed in every city and town, and registration embodying suitability strictly kept. Then such public works as are in any way possible should be proceeded with. When we arrive at the matter of farm labour we come to the very crux of the situation. The large majority of the unemployed have never seen a farm, except as they have been travelling past. To another section the work is uncongenial. Unhappily, it is frequently shown that, even under stress, men and women will not do work for which they feel completely unfitted. But these cannot be left to starve. They must be employed, but how is a matter for the committees to decide. As to the demand of the land, farmers must be appealed to to be as patient as they can, and to be as lenient and generous as possible to such labourers as they may obtain. As has been said over and over again, the times are exceptional, and not only call upon us, but demand of all of us, that we shall practice self-denial and thus bear in some measure a share of the common burden.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

WHERE no action is taken to enforce payment of taxes, the result is unsatisfactory in many ways, says the Municipal World. A certain percentage of the ratepayers pay their taxes, and this enables the municipality to carry on business. Others neglect to do so, and those who do pay their taxes are really carrying on the business of the town for all the ratepayers in the town. This is manifestly unfair to those who pay. Then, again, taxes are levied to meet the required expenditures, and without this money the municipality must as a rule go into debt in some way. It also places the business reputation of the municipality in a much better position if the council insists on prompt payment of taxes, and are thus in a position to keep their debenture and other payments up to date.

SCIENTISTS have proved that water never goes more than a small fraction of a degree below the freezing point. When you break through the ice or take a cold bath, a recollection of this fact will no doubt greatly diminish the severity of the trial.

HOUSEHOLDERS should always provide themselves with as large a supply of knives as possible, so that when the wife is away the husband may have a clean utensil for each meal. Forks and spoons do not matter.

THE ORILLIA School Board has decided against penny savings banks. This is well, as the children will be enabled to invest their coppers in gum machines and grow up to be great politicians.

Imitating Peterborough.

(Barrie Advance.)

Berlin, Ontario, is adopting the interesting experiment of trying to make it easy for its own citizens to buy up the municipal debentures of the city, and it is not anticipated that there will be much difficulty in arriving at a satisfactory conclusion. Another project that is being worked out there is a municipal loan and savings corporation which will deal with the people direct, and which, by the way, will handle the debentures which the city has to sell. The idea is one which has been worked out to some extent in cities of the United States and has been found to be satisfactory. The mayor of Berlin has gone into the system adopted in some of the American centres and has culled what he thinks are the most appealing features and with some new ideas of his own, intends to have the Berlin municipal loan concern made an actual active participant in municipal matters in a short time.

The Enemy's Submarines.

(Toronto Star.)

Some idea of the perverted and desperate courses to which Germany is prepared to go in this war may be had by supposing that one of her submarines should succeed in striking a vessel like the Titanic and creating such a scene as occurred when that great liner was lost.

There is no assurance at all that the enemy will not torpedo an ocean liner. And if, when she receives her death blow, the vessel sends out a wireless call for help and other ships come to the rescue and stand by, these would make sure marks for the enemy submarines. One and all these ships could be attacked and sunk, and crews and passengers forced to jump in the sea or get aboard rafts and lifeboats.

It is to do just such things as this that Germany is working up her hatred, issuing threats and warnings, and preparing the public mind of the world.

PUBLIC INTEREST ONLY.

Editor, Review:

Sir,—I was fairly amazed to read in your paper that I was in Montreal in the interests of Peterborough manufacturers, trying to secure military orders. Have I not done my best to make it plain that beyond facilitating by introductions and by vouching for gentlemen unknown to ministers, the business of constituents, it is a gross wrong for a man elected by a constituency, for the purpose of representing it in a national assembly, to interest himself in securing contracts for people from himself and others who are trustees of the public property and of the public interests? Is it not possible to make it plain that a city councillor who would interest himself in the securing of contracts from a city council, is guilty, as everybody knows, of a breach of trust? Whatever scandals there are from time to time before Parliament are on this account. Do you think the public treasury and the administration are merely a target which a member is elected to shoot at? A member is a member of a body that exists for the exact opposite of what you say, namely, for the transacting of public business for the public as against private individuals. How could any representative honestly act in the private interest when he is elected wholly to act in the public interest? After all my efforts to impress the public with the fact that I am trying to do as I was elected to do, it is discouraging to find that you still regard a member as the representative of private rather than public interests.

J. H. BURNHAM.

POLICE COMMISSIONERS THE RESPONSIBLE PARTIES.

Editor, Review:

Sir,—This is to assure you that you are backed up by a large body of sentiment in the demand that you are reiterating night after night in your editorial column. Your demands made upon the Chief of Police seem to be falling upon deaf ears. He seems to be infatuated with the virtue of his heart-to-heart talks to the young fellows who are caught from time to time by the police. Has not the time come when you should transfer your attention to the Police Commissioners? They are the responsible parties. They are not bound to retain the present Chief nor the present detectives nor the present "force." They, the Commissioners, are responsible. It is pathetic to hear them say to private citizens, "Lay a charge, and we will prosecute." There is no reason why they should exist as Police Commissioners except that they should get the evidence. The Chief and the "force" are in the hands of the Commissioners, and yet things go from bad to worse. The discovery of the man in the case is a job that is up to His Honor Judge Huycke, Magistrate Dumble and Mayor Buller. They have a body of trained men at their disposal. If this job is beyond the ability of their regular staff, they have the people's money with which to employ the kind of skill that can do the work.

Gentlemen of the Police Commission, make good, and the people will honour you.

Editor of the Review, keep on. There is just one danger, and that is, The Police Commissioners may get on their dignity, get their backs to the wall, and in effect say: The morality of the city may go to the devil; we are not going to be bossed, anyway.

That sort of thing happened once before, and what happened then has not a little connection with what has now come to pass.

Yours truly,

CITIZEN.

Canadian Apples to South Africa.

The export of Canadian apples to South Africa can easily be doubled if a serious effort is made to secure the trade according to the Canadian trade commission at Cape Town. A ship arrived there recently with 1,250 barrels of Canadian apples and 6,272 boxes, half of which, however, were American. The British Columbia apples were considered the best. They were of fine quality, and the packing was perfect.

FOLLOWING UP THEIR VICTORY

South Wing of British Line Advances With Vigor

PARIS, March 13. — Following up their success in capturing the town of Neuve Chapelle, the British, Indian and First Army Corps, operating in Northern France, and holding the extreme south of the British line, where it links up with the French forces, advanced towards the hamlet of Pietre yesterday, driving the Germans out of the part of their lines situated between this hamlet and the Pietre Mill. Four hundred prisoners, including five officers, were included in this successful operation. Further north, the British lines have been advanced to Epinette village, nearly two miles east of Armentieres, which they held all winter, and nine miles northwest of Lille. East of Lombaertzde, in Belgium, a German fort about 110 yards in front of the allied trenches has been captured.

Several of the German trenches in front of the ridge, northwest of Mesnil, have been occupied by the French, and their occupants taken prisoners. This region is still marked by French advances and the Tahure road has been cleared of German trenches north of Souain and parallel to the Mesnil ridge.

An advance of about 600 feet was recorded at the Reich Ackerdopt, in the Vosges, by the French War Office, after several attacks of the enemy, were repulsed.

The French regained from the Germans, part of a trench, in which the enemy had gained a footing the preceding night.

Two divisions of the Belgian army Thursday advanced over a quarter of a mile, notably to, in the direction of Schoorbakke.

Military experts believe that the British army operating in Flanders has undertaken the task of relieving the pressure on its Russian ally, now that the Russians are being attacked in North Poland. This is part of the general plan of the allied generals. When one is attacked, the other attacks, so as to compel the Germans and Austrians to keep strong forces at every point and to prevent them from sending new troops where they could do the most good.

Huge Advance Checked.

PETROGRAD, March 13. — The checking of the German advance of half a million men on the fronts of Omouley and Orzhyd and towards Przasnysz and the administering of severe beatings to the Austrians in the regions of the Gorlice and Lupkow passes in the Carpathians were the features of yesterday's fighting in Poland and Galicia as reported by the Russian War Office here.

Fighting is excessively severe in North Poland and the Germans still hold Stnno and Augustowo, have assumed the offensive in the Seiny region, and have concentrated a heavy force of artillery on the right bank of the Narew river where the firing of the big guns has become intense.

South of the Gorlice Pass the Russians cut off parties of Austrians who had crossed the Senkouka river and attempted to fortify themselves on its left bank. Russian scouts surrounded three Austrian detachments which advanced in as many places and they all surrendered. The Russians then delivered a flank attack on the place where the chief operations of the enemy were being carried on, and achieved a great success.

In the Lupkow Pass the Russians made considerable headway by capturing the villages of Lupkow and Smolnik. They surrounded the neighboring heights and captured two Austrian heavy howitzers, two field guns, seven maxims, and several Austrian field hospitals with their staffs. They also captured 4,000 prisoners, including 70 officers.

A combat between three squadrons of Prussian Hussars and a party of Cossacks at Niezwiska on the Dniester river, East Galicia, ended disastrously for the Prussians. Ten of their officers and 25 of their troopers were captured and the rest killed or scattered in headlong flight.

THE MAXWELL STANDS PAT

No Increase in Price of This Car on Account of New Tariff

If many Canadian importers and manufacturers adopt the same attitude as that indicated by the letter of the Maxwell Motor Co., printed in our advertising columns today, the Finance Minister will get the additional revenue he is after while at the same time the Canadian buying public will not be made to pay the shot. But how many Canadian manufacturers and importers will pay the extra duty without tacking it on, with interest, to their selling price? And how many Canadian manufacturers will be patriotic enough not to increase the price of their Canadian-made goods to the extent of the additional protecton afforded them by the higher tariff? Canadian manufacturers have a splendid opportunity right now of proving their patriotism to Canada — something they are constantly asking other people to demonstrate.

Be Fair to Your Watch

Try to run your car or your sewing machine for several months without oil, and see how stridently they will screech forth protests against your neglect.

Yet it is, perhaps, years since your watch was cleaned or oiled. Though it cannot even squeak its protest, it is slowly but nevertheless surely, wearing itself out. A few drops of oil and a good cleaning will work wonders, as well as add years to its usefulness. Bring it in.

Germany Willing to Give Italy Two Austrian Provinces

SECURE NEUTRALITY

Francis Joseph Opposes Giving up Any Territory

LONDON, March 13.—Authoritative reports reaching The Hague from Berlin seem to indicate that Germany, with a view to securing Italy's neutrality, has induced Austria, despite vigorous opposition by Emperor Francis Joseph, to agree to make territorial concessions to Italy in the event that Germany and Austria are victorious in the war.

It is understood that although Emperor Francis Joseph has taken this tentative offer under consideration no definite conclusion has been reached. Italy's decision is awaited with anxious concern in all circles here.

The German Imperial Chancellor, Dr. von Bethmann-Hollweg, according to Berlin reports, at present is visiting the German general headquarters at Mezieres, and it is therefore unlikely that he will make a speech before the Reichstag committee.

It is said that Germany is trying to induce Austria to cede to Italy both Trent and Trieste. Baron Stephan von Burian, the Austrian Foreign Minister, according to report, does not oppose the cession of Trent, but strongly objects to parting with Trieste, while the aged Austrian Emperor refuses to consent to the loss of any part of his dominions.

It is reported that Germany desires to have this matter settled now in the fear that should the Dardanelles be forced Italy would be more than ever inclined to throw in her lot with the allies so as to ensure the safety of her interests in the eastern Mediterranean depending upon her army to recover her lost provinces nearer home.

German emissaries, according to despatches to the British newspapers, also are busy in Bucharest and Sofia endeavoring to point out to Roumania and Bulgaria why these countries should remain neutral.

MORE DEFENCES ARE REDUCED

Dardanus Batteries Are Silenced and Fort is Damaged

LONDON, March 13.—An Athens despatch says it is reported from Tenedos that the batteries at Dardanus have been entirely destroyed, and that Fort Hamidieh has been badly damaged. Thursday the allied fleet directed a well-sustained fire from a distance of 18,000 yards against Chanakalessi. The town was damaged and the inhabitants took refuge in several of the villages along the Asiatic shore. Fort Chimikli alone continues to hold out. Dragging for mines continues, and only two mine fields remain intact.

The resumption of the bombardment of Smyrna by Rear Admiral Pierse's squadron following the expiration of the 24 hours' time limit set for surrender, is reported in Athens' despatches. It is stated that the outer forts have been reduced and that the British warships are shelling the inner batteries from the harbor. The civilian population has fled to the hills.

It is learned through diplomatic sources in Petrograd that the Russian Black Sea fleet was expected to start a bombardment of the Bosphorus ports yesterday in active co-operation with the allied fleet which is attempting to force its way to Constantinople through the Dardanelles from the south.

In well-informed quarters in Petrograd it is stated that there are good reasons for believing that the whole of the Turco-German fleet now concentrated in the Sea of Marmora and the Bosphorus, has been entirely paralyzed as a consequence of the operations of the Russian squadrons in the Black Sea, as the Russians destroyed the coal supplies for the enemy's warships. The naval situation in the Black Sea has considerably facilitated the operations of the allied fleets against the Dardanelles.

TOT BURNED TO DEATH

Younger Sister Also Burned May not Recover

ST. THOMAS, March 13.—Lillian, three-year-old daughter of Leonard Catchpole, of St. Thomas, was burned to death in her home yesterday afternoon, and her two-year-old sister was so severely burned that no hopes are held out for her recovery. It is believed the children were playing with matches.

Mrs. Catchpole was called to the bedside of a sick neighbor, and she left the children in the house alone. In a few minutes flames were seen bursting from the windows, and the mother, rushing back, tried to enter the burning house to rescue her children, but was driven back by the flames.

A fireman later entered by an upstairs window and found the remains of the three-year-old girl lying on the floor and the younger unconscious in the corner of the room behind a door, where she had hidden to get away from the flames.

AUXILIARY GOES DOWN

Only Small Part of British Crew Was Saved

LONDON, March 13.—The Admiralty issued an official statement last night reporting the loss of the auxiliary cruiser Bayano while on patrol duty. Evidence points to her having been torpedoed by a submarine. But 27 of the Bayano's crew of probably more than 200 are known to survive. Fourteen officers, including the commander, are presumed to be dead.

The Belfast correspondent of The Daily Telegraph says the Bayano was torpedoed Thursday morning at nine o'clock off Corsewall Point, Wigtownshire, Scotland, and that nearly 200 lives were lost, as the cruiser sank almost immediately. The vessel had a crew of about 216 men on board.

Wigtownshire is the southwesternmost county in Scotland. It lies on the North Channel, which leads into the Irish Sea from the Atlantic.

The loss of the Bayano is the heaviest blow yet struck by the German submarine since the announcement of the blockade of the British coast on Feb. 18, the ship being practically new.

The Bayano was a steel twin screw steamer of 5,948 tons. She was built in Glasgow in 1913, was 416 feet long, and equipped with all the latest submarine signalling apparatus. Before the war she was owned by Elbers & Fyffes.

In its statement of the disaster the Admiralty says:

"On the 11th of March wreckage of the Bayano and bodies were discovered, and circumstances point to her having been sunk by an enemy torpedo.

"Eight officers and eighteen men were rescued, but it is feared that the remainder of the crew were lost."

First news of the disaster was brought to port by Captain McGarrick of the British steamer Castlereagh, who stated that his ship on Thursday morning passed through a quantity of wreckage and bodies strewn thick in the water, some still floating limp on pieces of the wreckage.

Capt. McGarrick stopped his ship and attempted to prosecute a search for possible survivors, but was prevented by the appearance of a German submarine, which chased the Castlereagh. Those saved drifted from the scene of the sinking Bayano on wreckage, and were picked up by other passing vessels.

The Admiralty is silent on the location of the disaster.

The sinking of another German submarine was reported to the Admiralty yesterday by the owners of the trawler Alex. Chastice. They telegraphed from North Shields that the submarine was fouled by the ropes of the trawler in the North Sea and foundered in twenty minutes with all on board.

Reports which were current in London last night to the effect that the King had signed an order-in-council embodying the British policy of reprisals appear to have been based on a misapprehension. One or two papers, for instance The Daily Mail, accepted the reports as authoritative, and it is understood that these were cabled to America as a statement of fact. The misunderstanding doubtless arose from the circumstance that there had been laid before the Privy Council for his Majesty's signature an order-in-council which appeared in last night's Gazette respecting additional contraband.

Japan Will Forego Demands.

PEKIN, March 13. — Having already agreed to the Chinese counter-proposals to discuss Manchuria and Mongolia separately, the Japanese representatives have now verbally informed China that they will forego completely several of their demands.

Furthermore, Japan is prepared to modify the proposed clauses concerning the Hanang, Tayeh and Pingsiang mining concessions and revise her requirements concerning Japanese residents and traders in Manchuria and Mongolia.

Teething Time Troubles

Baby's teething time is a period of anxiety for mothers unless baby's stomach is kept sweet and his bowels regular. No other medicine has been found so valuable during teething time as has Baby's Own Tablets. They make teething painless and by their use baby gets his teeth so easily that the mother scarcely knows they are coming. Concerning the Tablets, Mrs. F. Goldsmith, Nelson, B.C., writes: "Baby's Own Tablets are a mother's greatest help during the teething period." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WORLD'S GREATEST KIDNEY REMEDY

"Fruit-a-tives" Have Proved Their Value In Thousands of Cases

WONDERFUL RECORD OF A WONDERFUL CURE

Only Remedy That Acts On All Three Of The Organs Responsible For The Formation Of Uric Acid In The Blood.

Many people do not realize that the Skin is one of the three great eliminators of waste matter from the body. As a matter of fact, the Skin rids the system of more Urea (or waste matter) than the Kidneys. When there is Kidney Trouble, Pain In The Back and Acrid Urine, it may not be the fault of the kidneys at all, but be due to faulty Skin Action, or Constipation of the bowels.

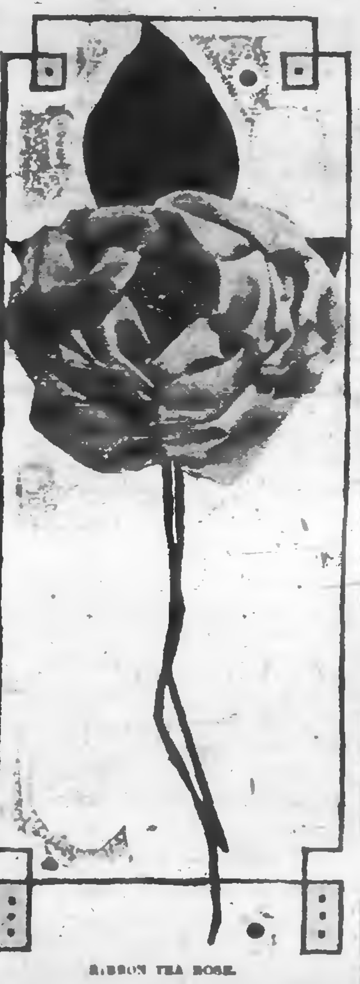
"Fruit-a-tives" cures weak, sore, aching Kidneys, not only because it strengthens these organs but also because "Fruit-a-tives" opens the bowels, sweetens the stomach and stimulates the action of the skin.

"Fruit-a-tives" is sold by all dealers at 50c. a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. or will be sent postpaid on receipt of price by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

RIBBON FLOWERS.

Dainty Ornaments That May Be Fashioned by Deft Fingers.

Flower novelties have been immensely popular this season. Artificial flowers, particularly the handmade ones of silk and satin, have been used in trimming evening gowns, fancy blouses, girdles, in the decoration of millinery, as coiffure ornaments and boutonnieres.



RIBBON TEA ROSE.

To make some of the more elaborate of these ornaments requires an unerring taste and deft hand, for much depends on the combination of colors and the adjustment of folds or foliage.

Illustrated here is a dainty yellow rose of soft ribbon in a shade that suggests tea rose. The ribbon is joined together at the ends and has rows of gathered stitching running crosswise to give the fullness to the flower. An artificial center, stem, sepals and leaves are provided for the flower.

Awkward Compliment.

There is such a thing as being too persistently complimentary. A candid and well meaning professor who had witnessed the performance of a little play in a private house in which his hostess had taken the leading part met the lady as she came from behind the curtain.

"Madam," he said, rushing up to her, "you played excellently. That part fits you to perfection."

"Oh, no, professor," said the lady modestly, "A young and pretty woman is needed for that part."

"But, madam," persisted the professor, "you have positively proved the contrary."—Pearson's Weekly.

Mrs. Mingay, widow of Wm. Mingay, died at Barrie.

GENERAL PROBE IS ORDERED

War Purchases Will Come Before Public Accounts Committee

OTTAWA, March 13.—After some discussion the House of Commons yesterday afternoon referred to the public accounts committee practically all the charges of extravagance and graft in relation to the purchase of supplies for the first contingent. A. K. Maclean (Halifax) moved that all the correspondence between the Auditor-General and the Militia Department be referred to that committee for investigation. The main part of the correspondence appears in the annual report of the Auditor-General and has already been published.

Sir Robert Borden said there was no precedent for referring the expenditure of the current year to the public accounts committee, but he would not oppose the motion as the Government desired the fullest investigation. Some of the correspondence related to the purchase of medical supplies from a Chicago firm through a Mr. Powell of Ottawa and in that connection the name of Mr. Garland, the member for Carleton, had been mentioned. In justice to Mr. Garland the inquiry should proceed without delay.

The return asked by Hon. Dr. Pugsley regarding B. C.'s purchase of two Chilian submarines was brought down by the Minister of Naval Affairs. It contains a statement by Sir Richard McBride, in which he shows that the submarines were inspected and approved by officers of the Naval Department. They were proclaimed thoroughly modern and seaworthy, and in view of the fact that German cruisers were in the vicinity of the Pacific coast, the British Columbia Premier deemed their purchase in the national interest.

Sir Richard vigorously denies that there was any commission, and demands an investigation into the whole transaction by a Parliamentary commission.

In making out the order-in-council for the payment of the submarine there was a clerical error of $100,000. This error is explained in the return.

The matter will come up for investigation in the public accounts, and Sir Richard McBride may be called to give evidence.

Would Commandeer Food.

LONDON, March 13. — Under the auspices of the Workers' War Emergency National Committee, Arthur Henderson, M.P., presiding, a mass meeting was held in London yesterday to discuss the prices of food and fuel. A resolution urging the Government to commandeer the stock of wheat in the country at a fair price for re-sale to the public was adopted. The price of these re-sales should not exceed 40s. per quarter.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

$500.00 in Prizes

No entry fee whatever. Any Farmer, Dairyman, Market Gardener, Stockman or any member of their family — or any person actively and legitimately engaged in agriculture or resident on a farm is eligible to win a grand cash prize.

All residents of towns and cities absolutely barred.

The above sum is divided into eleven (11) prizes, as follows:

1st Prize	$100.00	in cash
2nd "	25.00	"	"
3rd "	20.00	"	"
4th "	10.00	"	"
5th "	10.00	"	"
6th "	10.00	"	"
7th "	5.00	"	"
8th "	5.00	"	"
9th "	5.00	"	"
10th "	5.00	"	"
11th "	5.00	"	"

In addition, the winners of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd prizes will receive a further prize of one hundred dollars ($100.00) each, provided they purchase a new McLaughlin Car during 1915.

Competition

The prizes are offered for an article giving the best reasons and arguments,

"Why An Automobile is Profitable to a Farmer".

There are absolutely no strings attached to his contest, but we want to know the views of people on farms who would like to have an automobile, or who have one.

Think of how it would help keep the young folks on the farm—make farm life brighter—save many a crop by fetching parts to repair machinery—carry stuff to market cheaply—and all the other many advantages it would bring.

The judges will be:

Mr. John Weld, Prop. Farmer's Advocate, London, Ont.

Mr. Geo. Bertram, Vice-Pres., Canadian Farm, Toronto.

F. Albany Rowlatt, Advertising Specialist, Toronto.

Competition will close April 1st. Fill in the following coupon and mail as soon as possible to McLaughlin Carriage Co., Ltd., Oshawa, Ont. (Competition Dept.).

From a purely business standpoint, every Farmer should own an Automobile.

It will pay him in many ways. It frequently saves life by securing medical aid quickly in case of accident or serious illness.

It enables him to take produce to market quicker and when prices are highest, or to get repairs and parts for machinery quickly in seed time or harvest, when time is precious.

A woman can easily drive a McLaughlin Car and thus avoid the danger fro mrunaway or bad-tempered horses.

It is always ready for work, no harnessing or hitching up to do.

It helps keep the young folks on the farm and brings you in closer touch with the neighboring towns and cities; in fact, makes life happier and easier for yourself and family.

GREY WALLS OF DEFENCE

Ex-Gunner Describes British Navy and Tells of Its Work

Bubbling with patriotism and full of information of the most interesting and inspiring nature, the address on "The British Navy" in the Collegiate assembly hall last night, by Cecil G. Williams, reservist and ex-gunner of the British navy, was worthy of a much larger audience. Mr. Williams appeared so full of enthusiasm and information that he frequently diverged from his subject to explain features of the war, which made his address doubly interesting and instructive.

He was introduced by Mr. Duncan Walker in a neat speech, who referred to the monitors of war as "the silent navy."

Mr. Williams in commencing said that all he would have to say could be absolutely relied upon. The only job he ever had was in the King's navy.

He related a sad incident of his life, caused by the ravages of diphtheria which had carried off three of his children and left his wife a shadow of her former self.

Mr. Williams said it was surprising how little was known of the war and of the navy. Few men had ever seen a battleship.

This war was being brought nearer home every day and people needed to take a firm grip on themselves.

Entered Navy at 14.

In the first part of his lecture he related how he came to enter the navy at the age of fourteen. The first words he heard were from the captain who tersely remarked, "Well boys you've joined His Majesty's navy. If you behave yourselves you'll get on. If you don't you won't. With that he turned on his heel.

Mr. Williams emphasized the length of time required to make a first-class navy man. It took years to make him a fit fighting machine; men with a soul ready to do and dare.

He described the first burial scene he ever witnessed at sea. They had no sky pilot, so the captain was expected to read the service. As the words "We commit this body to the sea," were uttered, the first lieutenant raised his finger and the body was lowered to its last resting place. After a sailor is buried his record is read and his kit auctioned off for the benefit of his widow and children, oftentimes fetching many times their real value.

Mr. Williams declared it took just ninety seconds to clear a battleship for action.

Now was the time when efficiency spelled the difference between victory and defeat. The navy time for coaling a battleship was 1000 tons of coal in three hours. A battleship like H.M.S. "Lion" burned 1000 tons in twenty-four hours. The weakest woman could lead and fire the biggest gun in the navy so perfectly adjusted was their mechanism. The shell from a fifteen inch gun would go through six feet of wrought iron at five hundred yards.

The British navy had ten superdreadnoughts, the only ships in the world that mounted 15 inch guns and it would not be till 1916 that the German navy would be able to reply to their fire and then they would have but three ships to do it with.

Naval Principles Ignored.

He declared that the "Cressy," "Aboukir" and "Good Hope" were lost in the North Sea because naval principles had been ignored. In defence of the men who were lost he claimed that it was not right to send men to fight unless they were given the very best possible equipment.

The British navy had many more submarines than the German navy. He told the audience never to be alarmed at anything they read in the papers about the guns the Germans could mount on their ships. Ships would only stand certain weight guns. Any guns of larger size would shake their plates to pieces. He explained how the German navy was bottled in the Kiel Canal, unable to get out save at certain times because of tidal action.

Zeppelins vs. Aeroplanes.

Speaking of Zeppelins he said they were seven hundred feet in length. Their highest altitude was 1000 feet and maximum speed 60 miles an hour. The aeroplane could mount above the Zeppelin and travel up to 100 miles an hour. Mr. Williams claimed that Germany was going to see this great war to the bitter end. They felt that they were going to win out yet.

Going back to dreadnoughts he claimed that one minutes' fighting cost £3000 sterling, which represents the cost of what is fired in projectiles. One of the most obselete ships in use today would have been able to sink the combined fleets at Trafalgar. Such things went to show what great strides in naval developments had been made.

Speaking of the attitude of United States in this war he stated that they were by no means ready to compete from a naval standpoint with the other nations. Their navy had only 200 torpedo tubes all told, and it took one year to construct a torpedo. If the German navy ever broke the iron ring of the British navy, in six days steaming they would be on the Atlantic coast.

He described war vividly. War was men with their heads sliced of like apples; men impaled on steel, mangled and maimed. Reason or diplomacy would not end war. Arbitration would not end war, but every man should square his shoulders and say "By God's grace I will take my place at the front.

He closed by reciting several stirring verses of military character and before the audience dispersed was tendered a sincere and hearty motion of thanks by Messrs. John Grare and Wm. Madill.

One of the delightful items on the program was the singing of "Your King and Country Need You," by Miss Dorothy Allan. Few in the audience were aware of just how much meaning could be taken from the number, until Miss Allan sang it so feelingly.

Mr. Douglas Carlisle also sang in his customary popular manner. Mrs. Locke was accompanist.

MEETING OF HARVEY COUNCIL

Harvey council met in the True Blue Hall on Wednesday, March 10, with all the members present and the reeve in the chair.

A communication was read from M. P. Doherty acknowledging the receipt of the Colonization road bylaw.

Michael Traynor addressed the council asking to be assessed for lot 8, on. 2.—Referred to Assessor.

Thomas Fulton asked to be allowed till the 1st of April, 1917, to remove the timber from off certain streets at Hall's Bridge, and paid over $5.50 for the same if the request was granted.

On motion of Messrs. Flynn and Graham, the auditors' report was received, and the clerk ordered to procure the usual number of printed copies.

A bylaw was introduced and passed appointing pathmasters, poundkeepers and fence-viewers.

It was moved by Messrs. Graham and Allan that a bylaw be introduced at the next meeting providing for the issuing of debentures for the payment of the amounts borrowed to construct the telephone extensions.—Carried.

Mr. Chesney made application for a wire fence bonus along the west end of lot 9, Con. 9. It was moved by Messrs. Allan and Flynn, that the parties who survey the concession line report on the desirability of paying said bonus.—Carried.

A. G. Shearer addressed the council re timber on concession lines which he had purchased. Moved by Messrs. Flynn and Graham that Mr. Shearer be allowed five years from April 1, 1917, to remove timber on the concession lines which he owns on payment of $5 a year ground rent, first payment to be due April 1, 1916, and to be for the following year.—Carried.

W. J. McIlmoyle addressed the council asking a grant to fill in the hole in front of school house No. 5, caused by the old roadway. Said section was granted $5 on motion of Messrs. Flynn and Graham.

The following orders were drawn on the treasurer:

W. Shearer, three panes of glass for hall, 30c.

J. Chase, auditing accounts for 1914, $4.00.

George Weir, auditing account for 1914, $4.00.

Council adjourned to meet at Buckhorn at the call of the reeve.

EVERY BRITON'S DUTY.

R. H. Rew, C.B., concluded an illustrative article on "Food Supplies in War Time," being one of a series of Oxford Pamphlets, after pointing out that Great Britain might hold out a year if actually blockaded by saying: "Farmers, in my belief, will prove, in this crisis, not unworthy to be countrymen of those who are heroically defending British homes and hearts on the fields of Flanders. They will do their duty by working their utmost—often under grave difficulties—to maintain and, if possible, increase the produce of their farms, not because it is (as in fact it will be) profitable to do so, but because it is the desire, no less than the duty, of every Briton, each in his own sphere, to do his part to help his country in the time of her direst need." Is not every Canadian a Briton in heart and sympathy, if not by actual birth.

SAYS HE WAS CURED BY CHRISTAIN SCIENCE

An Albany despatch says: — Edmund F. Burton of New York City, formerly a regularly licensed physician, but for some years a Christian Science practitioner, declared before the Assembly Judiciary Committee that he had been suffering from consumption and was a victim of the morphine and cocaine habits, but was cured in twenty-four hours by one Christian Science treatment, although three doctors had given him but three weeks to live.

These three doctors, he said, had each been a President of the American Medical Association. Christian Scientists from all over the State were present at the hearing on Assemblyman Thorn's bill giving Christian Scientists the right to practice in this State.

Representatives of the State and local medical societies were present in force, and argued strongly against the passage of the bill.

WHY AN AUTO IS PROFITABLE TO THE FARMER

Who said anything about hard times? The McLaughlin Carriage Co. are going to give away $500.00 in prizes for the best article on "Why an Automobile is Profitable to a Farmer." It should be stated that more than farmers are eligible. Dairymen, stockmen, market gardeners are also eligible for these prizes. There is a big advertisement in the Review telling all about this grand offer, but, if a personal consultation is wanted Mr. C. R. Banks, the local agent for the McLaughlin automobile will be pleased to give what advice he can. There are splendid chances for many to win prizes and the opportunity should not be missed.

TRY THIS PUZZLE.

Here is a puzzle that puzzles everybody: Take the number of your living brothers, double the amount, add to it three, multiply by five; add to it the number of your living sisters, multiply the result by ten, add the number of death of brothers and subtract 150 from the result. The right figure will be the number of deaths, the middle will be the number of living sisters and the left will show the number of living brothers. Try it and see

OBITUARY

DR. CORNWALL.

Dr. Cornwall of Omemee, passed away Friday afternoon. The deceased was a highly respected citizen of the village and well known throughout the county. He at one time occupied the position of Warden of the county. The late Dr. Cornwall was a staunch Conservative and a great friend of Major-General Sam. Hughes.

JOHN GILCHRIST.

Toronto, March 13.—After an illness caused by heart trouble lasting since Tuesday, John Gilchrist, a member of the firm of Crompton Corset Company, passed away yesterday at his residence, 455 Palmerston Avenue, in his 55th year. The late Mr. Gilchrist was born in Oro, near Barrie, and before coming to Toronto twenty years ago, lived for some time in Peterborough. He was very active in church work, having been for nearly fourteen years the superintendent of the Sunday School of the College Street Presbyterian Church, as well as an elder of the church. His widow and three sons, Dr. A. J. Gilchrist of the Army Medical Corps, 8th Worcestershire regiment, now in France; George Gilchrist, commercial traveller, and Joseph Gilchrist, medical student, and one brother, Dr. Wm. Gilchrist of Orillia, survive him.

MRS. W. S. DEACON.

Word was received today by friends in the city advising them of the death in New York of a former old and respected resident of East City in the person of Mrs. W. S. Deacon. The deceased lady has been in poor health for some time and passed away peacefully yesterday at the ripe age of 80 years.

The late Mrs. Deacon was well known especially to the older residents and she will be remembered by them for her many acts of kindness especially in cases of sickness and distress where her services were always freely and gladly given.

Mrs. Deacon lived in Peterborough all her life with the exception of the last few years and latterly has been visiting with her daughter in New York. Of the members of her family surviving there remain her husband and three daughters residing in Toronto, also one daughter in New York, one daughter in Rochester and one son, Horace, of Chicago.

The remains will be brought to Toronto for burial where the funeral will be held on Monday, 15th inst.

MRS. PATRICK HOGAN.

Mrs. Patrick Hogan passed away at noon today after having been in poor health for some time, from bright's disease. Deceased who was 54 years old, was the daughter of the late Patrick and Norah Collins of Otonabee. She had resided at the Albion Hotel, East City, where her husband is proprietor, for the past twenty-three years.

Besides her husband she leaves one son, Edward, and five daughters who are, Annie, Lottie, Katie, Irene, Geraldine, at home, and Mrs. Jos. Christie of Asphodel. James Collins of Otonabee, is a brother and two sisters are Mrs. Patrick Logan of Dummer, and Mrs. Jas. Healey of East City. Messrs. John, Roger and Michael Torpey of Otonabee, and Rev. Father Wm. Torpey of Forest City, Iowa, are step-brothers. Mrs. Andrew Bowie of Lang is a step-sister.

The funeral will be held from the late residence, on Monday morning at nine o'clock to the Church of the Immaculate Conception and St. Peter's Cemetery.

SORRY TO LOSE MR. AND MRS. HANBRIDGE

Some of the neighbors and friends of Mr. and Mrs. John Hanbridge, Otonabee, recently gave them a delightful surprise when they gathered together to bid them farewell on the occasion of their leaving the neighbohood.

During the evening they presented Mr. and Mrs. Hanbridge with two chairs, when the following address was read:

On this 24th of February
We are gathered here today,
To bid you all good-bye
Before you go away.

We, your many friends and neighbors,
With sympathy and respect,
With to tend to you our feelings
Of sorrow and regret.

It is not as if you had been
With us for some short stay,
But Mr Hanbridge, without your presence
In our community,

We feel it is incomplete.,
As you have lived here many a day
And have won many friends around you
By your ready and genial way.

Though Mrs. Hanbridge has been with us,
Since she became your wife;
She has taught us to respect her
During all her married life.

Her willingness to help us
In everything that was good,
And her sympathy and aid
To the sick in the neighborhood

Has gained her many a friendship
Which will last for many a day;
And never fade from memory,
Even though she go away.

We're glad that in your leaving
We lose not all your race;
For you leave to use two sturdy sons
Who will somewhat fill your place.

The removal from our community
Of such old and time honoured friends,
Leaves a gap, which many a new one
Cannot make amends.

As an evidence of our good wishes
And a token of our esteem
We ask you to accept these chairs
A link, as it were, between.

GALT AS A CITY.

Galt, March 13.—It having been found necessary to change the date of the bill before the Provincial Legislature to incorporate Galt as a city, the date will be made June 1, 1915, instead of March 15, as previously announced by Z. A. Hall, M.P.P. for South Waterloo.

HOW TO CURE RHEUMATISM

The Disease is Always Rooted in the Blood, Which Must be Made Rich and Pure

There are still many people who imagine that rheumatism can be cured by liniments and rubbing, overlooking the medical fact that the trouble is rooted in the blood. Rheumatism can only be cured by cleansing and enriching the blood, thus driving out of the system the poisonous acids which cause the rheumatic pains. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure the most obstinate cases of rheumatism because they go straight to the root of the trouble in the blood. Every dose helps to make rich, red blood, and this new blood expells the poisonous acid, bringing health and comfort to the tortured victim. Do not waste time and money in liniments and outward applications. Give Dr. Williams' Pills a fair trial and thus drive the disease out of your system. Here is proof of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills can do in cases of this kind. Mr. Richard Palmer, Wroxeter, Ont., says: "For months my life was made miserable through a combined attack of rheumatism and sciatica. The rheumatism seemed to settle in all my joints and the sciatica pains were so great that I could scarcely hobble about. I am a farmer, and so you can understand that in my condition I was unable to do my ordinary work. Neither doctors nor various remedies I took did me any good. Finally I was induced to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and for this I have much to be thankful for, as after taking a few boxes the pains began to disappear, and by the time I had taken nine boxes every twinge of both the rheumatism and the sciatica had disappeared and I was able to go to work again as usual, and have not lost a day through illness since. I am thoroughly grateful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me and hope my experience will benefit some other sufferer."

It is the curing of just such cases as these that has given Dr. Williams' Pink Pills their world-wide popularity. You can get the Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

BETTER AN EYEGLASS THAN A GLASS EYE

"Putting it off till tomorrow" is neither wisdom nor economy where the safety of your eyes is concerned. Little eye troubles lead to big ones, usually, unless steps to correct them are taken. By means of scientific instruments, we can tell you whether glasses will do much or little for you. THE MAXWELL STANDS PAT
No Increase in Price on Account of New Tariff!

MAXWELL MOTOR COMPANY OF CANADA, LIMITED
MANUFACTURERS OF AUTOMOBILES
HEAD OFFICE, 19 PITT STREET EAST
WINDSOR, ONTARIO

Heard & Northey Co.,
383 Water Street, Peterborough, Ont.

Feb. 15, 1915

Dear Sirs:---

The Maxwell Motor Co. of Canada Ltd. will stand pat. No change in the Canadian price of the Maxwell Car is contemplated as a result of the 7 1-2 per cent. increase in duty. In all the years that the company has been selling its product it has been in close sympathy with general business conditions across the border.

Because of greatly increased production the Maxwell company has been enabled during the past year or two to arrange its distribution in such a way as to place a greater quantity of these justly celebrated cars in the Dominion. We are with you to stay, and it is felt by the officials of the company that in the face of the national stress prevailing in Canada the time is now opportune to convince our Canadian distributors that the Maxwell can show its spirit by carrying the burden.

There is no need to dwell on the extra 7 1-2 per cent. The government of the Dominion has deemed it necessary to tax automobiles 7 1-2 per cent. more. The Maxwell company will absorb this amount. Please remember that no change in distributors' discounts or in list price is contemplated.

Business conditions in Canada are fundamentally sound. The farmer is getting more money for his produce than ever before. The export business of the country will increase and the imports from abroad will decrease. Therefore the Dominion of Canada has before it a great opportunity, in that it can now develop the natural resources that have for so many years been undeveloped in consequence of the people of the Dominion as a whole importing many articles which could just as well have been made at home. The small business man and the farmer are making money. These are the people who buy Maxwell cars. Now is your chance to get business, as you have practically no competition. There is no car to-day which presents so much value for the money as the Maxwell car.

Yours very truly,
MAXWELL MOTOR CO. OF CANADA LTD.

President.

LOWER PRICE IS ASKED FOR EGGS

Eggs sold today on the market for 24 and 25 cents, the drop having taken place during the week, and as a consequence a good many dozen were bought up this morning. As noted last Saturday, the price of eggs fluctuated considerably, causing many patrons to pay a much higher price than was really warranted. One woman who was on the market last Saturday morning was heard complaining of the fact that she had to pay 35 cents for eggs when she should have got them for 30 cents. Butter was plentiful today, but the price has not changed any. Thirty-five cents was the prevailing figure.

Meat henceforth will not be so plentiful, for with the coming of spring and mild weather there is not the demand for quarters that exists upon the commencement of winter. The diminishing supply has not been noticeable as yet, but a prominent meat buyer stated that from now on the supply will fall off. Beef fetched 10 to 12 cents, and pork 12 to 13 cents. No lamb could be found.

Alive to the possibilities of business, the St. Peter's Ladies' Aid Society had a booth on the market selling cakes and candies in aid of the orphanage.

CHICAGO, March 12.—Urgent European demand for both the cash delivery and the May option kept the wheat market today to a higher level than was reached [illegible] as a result of the government report showing a decided falling off in the supply held in interior mills and country elevators. Prices at the close were strong, 1¼ to 2 3-4c above last night. Corn scored a net gain of 5-8 to 3-4c, oats of 5-8 to 1 1-2c and provisions a shade to 5c.

Much of the buying of wheat seemed to be based on current estimate, that, according to government figures, any further exports from the United States could be spared only by reducing the carry-over at the end of the crop year, or by cutting down domestic use. A great deal of attention also was given to reckoning that the danger line would be touched by exports at the rate of more than 2,000,000 bushels a week from now until July 1.

Corn was helped upward by the lightness of rural offerings to arrive. On the other hand, improved demand southwest was offset to some extent by the slackness of shipping call from the east.

Oats were strengthened in consequence of reports that the Argentine surplus would be far less than had been supposed. As in the case of wheat, Europe has bought the May option as well as the cash delivery.

Higher prices for hogs and grain gave a lift to provisions. On the bulge, the packers sold especially July ribs.

MONTREAL GRAIN MARKET.

MONTREAL, March 12.—Business over the cable in Manitoba spring wheat continues very quiet there being practically no demand from foreign buyers at present. There was no improvement in the local trade in coarse grains on account of the fact that buyers are well supplied for the present, consequently the demand is slow, but the tone of the market is steady. The condition of the market for flour is unchanged, business being quiet and prices fully maintained. Millfeed is fairly active. Butter is quieter and easier.

Demand for eggs is good, but the tone of the market is easy at the recent decline in prices.

Mr. J. K. L. Ross

TO be born the son of a very rich man who has made a name for himself as wide as the country in which he lives is about as severe a handicap as Providence can impose. So that it was with this handicap that John Kenneth Leveson Ross began the life of a young man in Montreal a few years ago. The late James Ross, the father of young Ross, was a pioneer of the Canadian Pacific, and, in fact, built one of the mountain sections. He was considered a man of great ability and force of character even among his associates of a day when these qualities were not rare. He was a big man among big men. Jack Ross began well. It was in 1897 that he left McGill with the right to add B.A.Sc. after his name. But the young College graduate gave early and convincing indications of his intentions to become a real man. He went from McGill to the car shops of the Montreal Street Railway and began to "dig in." In a little while he was assistant to the General Manager of the Montreal Street Railway, then acting manager of the City of Birmingham Tramway Company, then assistant manager of the Central London Railway. Then he came back to Canada and dived into coal mines as he had dived into railways elsewhere. James Ross was a "coal" man and it was not long before "Jack" turned up as Assistant General Manager of the Dominion Coal Company. Then he became Commercial Manager of the same big industry. Now we find him described as a "capitalist" in various volumes of the "who's who" variety. The list of his financial connections is a long one comprising among many others, directorships of the Dominion Bridge Company, the Lake of the Woods Milling Company, Monklands Limited, Cote St. Luc Realties, and last, but by no means least, of the Canadian Pacific Railway; and Mr. Ross is the youngest of the C. P. R. directors.

And there is one thing to be noted about these directorships—they were not accorded him as compliments to his distinguished father. If "Jack" Ross has a weakness that almost amounts to a vice it is his love of deep sea fishing. In 1911, when his yacht was anchored at Picton, N.B., one of the natives remarked, "Belongs to some crazy Montrealer, who spends all his spare time tryin' to 'atch a tuna. He'll never land one if he hooks it." Which shows that the native in question didn't know Ross. He had been after a tuna with hook and line for three summers, and he was going to get a tuna if it took three or thirty summers more. Whereupon a regular whale of a tuna consented to take his bait and see which was the better man. The struggle lasted about five hours, which was very quick work indeed. It was the biggest fish ever landed in Canada anyway, if not indeed a record-breaker for the Atlantic. That tuna won him an honorary membership in the Tuna Club of Santa Carolina, California.

The death of James Ross left the son one of the wealthiest men in Canada. It was when war broke out that Mr. Ross' splendid generosity was most notably shown. It not being possible for him to go to the front, he gave one-half million dollars to the common cause, perhaps the largest private cash donation at one time given by a British subject. But if Mr. Ross could not go to the firing line he could do, and did, the next best thing. He "did his little bit" to make a Canadian port a safer place for British and Canadian commerce. Mr. Ross has a very powerful and swift motor cruiser, the "Tuna," and the "Tuna" with its master on board went into the service of the Admiralty forthwith and she is now an invaluable patrol boat. The late James Ross was a collector of paintings and objects of art of more than average discernment. Gradually there accumulated in his magnificent home on Peel Street a collection with but few rivals in Montreal, if indeed in America. Of this home and this collection J. K. L. Ross is now the master.

Cause For Regret.

"Do you find that set of books you bought interesting?"

"Not very," confessed the man who tries to improve himself.

"Do you regret your bargain?"

"A little. I'd feel better about it if the man who comes around to collect were as good an entertainer as the one who sold me the books."—Exchange.

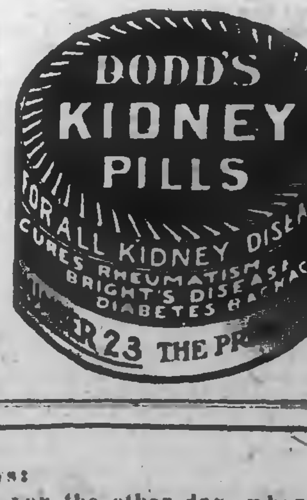
Elementary, Watson.

"Does Wombat own or rent his house?"

"Rents it."

"How do you know?"

"I know all right. He scratches matches on the paint."—Louisville Courier-Journal.



MRS. WISENEIGHBOUR says:

"I should have told you the other day, when I was speaking of 'Eddy's' Washboards, that it is just as necessary to have an Indurated Fibrewear Tub to hold your clothes, if you want to make a success of wash-day."

MRS. NEWLYWED says:

"I've heard of 'Eddy's' Indurated Fibreware. What's the difference between fibre and wooden ware?"

"Fibreware is made from compressed fibre, baked at extreme heat. All in one solid piece. It cannot warp or fall apart. No chance of splinters, wears much longer, looks better, and is light to carry. The latter point you should always take into consideration," concludes Mrs. Wiseneighbour."

Representatives Left Last Night for Winnipeg to Fight it Out

TORONTO, March 13. — President Farquharson and Secretary Hewitt of the O. H. A. left last night for Winnipeg and were accompanied by Dwight J. Turner, who represents President Jupp of the Intercollegiate Hockey Union as a member of the executive. A Quebec representative is expected to join en route, and all the organized hockey east of Port Arthur will be lined up in opposition to any improper assumption of authority by the president, and any interference with the constitutional rights of provincial associations. Support for this position is also anticipated from Alberta and British Columbia when the issue is made clear to them, but not matter what happens, the O. H. A. will not haul down its flag. Knowing something of the difficulties attending the application of rules in new and small communities, it is prepared to extend every posible consideration to the younger provincial bodies, but can make no compromise on the elementary principles that must be the basis of the C. A. H. A., the amateur and residence requirements.

It is rather odd that a star ballplayer who hasn't any more business sense than to sign a $3,500 contract in mid-season when the club owners were bidding $25,000 for worse men should think he has sense enough to succeed at farming.

WINNIPEG TEAM TAKES TROPHY FROM MELVILLE

Northerners Were Defeated by Monarchs by Two Counters

MELVILLE, Sask., March 13. — Battling as they never battled before the Monarchs of Winnipeg won back the Allan Cup when they defeated Melville here last night by the score of 4 to 2. Being one goal down at the start of the game and being outscored 2 to 1 in the first half, the challengers went into the second half two goals to the bad on the round. But they fought a desperate battle and were finally rewarded. The teams:—

Melville — Goal, Smith; point, McCutcheon; cover, Callin; rover, H. Mackenzie; centre, Mullins; right, Bowen; left, Billy Mackenzie.

Referee—Caldwell. Judge of play—Sexsmith.

Judging from reports from California Manager Rowland thinks that the White Sox have picked up a very promising recruit in Collins who may make good.

TAKE IT AWAY

NEW YORK, March 13. — From "inside" sources it was learned last night that the Johnson-Willard championship fight, scheduled for Sunday, April 4th, at Havana, will positively not take place. American capitalists in Cuba are going to protest, fearing race riots. Plantation owners will hold a meeting to demand that all mixed fights be prohibited.

Promoters Jack Curley and Dick Klegin have announced that the mill will take place at Oriental Park race track. Geo. Bradt, owner of the Havana Post, who built the stadium especially for fights, declares the battle will take place at his club or not at all. Bradt is president of the Cuban Chamber of Commerce and is known to be able to make good any threat.

JUNIOR CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE TEAM BANQUETED

Last evening, the Junior Hockey Club of Knox Church, champions of the Junior Church League, were banqueted by Knox S.S. The tables presented a very attractive appearance and the boys and their friends did full justice to the good things provided by the committee in charge. Following the banquet a short program was rendered consisting of speeches by Rev. J. A. MacKenzie, B.A., B.D., pastor of Knox, and Mr. H. J. McCannon, president of the hockey club, solos by Misses Eva Bartley and Mabel Penrose, and Mr. Gerrard, a reading by Mr. Clark and short speeches by a number of the boys expressing their pleasure at winning the championship and thanking the ladies for the feast provided. The boys then organized for baseball and a very pleasant evening was then brought to a close.

SHAUGHNESSY GETS ONE PUT ON HIM

The Ottawa club is just now bemoaning the loss of Pitcher Jess Haines, a twirler that never played in the Canadian league or never even had a glimpse of Shaughnessy and the capital. Haines was farmed out to the Saginaw club last season by Claud Varnell, the Fort Wayne owner. He was to have been recalled at the end of the season, but Manager Ducky Holmes, of Saginaw, had been placed on the reserve list of that club and now he is a full-fledged Saginaw player. Fort Wayne would have sent him to Ottawa this season, Varnell having an understanding with Shaughnessy. Haines is a promising lad, and he made good in the South Michigan League last season.

LACROSSE

All Y. M. C. A. men who have played lacrosse should get in touch with Mr. Carson, physical director of the "Y.," before signing up with any other teams.

Plans are under way for forming a lacrosse club, which are not yet ready for publication.

The Y. M. C. A. has contributed quite a number of good lacrosse players in years past, and hope to develop good material again. It intends to bring out men to help along the game. The fact of the city being without a baseball team this year should leave room for a revival of lacrosse.

CURLING

COMMENT As You Like it

VICTORIAS and Melville must have participated in a rough session in their final encounter at Melville. The Western Associated Press reported it as follows:—

The Toronto team went on the ice to play a body-checking game and thus the first period was somewhat ragged owing to the close checking of both teams. Callin, cover-point of the Melville team, completely lost control of himself and endeavored to hit Heffernan over the head with his stick behind the Toronto goal. He was penalized heavily for the offence.

During the last period Callin was sent to the fence, and after staying there some time demanded to know if his time was up. Manager Reade of the Toronto team was the penalty timekeeper, and in some manner the two came to blows. A scene of riot ensued, and a resident of Melville appeared over the edge of the penalty box with a large-sized billy ready to wreak vengeance. All around the game was exceedingly rough and productive of much hard feeling between the two teams.

PETERBOROUGH FANS have not a great deal to say in connection with the suspension of the Intermediates by the O.H.A. All agree that the executive perpetrated what is known as a Merkle and as a result very little sympathy is expressed. It is to be regretted that the city is given a black eye because of a few, but experience teaches. We cannot but recall the evening the officers of the club assumed control. The meeting at which they were elected has not been forgotten, the assertion made at the time that they would spill the beans was really the correct dope. The men broke all records for poor sportsmanship in getting into office and now we have the result. It is little wonder then that the fans do not sympathize with the officers of the club. Peterborough regrets the lamentable affair, it is a blot on the pages of sport history and those who were instrumental in causing that blot deserve to be "reached" as the O.H.A. decided at Wednesday's meeting.

MEL W. SHEPPARD, "Peerless Mel," the world's greatest middle distance runner, has run his last race. At the N. Y. A. C. games last month Sheppard had the misfortune to strike a broken board and was seriously injured. Sheppard was in the athletic game for thirteen years and up to the end had held his own. If the Olympic games in London in 1908 he won both the 800 and 1500 metre races and in both he made world's records which have since been beaten by Ted Meredith and Abel Kiviat, respectively. The only world's record mark appearing on the boards today credited to Sheppard is 1.10 4-5 for 600 yards. The American amateur record for 1,000 yards of 2.12 2-5 was created by Sheppard five years ago.

J. ROSS ROBERTSON, past president and life member of the O.H.A. and honorary president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, wired yesterday from Palm Beach, Fla., to Toronto, as follows:—"Our association must never recede from the second position taken suspending players and officers who refuse to obey the instructions of the O.H.A. The amateur tourist must go forever. We have fought for clean honest sport, and the hockey world is with us. The Canadian Amateur Hockey Association is ringing its death-knell by reported action."

LACROSSE FANS are expected to be boosting the game these days. A meeting will be held in the near future and if the enthusiasts wish for a big year they must get busy before the meeting and "talk it up." From every city comes the prediction that lacrosse will boom this season.

INDOOR BALL

Y.M.C.A. NOTES

Dancing is an art not confined to social affairs exclusively. The senior Y. M. C. A. leaders' corps and members of the different boys' classes are taking it up. Parties whose religious principles are opposed to dancing need not fear or be disturbed by this, for the boys will not cavort around with fair partners, but will dance alone. Furthermore, said dancing consists of artistic and health-producing steps performed to music, tending to develop graceful and symmetrical bodies. The art of dancing has been introduced lately into the gymnasium classes of the Y. M. C. A. extensively and proven unusually popular. The local boys are practising for the exhibition which comes on the second week in April, and by that time expect to astonish spectators by their light-footed agility and gracefulness upon the polished floor.

A GRANT FOR LADY WHITNEY

Legislature Votes Her $2000 Per Year for Life

TORONTO, March 13.—In recognition of the services which the late Sir James Whitney rendered his province during 25 years of public life the Ontario Legislature will vote to Lady Whitney an annuity of $2,000 per year during her lifetime. This was agreed upon in the House yesterday on motion of Hon. W. H. Hearst and the leader of the Opposition giving his hearty approval. The annuity will date from Sept. 25, 1914.

The Mortgagors' and Purchasers' Relief Act, familiarly known as the moratorium, passed the committee stage in the Legislature yesterday. An hour was spent by the members in discussing contentious clauses held over from the last hearing, and with some important amendments made the bill was advanced. One vital point settled upon the judges concerned the right to fix rates of interest in actions where capital payments could not be met.

The Attorney-General stated that the bill was not designed to include corporations issuing bonds or mortgages, an amendment excluding them from its scope was passed.

T. Herbert Lennox (N. York) was appointed chairman of the public accounts committee at its initial meeting.

GEORGE O'NEILL is now in Guelph where he will likely confer with business men in that city to take over a Canadian League franchise. Mr. O'Neill has a lot of faith in Guelph and he thinks the residents of the Royal City will patronize Canadian League ball stronger than ever after going a year without it. Arrangements are being made to play some games in Galt and Berlin during the season.

Christy Mathewson says: "Comiskey paid in the vicinity of $5000 for Eddie Collins, from which we deduce that the deal was closed on the corner near some bank."

FINED FOR CHEERS

Patriotic Outburst in Lille Cost French City $300,000

BERLIN, March 13. — (Via London.) — Because the inhabitants of Lille, a city in France occupied by the Germans, made a demonstration in honor of a group of prisoners of war bought into the city, the German military authorities in control imposed a tax of $100,000, to be paid by the city before March 20. The people of Lille also were forbidden to leave their houses between five o'clock in the evening and seven o'clock in the morning.

Mining in Belgium Recovering.

BRUSSELS, March 13.—(Via Berlin.)—According to Privy Councillor Bornhardt of the economic commission, appointed by the German Government to promote Belgian business interests, progress is being made toward normal industrial and transportation activity. It is stated that 107,000 miners are working half time in the coal mines, as against 145,000 who operate the mines normally. The daily production of coal has reached 35,000 tons.

The iron industry has been more backward in resuming work because 85 per cent. of the product previously was exported and at present the export business is almost at a standstill.

Mustn't Fly Dutch Flag.

LONDON, March 13. — A Reuter despatch from Amsterdam, says the official Gazette published a notification that foreign ships in Netherlands' ports, hoisting the Dutch flag, or having painted anywhere on them distinctive marks indicative of Dutch nationality, will be prevented from leaving Dutch ports or passing through Dutch territorial waters.

C. O. F. Entertained.

Court Bridgenorth, No. 315, C. O. F., entertained members of Courts Peterborough and Selwyn last night. Some eight or ten men from Peterborough were present, while Reeve McKee and Mr. Fitzgerald represented Selwyn. After the business in connection with the fraternal visit was executed the home court served luncheon and provided a much-enjoyed musical program.

Concert by Choir.

The Park St. Baptist choir will give a very special concert in the Salvationn Army Temple on Monday evening next at 8 o'clock. The Harry Hill, the choirleader, is leaving shortly for his new position as organist and choirleader at Orangeville, and this will be his farewell concert. Adj. and Mrs. McElniney are anxious to have a full house so there will be no admission fee but a silver collection taken in the meeting. All are cordially invited.

THE PLEASURES OF READING

Speaking entirely according to my own judgment I believe that there is no reading so serviceable to the ordinary human being with no pretensions to deep scholarship or literary culture as reading of a miscellaneous character. The man or woman who goes in for a special course of study and makes that the chief aim of literary reaseerata is not going to be of any particular value in ordinary life. The philosopher for example is not generally noted for business acumen however highly he may be rated in the intellectual world, neither is the professional man, outside of the legal fraternity. But the man who dips here and there for his reading, taking pleasure in a few draughts of natural science one day, of fiction the next, and of history and biography the next is bound to get a more extended view of life and its requirements than the man who has only one brand of reading in his repertory. This thought came very forcibly to my mind on looking through a compilation by Harold Begbie, entitled "The Red-Book of Happiness" which has just been added to the library. One can well understand on reading his introductory remarks that he found it a work of great difficulty to get together within its fairly voluminous covers a selection of extracts suitable to all tastes and without the faintest suspicion of uncleanness in any of them. It is most enjoyable to come acvross specimens of the work of Calverley and of Austin Dobson both of whom in days gone by wrote the most pleasing light verse that one could wish to read. Calverley was probably the cleverest parodist of the Victorian era and one could almost wish sometimes that he had put his splendid powers to more serious use, as his poetical gift was very great. Take the following example for instance.

Motherland.

She laid it where the sunbeams fall
Unscann'd upon the broken wall,
Without a tear, without a groan,
She laid it near a mighty stone
Which some rude swain had haply cast
Thither in sport long ages past,
And Time with mosses had o'erlaid,
And fenced with many a tall grass blade,
And all about bid roses bloom
And violets shed their soft perfume.
There, in its cool and quiet bed,
She set her burden down and fled:
Nor flung, all eager to escape,
One glance upon the perfect shape
That lay, still warm and fresh and fair.
But motionless and soundless there.
No human eye had marked her pass
Across the linden-shadowed grass
Ere yet the minister clock chimed seven:
Only the innocent birds of heaven—
The magpie, and the rook whose nest
Swings as the elm-tree waves his crest—
And the lithe cricket, and the hoar
And huge-limbed hound that guards the door,
Look'd on when, as a summer wind
That passing, leaves no trace behind
All unapparrelled, barefoot all,
She ran to that old ruin'd wall,
To leave upon the chill dank earth
(For, ah, she never knew its worth)
'Mid hemlock rank, and fern and ling,
And dews of night that precious thing

And there it might have lain forlorn
From morn till eve, from eve till morn:
But that, by some wild impulse led
The mother, ere she turn'd and fled
One moment stood erect and high:
Then pour'd into the silent sky
A cry so jubilant, so strange,
That Alice—as she strove to range
Her rebel ringlets at her glass—
Sprang up and gazed across the grass;
Shook back those curls so fair to see
Slapp'd her soft hands in childish glee;
And shriek'd — her sweet face all aglow,
Her very limbs with rapture shaking
"My hen has laid an egg, I know;
And only hear the noise she's making."

I have taken this specimen of Calverley's work to show the lighter side of the book. There is a good deal of the light side but there is also the more serious side represented by scores upon scores of authors; pieces not too short to be disappointing nor too long to be burdensome.

One other extract, from Horace Walpole's celebrated letters, will serve to show us that even in his day people were beginning to theorize and put into practice in a crude way the ideas that today are exemplified in our many varieties of air-craft. "But I chiefly amused myself," he writes, "with ideas of the change that would be made in the world by the substitution of balloons to ships. I supposed our seaports to become deserted villages; and Salisbury Plain, Newmarket Heath and all downs arising into dockyards for aerial vessels. In those days Old Sarum will again be a town and have houses in it. There will be fights in the air with wind-guns and bows and arrows; and there will be prodigious increase of land for tillage, especially in France, by breaking up all public roads as useless." Walpole wrote when Montgolfier's pioneer attempts as a balloonist were creating excitement in England.

According to a writ issued yesterday Ethel Gray of this city is suing Robert Austin, a millwright of this city, for $1000 for alleged breach of promise to marry.

Kronprinz Wilhelm Sunk Guadeloupe.

BUENOS AYRES, March 13.—The Dairo announces that the British steamer Churchill arrived yesterday at Pernambuco with the crew and 145 passengers of the French steamer Guadeloupe. The Guadeloupe was sunk near the island of Fernando de Noronho, in the South Atlantic, 125 miles east of the extremity of Brazil, to which country it belongs, by the German auxiliary cruiser Kronprinz Wilhelm. The Guadeloupe sailed from Buenos Ayres Feb. 13 for Bordeaux.

The steamer Guadeloupe was a vessel of 2,974 tons and was built in 1907. She was owned by the French line, and was commanded by Captain Jasseau.

France Calls 1916 Class.

PARIS, March 13.—The Chamber of Deputies yesterday passed a bill calling out the 1916 class of recruits. These recruits will not be sent to the front, however, until after the men of the older classes are utilized.

A despatch from Paris, March 5, said the instruction of the class of 1915 recruits had progressed sufficiently for them to go into the active army and that M. Millerand, Minister of War, had introduced a bill in the Chamber which would give him the authorization to send them to the battle line at his discretion.

MONEY ORDERS ARE RAISED BY SMART PAIR

Police Are Advised of Their Operations in Other Places

The police have been informed to be on the lookout for a man and a woman who are alleged to be raising money orders in this part of the province and who beat the Canadian Express agent in Brantford for $5.00. Their plan is to go into an office or branch agency and buy a money order for 10, 15 or 25 cents. This is taken away and put through a washing process, so that the amount, place of issue, and issuing agents' counter signature are erased. Then another amount for several dollars, usually $5.00 or a little less so as to not affect the margin, is substituted and the other spaces not filled in. This money order is then negotiated at a store or elsewhere.

The circular which the Canadian Express Company have received states that the crooks should be immediately apprehended if detected.

A later circular gave particulars of their work in Brantford. They purchased from the Brantford agent money orders for 50 cents and $1.00, and raised them to $5.00. The man gave the name as Freeman but it is known that he has a woman operating with him. The order was drawn payable to the Weekly Herald and The Weekly Sun.

Copies of the circulars and the description of the two have been posted in the police station and the banks of the city.

NO FUNDS TO MEET CHEQUE

Purchase of Watch Was Made at Jewelery Store

A soldier walked into a jewelry store on George street recently and bought a $5 safety razor. Upon looking in his pocketbook he found he had insufficient money to pay for the purchase. He asked the jeweler if he would kindly cash a cheque for $10. The jeweler complied and cashed the cheque, giving the soldier $5 back. Upon presenting the cheque, the jeweler found that there was no money in the bank to honor it. Then the bitter truth dawned upon him that he had been stung. It is stated on good authority that one or two other stores in the city have been done up lately for varying amounts.

TAIT OPTICAL CO.
410 GEORGE STREET

Scene from "Tipperary," Coming to "The Grand."

Gus Hill's "It's a Long Way to Tipperary" catches on in Canada and will be the attraction at the Grand Opera House on Thursday, March 18. It is unlikely that any play of American origin has ever received the unique distinction the press of Toronto has given to Gus Hill's production. "It's a Long Way to Tipperary." The following quotations will prove the above assertion:

"If the Territorial Government had produced the play for the purpose of encouraging recruits the appeal could not have been stronger."

"'It's a Long Way to Tipperary' contains just those ingredients that the public want. A triumph of the stage mechanic's art. A realistic production of what we have been reading about in the daily despatches since last August. There's nothing far-fetched in the whole play."

"There's extraordinary efficiency in the caste. It is stirring in its appeal and should attract large audiences throughout the length and breadth of Canada. If the play is enacted in American theatres exactly as it was shown here last night, the sympathies of the people of the other side must unmistakably be with Great Britain, because the British sentiment is delightfully strong."

MOTHERS' CLUB

- THEATRICAL -

Few persons who were present at the Grand Opera House last night anticipated that "The End of the Road" would be half so fascinating or so decidedly different from the usual society drama as it proved to be. The general run of shows provide entertainment for a couple of hours, a musical comedy will leave behind a few catchy airs or songs, but it is quite seldom that a drama leaves anything except its name. "The End of the Road" does leave something, one quits the theatre believing that in life they do not always "get married and live happy ever after." The woman in "The End of the Road" is given her chance, she falls, and loses the man she truly loved. Her pleadings are futile. He leaves her to follow the life she could not give up.

Miss Edwards, as Laura Marlock, the leading woman, was in a role more suitable to her style of acting than any she has appeared in thus far this week. In almost every particular she handled her difficult part well, and although in the wrong in many instances, her winsome manner had the audience with her. There was not one in the house but wished that the leading man would give her the "one more chance." The role of Laura Marlock's lover, John Madison, was well taken by Wally Grayson, while Charles R. Phippe as Will Brockton, the man who paved the way for Laura Marlock's downfall, was excellent. Mr. Phippe is the strong man of the company.

"A Romance of the Underworld" will be presented tonight. By special request the company will remain over for Monday and Tuesday evenings, playing "A Woman in the Case", and "The Eyes of the World."
